and all Galilee of the allophyles? Are you rendering retribution on me? Or are you bearing a sharp grudge against me? And quickly I will return your retribution back upon your own heads, ⁵because you took my silver and my gold and you carried my choice and beautiful things into your shrines.
⁶And you sold the sons of Judah and the sons of Jerusalem to the sons of the Greeks to banish them from their borders. ⁷Behold, I am rousing them up from the place, there where you sold them, and will turn your retribution back upon your own heads. ⁸And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hands of the sons of Judah, and they will sell them into captivity to a nation far away, for the Lord has spoken.
- ⁹ Proclaim these things among the nations: Sanctify a war;
stir up the fighters.

Come near, and ascend,
 all you warrior men.

10 Beat your plows into swords and your sickles into barbed lances; let the weakling say, "I am strong."

11 Assemble, and come,
 all you nations round about;
 gather there.
 Let the meek become a fighter.

12 Let all the nations rouse themselves and come up to the valley of Iosaphat, for there I will sit to pass judgment on all the nations round about.

13 Send forth sickles,
 because the harvest has come.
 Go in, tread,
 for the winepress is full.
 The vats overflow,
 because their wickedness is full.

14 Noises have rung out
 in the valley of decision, because the day of the Lord is near
 in the valley of decision.

15 The sun and the moon shall grow dark, and the stars shall shed their brightness.

16 And the Lord shall cry out from Sion and give his voice from Ierousalem, and sky and earth shall be shaken.
 But the Lord will spare his people, and the Lord will strengthen the sons of Israel.

17 And you shall know that I am the Lord your God,
 who tents in Sion, in my holy mountain.
 And Ierousalem shall be holy,
 and aliens shall never again pass through it.

18 And it shall be in that day,
 the mountains shall drip sweetness,
 and the hills shall flow with milk,
 and all the water courses of Ioudas shall flow with water,
 and a fountain shall come forth from the house of the Lord
 and give drink to the wadi of rushes.

19 Egypt shall become an annihilation, and Idumea shall become a plain of annihilation
 for the injustice of^a the sons of Ioudas, because they shed just blood in their land.

20 But Judea shall be inhabited forever, and Ierousalem to all generations.

21 I will avenge their blood, and I will not hold it guiltless,
 and the Lord shall tent in Sion.

OF ABDIAS

1 The Vision of Abdias.

This is what the Lord God says to Idumea:
 I heard a report from the Lord,
 and he sent enclosing to the nations:
 "Rise up, and let us rise up against it for battle!"

2 Behold, I have made you least among the nations;
 you are very much dishonored.

3 The arrogance of your heart has raised you
 up,
 though you tent in the holes of the rocks,
 exalting his habitation, saying in his heart, "Who will bring me down to the ground?"

4 If you soar like an eagle, even if you set your nest among the stars,
 from there I will bring you down,
 says the Lord.

5 If thieves came to you, or robbers by night,
 where would you be cast aside;
 would they not steal what is sufficient for themselves?
 And if grape gatherers came to you, would they not leave gleanings?

6 How Esau was searched, and his hidden things seized.

7 All the men of your covenant have sent you
 as far as the borders;
 they have risen up against you;
 your men of peace have prevailed against
 you;
 they have set an ambush beneath you.
 There is no understanding in it.

8 On that day, says the Lord,
 I will destroy the wise out of Idumea and understanding out of Mount Esau.

9 And your fighters from Thaiman shall be terrified
 so that a person will be removed from Mount Esau.

10 On account of the slaughter and impiety against your brother Iakob, shame shall also cover you,
 and you shall be removed forever.

11 Since the day you stood in opposition, on the day that aliens took captive his force
 and foreigners entered his gate and cast lots for Ierousalem, you too were like one of them.

12 And do not look upon a day of your brother,
 on the day of foreigners,
 and do not rejoice over the sons of Ioudas
 on the day of their ruin,
 and do not boast

^aOr done to

- on the day of affliction.
- 13 Do not even enter the gates of the peoples on the day of their suffering nor look, even you, upon their gathering
on the day of their ruin
nor join in an attack on their force on the day of their destruction.
- 14 Do not even stand at their mountain passes, to destroy utterly their escapees nor hem in those among them who are attempting to flee
on the day of affliction.
- 15 For the day of the Lord against all the nations is near.
As you have done, so shall it be to you;
your recompense shall be returned on your head.
- 16 For as you have drunk on my holy
mountain,
all the nations shall drink wine;
they shall drink and descend and be as though they are not.
- 17 But on Mount Zion there shall be salvation,
and it^a shall be holy,
and the house of Iakob shall take possession of those who took possession of
them.
- 18 And the house of Iakob shall be a fire,
the house of Ioseph a flame,
the house of Esau stubble, and they shall be enflamed against them
and consume them,
and there shall be no fire bearer for the house of Esau,
for the Lord has spoken.
- 19 And those in Nageb shall possess Mount Esau,
and those in the Sephela the allophytes, and they shall possess Mount Ephraim and the plain of Samaria and Benjamin and Galaaditis.
- 20 And this is the beginning of the migration:
the sons of Israel shall have the land of the Chaninites as far as Sarepta and the migration of Ierusalem as far as Sephra^hta;
they shall also possess the cities of the Nageb.
- 21 The men who are rescued from Mount Zion shall go up to punish Mount Esau, and the kingdom shall be the Lord's.

IONAS

1 And a word of the Lord came to Ionas the son of Amathi, saying, ²"Arise, and go to Nineue, the great city, and make a proclamation in it, because the cry of its wickedness has come up to me."³ And Ionas arose to flee to Tharsis from the presence of the Lord. And he went down to Joppe and found a ship going to Tharsis, and he paid his fare and went on board to sail with them to Tharsis away from the presence of the Lord.

4 And the Lord aroused a wind in the sea, and a great surge came upon the sea, and the ship was in danger of breaking up. ⁵And the mariners were afraid and cried out, each to their god. And they heaved the wares that were in the ship into the sea, to be lightened from them. But Ionas went down into the hold of the ship and was sleeping and snoring. ⁶And the captain came to him and said to him, "Why are you snoring? Get up, invoke your god in order that the god might deliver us and we not perish."

7 And they said each to his neighbor, "Come, let us cast lots and learn on whose account this calamity is among us. And they cast lots, and the lot fell on Ionas. ⁸And they said to him, "Tell us on what account this calamity is among us. What is your occupation? And where do you come from? And from what country are you and of what people?" ⁹And he said to them, "I am a slave of the Lord, and I worship the Lord, God of the sky, who made the sea and the dry land." ¹⁰And the men feared with a great fear and said to him, "What is this that you have done!" For the men knew that he was fleeing from the presence of the Lord, because he had told them.

11 And they said to him, "What should we do to you, and the sea will abate from us?" Because the sea kept coming and stirring up a surge even more. ¹²And Ionas said to them, "Pick me up, and throw me into the sea, and the sea will abate from you, for I know it is because of me that this great surge is upon you." ¹³And the men exerted themselves to return to land, and they could not, because the sea kept coming and stirring up against them more. ¹⁴And they cried out to the Lord and said, "No way, O Lord, do not let us perish on account of this person's life. And do not put upon us just blood, for you, O Lord, have done as you have wished." ¹⁵And they took Ionas and cast him into the sea, and the sea ceased from its tumult. ¹⁶And the men feared the Lord in great fear, and they sacrificed a sacrifice to the Lord and vowed vows.

2 ⁽¹⁻¹⁷⁾And the Lord ordered a great sea monster to swallow Ionas, and Ionas was in the belly of the sea monster three days and three nights. ²⁽¹⁾And Ionas prayed to the Lord, his God, from the belly of the sea monster ³⁽²⁾and said,

- "I cried out to the Lord my God in my affliction, and he heard me;
out of the belly of Hades
you heard my cry, my voice.
⁴⁽³⁾ You cast me into the depths of the heart of the sea,
and streams surrounded me;
all your surges and your billows passed over me.
⁵⁽⁴⁾ And I said, 'I have been driven away from your eyes;

^ai.e. Mount Zion

- shall I add to look
at your holy shrine?
6(5) Water poured over me as far as my life;
the deepest abyss surrounded me;
my head sank into the crevices of the mountains.
7(6) I went down to the land, whose bars are everlasting barriers,
and let the decay of my life ascend,
O Lord my God.
8(7) As my life was failing me,
I remembered the Lord;
so may my prayer come to you into your holy shrine.
9(8) People who cherish vain and false things have forsaken their mercy.
10(9) But I with a voice of praise and acknowledgment
will sacrifice to you;
what I have vowed I will pay to the Lord for my deliverance."

11(10) And the sea monster was ordered, and it cast Ionas out upon dry land.

3 And a word of the Lord came to Ionas a second time, saying, ²"Get up, go to Nineue, the great city, and proclaim in it according to the previous proclamation that I spoke to you. ³And Ionas got up and went to Nineue, as the Lord said. Now Nineue was a great city to God, of about three days' journey. ⁴And Ionas began to go into the city about one day's journey. And he proclaimed and said,
"Three days more and Nineue shall be overthrown!" ⁵And the men of Nineue believed God and proclaimed a fast and put on sackcloth from the great among them unto the small among them.

⁶ And the news reached the king of Nineue, and he rose from his throne, and removed his robe from himself and covered himself with sackcloth and sat on ashes. ⁷And proclamation was made, and it was spoken in Nineue by the king and his nobles, saying, "Let people and animals and cattle and sheep not taste anything or feed or drink water." ⁸And the people and animals put on sackcloth, and they cried fervently to God. And they turned, each from his evil way and from the injustice in his hands, saying, ⁹"Who knows if God will repent and turn from the anger of his wrath and we will not perish?"

¹⁰ And God saw their deeds, that they turned from their evil ways, and God repented at the calamity which he said he would do to them, and he did not do it.

4 And Ionas was grieved with great grief and confused. ²And he prayed to the Lord and said, "Ah Lord! Were these not my words while I was still in my country? That is why I had the foresight to flee to Tharsis, for I knew that you are merciful and compassionate, long-suffering and very merciful and one who repents at calamities. ³And now, O Sovereign, Lord, take my life from me, because it is better for me to die than to live." ⁴And the Lord said to Ionas, "Are you exceedingly grieved?" ⁵And Ionas went out of the city and sat down opposite the city and made a tent for himself there. And he sat under it in the shade until he should see what would become of the city.

⁶ And the Lord God ordered a gourd, and it came up over Ionas's head to be a shade over his head to shade him from his miseries. And Ionas was happy with great happiness about the gourd.
⁷And early the next morning, God ordered a worm, and it smote the gourd, and it withered.
⁸And it came to pass, as soon as the sun rose, God ordered a scorching wind of heat, and the sun beat down on the head of Ionas, and he became disheartened and renounced his life and said, "It is better for me to die than to live."

⁹ And God said to Ionas, "Are you exceedingly grieved over the gourd?" And he said, "I am exceedingly grieved, unto death." ¹⁰And the Lord said, "You had consideration for the gourd, which you suffered no trouble for, and you did not nurture it, which came into being towards nightfall and perished towards nightfall. ¹¹But ^ashall I not spare Nineue, the great city, in which dwell more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons who did not know their right hand from their left, and many animals?"^a

NAOUM

- 1 An issue for Nineue. A book of vision of Naoum the Elkesite.
- 2 A jealous and avenging god is the Lord,
the Lord avenging with wrath,
the Lord taking vengeance on his adversaries and removing his enemies.
- 3 The Lord is slow to anger, and his strength is great,
and holding guiltless, the Lord will not hold guiltless.
- His way is in consummation and ^bseismic upheaval^b,
and clouds are dust for his feet,
⁴ threatening^c the sea and making it dry and making all the rivers desolate; Basanitis and Carmel were diminished, and the vegetation of Lebanon has died
out.
- 5 The mountains quaked because of him,
and the hills were shaken,
and the earth was removed from his presence,
the whole of it and all who live in it.
- 6 Who shall endure before his wrath?
And who shall withstand the heat of his anger?
His anger causes domains to melt, and by him the rocks were broken in pieces.

^aOr I shall . . . ^bPossibly earthquake and hurricane ^ci.e. the Lord

7 The Lord is kind
to those who await him in a day of trouble and familiar with those who reverence him.
8 And by the flooding of a passage,
he will make an end to those who arise,
and darkness will pursue his enemies.
9 Why do you calculate against the Lord?
It is he that will make an end.
He will not avenge twice added together with affliction!
10 Because he shall be left dry down to their foundation,
and he shall be consumed like a twisted yew tree
and like straw fully dried.
11 From you a calculation shall go forth against the Lord,
counseling evil things, contrary things.
12 This is what the Lord says, who rules over
many waters,
"And thus they shall be dispersed,
and your fame shall no longer be heard.
13 And now I will break off his rod from you, and I will shatter your bonds." 14 And the Lord will command concerning you:
"Part of your name will no longer be scattered.
I will utterly destroy the carved and molten images
from the house of your God.
I will make your grave, because they are fleeting."
15 Behold, on the mountains are the feet of one who brings good tidings and who announces peace.
Celebrate your feasts, O Ioudas;
pay your vows,
for they shall not add any longer to pass on to becoming old.

2 ^(1.15)It is finished; it has been removed.
²⁽¹⁾Delivered from trouble, he rose up, breathing in your face.
Watch the road;
grasp your loins;
be very manly in strength!

³⁽²⁾ For the Lord has turned aside the pride of Iakob,
as he did the pride of Israel,
for shaking they shook them off and their branches.

⁴⁽³⁾ They destroyed their ^aweapons of dominance^a from men, ^amighty men^a sporting with fire.
The reins of their chariots,
in the day of his preparation, and the horsemen will be thrown into confusion ⁵⁽⁴⁾in the roads.

And the chariots will be in confusion and jammed together in the streets.
Their appearance will be like torches of fire and like flashing lightnings.
⁶⁽⁵⁾ And their nobles shall remember and flee by day,
and they shall become weak in their journey
and hasten to the walls and prepare their outposts.
⁷⁽⁶⁾ The river gates have been opened,
and the royal palace has collapsed, ⁸⁽⁷⁾ and the substructure has been uncovered,
and this^b kept coming up,
and its slave women were being led away, moaning in their hearts like doves.
⁹⁽⁸⁾ And as for Nineue, her water is like a swimming pool of
water,
and they, when they were fleeing, did not stop,
and there was no one who looked on.
¹⁰⁽⁹⁾ They were plundering the silver;
they were plundering the gold,
and there was no end of her adornment.
They have been laden with all her desirable vessels.
¹¹⁽¹⁰⁾ Shaking and quaking and trembling and shattering of heart and loosening of knees
and pains in every loin,
and the face of all like burnt earthenware!
¹²⁽¹¹⁾ Where is the abode of the lions and the feeding ground that exists for whelps,
where the lion went to enter there,
a lion's whelp, and there was none to scare it away?
¹³⁽¹²⁾ A lion has snatched enough for its whelps and has strangled for its lions, and it has filled its lair with game
and its abode with prey.

14(13) Behold, I am against you, says the Lord Almighty, and I will burn your abundance in smoke, and a sword shall devour your lions, and I will utterly destroy your prey from the earth, and your works shall be heard of no more.

3 Ah city of bloodshed, utterly deceitful, full of injustice, prey shall not be groped for!
2 A noise of whips and a noise of the rumble of wheels,
of pursuing horse and bounding chariot 3 and of mounting horsemen and glittering sword and of flashing arms and a multitude of wounded and of heavy falling.
And there was no end to her nations,

^ai.e. mighty men = weapons of dominance ^bi.e. substructure

bodies,
because of a multitude of whoredom.
4 Beautiful and gratifying prostitute, manipulator of potions,
she who barter nations through her whoredom
and tribes through her potions.
5 Behold, I am against you, says the Lord God the Almighty,
and I will uncover your behind to your face, and I will show your shame to nations and your dishonor to kingdoms.
6 And I will throw filth at you, even your own uncleanness,
and I will set you as an example.
7 And it shall be, everyone who sees you will go down from you and say, “Wretched Nineue, who will bemoan her?
From where shall I seek comfort for her?”
8 Tune a chord; prepare a portion,
O Amon who dwells in rivers^a;
water is around her,
whose dominion is the sea,
and her walls are water, 9 and her strength is Ethiopia and Egypt
—and there is no end to flight!
Even the Libyans have become her helpers.
10 She too shall go into migration a captive, and they shall dash her infants to the ground
at the heads of all her streets.
And they shall cast lots for all her glorious
things,
and all her nobles shall be bound in handcuffs.
11 You too will be drunken,
and you will be despised;
as well you will seek a position for yourself from your enemies.
12 All your fortresses are fig trees with guards;
if shaken, they will then fall into the mouth of the eater.
13 Behold, your people are like women in your midst.
The gates of your land, when opened, shall be opened to your foes;
fire shall devour your bars.
14 Draw yourself water for a siege; strengthen your forts;
trample the clay,
and let it be trodden in the chaff;
make it stronger than brick.
15 There a fire will devour you;
a sword will utterly destroy you.
It will devour you like the grasshopper, and you shall be weighed down like the locust larva.

16 You increased your merchandise beyond the stars of the sky.
The locust larva rushed in and spread.
17 Your commingled one hopped off like a locust, like a grasshopper having landed on a fence
in the days of frost:
the sun rose, and it jumped off and knew not its place. Woe to them!
18 Your shepherds dozed;
the Assyrian king
put your mighty men to sleep.
Your people have departed for the mountains,
and there has been none to receive them.
19 There is no healing for your ruin;
your blow swelled up.
All who hear the news about you will clap their hands over you.
For against whom has your endless wickedness not come?

HABBAKOU 1

1 The issue that the prophet Habbakoum^b saw.
2 O Lord, how long shall I cry out,
and you will not listen?
Being wronged shall I cry to you,
and you will not save?
3 Why did you show me toils and hardships, to look at wretchedness and impiety?
Justice has come before me,
and the judge is receiving.
4 Therefore, law has been dispersed, and judgment is not administered at all, because an impious person oppresses the just—
on this account, judgment will come forth perverted.
5 Look, you despisers, and watch!
And marvel at marvelous things, and be annihilated!
For I am working a work in your days that you would not believe if someone should tell it.
6 For behold I am rousing [the Chaldeans,] the fighters, the bitter and swift nation that goes over the breadths of the earth to possess dwellings not his own.
7 He is frightening and conspicuous;
his judgment will be from himself, and his unjust gain will come from himself.
8 And his horses will leap beyond leopards and will be swifter than the wolves of Arabia.
His horsemen will ride forth
and charge from far away;
they will fly like an eagle eager to devour.
9 Consummation will come to the impious, who stand with their faces in opposition,

^aOr streams ^bHambakoum = Zi and he will gather a captivity like the sand.

 10 And at kings he will scoff, and tyrants will be his toys.
 He will jest at every fortress and heap up earth and take it.
 11 Then he will have a change of spirit and pass through and will appease.

This strength belongs to my God.
 12 Are you not from the beginning,
 O Lord, my holy God?
 So we shall not die.
 O Lord, you have appointed him for judgment,
 and he has formed me to examine his chastening.
 13 A pure eye is not for seeing evil things, and you cannot look upon sufferings.
 Why do you look on those who despise?
 Will you keep silence while the impious swallows up the just?
 14 And you will make people like the fish of
 the sea
 and like crawling things that have no leader!

15 He drew up consummation with a fish hook and dragged him with a fishing net and gathered him in his seines.
 16 On this account he will be glad, and his heart will rejoice.
 On this account he will sacrifice to his seine and burn incense to his fishing net, because by them he made his portion fat and his food choice.
 17 Therefore he will cast his fishing net and never spare killing the nations.

2 I will stand at my watch post and station myself on a rock.
 And I will keep watch to see what he will say to me
 and what I should answer to my reproof.
 2 And the Lord answered me and said, Write a vision,
 and clearly on a tablet,
 so that the reader might pursue them.
 3 For there is still a vision for an appointed
 time,
 and it^a will rise up at the end and not in vain.
 If it^a should tarry, wait for it^a,
 for when it^a comes it^a will come and not delay.
 4 If it^a draws back,
 my soul is not pleased in it^a.
 But the just shall live by my faith^b.

5 But he who is drunk with wine and a despiser
 —a boastful man—will complete nothing,

who widened his soul like Hades,
 and he, like death, not being satisfied, will also gather to himself all nations and will welcome to himself all peoples.

6 Shall not all these things take up a parable against him and a riddle as a narrative of him? And they will say, “Woe to him who increases for himself things not his own—
 how long?—and who weighs down his collar^c strongly,” 7 because when they bite him they will suddenly rise.
 And those who plot against you will become sober,
 and you will be booty for them.
 8 For you have despoiled many nations, all the peoples that survive shall despoil
 you—
 on account of human bloodshed and
 impieties of the earth,
 of the city and of all who live in it.

9 “Ah he who gains an evil gain for his house, to set his nest on high,
 to be pulled out from the reach of evil ones!”
 10 You have devised shame for your house;
 you have put an end to many peoples,
 and your soul has sinned.
 11 For a stone shall cry out from a wall, and a beetle shall utter them from wood.

12 “Woe to him who builds a city by bloodshed
 and prepares a city with injustices!” 13 Are these not from the Lord Almighty?
 And enough peoples have expired in fire,
 and many nations have become faint-hearted.
 14 Because the earth will be filled with knowing the glory of the Lord, like water it will cover them.

15 “Ah he who by turbid upset gives his neighbor to drink and intoxicates him
 in order to gaze on their caverns^d,” 16 Drink, you too, an abundance of dishonor from glory,
 and shake, and quake!
 A cup in the Lord’s right hand
 has gone around to you, and dishonor has been gathered to your glory!
 17 For the impiety of Lebanon will cover you, and the misery of wild animals will terrify you—
 on account of human bloodshed and
 impieties of the earth,
 of the city and of all who live in it.

18 What use is a carved image, because one carved it?
He shaped it a molten image, a deceptive representation,
because its shaper trusts in his shape,
to make idols dumb!
19 Woe to him who says to the wood, "Be sober! Wake up!"
and to the stone, "Be exalted!"
And it is a representation, that is, a beaten-out piece of gold and silver, and there is no breath in it.
20 But the Lord is in his holy shrine;
let all the earth do reverence before him!

3 A prayer of the prophet Habbakoum^a with a song.

2 O Lord, I have heard of your renown and feared;
I considered your works and was astonished.
You will be known in the midst of two
living creatures;
you will be recognized when the years
draw near;
you will be displayed when the right time
comes;
you will remember mercy when my soul
is troubled in wrath.
3 God will come out of Thaiman, and the Holy One from a shady, densely wooded mountain.

Interlude on strings

His virtue has covered heavens, and the earth is full of his praise.
4 And his brightness will be like light;
horns are in his hands.
And he has established a strong love of his strength.
5 A report shall proceed before him, and he shall go forth, his feet in sandals.
6 He stopped, and the earth shook;
he looked, and nations dissolved;
the mountains were broken to pieces in violence;
everlasting hills of his eternal passage melted.
7 I saw the encampments of the Ethiopians instead of troubles;
they shall be terrified, even the tents of the land of Madiam.
8 Surely, you were not angry with rivers, O Lord?
Or was your wrath against rivers,
or your onslaught against a sea?
Because you will mount your horses,
and your cavalry is deliverance.
9 Stretching, you will stretch your bow;
seven scepters, says the Lord.

Interlude on strings

A land of rivers will be torn asunder.
10 Peoples will see you and writhe as you scatter the waters of a course.
The deep gave forth its voice,
the height of its representation.
11 The sun was raised up, and the moon stood still in its course.
Your missiles will go into the light, into the brightness of the lightning of your weapons.
12 With a threat you will diminish the earth, and with wrath you will bring down
nations.
13 You came forth for the salvation of your
people,
to save your anointed ones.
You cast death on the heads of the lawless;
you raised fetters up to the neck.

14 In a frenzy you cut through the heads of the mighty;
they shall quake at this^b.
They shall open their bridles like a poor man eating in secret.
15 And you caused your horses to go up into
the sea,
as they were stirring up much water.
16 I watched, and my belly was terrified by the sound of the prayer of my lips.
And trembling entered into my bones,
and my posture was stirred beneath me.
I will rest on a day of affliction to go up to a people of my sojourning.
17 For a fig tree shall bear no fruit,
and no produce shall be on the vines;
the work of the olive will deceive,
and the plains will yield no food;
sheep have run out of food,
and cows are not at the mangers.
18 But I will exult in the Lord;
I will rejoice in God my savior.
19 The Lord God is my power, and he shall establish my feet unto the end.
He causes me to mount the heights,
to be victorious in his song.

Hab 3 according to Codd. V II-86-407

3 A prayer of Habbakoum^a with a song.

2 O Lord, I have heard of your renown and paid reverence;
O Lord, I considered your works and was astonished.
You will be known in the midst of two
living creatures;
you will be recognized when the years
draw near;
you will be displayed when the right time
comes;

^aHabbakoum = Zi ^bI.e. frenzy

you will remember mercy when my soul
is troubled in wrath.
3 God will come from ^athe south-west, and the Holy One from Mount Pharan.
^b*Change of an interlude on strings*^b

The sky has covered the comeliness of his glory,
and the world has been filled with his praise.

4 The splendor of light shall be his;
horns from his hand belong to him.
There the power of his glory has been fixed.
5 A fall shall go forward before him, and the greatest of winged creatures will follow at his feet.
6 Having taken his stand, he measured out the
earth;
having observed, he portrayed the
nations.

They were broken to pieces,
and the mountains shall be shattered;
the woodland vales of long ago shall be brought low;
the ways which are from yore shall be changed;
on account of him the world shall be shaken.

7 I have observed the tents of the Ethiopians;
those who inhabit the leather coverings
of Madiam shall be troubled.
8 Do not be angry with rivers, O Lord.
Or is your wrath against rivers,
or your anger against a sea?
You mounted on your chariots;
your cavalry, before which you advanced,
is deliverance.

9 Your bow was awakened;
you fattened the missiles of its quiver.
Interlude on strings

You will disperse rivers, and you will shake the earth.

10 When you look them in the face, the mountains will be stirred,
when your violent rain storm passed through it.
The abyss gave forth a great voice.
11 A light held back the brilliance of the sun,
but the radiance of the moon stayed;
according to the radiance of your missiles
they shall go forth,
according to the radiance of the lightning of your sword.
12 You shall be awakened against the earth with wrath;
you shall thresh nations with anger.
13 You reappeared for the salvation of your
people,
to deliver your chosen;

you shot down the heads of arrogant people with arrows;
they shall sink unto the depth of the sea.
Interlude on strings

14 You punished the leaders of the sinners with your power,
who trusted in their stubbornness for the sake of devouring the poor in secret.

15 You caused your horses to go up on the seas;
the violent waters of the deep were stirred
up.

16 I was arrayed for battle, and my innards were unsettled by the voice of your mouth.
Trembling sank into my bones;
I was troubled within myself.
You will guard these things in a day of affliction,
to march against a nation making war on your people.

17 The fig tree shall not deliver its fruit, and there shall be no crop on the vines;
the olive tree shall become extinct,
and the earth shall not put forth vegetation;
sheep shall fail from the fold,
and cows shall not be at the mangers.

18 But I will exult in the Lord;
I will rejoice in God my savior.
19 The Lord my God gave me strength, and he caused my feet to be secure.
And upon the necks of my enemies he causes me to mount;
having been swift, he rested.

SOPHONIAS

1 A word of the Lord that came to Sophonias the son of Chousi son of Godolias son of Amarias son of Hezekias in the days of King Iosias son of Amon of Ioudas.

2 With extinction, let it become extinct
from the face of the earth, says the Lord.
3 Let humanity become extinct, and cattle;
let the birds of the air become extinct,
and the fish of the sea.
And I will remove humans
from the face of the earth, says the Lord.
4 And I will stretch out my hand against Ioudas
and against all the inhabitants of Ierousalem,
and I will remove from this place the names of the goddess Baal
and the names of the priests 5 and those who do obeisance on the roofs to the host of the sky

^aOr Lips ^bPerhaps a modulation/change of key through an interlude on strings and those who swear by the Lord and those who swear by their king 6 and those who turn aside from the Lord and those who do not seek the Lord and those who do not cling to the Lord.

7 Show reverence before the Lord God!
 For the day of the Lord is near;
 because the Lord has prepared his sacrifice,
 he has consecrated his called ones.

8 And it shall be on the day of the Lord's sacrifice
 that I will punish the rulers and the king's house
 and all who dress themselves in foreign dress.

9 And on that day I will publicly punish all in the gateway, who fill the house of the Lord their God with impiety and fraud.

10 And it shall be on that day, says the Lord, there shall be a sound of clamor from the gate of men slaying and a moaning from the second^a and a loud crash from the hills.

11 Lament, you who inhabit the destroyed part^b,
 because all the people were made like Chanaan;
 all those buoyed by silver were utterly destroyed.

12 And it shall be on that day, I will search Ierusalem with a lamp,
 and I will punish the men who despise their ordinances, who say in their hearts,
 "The Lord will not do good,
 nor will he do harm."

13 And their power shall become plunder, and their houses annihilation.
 And they will build houses and shall not inhabit them, and they will plant vineyards and shall not drink their wine.

14 For the great day of the Lord is near,
 near and very swift;
 the sound of the day of the Lord is bitter and harsh;
 it has been made powerful.

15 That day will be a day of wrath,
 a day of affliction and anguish,
 a day of untimely fate and annihilation,
 a day of darkness and gloom,
 a day of clouds and fog,

16 a day of trumpet and shouting against the fortified cities and against the lofty corners.

17 And I will afflict people, and they shall walk like the blind,

because they sinned against the Lord, and he shall pour out their blood like dust and their flesh like cow dung.
 18 Neither their silver nor their gold will be able to deliver them in the day of the Lord's wrath, and in the fire of his zeal
 the whole earth shall be consumed, for he will bring about a swift end upon all the inhabitants of the earth.

2 Gather together, and bind yourselves
 together,
 you uneducated nation, 2 before you become
 like a transient flower,
 before there comes upon you
 the Lord's anger,
 before there comes upon you
 the day of the Lord's wrath.
 3 Seek the Lord, all you humble of the earth; work judgment, and seek justice, and distinguish them,
 that you might be sheltered
 on the day of the Lord's wrath.
 4 For Gaza shall be plundered, and Ascalon shall become an
 annihilation,
 and Azotus shall be cast out at noon,
 and Akkaron shall be uprooted.

5 Woe, you that inhabit the strip of the sea, resident aliens of the Cretans!
 A word of the Lord is against you,
 O Chanaan, land of allophytes, and I will wipe you out of a dwelling place.

6 And Crete shall be a pasture for flocks and a fold for sheep.

7 And the strip of the sea shall belong to the remnant of the house of Ioudas; they shall pasture upon them^c
 in the houses of Ascalon;
 in late afternoon they shall lodge before the sons of Ioudas,
 because the Lord, their God, has looked upon them
 and returned their captivity.

8 I heard the taunts of Moab and the revilings of the sons of Ammon with which they taunted my people and made boasts against my borders.

9 Therefore, I live, says the Lord
 God of Israel,
 Moab shall become like Sodoma,
 and the sons of Ammon like Gomorra, and Damascus shall be abandoned like a mound of salt,
 and it shall be annihilated forever.
 And the remnant of my people shall plunder them,

^ai.e. gate ^bLacking in Gk ^cAntecedent unclear

- and the remnant of my nation shall possess them.
- 10 She^a shall be theirs in return for their pride, for they scoffed and boasted against the Lord the Almighty.
- 11 The Lord will appear against them, and he will utterly destroy all the gods of the nations of the earth, and all the islands of the nations shall do obeisance to him, each in its place.
- 12 You also, O Ethiopians, are victims of my sword.
- 13 And he will stretch out his hand against the north and destroy the Assyrian, and he will make Nineue an annihilation, dry like a wilderness.
- 14 And flocks shall pasture in its midst, and all the wild animals of the earth. And chameleons and hedgehogs shall sleep in its compartments, and wild beasts shall cry in its burrows, ravens in its gates, for its rise is that of a cedar.
- 3 (2.15) This is the city, the one that despises, that dwells in hope, that says in its heart: "I am, and there is no one else after me." How it has become an annihilation, a pasture for wild animals. Everyone who passes through it will hiss and wave his hands.
- 2(3.1) Ah, distinguished and ransomed, the city, the dove!
- (2) It listened to no voice. It accepted no correction. It trusted not in the Lord and did not draw near to its God.
- 3 Its rulers within it are like roaring lions, its judges like wolves of Arabia; they left nothing until the morning.
- 4 Its prophets are ^bpuffs of wind^b, scornful men; its priests profane the sacred things and desecrate law.
- 5 But the Lord within it is just and will do no injustice. Morning by morning, he will render his judgment and ^cno injustice unto victory^c.
- 6 I pulled down the haughty with ruin; their corners were annihilated; I altogether laid waste their roads so that no one travels through;
- their cities failed, because no one existed or lived there.
- 7 I said, "But fear me, and accept correction, and you will not be destroyed before its eyes, in regard to all the things for which I punished it. Prepare yourself eagerly." All their gleanings is corrupt.
- 8 Therefore, wait for me, says the Lord, for the day of my arising as a witness. For my judgment is for gatherings of nations, to welcome kings, to pour out upon them all the wrath of my anger; for in the fire of my zeal all the earth shall be consumed.
- 9 Because then I will change the tongue for peoples in its generation, that all might call upon the name of the Lord to be subject to him under one yoke.
- 10 From the ends of the rivers of Ethiopia they shall bring my offerings.
- 11 On that day you shall not be put to shame as a result of all your deeds by which you have acted impiously against me, because then I will remove from you the contempt of your pride, and you shall no longer add to boast against my holy mountain.
- 12 And I will leave in you a people meek and humble. And the remnant of Israel will beware of the name of the Lord.
- 13 And they will do no injustice nor speak vanity, nor shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they will pasture and lie down, and no one shall make them afraid.
- 14 Rejoice, O daughter Zion! Proclaim, O daughter Ierusalem! Be glad, and be delighted with your whole heart, O daughter Ierusalem!
- 15 The Lord has taken away your injustices; he has redeemed you from the hand of your enemies. The king of Israel, the Lord, is in your midst; you shall see disaster no more.
- 16 At that time the Lord will say to Ierusalem: Courage, O Zion; do not let your hands grow weak.
- 17 The Lord your God is in you; a mighty one will save you;

he will bring gladness to you and renew you in his affection, and he will be glad over you with delight
as on a day of a feast.

- 18 And I will gather those who are shattered.
Alas, who took up a reproach against her?
19 Behold, I will act in you for your sake
in that time, says the Lord, and I will save her who has been thrust out and her who has been rejected;
I will welcome and make them objects of boasting
and renowned in all the earth.
20 And they will be ashamed in that time, when I do well with you and in the time when I accept you;
for I will make you renowned and objects of boasting
among all the peoples of the earth, when I return your captivity before you, says the Lord.

HAGGAIOS

1 In the second year of King Darius, in the sixth month, on the first of the month, a word of the Lord came by the hand of the prophet Haggaios, saying, Speak to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, from the tribe of Ioudas, and to Iesous the son of Iosedek, the great priest, saying, ²This is what the Lord Almighty says, saying, These people say, The time has not come to build the Lord's house. ³And a word of the Lord came by the hand of the prophet Haggaios, saying, ⁴Is it time for you to live in your paneled houses, but this house is in ruins? ⁵And now, this is what the Lord Almighty says, Focus now your hearts on your ways. ⁶You have sown much and taken in little; you have eaten, and not to satiety; you have drunk, and not unto drunkenness; you have clothed yourselves and have not been warmed by them, and he who gathers wages gathered them for a purse with holes.

⁷ This is what the Lord Almighty says, Set your hearts on your ways. ⁸Go up to the mountain, and cut trees, and build the house, and I will take pleasure in it and be honored, said the Lord. ⁹You have looked for much, and little has come, and it was brought home, and I blew it away. Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty says, Because my house is a wilderness but you run off each one to his own house, ¹⁰therefore the sky shall withhold the dew, and the earth shall withdraw its produce. ¹¹And I will bring a sword on the land and on the mountains and on the grain and on the wine and on the oil, and what the soil produces, and on human beings and on animals and on all the labors of their hands.

words of the prophet Haggaios, as the Lord had sent him to them, and the people feared before the Lord. ¹³And Haggaios, the messenger of the Lord, said to the people, I am with you, says the Lord. ¹⁴And the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zorobabel son of Salathiel, from the tribe of Ioudas, and the spirit of Iesous son of Iosedek, the great priest, and the spirit of the remnant of all the people, and they entered and were doing work in the house of the Lord Almighty, their God, ¹(^{1.15})on the twenty-fourth of the sixth month, in the second year of King Darius.

In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month, the Lord spoke by the hand of the prophet Haggaios, saying, ²Speak now to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, from the tribe of Ioudas, and to Iesous the son of Iosedek, the great priest, and to all the remnant of the people, saying, ³Who is left among you that saw this house in its former glory? And how do you see it now? As though it does not exist before you?^a ⁴And now, be strong, O Zorobabel, says the Lord, and be strong, O Iesous the son of Iosedek, the great priest, and let all the people of the land be strong, says the Lord, and act, for I am with you, says the Lord Almighty, ⁵and my spirit is present among you; have courage. ⁶For this is what the Lord Almighty says, Once again I will shake the sky and the earth and the sea and the dry land, ⁷and I will shake all the nations, and the choice things of all the nations shall come, and I will fill this house with splendor, says the Lord Almighty. ⁸The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, says the Lord Almighty. ⁹For the last splendor of this house shall be great beyond the first, says the Lord Almighty, and in this place I will give peace, says the Lord Almighty, even peace of mind for an acquisition to everyone who creates, to raise up this shrine.

¹⁰ On the twenty-fourth of the ninth month of the second year of Darius, a word of the Lord came to the prophet Haggaios, saying: ¹¹This is what the Lord Almighty says: Ask the priests for a ruling, saying: ¹²If a person should take consecrated meat in the skirt of his garment and the skirt of his garment should touch bread or stew or wine or oil or any kind of food—whether it will become holy? And the priests answered and said, "No." ¹³And Haggaios said, "If one who is defiled by a soul^b should touch any of these, will it become defiled?" And the priests answered and said, "It will become defiled." ¹⁴And Haggaios answered and said, So is this people, and so is this nation before me, says the Lord, and so are all the works of their hands, and whoever comes near there will be defiled on account of their ^cearly gains; they will suffer because of their toils. And you used to hate those who reprove in the gates. ¹⁵And now, do place it in your hearts from this day and beyond, before laying one stone upon another in the Lord's shrine, ¹⁶who you were; when you threw twenty sata^d of barley into the grain bin and it became ten sata^d of barley, and you entered the wine vat to draw fifty measures^a and they became twenty. ¹⁷I struck you with dearth and wind-damage, and all the works of your hands with hail, and you did not return to me, says the Lord. ¹⁸Subject now your hearts from this day forward; from the twenty-fourth of the ninth month, even from the day when the Lord's shrine was founded, place it in your hearts, ¹⁹whether still there will be anything recognized on the threshing floor and whether still the vine and the fig and the pomegranate and the trees of the olive that fail to bear fruit ^bwill be recognized^b; from this day on I will bless you.

²⁰ And a word of the Lord came a second time to the prophet Haggaios on the twenty-fourth of the month, saying: ²¹Say to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, from the tribe of Ioudas, saying, I am shaking the sky and the earth and the sea and the dry land, ²²and I will overthrow thrones of kings and destroy power of kings of the nations and overthrow chariots and riders, and the horses and their riders will descend each one with a sword against his brother. ²³On that day, says the Lord Almighty, I will take you, O Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, my slave, says the Lord, and I will make you like a signet, for I have chosen you, says the Lord Almighty.

ZACHARIAS

1 In the eighth month of the second year of Darius, a word of the Lord came to the prophet Zacharias the son of Barachias son of Addo, saying: ²The Lord was angry with great anger with your fathers. ³And you will say to them, This is what the Lord Almighty says: Return to me, and I will return to you, says the Lord. ⁴And do not be like your fathers, against whom the former prophets brought a charge, saying, "This is what the Lord Almighty says, Turn away from your evil ways and from your evil practices." And they gave no heed to listen to me, says the Lord. ⁵Your fathers, where are they? And the prophets, will they live forever? ⁶But receive my words and my precepts, which I command my slaves the prophets through my spirit; did they not overtake your fathers? And they answered and said, "As the Lord Almighty arranged to do according to our ways and according to our practices, so he did to us."

the Lord who stood among the mountains and said, "We have patrolled all the earth, and lo, the whole earth is settled and at rest." ¹²And the angel of the Lord answered and said, "O Lord Almighty, how long will you show no mercy toward Ierusalem and the cities of Ioudas, which you have neglected this seventieth year?" ¹³And the Lord Almighty replied to the angel who talked with me with good words and comforting tidings. ¹⁴And the angel who talked with me said to me, Cry out, saying: This is what the Lord Almighty says: I have been jealous with great jealousy for Ierusalem and for Sion. ¹⁵And I am angry with great anger against the nations who joined together in an attack. Because I was angry in regard to a few things, but they joined together in attacking for evil. ¹⁶Therefore, this is what the Lord says, I will return to Ierusalem with compassion, and my house shall be rebuilt in it, says the Lord Almighty, and a measure shall again be stretched out over Ierusalem. ¹⁷And the angel who talked with me said to me, Cry out saying: This is what the Lord Almighty says: Cities shall again be flooded with good things, and the Lord will again show mercy to Sion and again choose Ierusalem.

¹⁸ And I lifted up my eyes and saw and behold four horns. ¹⁹And I said to the angel who talked with me, "What are these, lord?" And he said to me, "These are the horns that have scattered Ioudas and Israel." ²⁰And the Lord showed me four craftsmen. ²¹And I said, "What are these coming to do?" And he said to me, "These are the horns that scattered Ioudas, and they broke Israel in pieces, and none of them raised a head. And these came to sharpen them, the four horns into their hands, even the nations who raised their horns against the land of the Lord to scatter it."

2 And I raised my eyes and saw, and behold, a man and a measuring line in his hand. ²And I said to him, "Where are you going?" And he said to me, "To measure Ierusalem, to see how great is its width and how great is its length." ³And behold, the angel who talked with me stood still, and another angel came forward to meet him ⁴and said to him, saying, "Run, and speak to that young man, saying, Ierusalem shall be abundantly settled, because of a multitude of people and animals in it. ⁵And I will be to it, says the Lord, a wall of fire round about, and I will become glory in its midst."

⁶ Oh, oh, flee from the land of the north, says the Lord, for I will gather you from the four winds of the sky, says the Lord. ⁷Return safe to Sion, you who inhabit daughter Babylon. ⁸For this is what the Lord Almighty says: Behind glory he has sent me to the nations who despoiled you. For he who touches you is as one who touches the pupil of his eye. ⁹For behold, I am bringing my hand against them, and they shall be booty to their own slaves. And you will know that the Lord Almighty has sent me. ¹⁰Rejoice, and be glad, O daughter Sion. For behold, I am coming and will tent in your midst, says the Lord. ¹¹And many nations shall flee to the Lord for refuge on that day and shall become a people to him, and they will tent in your midst. And you shall recognize that the Lord Almighty has sent me to you. ¹²And the Lord will inherit Ioudas, his portion in the holy land, and will again choose Ierousalem.

13 Let all flesh be cautious before the Lord, for he has roused himself from his holy clouds.

3 And he showed me the great priest Iesous standing before an angel of the Lord, and the slanderer stood at his right to oppose him. ²And the Lord said to the slanderer, "The Lord rebuke you, O slanderer! And the Lord who has chosen Ierousalem rebuke you! Behold, is not this like a brand plucked from the fire?" ³And Iesous was dressed with filthy clothes, and he stood before the angel. ⁴And he answered and said to those standing before him, saying, "Remove the filthy clothes from him." And to him he said, "Behold, I have removed your lawlessness. And clothe him with a full-length robe, ⁵and put a clean turban on his head." And they put a clean turban on his head and clothed him with garments, and the angel of the Lord stood by.

6 And the angel of the Lord bore witness to Iesous, saying: ⁷"This is what the Lord Almighty says: If you walk in my ways and keep my ordinances, then you shall judge my house. And if you carefully guard my court, then I will give you men who will dwell among these who stand by. ⁸Now listen, Iesous, great priest, you and your colleagues who sit before you! For the men are diviners. For behold I bring forth my slave, Shoota. ⁹For the stone which I have set before Iesous, on the one stone are seven eyes. Behold, I am digging a hole, says the Lord Almighty, and I will search out all the injustice of that land in one day. ¹⁰On that day, says the Lord Almighty, you shall invite, each his neighbor, under a vine and under a fig tree."

4 And the angel who talked with me returned and wakened me as when a person is wakened from his sleep. ²And he said to me, "What do you see?" And I said, "I have seen, and behold, a lampstand all of gold and the torch on it, and there are seven lamps on it and seven pouring vessels for the lamps on it. ³And on it are two olive trees, one on the right of the torch and one on the left." ⁴And I inquired and said to the angel who talked with me, saying, "What are these, lord?" ⁵And the angel who talked with me answered and said to me, "Do you not know what these are?" And I said, "No, lord." ⁶And he answered and said to me, saying, "This is the word of the Lord to Zorobabel, saying, Not by great power nor by strength, but by my spirit, says the Lord Almighty. ⁷Who are you, You great mountain, to prosper before Zorobabel? And you will bring forth the stone of inheritance, equality of grace, grace for it^b."

8 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying, ⁹"The hands of Zorobabel laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also complete it. And you will know that the Lord Almighty has sent me to you. ¹⁰For who has despised the small days? And they shall rejoice and see the c^{tin} stone^c in the hand of Zorobabel.

"These seven are the eyes of the Lord that watch the whole earth." ¹¹And I answered and said to him, "What are these two olive trees on the right of the lampstand and on the left?" ¹²And I queried a second time and said to him, "What are the two branches of olive trees in the hands of the two gold nostrils that pour to and flow to the golden pouring vessels?" ¹³And he said to me, "Do you not know what these are?" And I said, "No, lord." And he said, "These two d^{sons} of fattiness^d stand before the Lord of the whole earth."

5 And I turned and lifted my eyes and saw and behold, a flying sickle. ²And he said to me, "What do you see?" And I said, "I see a flying sickle twenty cubits long and ten cubits wide." ³And he said to me, "This is the curse that goes out over the face of the whole earth, for every thief will be punished until death from this^e and everyone who swears falsely will be punished until death from this^e. ⁴And I will bring it out, says the Lord Almighty, and it shall enter into the house of the thief and into the house of anyone who swears falsely by my name, and it shall lodge in the midst of his house and consume it, both its timbers and its stones."

5 And the angel who talked with me came forward and said to me, "Look up with your eyes, and see what this is that is coming out." ⁶And I said, "What is it?" And he said, "This is the measure that goes out." And he said, "This is their injustice in all the earth." ⁷And behold, a talent of lead being lifted up, and behold, one woman sat in the midst of the measure. ⁸And he said, "This is lawlessness." And he cast her in the midst of the measure and cast the stone of lead into her mouth. ⁹And I lifted up my eyes and saw, and behold, two women coming forth. And wind was in their wings, and they had wings like the wings of a hoopoe, and they took up the measure between the earth and between the sky. ¹⁰And I said to the angel who talked with me, "Where are these taking the measure?" ¹¹And he said to me, "To build a house for it in the land of Babylon and to make preparations, and they will set it down there on its prepared place."

6 And I turned and lifted my eyes and saw, and behold, four chariots coming out from between two mountains, and the mountains were bronze mountains. ²On the first chariot were red horses, and on the second chariot black horses, ³and on the third chariot white horses, and on the fourth chariot various shades of dapple-gray horses. ⁴And I answered and said to the angel who talked with me, "What are these, lord?" ⁵And the angel who talked with me answered and said, "These are the four winds of the sky; they go out to attend on the Lord of all the earth." ⁶The one on which were the black horses, they were going toward the north country, and the white ones were going after them, and the variegated ones were going toward the south country. ⁷And the dapple-gray were going out and were looking to go to patrol the earth. And he said, "Go, and patrol the earth." And they patrolled the earth. ⁸And he shouted and spoke to me, saying, "Behold, those who go toward the north country have caused my rage to rest in the north country."

⁹ And a word of the Lord came to me saying: ¹⁰Take the things from the captivity—from the rulers and from its useful people and from those who are familiar with it—and you shall enter in that day into the house of Iosias son of Sophonias, who has come from Babylon. ¹¹And you shall take silver and gold and make crowns and set them on the head of the great priest Iesous son of Iosedek, ¹²and you shall say to him: This is what the Lord Almighty says: Behold, a man, Shoot^a is his name, and he shall sprout from below him and shall build the house of the Lord. ¹³And it is he that shall receive virtue and shall sit and rule on his throne. And the priest shall be on his right, and peaceful counsel shall be between the two of them. ¹⁴And the crown shall be for those who endure and for its useful people and for those who are familiar with it. And it will become a credit for the son of Sophonias and music^b in the house of the Lord.

¹⁵ And those who are far off from them shall come and build in the house of the Lord, and you shall know that the Lord Almighty has sent me to you. And it will be if, listening, you shall listen to the voice of the Lord your God.

7 And in the fourth year of King Darius, a word of the Lord came to Zacharias on the fourth of the ninth month, which is Chaseleu. ²And Sarasar and Arbeseer the king and his men sent to Baithel to appease the Lord, ³saying to the priests in the house of the Lord Almighty and to the prophets, saying, "Has the sanctity entered here in the fifth month, as I did already many years?" ⁴And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ⁵Say to all the people of the land and the priests, saying: If you fast or lament on the fifth or seventh days—even behold for seventy years—you have not fasted a fast for me, have you? ⁶And if you eat and if you drink, is it not you that eat and you that drink? ⁷Are not these the words that the Lord spoke by the hands of the former prophets, when Ierusalem was inhabited and in prosperity and her cities round about and the hill country and the low-lying land were inhabited?

oppress the widow and the orphan and the guest and the needy, and let not each one of you bear a grudge in your hearts against his brother for an evil deed. ¹¹And they refused to take notice and turned a senseless back and made their ears heavy so as not to listen. ¹²And they made their heart disobedient so as not to heed my law and the words that the Lord Almighty sent by his spirit by the hands of the former prophets, and great wrath came from the Lord Almighty. ¹³And it will be, just as he said, and they did not listen; so they will cry out, and I will not listen, says the Lord Almighty. ¹⁴And I will cast them into all the nations that they did not know, and the land behind them will be annihilated of anyone going through and of returning. And they have consigned the choice land to desolation.

8 A word of the Lord Almighty came, saying: ²This is what the Lord Almighty says: I have been jealous for Ierusalem and Sion with great jealousy, and I have been jealous for her with great wrath. ³This is what the Lord says: And I will return to Sion, and I will tent in the midst of Ierusalem, and Ierusalem shall be called a city that is true, and the mountain of the Lord Almighty, a holy mountain. ⁴This is what the Lord Almighty says: Old men and old women shall again sit in the streets of Ierusalem, each with his rod in his hand, because of the great number of days. ⁵And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in its streets. ⁶This is what the Lord Almighty says: For if it will be impossible in the sight of the remnant of this people in those days, will it also be impossible in my sight, says the Lord Almighty? ⁷This is what the Lord Almighty says: Behold I am saving my people from a land of the east and from a land of the west, ⁸and I will bring them and make them tent in the midst of Ierusalem. And they shall become my people, and I will become a god to them, in truth and in justice.

⁹ This is what the Lord Almighty says: Let your hands be strong, you who hear in these days these words from the mouth of the prophets, since the day the house of the Lord Almighty was founded and since the shrine was built. ¹⁰For before those days the wages of people will not be for enjoyment, and there are no wages for cattle, and there will not be peace from distress for the one who went out and the one who came in, and I will send away all people, each against his neighbor. ¹¹And now I do not deal with the remnant of this people as in the former days, says the Lord Almighty. ¹²Rather, I will demonstrate peace; the vine shall yield its fruit, and the ground shall give its produce, and the sky shall give its dew, and I will cause the remnant of my people to possess all these things. ¹³And it will be, just as you have been as a curse among the nations, O house of Ioudas and house of Israel, so I will save you, and you shall be as a blessing. Take courage, and be strong with your hands.

¹⁴ For this is what the Lord Almighty says: Just as I purposed to harm you, when your fathers provoked me to wrath, says the Lord Almighty, and I did not repent, ¹⁵so I stand prepared and have purposed in these days to do good to Ierousalem and to the house of Ioudas. Take courage. ¹⁶These are the matters that you shall do: Speak the truth each to his neighbor; render in your gates judgment that makes for peace, ¹⁷and do not devise evil in your hearts each against his neighbor, and do not love a false oath; for all these things I have hated, says the Lord Almighty.

¹⁸ And a word of the Lord Almighty came to me, saying: ¹⁹This is what the Lord Almighty says: The fourth fast and the fifth fast and the seventh fast and the tenth fast shall become a joy for the house of Ioudas, and gladness and good feasts, and you shall be glad, and love truth and peace.

²⁰ This is what the Lord Almighty says: Many peoples shall yet come, and inhabitants of many cities. ²¹And inhabitants of five cities shall come together in one city, saying, "Let us go to entreat the face of the Lord and to seek the face of the Lord Almighty; I too will go." ²²And many peoples and many nations shall come to seek the face of the Lord Almighty in Ierousalem and to appease the face of the Lord. ²³This is what the Lord Almighty says: In those days if ten men from all the languages of the nations take hold, then let them take hold of the hem of a Judean man, saying, "We shall go with you, for we have heard that God is with you."

9 An issue of the Lord's word.
His sacrifice is in the land of Sedrach and Damascus.
For the Lord oversees people, including all the tribes of Israel ² and Hemath in its borders,
Tyre and Sidon, for they were very clever.
³ And Tyre built itself fortresses and heaped up silver like dust and gold like the dirt of the streets.
⁴ Therefore the Lord will possess it and strike its power into the sea, and it shall be consumed by fire.
⁵ Ascalon shall see and be afraid,
Gaza too, and shall feel great agony, Akkaron also, because it was put to shame by its transgression.
And a king shall perish from Gaza,
and Ascalon shall be uninhabited, ⁶ and aliens shall settle in Azotus, and I will destroy the pride of the allophyles.
⁷ And I will remove their blood from their mouth
and their abominations from between their teeth.
And this one too shall be left for our God, and they shall be like an officer of a thousand in Ioudas,
and Akkaron shall be like the Iebousite.
⁸ And I will set up a structure for my house so that no one shall pass through or return,

and no longer will anyone come against them to drive them out, for now I have seen with my own eyes.

⁹ Rejoice greatly, O daughter Sion!
Proclaim, O daughter Ierousalem!
Behold, your king comes to you,
just and salvific is he,
meek and riding on a beast of burden and a young foal.
¹⁰ And he will utterly destroy chariots from Ephraim
and cavalry from Ierousalem,
and the battle bow shall be destroyed,
and there shall be abundance and peace
from nations,
and he shall reign over the waters as far as
the sea,
and the rivers at the exits of the earth.
¹¹ You also, by the blood of the covenant, have sent forth your prisoners from the pit that has no water.
¹² You shall sit in a stronghold, O prisoners of the gathering,
and in place of one day of your alien residence I will restore to you double.
¹³ For I stretched you tight, O Ioudas, a bow for myself;
I filled Ephraim
and will raise up your children, O Sion, against the children of the Greeks, and I will stroke you like a warrior's sword.
¹⁴ And the Lord shall be over them and shall go forth like a lightning bolt, and the Lord Almighty will trumpet with the trumpet
and come with his menacing tempest.
¹⁵ The Lord Almighty will protect them, and they shall consume them and bury them with sling stones,
and they shall drink them empty like wine,
and fill the altar like saucers.
¹⁶ And on that day the Lord will save them,
his people like sheep,
for sacred stones roll on his land.
¹⁷ Because if anything of his is good and if anything of his is fair, there will be grain for young men and sweet-smelling wine for maidens.

10 Ask rain from the Lord
in the early and latter season.
The Lord has produced representations and will give to them winter rain, to each vegetation in the field.
² For the speakers uttered troubling things, and the diviners lying visions,
and they were speaking false dreams and were consoling with vanities.

Therefore they were removed like sheep and were mistreated, for there was no healing.

3 My anger was provoked against the shepherds,
and I will have concern for the lambs, and the Lord God the Almighty will have concern for his flock, the house of Ioudas,
and will make them like his comely horse
in battle.

4 And from it^a he took perspective, and from it^a he drew up in battle order,
and from it^a was a bow with fury;
from it^a everyone who marches out will come together.

5 And they shall be like warriors trampling clay in the streets during battle, and they shall fight, for the Lord is with them,
and riders on horses shall be put to shame.

6 And I will strengthen the house of Ioudas, and I will save the house of Ioseph.
And I will settle them, because I have loved
them,
and they shall be as though I had not turned them away,
for I am the Lord their God, and I will listen to them.

7 And they shall be like the warriors of Ephraim,
and their heart shall rejoice as with wine.
And their children shall see it and be glad;
their heart shall rejoice in the Lord.

8 I will signal for them and receive them,
for I shall redeem them, and they shall be as numerous as they were.

9 And I will sow them among peoples, and those far away shall remember me;
they shall rear their children and return.

10 And I will bring them back from the land of Egypt
and receive them from the Assyrians, and I will bring them to Galaaditis and to Lebanon,
and not even one of them shall be left behind.

11 And they shall pass through a narrow sea,
and they shall strike the waves in the sea,
and all the depths of the rivers shall dry up.
And all the pride of the Assyrians shall be taken away,
and the scepter of Egypt shall be removed.

12 And I will make them strong in the Lord, their God,
and they shall boast in his name,
says the Lord.

11 Open your doors, O Lebanon, and let fire devour your cedars!
2 Let the pine wail, for the cedar has fallen, because nobles have greatly suffered misery.

Wail, oaks of Basanitis, because the thick forest has been torn down!

3 There is a sound of shepherds mourning, because their greatness has suffered misery!

There is a sound of lions roaring, because the pride of the Jordan has suffered misery.

4 This is what the Lord Almighty says: Tend the sheep of slaughter, ⁵which those who acquire were slaughtering and were not repenting, and those who sell them were saying, "Blessed be the Lord, and we have become rich," and their own shepherds were suffering nothing for them. ⁶Therefore, I will no longer be sparing toward the inhabitants of the earth, says the Lord. And behold, I deliver people over, each one into the hands of his neighbor and into the hands of his king, and they shall devastate the earth, and I will not deliver from their hand.

7 And I will tend the sheep of slaughter in Chanaanitis. And I will take to myself two rods—the one I have called Beauty, and the other I have called Line—and I will tend the sheep. ⁸And in one month I will dispose of the three shepherds, and my soul will be heavy against them, for also their souls were howling against me. ⁹And I said, "I will not tend you. Whatever dies, let it die, and whatever fails, let it fail, and as for the things that are left—let them devour each one the flesh of his neighbor!" ¹⁰And I will take my beautiful rod and cast it away in order to scatter my covenant that I made with all the peoples. ¹¹And it shall be scattered on that day, and the Chananites will know the sheep that are kept, for it is the Lord's word. ¹²And I will say to them, "If it is good in your sight, give me my wages, or refuse." And they set my wages at thirty pieces of silver. ¹³And the Lord said to me, "Place them in the smelter, and I will observe whether it is genuine, as I have been proven for them." And I took the thirty pieces of silver and threw them into the house of the Lord, into the smelter. ¹⁴And I cast away the second rod, Line, to disband the tie between Ioudas and between Israel.

15 And the Lord said to me: Take to yourself once more shepherd implements of an inexperienced shepherd. ¹⁶For behold, I am raising up over the land a shepherd. He will not care for the abandoned or seek the scattered or heal the crushed or lead the whole, and he will devour the flesh of the chosen and twist their vertebrae.

17 Oh, you who tend to idle things, who desert the sheep!
May the dagger be upon his arm and against his right eye!

^ai.e. flock

His arm withering shall wither;
his right eye blinded shall be blinded!

12 An issue of the Lord's word regarding Israel. The Lord, as he stretches out heaven and founds the earth and forms the human spirit within, says: ²Behold, I set Ierousalem as shaking doorways for all the peoples round about, and in Judea there will be a siege against Ierousalem. ³And it shall be on that day, I will make Ierousalem a trampled stone for all the nations; everyone who tramples it when mocking shall mock. And all the nations of the earth shall be gathered against it. ⁴On that day, says the Lord Almighty, I will strike every horse with alarm and its rider with derangement—but on the house of Ioudas I will open my eyes—and all the horses of the peoples I will strike with blindness. ⁵And the officers of thousands in Ioudas shall say in their hearts, "We shall find for ourselves the inhabitants of Ierousalem in the Lord Almighty, their God."

⁷ And the Lord will save the tents of Ioudas as from the beginning, that the boast of the house of Daudid and the elation of the inhabitants of Ierousalem might not be exalted over Ioudas. ⁸And it shall be on that day, the Lord will be a shield for the inhabitants of Ierousalem, and the weak one among them in that day will be like Daudid, and the house of Daudid will be like a divine house, like an angel of the Lord before them. ⁹And it shall be on that day, I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Ierousalem.

¹⁰ And I will pour out a spirit of grace and compassion on the house of Daudid and on the inhabitants of Ierousalem, and they shall look to me because they have danced triumphantly, and they shall mourn for him with a mourning as for a loved one, and they shall be pained with pain as for a firstborn. ¹¹On that day the mourning in Ierousalem will be great like the mourning for a pomegranate orchard cut down in the plain. ¹²And the land shall mourn, tribes by tribes, the tribe of the house of Daudid by itself and their wives by themselves, the tribe of the house of Nathan by itself and their wives by themselves, ¹³the tribe of the house of Leui by itself and their wives by themselves, the tribe of Symeon by itself and their wives by themselves, ¹⁴all the tribes that are left, a tribe by itself and their wives by themselves.

² And it shall be on that day, says the Lord, I will utterly destroy the names of the idols from the land, and there shall be no more remembrance of them; also I will remove from the land the pseudo-prophets and the unclean spirit. ³And it shall be, if a person should again prophesy, then his father and his mother who bore him will say to him, "You shall not live, for you have spoken lies in the name of the Lord," and his father and his mother who bore him shall bind his feet together when he prophesies. ⁴And it shall be on that day, the prophets will be ashamed, each of his vision when he prophesies, and they will wear a hairy skin, because they lied. ⁵And one will say, "I am no prophet, for I am a person who tills the soil, because such^a a person brought me up from my youth." ⁶And I will say to him, "What are these blows between your hands^b?" And he will say, "Those with which I was beaten in my beloved house."

⁷ "Awake, O sword, against my shepherds and against his fellow citizen," says the Lord Almighty.
Smite the shepherds, and remove the sheep, and I will bring my hand against the shepherds.
⁸ And it shall be in the whole land^c, says the Lord,
two parts shall be utterly destroyed and perish,
but the third shall be left in it.
⁹ And I will draw the third through the fire, and I shall test them by fire as silver is tested by fire, and I shall prove them as gold is proven.
He will call on my name,
and I will listen to him,
and I will say, "This is my people,"
and he will say, "The Lord is my God."

14 Behold, days of the Lord are coming, and your spoils shall be divided in you. ²And I will gather all the nations to Ierousalem for battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses looted, and the women defiled, and half the city shall go in captivity, but the rest of my people shall not be utterly destroyed from the city. ³And the Lord will go forth and draw up in battle order against those nations like a day of his marshaling in a day of battle. ⁴And on that day his feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives, which is opposite Ierousalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall be split, half of it to the east and half of it to the sea, an exceedingly great chasm, and half of the Mount shall incline northward and half of it southward. ⁵And the valley of my mountains shall be blocked up, and the valley of the mountains shall be joined up to Iasol, and it shall be blocked up as it was blocked in the days of the earthquake in the days of King Ozias of Ioudas. And the Lord my God will come and all the holy ones with him.

⁶ On that day there shall be no light nor cold weather nor frost. ⁷It shall be for one day—and that day is known to the Lord—and not a day and not a night, and at evening time there shall be light.

⁸ And on that day living water shall come forth from Ierousalem, half of it into the first sea and half of it into the last sea; even in summer and spring it will be so.

^aLacking in Gk ^bOr arms ^cOr earth

9 And the Lord will become king over all the earth; on that day the Lord will be one and his name one.

10 One shall go around the whole land by way of the wilderness from Gabe unto Remmon south of Ierousalem. But Rama shall remain in place, from the Gate of Benjamin unto the place of the first gate, unto the gate of the corners and unto the tower Hananeel, unto the king's wine vats. ¹¹They shall inhabit it, and there shall be no more anathema, and Ierousalem shall dwell confidently.

16 And it will be that all who remain of all the nations that came against Ierousalem shall also go up year after year to do obeisance to the King, the Lord Almighty, and to keep the feast of tent pitching. ¹⁷And it shall be that all who do not go up from all the tribes of the earth to Ierousalem to do obeisance to the King, the Lord Almighty, these then shall be added to those. ¹⁸And if the tribe of Egypt should not go up or come, then on these shall be the calamity with which the Lord will strike all the nations, as many as will not go up to keep the feast of tent pitching. ¹⁹This shall be the sin of Egypt and the sin of all the nations, as many as shall not go up to keep the feast of tent pitching.

20 On that day, there shall be upon the bridle of the horse, "Holy to the Lord Almighty." And the cauldrons in the house of the Lord shall be like the saucers in front of the altar, ²¹and every cauldron in Ierousalem and in Ioudas shall be holy to the Lord Almighty, and all those who sacrifice will come and take of them and boil in them. And the Chananite shall no longer be in the house of the Lord Almighty on that day.

MALACHIAS

1 An issue of the Lord's word to Israel by the hand of his messenger. Do place it upon your hearts.

2 I loved you, says the Lord. And you said, "How did you love us?" Was not Esau Iakob's brother? says the Lord. And I loved Iakob, ³but I hated Esau, and I made his mountains an annihilation and his heritage gifts of the wilderness. ⁴For Idumea will say, "It is destroyed. And let us return and rebuild the desolate places." This is what the Lord Almighty says: They will build, and I will tear down. And they will be called borders of lawlessness and a people against whom the Lord is drawn up in battle forever. ⁵And your eyes shall see, and you shall say, "The Lord has been magnified beyond the borders of Israel."

6 A son honors the father, and a slave his master. If then I am a father, where is my honor? And if I am a master, where is my respect? says the Lord Almighty to you, O priests, who despise my name. And you said, "How did we despise your name?" ⁷By bringing defiled loaves to my altar. And you said, "How did we defile them?" When you say, "The Lord's table is despised, and the food laid on it is despised." ⁸For if you bring something blind as a sacrifice, is that not wrong? And if you offer something lame or sickly, is that not wrong? Do bring it to your governor, if he will accept you or receive your face, says the Lord Almighty. ⁹And now, appease the face of your God, and entreat him. By your own hands these things have occurred. Will I receive the faces of any of you? says the Lord Almighty. ¹⁰For even among you the doors shall be shut, and you shall not kindle my altar in vain. I have no will among you, says the Lord Almighty, and I will not accept an offering from your hands. ¹¹For from the rising of the sun to its setting my name is glorified among the nations, and in every place incense is brought to my name, and a pure offering, for my name is great among the nations, says the Lord Almighty. ¹²But you profane it when you say that the Lord's table is defiled, and its food set forth is despised. ¹³And you said, "These are toilsome," and you snorted at them, says the Lord Almighty. And you were carrying in what was taken by violence and what is lame and physically impaired. Even if you bring the offering, shall I accept them from your hands? says the Lord Almighty. ¹⁴And cursed is he who was able, and there was in his flock a male, and his vow is upon him, and he sacrifices to the Lord what is corrupted, for I am a great king, says the Lord Almighty, and my name is notable among the nations.

2 And now, O priests, this commandment is for you. ²If you will not listen and if you will not place it in your heart to give glory to my name, says the Lord Almighty, then I will send the curse on you, and I will curse your blessing; indeed I will curse it. And I will scatter your blessing, and it shall not be among you, because you do not place it in your heart. ³Behold, I separate the shoulder at you and will spread paunch^a on your faces, paunch^a for your feasts, and I will take you to the same place.

4 And you will know that I have sent this commandment to you, that my covenant might be with the Leuites, says the Lord Almighty. ⁵My covenant of life and peace was with him. And I gave it to him that he fear me with fear and that he avoid the presence of my name. ⁶A law of truth was in his mouth, and no injustice was found on his lips. He walked uprightly with me in peace and turned many from injustice. ⁷Because the lips of a priest shall guard knowledge, and they shall seek law from his mouth, for he is a messenger of the Lord Almighty. ⁸But you have turned aside from the way, and you have caused many to fail by law; you have corrupted the covenant of Leui, says the Lord Almighty. ⁹And I rendered you despised and disregarded among all the nations, because you did not keep my ways but were ^aaccepting persons^a in law.

¹³ And these things, which I hated, you kept doing: you would cover the altar of the Lord with tears and weeping and laborious groaning. Is it still appropriate to look at sacrifice or to receive as something acceptable from your hands? ¹⁴And you said, "Why?" Because the Lord was a witness between you and between the wife of your youth, whom you abandoned, though she is your companion and the wife of your covenant. ¹⁵And no one else did it and the remnant of his spirit. And you said, "What else does God seek but offspring?" And be vigilant in your spirit, and do not forsake the wife of your youth. ¹⁶But if, since you hate her, you should send her away, says the Lord, the God of Israel, then impiety will cover over his garments, says the Lord Almighty. And be vigilant in your spirit, and do not abandon her.

¹⁷ You who provoked God with your words and said, "How did we provoke him?" By saying, "Everyone who does evil does good before the Lord, and he delighted in them," and, "Where is the God of justice?"

3 Behold, I am sending my messenger, and he will oversee the way before me, and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to the shrine. And the messenger of the covenant whom you want—behold, he is coming, says the Lord Almighty. ²And who will endure the day of his arrival, or who will withstand in his appearance?

For he is coming like the fire of a smelter and like the lye of cleaners, ³and he will sit, smelting and purifying as it were silver and as it were gold, and he will purify the sons of Leui and pour them like gold and like silver, and they shall be bringing an offering to the Lord in justice. ⁴And an offering of Ioudas and Ierousalem will be pleasing to the Lord as the days of old, even as the former years.

⁵ And I will draw near to you in judgment; I will be a swift witness against the sorceresses and against the adulteresses and against those who swear by my name falsely and against those who defraud the hired worker of his wages and those who oppress the widow and those who buffet orphans and those who turn aside justice from the guest and those who do not fear me, says the Lord Almighty.

⁸ Will a person trip up God? For you are tripping me up! And you will say, "How have we tripped you up?" Because the tithes and the first fruits are still with you. ⁹And disregarding you disregard, and you are tripping me up—the nation has been made an end of. ¹⁰And you brought all the produce into the storehouses, and it shall be pillage in my house. Do observe by this, says the Lord Almighty, if I will not open to you the floodgates of the sky and pour out upon you my blessing until you are satisfied. ¹¹And I will distinguish among you for food, and I will not destroy among you the fruit of the land, and the vine in the field will not fail you, says the Lord Almighty. ¹²And all the nations will call you happy, for you will be a wanted land, says the Lord Almighty.

¹³ You have made your words against me heavy, says the Lord. And you said, "How did we speak against you?" ¹⁴You said, "The one who is subject to God is vain. And what more is there that we kept his ordinances and that we went as suppliants into the presence of the Lord Almighty?" ¹⁵And now we call foreigners happy, and they are rebuilding while they do lawless things, and they withstood God and escaped."

¹⁶ Those who fear the Lord spoke against these things, each to his neighbor. And the Lord took note and listened and wrote a book of remembrance before him for those who fear the Lord and reverence his name. ¹⁷And they shall be mine, says the Lord Almighty, in the day when I make them my acquisition, and I will choose them as a person chooses his son who is subject to him. ¹⁸And you shall turn and discern between the just and between the lawless and between the one who is subject to God and the one who is not subject.

4 For behold, a day is coming, burning like an oven, and it will set them ablaze, and all the aliens and all those who do lawless things will be stubble, and the day that comes shall kindle them, says the Lord Almighty, and there shall be left of them neither root nor branch. ²And for you who fear my name a sun of justice shall rise, and healing is in its wings. And you shall go out and leap like calves let loose from tethers. ³And you shall tread down the lawless, for they will be ashes under your feet, on the day when I act, says the Lord Almighty.

⁴(5) And behold I am sending to you Elias the Thesbite before the great and notable day of the Lord comes, ⁵(6)who will restore the heart of the father to the son and the heart of a person to his neighbor so that I will not come and utterly strike the land.

⁶(4) Remember the law of Moyses my slave, as I commanded him at Choreb with ordinances and statutes for all Israel.

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

It is important to note that the earlier English translations of the LXX by Thomson and Brenton were based on editions of the Greek version that essentially reproduced the text of Codex Vaticanus. While this important manuscript preserves an excellent text for most books of the LXX, it is less trustworthy in the case of Esaias. (R. R. Ottley, for his translation, used Codex Alexandrinus, our best available witness for Esaias.) As a result, the reader will find a large number of textual differences between those earlier English translations and the present one, which is based on the full-fledged critical edition of J. Ziegler (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum XIV: Esaias [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1967]).

Ziegler's reconstructed text is very similar to that found in Rahlfs' Septuaginta. If we set aside differences that do not show up in an English translation (primarily Greek orthographic variants), we find approximately ninety places where the two editions differ, and many of these variations are relatively minor. I have accepted Ziegler's judgment in all but sixteen of these (10.7; 13.3; 14.27; 26.18; 28.2-3; 41.29[bis]; 42.4; 49.13; 50.3; 51.16; 54.5; 55.13; 56.5; 61.3; 63.12), some of which involve conjectural emendations that are reasonable, even brilliant, but not totally persuasive. In addition, there are two places where Rahlfs and Ziegler agree but where I have reluctantly gone my own way (9.1[8.23] and 53.11; in the latter passage I have accepted an old conjectural emendation).

Many readers of NETS will not have easy access to Ziegler's edition. If they use the present translation in conjunction with Rahlfs' text, it will often be unclear whether departures from the latter are only apparent (the result of a non-literal rendering) or substantial (the result of a textual variation). Since NETS includes textual notes only when it departs from the base text (Ziegler), it may be helpful to the reader to have a list of those verses where the present translation reflects a text different from Rahlfs' edition. They are as follow: 2.20; 5.9; 5.29; 7.6; 8.18; 9.4(3); 10.1; 10.10(bis); 10.22; 11.5; 12.2; 12.6(bis); 13.3; 14.13; 15.2; 15.4; 16.3; 16.5; 16.7; 17.5; 17.6; 18.7; 20.1; 21.13; 22.1; 23.13; 23.16; 25.5; 25.9; 28.15; 29.8; 30.14; 30.33; 33.18; 34.10; 36.19; 37.12; 37.13; 37.32; 37.38; 40.4; 40.25; 40.28; 41.23; 43.17; 44.16; 45.4; 45.9; 45.13; 46.11; 47.10; 48.5(bis); 48.16; 49.6; 49.7; 49.15; 51.5; 53.2; 54.3; 54.8; 54.10; 54.17(bis); 56.11; 58.11(bis); 60.6; 61.4; 61.8; 65.11; 65.23; 66.8(bis); 66.17(misprint).

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

Attempts to evaluate the Greek translation of Esaias in the past have typically failed to note the complexity of such a task. One can find numerous passages where the translator has failed to understand the Hebrew text and where his Greek appears to be solecistic and even unintelligible. It is therefore natural to infer that he lacked competence. The problem with this conclusion, however, is that it does not take into account the skill, knowledge and creativity that he displays in many other passages. Moreover, any generalizations about the translator's technique run afoul of the startling variations in his approach.

Consider, for example, the first half dozen verses in chapter 43. It is apparent that the translator had no trouble whatever understanding the Hebrew text and that he was capable of representing the meaning of the original in simple, clear and faultless Greek. His approach here may be characterized as moderately literal, resulting in a certain quaintness of style that betrays its Semitic background. Admittedly, the Hebrew of this passage is not particularly difficult. Elsewhere, if the translator encounters a rare word, he seems to lose his bearings. In 28.20, the Hebrew appears to mean, "For the bed is [too] short for stretching, and the covering [too] narrow for gathering [i.e., wrapping] oneself." Here the Hebrew words for "bed" (which appears nowhere else in the Bible) and "stretching" (which is rare) stumped the translator. Exercising his imagination, he came up with this, "We are in straits and unable to fight, and we ourselves are too weak to be mobilized." We should remember, however, that even modern scholarship is less than confident about the meaning of numerous sentences in the Hebrew text of Isaiah.

In some of his renderings, the translator appears to be slavishly literal, but it is clear that, as a whole, he felt free to vary his vocabulary and restructure the syntax if it served his purposes. That sense of freedom allowed him at times to go off on tangents that have little connection with the Hebrew. Indeed, on occasions the meaning of his translation is patently contrary to that of the original (cf. the negative he introduces at 8.14, "you will not encounter him as a stumbling caused by a stone"). What may have been going on in his mind at those times is an intriguing question, but we would be wrong to infer that he was unconcerned about being faithful to the text. There can be no doubt that he struggled mightily to make sense of difficult passages, and that even when he seems to go beyond the text, he is sensitive to the thrust of the book as a whole and seeks to come up with teachings that are up-building (note that at the beginning of 8.14 the addition of the clause "if you trust in him" effectively links this verse with a recurring theme in the book).

All of this means that we cannot easily describe lexical and grammatical patterns in the translator's handling of the Hebrew text. Some can certainly be identified, but the exceptions to those patterns are significant, and they prevent us from making many valid generalizations. As we might expect, he follows some of the lexical equations established by the Greek translators of the Pentateuch, such as ברית = δισθήκη in the sense of "covenant." For Hebrew מוֹלֵךְ he normally uses Ἅιδης ("Hades"), but in 28.15, 18 we find θάνατος, "death." There is no need to multiply examples. Beyond these more-or-less standard calques, the translator naturally comes up with a few equivalences of his own, but not in uniform fashion. With regard to syntax, while his tendency is to follow the simple structure of the Hebrew clauses, he does not hesitate to introduce variety and to exploit some of the resources of the Greek language; still, many of the niceties one routinely finds in original Greek composition are missing. Special note should be made of the translator's fairly consistent representation of the Hebrew perfect tense (which can have various temporal references) with the Greek aorist (a simple past tense). Although the choice of the aorist is appropriate when the context clearly indicates a past action or a gnomic idea (e.g., 1.3, "The ox knew [=knows] its owner"), his overuse of this tense lends a distinct and odd quality to his translation.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF ESAIAS

Given the Greek translator's inconsistent approach (or so it appears to us), an English translation of his work faces special problems. The challenges are compounded by the need to follow the pattern of the NRSV. Numerous stylistic variations frequently used by the latter (as it renders the Hebrew text) introduce an additional and deeper level of inconsistency to the endeavor.

The user of NETS deserves to know that the present translation has gone through two distinct stages. The initial draft reflected a special effort not only to understand what the Greek translator meant (for which the sense of the Hebrew is an important piece of evidence), but also to communicate that meaning in fairly clear and natural English when possible (often the irregularities of the Greek called for less than fluent English). That first draft, in addition, sought to maximize the potential for NETS/NRSV syntopic study; in other words, it preserved NRSV renderings whenever these could be defended as reasonable representations of the Greek.

In the opinion of the editors, however, such an approach was inconsistent with the aim of NETS to represent not only what the Greek says but also how it is being said. For the sake of uniformity with the project as a whole, therefore, hundreds of changes were made that result in unclear or even unnatural English (e.g., "wept with weeping"). Moreover, the reader should be advised not to assume that a difference between NETS and NRSV reflects a difference between the Hebrew and the Greek.

Even in the first draft of this translation, NRSV renderings were changed in cases where the Hebrew is idiomatic but the Greek equivalence appears odd. In particular, note that the Greek translator fairly consistently translates the Hebrew אִישׁ ("man") with ἄνθρωπος, even in passages where such an equivalence is inappropriate, including instances when the Hebrew has a distributive meaning, "each." The Greek translator is quite capable of rendering these uses idiomatically. For example, in 13.8, the Hebrew אִישׁ אֶל רֵעֵהוּ (lit., "a man to his neighbor") is rendered ἕτερος πρὸς τὸν ἕτερον ("one to another"). It seems advisable to render the Greek to English literally in cases where the Greek inappropriately renders the Hebrew literally. The reader of NETS will thus notice a large number of instances of the singular "man"; the unusual flavor of the resulting English corresponds to some extent with the peculiar quality of the Greek.

The strophic arrangement of the NRSV has been followed as much as possible to facilitate comparison, but it must not be thought that the Greek always has a corresponding poetic quality.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

I have profited greatly from R. R. Ottley, The Book of Isaiah according to the LXX (Codex Alexandrinus) (3 vols; London: Cambridge University Press, 1904–1906). The first volume contains an important introduction (including a discussion of the Greek translator’s “Method of Rendering”) and a translation of the Hebrew and the Greek on facing pages. Volume 2 presents the Greek text with a critical apparatus, followed by extensive notes that pay special attention to the divergences between the Greek translation and the Hebrew original. A third, slim volume simply includes the text by itself.

Joseph Ziegler’s Untersuchungen zur Septuaginta des Buches Isaias (Alttestamentliche Abhandlungen 12/3; Münster: Aschendorff, 1934), which may be regarded as a prolegomenon to his critical edition, remains to this day the most penetrating and reliable source of information. The highly regarded monograph by I. L. Seeligmann, The Septuagint Version of Isaiah: A Discussion of Its Problems (Leiden: Brill, 1948), has chapters on textual criticism, translation technique, historical background and Jewish theology. More recently, Arie van der Kooij has produced a very full and helpful analysis of one chapter, The Oracle of Tyre: The Septuagint of Isaiah XXIII as Version and Vision (VTSup 71; Leiden: Brill, 1998).

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to express my appreciation to my former student assistant Carl Franzon (Byington Scholar at Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary) for producing an initial collation showing the textual differences between the editions of Rahlfs and Ziegler. His careful labor greatly facilitated my subsequent work.

I am also greatly indebted to Albert Pietersma for his thorough review of the initial translation. His sharp eye saved me from embarrassment at numerous points, and his mastery of Greek and LXX studies improved the quality of the work in significant ways.

MOISÉS SILVA

1 A vision, which Esaias son of Amos saw—which he saw against Judea and against Ierou-salem in the reign of Ozias and Ioatham and Achaz and Hezekias, who reigned over Judea.

2 Hear, O heaven, and give ear, O earth,
for the Lord has spoken:
I begat sons and exalted them,
but they rejected me.
3 The ox knows its owner,
and the donkey its master’s crib,
but Israel has not known me,
and the people have not understood me.

4 Ah, sinful nation,
people full of sins,
evil offspring,
lawless sons,
you have forsaken the Lord and provoked to anger the Holy One of Israel!

5 Why should you be beaten anymore
as you continue in lawlessness?
^aEvery head has become troubled, and every heart has become sad^a.

6 From the feet to the head—whether a sore or a bruise or a festering wound—
there is no emollient to put on,
nor oil nor bandages.

7 Your country lies desolate;
your cities are burned with fire;

in your very presence foreigners devour your land,
and it has been made desolate, overthrown by foreign peoples.

8 Daughter Sion will be forsaken like a booth in a vineyard and like a garden-watcher’s hut in a cucumber field,
like a besieged city.

9 And if the Lord Sabaoth had not left us offspring, we would have become like Sodoma and been made similar to Gomorra.

10 Hear the word of the Lord,
you rulers of Sodoma!
Pay attention to the law of God,
you people of Gomorra!

11 What to me is the multitude of your sacrifices?
says the Lord;
I am full of whole burnt offerings of rams, and I do not want the fat of lambs nor the blood of bulls and goats—12 ^bnot even if you come^b to appear before me.
For who asked these things from your hands?

You shall trample my court no more!
13 If you should offer fine flour, that would be futile;
incense is an abomination to me.
Your new moons and sabbaths and great day
I cannot endure. Fasting and holidays^c, 14 as well as your new moons and your feasts,

^aOr The whole head is pained, and the whole heart is sad. ^bOr neither shall you come ^cOr rest; possibly idleness

my soul hates.
^aYou have made me full;
 I will no longer forgive your sins.
 15 When you stretch out your hands to me,
 I will turn away my eyes from you;
 even if you make many petitions,
 I will not listen to you,
 for your hands are full of blood.
 16 Wash yourselves; become clean; remove the evil deeds from your souls
 before my eyes;
 cease from your evil deeds; 17 learn to do good;
 seek judgment;
 rescue the one who is wronged;
 defend the orphan,
 and do justice to the widow.
 18 So come, and let us argue it out,
 says the Lord:
 even though your sins are like crimson,
 I will make them white like snow,
 and though they are like scarlet,
 I will make them white like wool.
 19 And if you are willing and listen to me, you shall eat the good things of the
 land,
 20 but if you are not willing nor listen to me,
 the dagger will devour you;
 for the mouth of the Lord has spoken
 these things.
 21 How the faithful city Sion has become a whore!
 She that was full of justice, wherein righteousness lodged—but now murderers!
 22 Your silver has no value;
 your taverners mix the wine with water.
 23 Your rulers are disobedient:
 they are companions of thieves,
 loving gifts,
 running after a reward,
 not defending orphans
 and not paying attention to the widows' cause.
 24 Therefore this is what the Sovereign, the Lord Sabaoth, says:
 Ah, mighty ones of Israel!
 For my wrath on my adversaries will not abate,
 and I will exact judgment from my foes!
 25 And I will turn my hand against you and will burn you to bring about purity.
 But the disobedient I will destroy, and I will remove from you all the lawless
 and humble all who are arrogant.
 26 And I will set up your judges as at the former time
 and your counselors as at the beginning.

And after these things you shall be called
 the city of righteousness,
 the faithful mother city, Sion.
 27 For her captivity shall be saved with judgment and with mercy.
 28 But the lawless and the sinners shall be crushed together,
 and those who forsake the Lord shall be brought to an end.
 29 For they shall be ashamed because of their idols,
 which they themselves wanted,
 and they were embarrassed because of their gardens,
 which they desired.
 30 For they shall be like a terebinth that has shed its leaves and like an orchard that has no water.
 31 And their strength shall be like a stalk of flax,
 and their works like sparks of fire, and the lawless and the sinners shall be burned together,
 and there shall be no one to quench
 them.

2 The word that came from the Lord to Esaias son of Amos concerning Judea and concerning Ierousalem.

2 For in the last days
 the mountain of the Lord shall be manifest,
 and the house of God shall be on the tops of the mountains
 and shall be raised above the hills, and all the nations shall come to it.
 3 And many nations shall go and say,
 "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord
 and to the house of the God of Iakob, and he will declare to us his way,
 and we will walk in it."
 For out of Sion shall go forth a law,
 and a word of the Lord from Ierousalem.
 4 And he shall judge between the nations and shall convict many people, and they shall beat their daggers into plows
 and their spears into pruning hooks, and no more shall nation take up dagger against nation,
 neither shall they learn to wage war any more.
 5 And now, O house of Iakob, come, let us walk
 by the light of the Lord!
 6 For he has abandoned his people,
 the house of Israel,
 because their country, like that of the
 allophyles,

^aOr You have become repugnant to me

was filled with divinations as it had been at the beginning,
 and many allophyle children were born to them.
 7 For their country was filled with silver and gold,
 and there was no number to their treasures,
 and the land was filled with horses,
 and there was no number to their
 chariots.
 8 And the land was filled with abominations,
 the works of their hands,
 and they did obeisance to the things their own fingers had made.
 9 And so a person bowed down, and a man was humbled—
 and I will not forgive them!
 10 And now enter into the rocks, and hide in the earth
 from before the fear of the Lord
 and from the glory of his strength,
 when he rises to crush the earth.
 11 For the eyes of the Lord are lofty, but man is lowly,
 and the loftiness of men shall be brought
 low,
 and the Lord alone will be exalted in that
 day.
 12 For the day of the Lord Sabaoth will be against everyone who is insolent and haughty
 and against everyone who is lofty and high,
 and they shall be humbled, 13 both against every cedar of Lebanon, of them that are lofty and high,
 and against every ^aacorn tree^a of Basan, 14 both against every mountain and against every lofty hill, 15 both every lofty tower and against every lofty wall, 16 both every ship of the sea and against every spectacle of beautiful ships.
 17 And every person shall be humbled,
 and the loftiness of men shall fall,
 and the Lord alone will be exalted on that day.
 18 They will hide all ^bthe works of their hands^b—19 carrying them into the caves and into the clefts of the rocks and into the holes of the earth—
 from before the fear of the Lord
 and from the glory of his strength,
 when he rises to crush the earth.
 20 On that day a man ^cwill throw away his silver and gold abominations, which they made to do obeisance to the vain ones and the bats,

 21 to enter the holes of the solid rock and the clefts of the rocks,
 from before the fear of the Lord
 and from the glory of his strength,
 when he rises to crush the earth.
3 Behold now the Sovereign, the Lord Sabaoth, will take away from Judea and from Ierousalem
 a strong man and a strong woman, strength of bread and strength of water, 2 a ^dmighty one^d and strong one and soldier,
 both judge and prophet,
 and diviner and elder,
 3 both officer of fifty and wonderful counselor, both skillful builder
 and intelligent listener.
 4 And I will set up youths as their rulers, and mockers shall be lords of them.
 5 And the people will fall together, man against man,
 and a man against his neighbor;
 the child will stumble against the elder,
 the dishonored against the honorable.
 6 Because a man will seize his brother or his father's kinsman, saying,
 "You have a cloak;
 you be our leader,
 and let my food
 be under^e you."
 7 But he will answer and say on that day,
 "I will not be your leader, for in my house there is neither bread nor cloak;
 I will not be the leader of this people," 8 because Ierousalem has been abandoned and Judea has fallen
 and their tongues are joined with lawlessness, being disobedient toward the things of
 the Lord;
 now therefore their glory has been brought
 low.
 9 And the shame of their face has risen up against them;
 they have proclaimed their sin like that of Sodoma,
 and they have made it plain.
 Woe to their soul!
 Because they have given evil counsel against themselves, 10 saying, "Let us bind the just, for he is a nuisance to us."
 Therefore they shall eat the fruit of their works.

^aI.e. the balanites aegyptiaca ^bOr their idols ^cOr will throw away to the vain ones and to the bats his silver and gold abominations, which they made to do obeisance to ^dOr giant ^eOr supplied by

- 11 Woe to the lawless one! Evil things will happen to him according to the works of his hands.
- 12 O my people, your exactors strip you clean, and your creditors lord it over you. O my people, those who congratulate you mislead you and confuse the path of your feet.
- 13 But now the Lord will stand up to judge, and he will make his people stand to judge them.
- 14 The Lord himself will enter into judgment with the elders of the people and with their rulers.
But you, why have you burned my vineyard, and why is the spoil of the poor in your houses?
- 15 Why do you wrong my people and shame the face of the poor?
- 16 This is what the Lord says:
Because the daughters of Zion were lifted up and walked with an uplifted neck and with a wink of the eyes, all the while sweeping their tunics in the gait of their feet, all the while being playful with their feet;
- 17 God will bring low the ruling daughters of Zion, and the Lord will expose their form ¹⁸in that day.

And the Lord will take away the glory of their attire and their adornments and the braids^a and the tassels and the crescents¹⁹ and the necklace and the adornment of their face²⁰ and the collection of glorious adornment and the bracelets^b and the armlets and the braiding and the bangles^c and the rings and the earrings²¹ and the garments trimmed with purple and the garments blended with purple²² and the housecoats^d and the transparent Lacedonian fabrics²³ and the garments of fine linen, both the blue ones and the scarlet ones, and the fine linen embroidered with gold and blue thread and the light flowing garments.

- ²⁴ And instead of a pleasant scent there will be dust, and instead of a girdle you will gird yourself with a rope, and instead of a head adornment of gold you will have baldness because of your works, and instead of the tunic blended with purple you will gird yourself about with sackcloth.
- 25 And your most beautiful son, whom you love, shall fall by dagger, and your strong men shall fall by dagger

- (²⁶)and shall be brought low.
- 26 And the cases for your adornment shall mourn, and you shall be left alone and shall be dashed to the ground.

- 4 Seven women shall take hold of one man, saying,
"We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothes; just let your name be called upon us; take away our reproach."

2 But on that day God will gloriously shine on the earth with counsel, to uplift and glorify what remains of Israel. ³And what is left behind in Zion and remains in Jerusalem will be called holy, all who have been recorded for life in Jerusalem, ⁴because the Lord will wash away the filth of the sons and daughters of Zion and will cleanse the blood from their midst by a spirit of judgment and a spirit of burning. ⁵Then he will come, and as for every site of Mount Zion and all that surrounds it, a cloud will overshadow it by day and will be like smoke and like a light of fire burning by night. With all glory will it be covered. ⁶And it will serve as a shade from the heat and as a shelter and a hideout from harshness and rain.

- 5 I will now sing for the beloved a song of the loved one concerning my vineyard:
The beloved had a vineyard on a hill, on a fertile place.
- 2 And I put a hedge around it and fenced it in and planted a Sorech^e vine, and I built a tower in the midst of it and dug out a wine vat in it, and I waited for it to produce a cluster of grapes, but it produced thorns.
- 3 And now, man of Ioudas and those who dwell in Jerusalem, judge between me and my vineyard.
- 4 What more might I do for my vineyard, and I have not done for it? Because I waited for it to produce a cluster of grapes, but it produced thorns.
- 5 But now I will declare to you what I will do to my vineyard. I will remove its hedge, and it shall be plundered, and I will tear down its wall, and it shall be trampled down.
- 6 And I will abandon my vineyard, and it shall not be pruned or dug, and a thorn shall come up into it as into a wasteland,

^aOr hairpins ^bOr anklets ^cOr bracelets for the right arm ^dOr draperies about the house ^eHeb = choice

- and I will also command the clouds, that they send no rain to it.
- 7 For the vineyard of the Lord Sabaoth is the house of Israel, and the man of Ioudas
is a beloved young plant;
I waited for him to produce justice, but he produced lawlessness—
nor ^adid he produce^a righteousness, but a cry!
- 8 Ah, those who join house to house and bring field next to field so that they may take something from their neighbor!
Will you dwell alone on the earth?
- 9 For these things were heard in the ears of
the Lord Sabaoth;
for if houses become many, large and beautiful ones shall be desolate, and there shall be no inhabitants.
- 10 For where ten yoke of oxen shall work, ^athat land^a shall produce one jarful, and he who sows six bushels shall produce three measures^b.
- 11 Ah, those who rise early and pursue the sikerac, who linger till evening,
for wine will inflame them!
- 12 For with lyre and harp and drums and flutes do they drink the wine
but do not regard the works of the Lord or consider the works of his hands!
- 13 Therefore my people have become captive,
because they do not know the Lord;
they have become a multitude of corpses,
because of famine and thirst for water.
- 14 And Hades has enlarged its appetite and opened its mouth without ceasing;
and her^d glorious ones and her^d great and her^d rich and her^d pestilent shall go down.
- 15 A person shall be brought low, and a man shall be dishonored,
and the eyes that are high shall be
brought low.
- 16 But the Lord Sabaoth shall be exalted in
judgment,
and the Holy God shall be glorified in righteousness.
- 17 Then those who have been plundered shall graze like bulls,
and lambs shall feed on the wastelands
of those who have been displaced.
- 18 Ah, those who draw sins as with a long rope and who draw acts of lawlessness as with a strap from a heifer's yoke, 19 who say, "Let him quickly bring near the things he will do,
that we may see them,
and let the plan of the Holy One of Israel
come,
that we may know it!"
- 20 Ah, those who call evil good and good evil,
who make darkness light
and light darkness,
who make bitter sweet
and sweet bitter!
- 21 Ah, those who are wise in themselves and knowledgeable in their own sight!
- 22 Ah, your strong ones who drink wine and the powerful ones who mix the sikerac,
23 who acquit the impious one for the sake of bribes
and take away the right of the righteous
one!
- 24 Therefore, as stubble will be burned by a coal of fire
and burned up by a weakened flame, so their root will be like fine dust
and their blossom go up like dust;
for they did not want the law of the Lord Sabaoth
but have provoked the oracle of the Holy
One of Israel.
- 25 And the Lord Sabaoth was enraged with anger against his people, and he laid his hand on them and struck
them;
the mountains were provoked, and their carcasses became like dung
in the middle of the road.
In all these things his wrath has not turned away,
but his hand is still high.
- 26 Therefore, he will raise a signal among the nations that are far away and whistle for them from the end of the
earth.
And behold, they are coming, quickly, swiftly!
- 27 They will not hunger nor grow weary nor slumber nor sleep,
nor will they loosen their girdles from their waist,
nor will the thongs of their sandals be broken;
- 28 their arrows are sharp,
and their bows bent;
their horses' hoofs were reckoned as solid rock,
the wheels of their chariots as a tempest.
- 29 They rush like lions
but stand by like a lion's whelp, and he will seize and roar like a beast, and he will cast them out, and there will be no one who can rescue.

30 And he will roar because of them on that day,
like the sound of a surging sea.
And they will look to the land,
and behold, harsh darkness in their dismay.

6 And it happened in the year that King Ozias died that I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, lofty and raised up, and the house was full of his glory. ²And seraphin stood around him; ³the one had six wings and the one had six wings^a, and with two they covered their face, and with two they covered their feet, and with two they flew. ³And they cried out one to another and said:

"Holy, holy, holy is the Lord Sabaoth;
the whole earth is full of his glory."

⁴And the lintel was raised at the voice with which they cried out, and the house was filled with smoke. ⁵And I said: "O wretched that I am! I am stunned; for being a man and having unclean lips, I live among a people having unclean lips, and I have seen the King, the Lord Sabaoth, with my eyes!"

6 Then one of the seraphin was sent to me, and he had in his hand a live coal that he had taken from the altar with the tongs. ⁷And he touched my mouth and said: "Behold, this has touched your lips, and it will take away your lawlessness and purify your sins." ⁸Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom should I send, and who will go to this people?" And I said, "Here am I; send me!" ⁹And he said, "Go, and say to this people:

'You will listen by listening, but you will not understand, and looking you will look, but you will not perceive.'

10 For this people's heart has grown fat, and with their ears they have heard heavily,
and they have shut their eyes so that they might not see with their eyes and hear with their ears and understand with their heart and turn—and I would heal them."

11 Then I said, "How long, O Lord?" And he said:
"Until cities become desolate,
because they are not inhabited,
and houses, because there are no people,
and the land will be left desolate.

12 And after these things, God will send people far away, and those who have been left will be multiplied on the land.

13 And still a tenth part is on it, and it will be plundered again,
like a terebinth or an acorn tree when it falls from its station."

7 And it happened in the days of Achaz son of Ioatham the son of Ozias, king of Ioudas, that

King Raasson of Aram and King Phakee son of Romelias of Israel went up against Ierousalem to wage war against it but could not besiege it. ²And it was reported to the house of Daudid, saying, "Aram has made an agreement with Ephraim." And his^b soul and the soul of his^b people were agitated as when a tree in the forest is shaken by the wind.

3 Then the Lord said to Esaias, Go out to meet Achaz, you and the one who is left, your son Iasoub, at the pool on the upper road to the Fuller's Field. ⁴And you will say to him, Take care to be quiet, and do not fear, nor let your soul be feeble because of these two logs of smoking firebrands, for when my fierce anger comes, I will heal again. ⁵And as for the son of Aram and the son of Romelias: Because they have plotted an evil counsel concerning you, saying, ⁶We will go up to Judea, and after talking with them, let us turn them toward us, and we will make the son of Tabeel king over it; ⁷this is what the Lord Sabaoth says:

This counsel shall not remain,
nor shall it come to pass.

8 But the head of Aram is Damascus, but yet within sixty-five years ^cthe kingdom of Ephraim will cease from being people^c.

9 And the head of Ephraim is Somoron, and the head of Somoron is the son of Romelias.

And if you do not believe, neither shall you understand.

10 And the Lord spoke further to Achaz, saying, ¹¹Ask for yourself a sign of the Lord your God, in depth or in height. ¹²But Achaz said, I will not ask, nor will I put the Lord to the test. ¹³Then he^d said: "Hear now, O house of Daudid! Is it a small thing for you to provoke a fight with mortals? How then do you provoke a fight with the Lord? ¹⁴Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Look, the virgin shall be with child and bear a son, and you^e shall name him Emmanouel. ¹⁵He shall eat butter and honey; before he knows or prefers evil things, he shall choose what is good. ¹⁶For before the child knows good or bad, he defies evil to choose what is good, and the land that you fear ^ffrom before^f the two kings will be abandoned. ¹⁷But God will bring on you and on your people and on your ancestral house such days as have not yet come since the day that he took Ephraim away from Ioudas—the king of the Assyrians."

18 And it shall be on that day that the Lord will whistle for the flies that rule part of the river of Egypt and for the bee that is in the country of the Assyrians. ¹⁹And they will all come and rest in the ravines of the country and in the clefts of the rocks and into the caves and into every crevice and on every tree.

great and drunken razor—which is beyond the river of the king of the Assyrians—the head and the hair of the feet, and he will cut off the beard.

21 And it shall be on that day that a person will nourish a young cow of the cattle and two sheep, ²²and it shall be, because of the abundance of milk that they give, everyone that is left on the land will eat butter and honey.

23 And it shall be on that day that every place where there used to be a thousand vines, worth a thousand shekels, will become barren ground and thorn. ²⁴With dart and arrow they will enter there, for all the land will be barren ground and thorn, ²⁵and every hill being plowed will be plowed, and fear will not come there, for it will be turned^a from the barren ground and thorn to a place where a sheep can feed and an ox can tread.

8 Then the Lord said to me, Take for yourself ba scroll of a new large one^b and write on it with a man's pen, "In order to take plunder from the spoils quickly, for it is near," ²and make reliable men my witnesses, Ourias and Zacharias son of Barachias. ³And I went to the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son. Then the Lord said to me, Name him "Swiftly Spoil, Quickly Plunder"; ⁴for before the child knows how to call father or mother, it will receive the power of Damascus and the spoils of Samaria before the king of the Assyrians.

5 The Lord spoke to me yet further: ⁶Because this people does not want the water of Siloam that flows gently but want to have Raasson and the son of Romelias as king over you, ⁷therefore behold, the Lord is bringing up against you the mighty and abundant water of the River, the king of the Assyrians and his glory, and he will go up on your every ravine and walk on your every wall, ⁸and he will take away from Judea any man who can lift his head or who is capable to accomplish anything; his camp will be such as to fill the breadth of your country. God is with us.

11 Thus says the Lord, With a strong hand do they reject the course of the way of this people, saying: ¹²Never say "Hard," for whatever this people says is hard, but do not fear what it fears, neither be troubled. ¹³Sanctify the Lord himself, and he himself will be your^c fear. ¹⁴If you^c trust in him, he will become your^c holy precinct, and you will not encounter him as a stumbling caused by a stone nor as a fall caused by a rock, but the house of Iakob is in a trap, and those who sit in Ierousalem are in a pit. ¹⁵Therefore, many among them shall become powerless, and they shall fall and be crushed, and people who are in safety shall draw near and be taken.

16 Then shall become manifest those who seal up the law so that they might not learn. ¹⁷And one shall say, "I will wait for God, who has turned away his face from the house of Iakob, and I will trust in him. ¹⁸Here am I and the children whom God has given me, and they shall become signs and portents in Israel from the Lord Sabaoth, who dwells on Mount Sion." ¹⁹And if people say to you, "Seek those who utter sounds from the earth and the ventriloquists, the babblers who utter sounds out of their bellies," should not a nation be with its God? Why do they seek out the dead concerning the living? ²⁰For he has given a law as a help so that they may not speak a word such as this one, concerning which there are no gifts to give. ²¹And a harsh famine will come upon you, and it shall be that when you become hungry, you will be distressed, and you will vilify your ruler and your patriarch^d. And they will look up to heaven above, ²²and they will observe the earth below, but look: affliction and distress and darkness—dire straits and darkness so that they cannot see—⁽²³⁾and the one who is in distress will not be perplexed for a time.

12 And it shall be that when the Lord has finished doing all the things on Mount Sion and in Ierousalem, he will bring ^ahis wrath^a against the great mind, the ruler of the Assyrians, and against the loftiness of the glory of his eyes. ¹³For he said:

“By my strength I will do it, and by the wisdom of my understanding and I will plunder their strength.

¹⁴ And I will shake inhabited cities

²⁴ Therefore this is what the Lord Sabaoth says: O my people, who live in Sion, do not be afraid of the Assyrians, because he will beat you with a rod, for I bring a stroke upon you so that you may see the way of Egypt. ²⁵For yet a little while and the anger will cease, but my wrath will be upon their counsel. ²⁶God will stir up evil^a against them, like the stroke of Madiam at the place of affliction, and his wrath will be by the way of the sea, on the way toward Egypt. ²⁷And it shall be on that day that the

and of nations gathered together!
The Lord Sabaoth has commanded a heavily armed nation 5 to come from a distant land, from the utmost foundation of heaven—
the Lord and his armed men—
to destroy the whole world.

6 Wail, for the day of the Lord is near

9 For behold, the incurable day of the Lord comes,
a day of wrath and anger,
to make the whole world desolate
and to destroy the sinners from it.

10 For the stars of heaven and Orion and all the ornament of heaven

I will destroy the pride of the lawless and bring low the pride of the arrogant.
 12 And those that are left will be more valuable than unsmelted gold,
 and man will be more valuable than the stone from Souphir.
 13 For heaven will be enraged, and the earth will be shaken out of its foundations,
 because of the fierce anger of the Lord Sabaoth
 in the day when his wrath comes upon it.
 14 And those that are left will be like a fleeing gazelle
 or like a wandering sheep, and there will be no one to gather them so that a man will turn to his own people and a man will run to his own land.
 15 For whoever is caught will be defeated, and whoever are gathered together will

 16 And they will strike down their children in front of them,
 and they will plunder their houses
 and take their wives.
 17 See, I am stirring up the Medes against
 you,
 who do not take silver into account
 nor have any need of gold.
 18 They will crush the arrows of the young men,
 and they will have no mercy on your
 children,
 nor will their eyes be sparing upon the
 children.
 19 And Babylon, which is called glorious by the king of the Chaldeans, will be as when God overthrew Sodoma and Gomorra.
 20 It will not be inhabited forever, nor will they enter it for many generations,
 nor will Arabs pass through it,
 nor will shepherds rest in it.
 21 But wild animals will rest there, and the houses will be filled with noise;
 there sirens will rest,
 and there demons will dance.
 22 Donkey-centaurs^a will dwell there, and hedgehogs will build nests in their houses;
 it is coming quickly
 and will not delay.

14 And the Lord will have compassion on Iakob and will yet choose Israel, and they will rest on their own land, and the gioras^b will be added to them; indeed, he will be added to the house of Iakob. ²And nations will take them and bring them into their place, and they will obtain an inheritance and will be multiplied on the land of God for male and female slaves, and those who captured them will be captives, and those who dominated them will be dominated.

3 And it shall be on that day that God will give you rest from your pain and wrath and your hard slavery with which you were subject to them. ⁴And you will take up this lament against the king of Babylon, and you will say on that day:
 How the exactor has ceased and the taskmaster has ceased!
 5 God has crushed the yoke of sinners, the yoke of rulers.
 6 Having struck a nation in wrath with an incurable blow, smiting a nation with a wrathful blow that spared no one,
 (7) he rested confidently.
 7 The whole earth shouts with joy,
 8 and the trees of Lebanon rejoiced over you, even the cedar of Lebanon, saying,
 "Since you fell asleep,
 the one who is to cut us down has not come up."
 9 Hades beneath was embittered on meeting you;
 all the ^dmighty ones^d who have ruled the
 earth
 rose up together against you—those who have roused from their thrones all the kings of the nations.
 10 All will answer
 and say to you:
 "You too were taken even as we were,
 and you were counted among us!" 11 But your glory has gone down to Hades—your abundant joy;
 they will spread decay beneath you,
 and a worm will be your covering.
 12 How is fallen from heaven the Day Star, which used to rise early in the morning!
 He has been crushed into the earth who used to send light^c to all the nations!
 13 You said in your mind,

 I will set my throne
 above the stars of God;
 I will sit on a lofty mountain, upon the lofty mountains toward the north;
 I will ascend above the clouds;
 I will be like the Most High." 15 But now you will descend into Hades and into the foundations of the earth.
 16 Those who see you will marvel at you and say:

18 All the kings of the nations have fallen asleep in honor,
a man in his own house, 19 but you will be cast out on the mountains,
like an abominable corpse, with many dead, those pierced with daggers,
who go down into Hades.
As a cloak stained with blood will not be clean, 20 so neither will you be clean, because you have destroyed my land and killed my people.

You will not remain forever,
you evil seed!
21 Prepare your children to be slaughtered for the sins of your father so that they will not rise and inherit the
earth
and fill the earth with wars.

22 And I will rise up against them, says the Lord Sabaoth, and will destroy their name and remnant and offspring. This is what the Lord says: ²³And I will make Babylonia desolate so that hedgehogs will dwell there, and it will become nothing, and I will make it a miry pit for destruction.

24 This is what the Lord Sabaoth says:
As I have said,
so shall it be,
and as I have planned,
so shall it remain:
25 to destroy the Assyrians from my land and
from my mountains,
and they shall be trampled,
and their yoke shall be removed from
them,
and their renown shall be removed from their shoulders.
26 This is the plan that the Lord has planned against the whole earth, and this is the hand that is raised up against all the nations of the world.
27 For what ^bthe holy God^b has planned, who will scatter it?
And his hand that is raised up,

²⁸In the year that King Ahaz died this word came:
29 May you not rejoice, all you allophyles, for from the seed of snakes will come forth

the offspring of snakes, and their offspring will come forth as flying snakes.
30 And the poor will graze through him,
and poor men will rest in peace,

but he will wipe out your offspring with famine,
and your remnant he will wipe out.
31 Wail, O city gates;

allophyles!
Because smoke comes out of the north,
and there is ^cno way to live.
32 What will the kings of the nations answer?
“The Lord has founded Sion, and the humble among the people will be saved through him.”

15 The word against Moabitis.

By night Moabitis will perish;
for by night the wall of Moabitis will perish.
2 Grieve for yourselves, for Lebedon will perish!
Where your altar^d is, there you will go up to weep:
wail over Nabau of Moabitis!
On every head will be baldness;
all arms will be cut in pieces.
3 In her highways gird yourselves with sackcloth, and smite yourselves;
on her housetops and in her streets wail, all of you, with weeping!
4 Because Hesebon and Eleale have cried out, her voice is heard as far as Iassa;
therefore the loins of Moabitis cry aloud;
her soul will know.
5 The heart of Moabitis cries aloud within her as far as Segor,
for she is a three-year-old heifer.
And on the ascent of Louith
they will go up to you weeping;
by the way of Haroniim she cries aloud, “Destruction and an earthquake!”
6 The water of Nemrim
will be desolate,
and her grass will fail,
for there will be no green grass.
7 Even so, will she be saved?
For I will bring Arabs to the ravine,
and they will take her.
8 For the cry has reached the boundary of Moabitis of Agallim, and her wailing
as far as the well of Ailim.
9 And the water of Remmon will be filled with blood,
for I will bring Arabs upon Remmon, and I will remove the offspring of Moab and Ariel
and the remnant of Adama.

16 I will send as it were creeping animals on
the land:
is Mount Sion a desolate rock?

^aPossibly captivity ^bGod Sabaoth = Zi ^cGk uncertain ^dGk = bômos

2 For you will be as a nestling taken away from a bird that is flying, O daughter of Moab!
 And then, O Arnon, 3 take further counsel,
 and make for her
 a shelter for mourning for all time.
 They flee in darkness at noon;
 they were astonished;
 do not be taken away.
 4 The fugitives of Moab will sojourn with you;
 they will be a shelter to you^a from before a pursuer,
 because your alliance has been taken away and the ruler who trampled on the land has perished.
 5 Then a throne shall be restored with mercy, and he shall sit on it with truth in the tent of David,
 judging and seeking judgment and ^bquickly procuring^b righteousness.
 6 We have heard of the pride of Moab:
 exceedingly proud he is;
 you have removed his arrogance.
 Your divination is not thus;
 7 Moab shall wail,
 for in Moabitis all shall wail.
 You will take care of those who dwell in Adeseth,
 and you will not ^cbe ashamed^c.
 8 The plains of Hesebon will mourn, the vine of Sebama.
 As you swallow up the nations,
 trample down her vines as far as Iazer.
 You will not come together;
 you will not wander in the wilderness;
 those who were sent have been forsaken,
 for they crossed the wilderness.
 9 Therefore I will weep as with the weeping of Iazer
 for the vine of Sebama.
 He has cut down your trees,
 O Hesebon and Eleale, because I will trample down your harvest
 and vintage,
 and all things will fall.
 10 And joy and gladness will be taken away from your vineyards,
 and in your vineyards
 they will not rejoice,
 and they will not tread out wine in the vats,
 for ^dthe vintage^d has ceased.
 11 Therefore my belly will resound like a lyre upon Moab,
 and my inward parts will be like a wall that you have made new.
 12 And it will be for your shame, because Moab has become weary at the altars^e, and she will enter the works of her hands in order to pray but will not be able to deliver him.

13 This was the word that the Lord spoke against Moab at the time he also spoke. ¹⁴But now I say, In three years of the years of a hired worker, the glory of Moab will be dishonored with all its great wealth, and it will be left very few in number and without honor.

17 The word against Damascus.

See, Damascus will be removed from among cities
 and will become a ruin, 2 abandoned forever, to be a fold and resting place for flocks,
 and there will be no one to drive them
 away.
 3 And no longer will it be strong enough for Ephraim to flee to it for refuge, and no longer will there be a kingdom in Damascus,
 and the rest of the Syrians will perish, for you are not better than the sons of Israel and their glory.

⁴This is what the Lord Sabaoth says:

On that day
 there will be a failing of the glory of Iakob,
 and the riches^f of his glory will be shaken.
 5 And it shall be as if someone were to gather the standing crop
 and reap the seed of the ears of grain,
 and it shall be as if someone were to gather
 an ear of grain
 in a firm^g ravine
 6 and as if a stalk should be left in it, or like berries of an olive tree—two or three on the topmost height,
 or four or five left
 on its branches.

This is what the Lord God of Israel says: ⁷On that day a man will trust in the One who made him, and his eyes will look to the Holy One of Israel, ⁸and they will not trust in the altars^e nor in the works of their hands, which their own fingers have made, and they will not look at their trees nor at their abominations.

⁹ On that day your cities will be abandoned, just as the Amorrites and the Heuites abandoned them before the sons of Israel, and they will be desolate.

10 Because you have abandoned God your savior and have not remembered the Lord your helper,
 therefore you will plant an unfaithful plant and an unfaithful seed.

11 But on the day that you plant them,
 you will be led astray,
 and if you sow in the morning,
 it will blossom for harvest
 in whatever day you take possession of it, and like a man's father
 you will take possession of it for your sons.

12 Ah, the multitude of many nations!
 Like a swelling sea, so will you be troubled,
 and the backside of many nations will roar like water.

13 Many nations are like much water, as when much water violently rushes
 down.
 And he will damn him and pursue him far
 away,
 like the dust of chaff when they winnow
 before the wind
 and like a squall that drives a circling dust cloud.

14 Toward evening there will be lamentation;
 before morning, and it will not be.
 This is the portion of those who despoiled
 you
 and an inheritance for those who inherited you.

18 Ah, wings of a land of ships beyond the rivers of Ethiopia—2 he who sends hostages by sea and papyrus letters on the water!
 For swift messengers will go to a high nation,
 and a foreign and fierce people:
 who is beyond it?
 It is a nation
 without hope and trampled down.

Now the rivers of the land will be all like an inhabited country; 3 their country will be inhabited as if a signal were raised from a mountain—
 like the sound of a trumpet will it be heard,
 4 because thus the Lord said to me:
 There will be safety in my city
 like the light of midday heat, and it will be like a cloud of dew
 in the day of harvest.
 5 Before the harvest, when the blossom has been completed
 and the unripe grape blossoms—a grape-bearing blossom—then he will take away the little clusters with pruning hooks
 and take away the small branches and cut them off
 6 and leave them together to the birds of heaven

and to the beasts of the earth.
 And the birds of heaven will be gathered over them,
 and all the beasts of the earth will come upon him.

7 At that time gifts will be brought to the Lord Sabaoth from a people afflicted and plucked and from a great people henceforth and forever, a nation having hope and trodden down, which is in a part of a river of its land, to Mount Sion, the place where the name of the Lord Sabaoth is.

19 A vision concerning Egypt.

See, the Lord is sitting on a swift cloud and will come to Egypt, and the handiworks^a of Egypt will be shaken at his presence, and their heart will be dismayed within
 them.
 2 And Egyptians will be stirred up against Egyptians,
 and a man will war against his brother,
 and a man against his neighbor,
 city against city and province against province,
 3 and the spirit of the Egyptians will be troubled within them,
 and I will scatter their counsel, and they will consult their gods and their images
 and those who speak out of the earth and the ventriloquists,
 4 and I will deliver Egypt
 into the hands of men, cruel lords, and cruel kings will lord it over them.

This is what the Lord Sabaoth says:
 5 And the Egyptians will drink the water that is by the sea,
 but the river will fail and be dried up, 6 and the rivers and the canals of the river will fail,
 and every gathering of water,
 even in every marsh of reed and papyrus,
 will be dried up.
 7 And the green marsh grass, all that is around the river and all that is sown by the river, will be dried up, blasted by the wind.
 8 And the fishers will groan, and all who cast hooks into the river will groan,
 and those who cast seines and those who are anglers will mourn.
 9 And shame will take hold of those who work the split flax
 and those who work the linen.
 10 And those who weave them will be in pain,
 and all who make beer will be grieved,
 and they will afflict their souls.

^aOr idols

- 11 And the rulers of Tanis will be fools;
 as for the wise counselors of the king,
 their counsel will become foolish.
 How will you say to the king,
 "We are sons of sages,
 sons of kings who were from the beginning"?
- 12 Where now are your wise men?
 And let them also declare to you and say what the Lord Sabaoth has planned against Egypt.
- 13 The rulers of Tanis have failed, and the rulers of Memphis have been exalted,
 and they will lead Egypt astray
 a^atribe by tribe^a.
- 14 For the Lord has prepared^b for them
 a spirit of error,
 and they have led Egypt astray in all their
 works,
 as the drunkard and the one who vomits
 are led astray together.
- 15 And there will not be a work for the Egyptians
 that will make head or tail, beginning or
 end.

16 But on that day the Egyptians will be like women in fear and in trembling before the hand of the Lord Sabaoth, which he will lay on them. 17And the land of the Judeans will become a terror to the Egyptians. As for everyone who should mention it to them—they will fear because of the plan that the Lord has planned against it.

18 On that day there will be five cities in Egypt speaking the Chananite language and swearing in the name of the Lord. The one city will be called Asedek City.

19 On that day there will be an altar to the Lord in the land of the Egyptians and a stele to the Lord at its border. 20And it will be a sign forever to the Lord in the country of Egypt, because they will cry to the Lord on account of those who oppress them, and the Lord will send them a man who will save them—judging he will save them. 21And the Lord will be known to the Egyptians, and the Egyptians will know the Lord on that day and will offer sacrifices and make vows to the Lord and repay them. 22And the Lord will strike the Egyptians with a great blow and heal them with healing, and they will return to the Lord, and he will listen to them and heal them.

23 On that day there will be a way from Egypt to the Assyrians, and the Assyrians will enter Egypt, and the Egyptians will go to the Assyrians, and the Egyptians will be subject to the Assyrians.

24 On that day Israel will be third among the Assyrians and among the Egyptians, blessed in the land 25that the Lord Sabaoth has blessed, saying, "Blessed be my people that are in Egypt and among the Assyrians, even Israel my heritage."

20 In the year that Tanathan entered Azotos, when he was sent by Sarnan, king of the Assyrians, and waged war against Azotos and took it—²then the Lord spoke to Esaias, saying, "Go, and take off the sackcloth from your loins, and untie your sandals off your feet," and he did so, walking naked and barefoot. ³And the Lord said, "Just as my servant Esaias has walked naked and barefoot for three years, there will be signs and portents to the Egyptians and Ethiopians, ⁴because thus shall the king of the Assyrians lead away the captivity of Egypt and of the Ethiopians, young and old, naked and barefoot, uncovered—the shame of Egypt. ⁵And the Egyptians, having been defeated, shall be ashamed because of the Ethiopians, in whom the Egyptians had trusted, for they were their glory. ⁶And those who dwell in this island will say, 'See, we had trusted to flee to them for help, who could not be saved from the king of the Assyrians! And we, how shall we be saved?'"

21 The vision of the wilderness.

As a whirlwind might pass through a wilderness—coming from a wilderness, from land—dreadful ²and harsh is the vision declared to me;
 c^cthe betrayer betrays^c;
 the lawless one acts lawlessly.
 The Ailamites are upon me, and the envoys of the Persians are coming upon me.
 Now I will groan and comfort myself.
³ Therefore my loins have been filled with weakness,
 and pangs have seized me
 like a woman in labor;
 d^dI did wrong not hearing;
 I hastened not seeing^d.
⁴ My heart wanders, and lawlessness overwhelms me;
 my soul has turned to fear.
⁵ Prepare^f the table;
 drink; eat!
 Rise up, rulers;
 prepare shields!
⁶ Because thus the Lord said to me:
 "Go, post a lookout for yourself, and announce whatever you see."
⁷ And I saw two riding horsemen, a rider on a donkey and a rider on a camel.
 Listen with much listening,
⁸ and call Ourias to the watchtower of the Lord.
 And he said:
 "I stood continually by day,
 and over the camp I stood the whole night.
⁹ And look, he himself comes,

^aOr according to its tribes ^bOr mixed as a drink ^cOr the one who rejects, rejects ^dOr I did wrong so as not to hear; I endeavored not to see ^eOr my lawlessness ^fGk = sg (others in verse pl)

a rider of a pair of horses!"
 Then he answered and said,
 "Babylon has fallen,
 and all her images and ^athe works of her hands^a
 have been crushed to the ground." 10 Hear, you who have been left and you who are in pain;
 hear the things I have heard from the Lord Sabaoth;
 the God of Israel has announced them
 to us.

11 The vision concerning Idumea.
 He calls to me from Seir,
 "Guard the battlements!"
 12 I guard them in the morning and at night.
 If you would inquire, inquire,
 and dwell by me."
 13 In the evening, you will lie down in the thicket,
 in the way of Dedan.
 14 Bring water to meet the thirsty, O you who dwell in the land of Thaiman;
 meet with bread those who flee 15 because of the multitude of those who flee and because of the multitude of those who wander
 and because of the multitude of the dagger and because of the multitude of the poised arrows
 and because of the multitude of those who have fallen in war.

16 For thus the Lord said to me: Yet a year, like the year of a hired worker—the glory of the sons of Kedar will fail, ¹⁷and the rest of the arrows of Kedar's strong sons will be few, because the Lord, the God of Israel, has spoken.

22 The vision concerning the ravine of Sion.

What has happened to you^b now that you have all gone up to useless housetops?
 2 The city was filled with people shouting.
 Your wounded were not wounded by dagger,
 nor were your dead men dead in battle.
 3 All your rulers have fled, and those who were caught have been harshly bound,
 and those who are strong in you have fled far away.
 4 Therefore I said:
 Leave me alone;
 I will weep bitterly;
 do not prevail in comforting me
 for the ruin of the daughter of my race.
 5 Because it is a day of trouble and destruction and trampling and there is wandering from the Lord Sabaoth

 in the ravine of Sion,
 from small to great they wander;
 they wander on the mountains.
 6 Now the Ailamites took quivers—riding men on horses
 and a gathering for battle.
 7 And your choicest ravines will be filled with
 chariots,
 and the cavalry will block your gates.
 8 And they will uncover the gates of loudas and look on that day into the choicest houses of the city, 9 and they will uncover the secrets of the houses of the citadel of Daud.

And they saw that there were rather many and that they had turned the water of the old pool into the city ¹⁰and that they had demolished the houses of Ierousalem to fortify the wall for the city. ¹¹And you ^cproduced water^c for yourselves between the two walls, further inward than the old pool. But you did not look to him who made it from the beginning, nor did you see him who created it.

12 And in that day the Lord Sabaoth called for weeping and lamentation and shaving and girding with sackcloth, 13 but they engaged in joy and gladness, killing calves and slaughtering sheep in order to eat meat and drink wine, saying:
 "Let us eat and drink,
 for tomorrow we die." 14 And these things are revealed in the ears of
 the Lord Sabaoth,
 because^d this sin will not be forgiven you until you die.

15 This is what the Lord Sabaoth says: Go into the priestly chamber, to Somnas the treasurer, and say to him: ¹⁶Why are you here? What do you have here, that you have cut out a tomb here for yourself and made for yourself a tomb on the height and inscribed a tent for yourself in a rock? ¹⁷Look now, the Lord Sabaoth will hurl away and wipe out a man, and he will take away your robe ⁽¹⁸⁾and your glorious crown ¹⁸and throw you into a great and immeasurable land; there you shall die. And he will make your fair chariot a disgrace and your ruler's house something trampled down, ¹⁹and you will be removed from your office and from your position.

20 And it shall be on that day that I will call my servant Eliakim the son of Chelkias ²¹and will clothe him with your robe and give him your crown, and I will give your power and office into his hands, and he shall be as a father to those who dwell in Ierousalem and to those who dwell in loudas. ²²And I will give him the glory of Daud, and he shall rule, and there shall be no one to contradict him. ²³And I will make him ruler in a secure place, and he will become a throne of glory to his father's house. ²⁴And everyone who is glorious in his father's house, from small to great, will trust in him, and they will ^ahang over^a him ²⁵on that day. This is what the Lord Sabaoth says: The man who was fastened in a secure place will be removed and will fall, and the glory that was on him will be taken away, for the Lord has spoken.

23 The vision of Tyre.

Wail, O ships of Carthage,
 for she has perished,
 and people no longer come from the land of the Kiteans:
 she has been led captive.
² To whom have become similar those who dwell in the island—
 the merchants of Phoenicia, crossing the sea
³ on much water,
 an offspring of merchants?
 The merchants of the nations are as when a harvest is being gathered in.
⁴ "Be ashamed, O Sidon," said the sea, and the strength of the sea said:
 "I have not travailed nor given birth nor reared young men nor raised up virgins."
⁵ But when it becomes heard in Egypt, anguish concerning Tyre will take hold of
 them.
⁶ Go away to Carthage—
 wail, O you who dwell in this island!
⁷ Was this not your pride from the
 beginning,
 before she was handed over?
⁸ Who has planned these things against Tyre?
 Is she inferior? Or does she have no strength?
 Her traders are glorious,
 rulers of the earth!
⁹ The Lord Sabaoth has planned to undo all the pride of the glorious ones
 and to dishonor every glorious thing on
 the earth.
¹⁰ Work your land,
 for indeed ships no longer come from Carthage.
¹¹ But your hand, which irritated kings,
 is no longer strong by sea;
 the Lord Sabaoth commanded concerning Chanaan
 to destroy her strength.
¹² And they will say:
 You will no longer continue to insult and do wrong to the daughter of Sidon;
 even if you go away to the Kiteans, not even there will you have rest.

¹³ And bif you go^b to the land of the Chaldeans, this too has been made desolate by the Assyrians, because her wall has fallen.

¹⁴ Wail, O ships of Carthage, because your fortress has perished.
¹⁵And it shall be on that day that Tyre will be abandoned for seventy years, like the time of a king, like the time of a man. And it shall be that after seventy years Tyre will be like the song about a prostitute:
¹⁶ Take a lyre;
 roam, you city,
 you forgotten prostitute!
 Play the lyre well;
 sing much,
 that you may be remembered.

¹⁷And it shall be that after seventy years God will pay a visit to Tyre, and she will be restored again to her ancient condition and will be a market center for all the kingdoms of the world. ¹⁸And her merchandise and her wages will be holy to the Lord; it will not be gathered for them, but all her merchandise will be for those who live in the presence of the Lord, to eat and drink and be filled, ^cas a covenant, a memorial^c in the presence of the Lord.

24 Look, the Lord is ruining the world and will make it desolate, and he will uncover its surface and scatter those who dwell in it.

² And the people shall be like the priest, and the servant like the master,
 and the maid like the mistress;
 the buyer shall be like the seller,
 and the lender like the borrower, and the creditor like the one to whom he owes.
³ The earth shall be ruined with ruin, and the earth shall be plundered with plundering,
 for the mouth of the Lord has spoken
 these things.
⁴ The earth mourned,
 and the world was ruined;
 the exalted ones of the earth mourned.
⁵ And the earth behaved lawlessly because of those who inhabit it, because they transgressed the law and changed the ordinances—
 an everlasting covenant.
⁶ Therefore a curse will devour the earth, because those who inhabit it have sinned;
 therefore those who dwell in the earth will be poor,
 and few people will be left.
⁷ The wine will mourn;
 the vine will mourn;
 all who rejoice in their soul will groan.
⁸ The joy of the drums has ceased;
 the stubbornness and wealth of the impious have ceased;
 the sound of the lyre has ceased.

^aPossibly depend on ^bLacking in Gk ^cPossibly for a contribution to be kept as remembrance

9 They felt shame, did not drink wine;
the sikera^a became bitter to those who drank it.

10 Every city was made desolate;
he will shut up the house so that no one can enter.

11 Wail everywhere for the wine;
all the joy of the earth has ceased.

12 And cities will be left desolate;
abandoned houses will perish.

13 All these things shall be on the earth,
in the midst of the nations;
just as when someone gleans an olive tree,
so shall people glean them,
even when the harvest has ceased.

14 These will cry aloud with their voice, but those who are left in the land will rejoice together in the glory of the Lord.
The water of the sea will be troubled.

15 Therefore the glory to the Lord will be in the islands of the sea;
the name of the Lord will be glorious.

16 O Lord God of Israel, (16) from the wings of the earth
we have heard wonders:
Hope for the godly one.
But ^bthose who reject the law will say,
Woe to those who reject!^b

17 Fear and pit and snare are upon you who dwell on the earth!

18 And it shall be that the one who flees from the fear
shall fall into the pit,
and the one who gets out of the pit shall be caught by the snare, because windows have been opened out of heaven,
and the foundations of the earth will be shaken.

19 The earth will be troubled with trouble, and the earth will be perplexed with perplexity.

20 The earth has bent over, and it will be shaken like a garden-watcher's hut, like the one who drinks too much and is intoxicated,
and it will fall and will not be able to rise,
for lawlessness has prevailed upon it.

21 And God will bring his hand against the ornament of heaven and against the kings of the earth.

22 And they will gather them together and shut them up in a fortress and in a prison;
through many generations
will be their visitation.

23 Then the brick will be dissolved, and the wall will fall, because the Lord will reign

in Sion and in Ierusalem, and before the elders he will be glorified.

25 O Lord, my God,
I will glorify you; I will sing hymns to your name,
because you have done wonderful things—
an ancient, true plan. May it be so,
Lord!

2 Because you have made cities a heap, fortified cities, so their foundations might
fall;
the city of the impious will not be built
forever.

3 Therefore the poor people will bless you, and cities of ill-treated persons will bless
you.

4 For you have become a helper to every humble city
and a shelter to those who are dispirited
because of poverty;
you will rescue them from evil persons—
a shelter for the thirsty and breath for ill-treated persons,

5 like faint-hearted persons thirsting in Sion, because of the impious, to whom you delivered us.

6 On this mountain the Lord Sabaoth will make ^ca feast^c for all nations:
they will drink joy;
they will drink wine;

7 they will anoint themselves with perfume.

(7) Deliver all these things to the nations on this mountain,
for this counsel is against all the nations.

8 Death, having prevailed, swallowed them
up,
and God has again taken away every tear
from every face;
the disgrace of the people he has taken away
from all the earth,
for the mouth of the Lord has spoken.

9 And they will say on that day, Lo, our God, in whom we were hoping,
and we were glad in our salvation, because God will give us rest on this
mountain,
and Moabitis shall be trodden down as they tread a threshing floor with wagons.

11 And he will send forth his hands, as he himself brought him low to destroy him,
and he will bring low his pride—
things on which he laid his hands.

12 And he will bring low the height of the refuge of your wall,
and it will come down all the way to the ground.

^aAram = strong drink ^bOr they will say, Woe to those who reject—those who reject the law ^cLacking in Gk

26 On that day they will sing this song on the land of Ioudas, saying:
 Look, a strong city,
 and he will make our salvation
 its wall and outer wall.
 2 Open the gates;
 let a people enter that keeps
 righteousness
 and that keeps truth, 3 that lays hold of truth
 and that keeps peace,
 because in you
 4 have they hoped, O Lord, forever—
 the great, everlasting God, 5 you who have humbled and brought down those who dwell in lofty places;
 you will cast down strong cities and bring them down to the ground, 6 and the feet of the gentle and humble will trample them.
 7 The way of the godly has become straight;
 the way of the godly has also been prepared,
 8 for the way of the Lord is judgment;
 we have hoped in your name and in the remembrance 9 that our soul desires.
 In the night my spirit ^aarises early toward you^a, O God,
 because your ordinances are a light upon
 the earth.
 Learn righteousness, you who dwell on the
 earth;
 10 for the impious one has come to an end; he will not learn righteousness on the earth;
 he will not perform truth.
 Let the ungodly one be taken away so that he may not see the glory of the Lord.
 11 O Lord, your arm is lifted up,
 and they have not known it, but once they realize it, they will be ashamed.
 Jealousy will take hold of an uninstructed
 people,
 and fire will now consume the adversaries.
 12 O Lord, our God, give us peace,
 for you have granted us all things.
 13 O Lord, our God, take possession of us;
 O Lord, we know no other besides you;
 we name your name.
 14 But the dead will not see life, nor will physicians raise them up;
 because of this you have brought them and destroyed them
 and taken away all their males.
 15 Increase evils on them, O Lord; increase evils on the glorious ones of the
 earth.

16 O Lord, in affliction I remembered you;
 with small affliction ^byour chastening was on us^b.
 17 And as a woman in travail is about to give birth
 and cries out in her pangs, so were we to your beloved because of the fear of you, O Lord.
 (18) We conceived and travailed and gave birth; ^cwe produced a wind of your salvation^c on the earth,
 but those who dwell on the earth will fall.
 19 The dead shall rise, and those who are in the tombs shall be raised, and those who are in the earth shall rejoice;
 for the dew from you is healing to them,
 but the land of the impious shall fall.
 20 Go, my people, enter your chambers;
 shut your door;
 hide yourselves for a little while until the wrath of the Lord has passed.
 21 For look, the Lord from his holy place^d brings his wrath upon those who dwell
 on the earth;
 the earth will disclose its blood and will not cover the slain.

27 On that day God will bring his holy and great and strong dagger against the dragon, a fleeing snake—against the dragon, a crooked snake—and he will kill the dragon.

2 On that day:
 A beautiful vineyard—
 a desire to begin singing about it.
 3 I am a strong city, a besieged city;
 in vain will I water it,
 for it will be taken by night,
 and by day the wall will fall.
 4 There is not ^{da}city^d that has not taken hold
 of it;
 who will set me to watch stubble in a field?
 Because of this enmity I have set it aside.
 Therefore because of this the Lord God has done all things,
 whatever he has ordained.
 I have been burned up.
 5 Those who dwell in it will cry out:
 Let us make peace with him;
 let us make peace!
 6 ^eThose who are coming are the children of Iakob;
 Israel shall bud and blossom^e,
 and the world will be filled with his fruit.
 7 Will he be smitten even as he himself has struck?

^aPossibly eagerly seeks you ^bOr you instructed us ^c*we did not produce a wind of salvation* = Zi ^dLacking in Gk ^eOr As for those who are coming: the sons of Iakob shall bud, and Israel shall blossom

And will he be killed even as he himself has killed?
8 Fighting and reviling, he will send them
away.
Were you not the one who conspired with your harsh spirit
to kill them with a spirit of wrath?
9 Because of this the lawlessness of Iakob will be removed.
And this is his blessing, when I remove his sin,
when they make all the stones of the altars^a broken pieces like fine dust,
and their trees will not remain, and their idols will be cut down like a forest far away.
10 The inhabited fold will be left deserted,
like a forsaken fold,
and it will be turned into a feeding place for a long time,
and there they will rest.
11 Then after a time there will be nothing green in it,
because it will have dried up.
You women who come from a spectacle,
come here!
For it is not a people having
understanding;
therefore he that made them will not have compassion,
nor will he that formed them have mercy.

12 And it shall be on that day that the Lord will fence them in from the channel of the river to Rhinocorura, but as for you, gather the sons of Israel one by one. ¹³And it shall be on that day that they will trumpet with the great trumpet, and those who were lost in the country of the Assyrians and those who were lost in Egypt will come and do obeisance to the Lord on the holy mountain at Ierousalem.

28 Ah, the crown of pride,
the hired workers of Ephraim,
the flower that has fallen from its glory on the top of the stout^b mountain—those who are drunk without wine!
2 See, the wrath of the Lord is a strong and harsh thing,
like hail rushing down where there is no shelter;
violently rushing down like a great flood that sweeps a country,
it will give rest ^cto the land.
With hands ³and feet the garland^c of pride will be trampled—
the hired workers of Ephraim.
4 And the flower that has fallen from its glorious hope
on the topmost of the lofty mountain will be like an early fig;
the one who sees it will want to eat it up before he takes it into his hand.

5 In that day the Lord Sabaoth will be the garland of hope,
which is woven of glory, to what is left of
my people.
6 They will be left for a spirit of judgment—for judgment and strength ^din forbidding anyone to destroy^d.
7 For these have gone astray with wine;
they went astray because of sikera^e;
the priest and the prophet lost their senses
because of wine;
they were shaken up as a result of the drunkenness of strong drink;
they went astray; this is an omen.
8 A curse will devour this counsel, for this counsel is for the sake of greed.
9 To whom did we declare evil things, and to whom did we declare a message?
Those who are weaned from milk,
those pulled away from the breast?
10 Expect affliction upon affliction,
hope upon hope,
yet a little, yet a little,
11 because of contempt from lips, through a different tongue,
because they will speak to this people, 12 saying to them,
"This is the rest for the hungry,
and this is the destruction";
yet they would not hear.
13 And the oracle of the Lord God will be to
them
affliction upon affliction,
hope upon hope,
yet a little, yet a little,
in order that they may go and fall backward,
and they will be in danger and crushed
and taken.
14 Therefore hear the word of the Lord, you afflicted men
and rulers of this people that is in Ierousalem.
15 Because you have said, "We have made a covenant with Hades
and agreements with death,
if a rushing storm passes through,
it will not come to us;
we have made falsehood our hope,
and in falsehood we will be sheltered";
16 therefore thus says the Lord,
See, I will lay for the foundations of Sion
a precious, choice stone, a highly valued cornerstone for its
foundations,
and the one who believes in him will not be put to shame.
17 And I will turn judgment into hope,

^aGk = bômos ^bOr rich ^cto the land, to hands, and to feet. And the garland = Zi ^dGk uncertain ^eAram = strong drink

- and my mercy will become weight balances,
and as for you who trust vainly in falsehood, ^aI tell you^a that the tempest will not pass you by,
18 lest it also take away your covenant of death.
And your hope regarding Hades will not remain;
 if a rushing storm comes,
 you will be trampled down by it.
19 When it passes by, it will take you;
early, early in the day it will pass by,
and at night it will be an evil hope;
learn to hear.
20 We are in straits and unable to fight, and we ourselves are too weak to be mobilized.
21 He will rise up as a mountain of impious
ones,
 and he will be in the ravine of Gabaon;
with wrath he will do his deeds—a deed of bitterness!
 But his wrath will deal strangely,
 and his bitterness will be strange.
22 And as for you, may you not rejoice, nor let your bonds become strong,
because I have heard from the Lord Sabaoth
 of deeds finished and cut short,
 which he will perform upon the whole
 land.
23 Give ear, and hear my voice;
 pay attention, and hear my words.
24 Will the plowman plow the whole day?
 Will he prepare the seed prior to working
 the land?
25 When he has leveled its surface, does he not then sow small dill^b and cumin
and again sow wheat and barley and spelt in your borders?
26 And you will be instructed by the judgment of your God,
and you will rejoice.
27 For the dill is not purified with harshness, nor will a cart wheel roll over the cumin,
but the dill^b is shaken with a rod, and the cumin ²⁸will be eaten with bread.
For I will not be angry with you forever, nor will the voice of my bitterness trample you.
29 And these wonders came forth from the Lord Sabaoth;
 take counsel; lift up a vain appeal.
- 29 Ah, city of Ariel, against which Daudid waged war!
- Gather crops year by year,
for you will eat with Moab.
2 For I will greatly distress Ariel, and her strength and wealth shall be mine.
3 And like Daudid I will surround you;
I will lay ramparts around you and set up towers around you.
4 Then your words shall be brought low to
the earth;
to the earth shall your words sink;
your voice shall be like those who utter sounds from the earth,
and your voice shall be weak near the
ground.
5 But the wealth of the impious shall be like dust from a wheel
and like flying chaff.
And it shall be like an instant, suddenly,
6 from the Lord Sabaoth, for there shall be a visitation with thunder and earthquake and a great voice,
a rushing storm and a devouring flame of
fire.
7 And the wealth of all the nations—
as many as marched against Ariel and all that went to war against Jerusalem
and all who were gathered against her and were distressing her—shall be like one who dreams in his sleep.
8 And they shall be like those who hunger and eat in their sleep, and after rising, their dream is vain,
and just as a thirsty person dreams that he is drinking
and after rising is still thirsty and his soul has hoped for something
vain,
so shall the wealth of all the nations be,
as many as have marched against Mount Sion.
9 Be faint and amazed;
get a drunken headache—
not from strong drink
nor from wine!
10 Because the Lord has made you drink with a spirit of deep sleep;
he will close their eyes and those of their prophets and of their rulers—
the ones who see the hidden things.
11 And all these sayings shall become for you like the words of this sealed book. If they give it to a learned man, saying, “Read these things,” then he will say, “I cannot read it, for it is sealed.” ¹²And this book will be given into the hands of an un-learned man, and one will say to him, “Read this,”
and he will say, “I am not learned.”

13 The Lord said:
 These people draw near me;
 they honor me with their lips,
 while their heart is far from me,
 and in vain do they worship me,
 teaching human precepts and teachings.

14 Therefore look, I will proceed to remove this people.
 I will remove them and destroy the wisdom of the wise,
 and the discernment of the discerning I will hide.

15 Ah, those who make plans deeply and not through the Lord!
 Ah, those who make plans in secret,
 and their works will be in darkness!
 And they will say, "Who has seen us, and who will know us or the things we do?"

16 Shall you not be regarded as the potter's clay?
 Shall the thing formed say to the one who formed it,
 "You did not form me,"
 or the thing made to the one who made it,
 "You made me with no understanding"?

17 Is it not yet a little while,
 and Lebanon shall be changed like Mount Chermel, and Mount Chermel shall be regarded as a forest?

18 On that day the deaf shall hear the words of a scroll,
 and as for those who are in the darkness
 and those who are in the fog, the eyes of the blind shall see.

19 And the poor shall be glad with joy because of the Lord,
 and those despairing among people shall be filled with joy.

20 The lawless has failed, and the arrogant has perished, and those who transgress wickedly have been utterly destroyed—

21 even those who cause people to sin in word.
 And they will make all those who reprove in the gates a cause of stumbling, and they have turned aside the just ^aamong the unjust^a.

22 Therefore this is what the Lord says concerning the house of Iakob, which he set apart from Abraam:
 Iakob shall not be ashamed now,
 nor shall Israel now change his face.

23 But when ^btheir children see my works^b, because of me they will sanctify my name;
 they will sanctify the Holy One of Iakob and will fear the God of Israel.

24 And those who wander in spirit will know
 understanding,

and those who grumble will learn to obey, [and the faltering tongues will learn to speak peace].

30 Oh, rebellious children, this is what the Lord says,
 You made a plan not through me
 and agreements not through my spirit, to add sins to sins—

2 those who walk to go down to Egypt but did not ask me,
 to be helped by Pharaoh
 and to be sheltered by the Egyptians.

3 For ^cthe shelter of Pharaoh shall become a shame to you,
 and to those who trust in Egypt, a reproach.

4 Because there are leaders in Tanis, evil messengers,
 5 in vain shall they become weary
 (5) with a people that shall not profit them—neither for help nor for profit
 but for shame and reproach.

6 The vision of the quadrupeds in the wilderness.
 In affliction and distress,
 there are a lion and a lion's whelp, thence also asps and the offspring of flying asps,
 those who brought their wealth on donkeys and camels
 to a nation that shall not profit them for help,
 but for shame and reproach.

7 The Egyptians shall benefit you in vain and with emptiness;
 announce to them,
 "This consolation of yours is vain."

8 Now therefore sit, and write these things on a tablet and in a book, because these things shall be for days of times
 and even forever.

9 For they are a disobedient people, faithless sons,
 who were not willing to hear
 the law of God,

10 who say to the prophets, "Do not declare to us"
 and to those who see visions, "Do not speak to us,
 but talk to us,
 and declare to us another error, 11 and turn us back from this way; remove from us this path,
 and remove from us the Holy One of Israel."

12 Therefore thus says the Lord, the Holy One of Israel:

^aOr with what is unjust ^bOr they see their children, my works ^cOr Pharaoh shall be your shelter to your shame

Because you disobeyed these words and hoped in a lie
and because you^a murmured
and trusted in this word, 13 therefore this sin shall be for you like a wall falling suddenly when a strong city is taken,
whose fall comes suddenly, 14 and its fall will be like the crushing of an earthen vessel,
becoming small fragments of a jar so that you cannot find among them a sherd
in which you can take up fire and in which you can skim off a little water.

15 Thus says the Lord, the Holy One of Israel:
When you turn back and groan, then you shall be saved and realize where you were;
when you placed your trust in vain things,
your strength became vain.
And you were not willing to hear ¹⁶but said, “We will flee upon horses”— therefore you shall flee!
And you said, “We will be riders upon swift steeds^b”— therefore those who pursue you shall be swift!

17 Because of the voice of one, a thousand shall flee,
and because of the voice of five, many
shall flee,
until you are left
like a pole on a mountain, like someone bearing a standard on a hill.

18 And again God will wait to have compassion on you;
therefore he will be exalted to show mercy to you,
because the Lord our God is a judge,
and where will you leave your glory?
Happy are those who stay firm in him.

19 Because a holy people shall dwell in Sion, and Ierusalem wept with weeping, “Have mercy on me,” he will have mercy on you for the voice of your cry; when he saw, he listened to you. ²⁰And the Lord will give you^c bread of affliction and scant water, and those who lead you astray will not come near you any more, because your eyes shall see those who lead you astray ²¹and your ears shall hear the words of those behind you who have led you astray, who say, “This is the way; let us walk in it, whether to the right or to the left.” ²²And you will remove the silver-covered and the gold-covered idols. You will make small and scatter them^b like the water of a ^dwoman who sits apart^d, and like dung you will throw them out.

23 Then will there be rain for the seed of your land, and the bread of the produce of your land will be plenteous and rich. And on that day your cattle will graze in a fertile and spacious place; ²⁴your bulls and oxen that work the land will eat chaff prepared with winnowed barley. ²⁵On every lofty mountain and every high hill there will be running water, on that day when many perish and when towers fall. ²⁶And the light of the moon will be like the light of the sun, and the light of the sun will be sevenfold on the day when the Lord heals the destruction of his people, and he will heal the pain of your wound.

27 See, the name of the Lord comes after a long
time;
his wrath is burning;
the oracle of his lips is with glory; his oracle
is full of anger,
and the anger of his wrath will devour
like fire;

28 his breath, like water sweeping in a ravine, will come up to the neck and be divided to confuse nations in^e vain error, and error will pursue them
and lay hold of them face-to-face.

29 Must you continually rejoice and continually enter my holy places as if you were keeping a feast? And as if you were rejoicing must you come in with a flute to the mountain of the Lord, to the God of Israel? ³⁰And God will make the glory of his voice to be heard, and he will show the wrath of his arm with wrath and anger and a devouring flame; he will thunder violently, even like water and hailstones falling down with violence. ³¹The Assyrians will be defeated because of the voice of the Lord, through the stroke with which he will smite them. ³²And this will happen to him on all sides, from where the hope of help in which he himself trusted came to him; they in turn will wage war against him with flutes and lyres, ³³for you will be deceived before those^b days; was it also for you to reign that it was made ready with a deep trench, wood piled, fire and wood in abundance?
The wrath of the Lord is like a ravine burning with brimstone.

31 Ah, those who go down to Egypt for help, who trust in horses and in chariots, for they are many,
and in horses—a great multitude—but did not trust in the Holy One of Israel and did not seek God!

2 And he, being wise, brought evils upon
them;
his word will not be set to naught.
And he will rise against the houses of evil
men
and against their vain hope—

3 an Egyptian, a man and not God—

^aGk = sg (previous verbs pl) ^bLacking in Gk ^cGk = pl (others in context sg) ^dOr menstruating woman ^eOr for their

the flesh of horses, and there is no help.
But the Lord will turn his hand against
them,
and those who help will grow weary,
and they will all perish together.

4 Because thus the Lord said to me,
As a lion or a whelp might roar over the prey that he has taken and might cry out over it until the mountains are filled with his voice—
and they were overcome, and were terrified at the greatness of his wrath—
so the Lord Sabaoth will come down, to march against Mount Zion and against its mountains.
5 Like birds flying, so the Lord will shield
Ierousalem;
he will deliver and preserve and save it.

6 Turn, you who plan a deep and lawless plan, 7 because on that day people shall disown their handiworks^a of silver and gold, which their hands have made.

8 Then Assour shall fall; not a man's dagger, nor a human dagger, shall devour him,
and he shall not flee from before a dagger,
(9) but his young men shall be defeated; 9 for they shall be encompassed by a rock, as
with a rampart,
and they shall be defeated,
and the one who flees will be caught.
This is what the Lord says:
"Happy is the one who has a seed in Sion
and kinsmen in Ierousalem."

32 For see, a just king will reign, and rulers will rule with judgment.
2 The man will be hiding his words and will be hidden as from rushing water, and he will appear in Sion like a rushing river,
glorious in a thirsty land.
3 Then no longer will they trust in men,
but they will lend their ears to hear.
4 The heart of the weak will apply itself to hear,
and the stammering tongues will soon learn to speak peace.
5 And they will no longer tell the fool to rule, and no longer will your servants say, "Be quiet."
6 For the fool will speak folly, and his heart will devise vain things in order to accomplish lawless things and to speak error against the Lord, in order to scatter hungry souls
and to make empty the souls that thirst.
7 For the counsel of the evil ones will plan lawless things, to ruin the humble with unjust words and to scatter the words of the humble in judgment.

8 But the godly have planned intelligent
things,
and this counsel will remain.

9 Rise up, you wealthy women, and hear my
voice;
you daughters in hope, hear my words.
10 Mention^b the days of a year in pain with hope;
the vintage has been consumed;
the sowing has ceased and will no longer
come.

11 Be amazed; be grieved,
you confident women;
strip; make yourselves bare;
gird sackcloth on your loins, 12 and beat your breasts for a desired field and for a fruitful vine.

13 As for the land of my people, thorns and grass will come up, and joy will be removed from every
house.

A wealthy city,
14 forsaken houses!
They will give up a city's wealth and desirable houses.
And the villages will be caverns forever,
the joy of wild donkeys,
a feeding place of shepherds, 15 until a spirit from on high comes upon
you.

And Chermel will be a wilderness,
and Chermel will be regarded as a forest.
16 Then judgment will rest in the wilderness, and righteousness abide in Carmel.

17 And the works of righteousness will be peace,
and righteousness will hold on to rest,
and they will be confident forever.
18 His people will abide in a city of peace, dwell in confidence and rest with wealth.
19 If hail descends, it will not come upon you.
And those who dwell in the forests will be confident, like those in the plain.
20 Happy are those who sow beside every
water,
where ox and donkey tread.

33 Woe to those who distress you!
But no one makes you distressed,
and ^cthe betrayer does not betray you;
the betrayers^c will be caught and delivered up,
and like a moth on a garment,
so will they be defeated.

2 O Lord, have mercy on us, for we trust in you.

^aOr idols ^bOr recall ^cOr the one who rejects does not reject you; the ones who reject

- The seed of the disobedient came to destruction,
but our salvation came in a time of
affliction.
- 3 Because of the voice of the fear of you, peoples were astonished for fear of you,
and the nations scattered.
- 4 But now your spoils—of small and of great—
will be gathered;
as someone might gather grasshoppers,
so will they mock you.
- 5 God who dwells in lofty places is holy;
Sion is filled with judgment and
righteousness.
- 6 By law they will be handed over.
Our salvation is in treasures:
wisdom and knowledge and piety toward the Lord are there;
these are the treasures of righteousness.
- 7 See now! They themselves will be afraid with fear of you;
those you feared will be afraid because of
you,
for messengers will be sent requesting peace,
weeping bitterly, entreating for peace.
- 8 For the roads of these people will be made
desolate;
the fear of the nations has ceased,
and their covenant with these is being put
away,
and you will not reckon them to be men.
- 9 The land mourned;
Lebanon was ashamed;
Saron became marshes;
Galilee and Carmel will become visible.
- 10 “Now I will arise,” says the Lord, “now I will be glorified;
now I will be exalted.
- 11 Now you will see;
now you will perceive;
the strength of your spirit will be vain;
fire will consume you.
- 12 And the nations will be burned like a thorn cast out and burned in a field.”
- 13 Those who are far away will hear the things I have done;
those who are near will know my might.
- 14 The lawless in Sion have gone away;
trembling will seize the impious.
Who will declare to you that a fire is burning?
Who will declare to you the everlasting
place?
- 15 One walking in righteousness, speaking a straight way,
hating lawlessness and unrighteousness and shaking off his hands from gifts, making his ears dull, lest he hear a judgment of blood,
shutting his eyes, lest he see unrighteousness—
- 16 this one will live in the high cave of a strong rock;
bread will be given to him,
and his water will be assured.
- 17 You will see a king with glory, and your eyes will see a land from far
away.
- 18 Your soul will muse on fear: “Where are the scholars? Where are the counselors?
Where is the one who counts those gathering together,
a small and a great people?”
They took no counsel with him,
nor did he know deep speech, so that a despised people could not
hear,
and there is no understanding to the one who hears.
- 20 Look, the city of Sion is our salvation!
Your eyes will see Ierusalem, a wealthy city:
tents that will not be shaken, nor will the stakes of its tent be moved
forever,
nor will its ropes be broken.
- 21 Because the name of the Lord is great to
you,
there will be a place for you—rivers and canals, broad and spacious.
You shall not go this way,
nor shall a ship go sailing.
- 22 For my God is great; the Lord will not pass me by.
The Lord is our judge; the Lord is our ruler;
the Lord is our king; he will save us.
- 23 Your ropes broke,
because they were not strong.
Your mast has bent; it will not release the sails;
it will not raise a signal until it is given up for plunder;
therefore many lame will take plunder.
- 24 And the people who live in them will not say, “I am weary,”
for their sin has been forgiven.
- 34 Draw near, O nations, and hear, O rulers!
Let the earth hear, and those in it,
the world, and the people that are in it, because the wrath of the Lord is against all
the nations
and his anger against the whole number of them,

to destroy them and to give them over for slaughter.

3 Their wounded and their dead shall be cast
out,
and their stench shall rise;
the mountains shall be drenched with their blood.

4 Heaven shall roll up like a scroll, and all the stars shall fall like leaves from a vine and as leaves fall from a fig tree.

5 My dagger has become drunk in heaven;
lo, it will descend upon Idumea and upon the people of destruction with judgment.

6 The dagger of the Lord is filled with blood;
it is gorged with the fat of lambs and with the fat of goats and rams, because the Lord has a sacrifice in Bosor and a great slaughter in Idumea.

7 And the prominent ones shall fall with
them,
both the rams and the bulls.
And the land shall become drunk with blood,
and it shall be filled with their fat.

8 For it is a day of the Lord's judgment and a year of recompense for the judgment of Sion.

9 And her ravines shall be turned into pitch,
and her land into sulfur;
her land shall burn like pitch

10 night and day,
and it shall not be quenched forever,
and its smoke shall go up above;
for generations it shall be made desolate;
indeed, for a long time it shall be made
desolate.

11 But birds and hedgehogs and ibises and ravens shall live in it.
A measuring line of desolation shall be cast over it,
and donkey-centaurs^a shall dwell in it.

12 Her rulers shall not be,
for her kings and her rulers and her nobles shall be destroyed.

13 Thorn trees shall grow up in their cities and in her fortresses.
It shall be a habitation of sirens
and a courtyard of ostriches.

14 Demons shall meet with donkey-centaurs^a and call one to another;
there donkey-centaurs^a shall repose, for they have found for themselves a place to rest.

15 There has the hedgehog made a nest, and the earth has preserved her young in safety;
there does met
and saw each other's faces.

16 They have passed by in number,
and not one of them has perished;
they did not seek each other,
because the Lord has commanded them and his spirit has gathered them.

17 He will himself cast lots for them^b;
his hand has distributed ^cfood for them^c to eat.

Let the wilderness be glad,

Be strong; do not fear!
Look, our God is repaying judgment;
yes, he will repay;
he himself will come and save us.

5 Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened,

and they shall not go astray.

9 And no lion shall be there,

⁴And Rapsakes said to them, "Say to Hezekias: This is what the great king, the king of the Assyrians, says: Why are you trusting? ⁵Does marshalling take place through counsel or by words of the lips? And now in whom do you trust, that you are rebelling against me? ⁶See, you are trusting in Egypt, this broken reed-rod; whoever leans on it, it will go into his hand. Such is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and all who trust in him. ⁷But if you say, 'We trust in the Lord our God,' ⁸come in contact now with my lord the king of the Assyrians. I will give you two thousand horses, if you will be able to set riders on them. ⁹How then are you able to ^aturn back to the face of a one governor? Those who trust in Egypt for horse and rider are domestics. ¹⁰And now, is it without the Lord that we have come up against this country to war against it?"

¹¹Then Eliakim, Somnas and Ioach said to him, "Speak to your servants in Syrian, for we understand it; do not speak to us in Judean. And why do you speak to the ears of the people who are on the wall?" ¹²But Rapsakes said to them, "Has my lord sent me to speak these words to your lord or to you? Is it not to the people sitting on the wall so that they may eat dung and drink urine together with you?"

¹³Then Rapsakes stood and called out in a loud voice in Judean and said, "Hear the words of the great king, the king of the Assyrians! ¹⁴This is what the king says: 'Do not let Hezekias deceive you with words that will not be able to deliver you. ¹⁵Do not let Hezekias say to you, God will deliver you, and this city will not be given up into the hand of the king of the Assyrians.' ¹⁶Do not listen to Hezekias. This is what the king of the Assyrians says: 'If you wish to be blessed, come out to me; then everyone of you will eat from his own vine and fig trees and drink water from your own cistern, ¹⁷until I come and take you to a land like your land, a land of grain and wine and breads and vineyards. ¹⁸Do not let Hezekias deceive you by saying, Your God will deliver you. Have the gods of the nations delivered each one his own country out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians?"

¹⁹Where is the god of Hemath and Arphad? And where is the god of the city of Seppharim? Have they been able to deliver Samaria out of my hand? ²⁰Which of the gods of all these nations has delivered his land out of my hand, that God should deliver Ierusalem out of my hand?"

²¹But they were silent, and no one answered him a word, because the king had ordered that no one should answer. ²²Then Eliakim the son of Chelkias, the steward, and Somnas, the secretary of the army, and Ioach the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekias with their tunics torn and reported to him the words of Rapsakes.

37 And it happened, when King Hezekias heard it, that he tore his clothes, put sackcloth about him and went up into the house of the Lord. ²And he sent Eliakim the steward and Somnas, the secretary, and the senior priests, with sackcloth about them, to the prophet Esaias son of Amos. ³They said to him, "This is what Hezekias says, Today is a day of affliction and of reproach and of rebuke and of anger, because the pangs have come to the woman giving birth, but she has no strength to give birth. ⁴May the Lord, your God, listen to the words of Rapsakes, which the king of the Assyrians has sent to revile the living God, yes, to revile with the words that the Lord, your God, has heard; therefore you will pray to the Lord your God concerning these that are left."

⁵And the servants of the king came to Esaias, ⁶and Esaias said to them, "Thus you will say to your lord, 'This is what the Lord says: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which the ambassadors of the king of the Assyrians have reviled me. ⁷Look, I will put a spirit in him, and when he hears a report, he will return to his country, and he will fall by the dagger in his own land.'"

⁸Rapsakes returned and found the king besieging Lomna. ⁹And the king of the Assyrians heard that ⁽⁹⁾Tharaka, king of the Ethiopians, had gone out to besiege him. When he heard it, he turned back and sent messengers to Hezekias, saying, ¹⁰"Thus shall you speak to King Hezekias of Judea: Do not let your God in whom you trust deceive you by saying, Ierusalem will not be given over into the hands of the king of the Assyrians. ¹¹Or have you not heard the things that the kings of the Assyrians have done—how they have destroyed the whole earth? ¹²Have the gods of the nations delivered them whom my fathers destroyed, both Goza and Charran and Raphes, which are in the country of Thelsad? ¹³Where are the kings of Hemath and Arphad and of the city of Seppharim, of Hanag, of Ougaua?"

¹⁴Hezekias received the letter from the messengers and opened it before the Lord. ¹⁵And Hezekias prayed to the Lord, saying: ¹⁶"O Lord Sabaoth, God of Israel, who sits upon the cheroubin, you alone are God of every kingdom of the world; you have made heaven and earth. ¹⁷Listen,

^aPossibly rebel against

O Lord; look, O Lord, and see the words that Sennacherim has sent to revile the living God. ¹⁸For truly the kings of the Assyrians have made desolate the whole world and their country ¹⁹and have hurled their idols into the fire, for they were no gods, but the works of human hands—wood and stone—and they destroyed them. ²⁰But you, O Lord, our God, save us from their hand so that every kingdom of the earth may know that you alone are God.”

²¹ Then Esaias son of Amos was sent to Hezekias and said to him: “This is what the Lord says, the God of Israel: I have heard the things you have prayed to me concerning King Sennacherim of the Assyrians. ²²This is the word that God has spoken concerning him:

Virgin daughter Sion has despised and mocked you;
daughter Ierousalem has shaken her head
at you.

²³ Whom have you reviled and provoked?
Or against whom have you raised your
voice?

And you did not lift your eyes on high
to the Holy One of Israel!

²⁴ Because by your messengers you have reviled the Lord,
for you said, ‘With the multitude of my
chariots

I have gone up to the height of the
mountains
and to the utmost limits of Lebanon, and I cut down the height of its cedar and the beauty of its cypress, and I entered into the height of its forest region,

²⁵ and I built a bridge^a and desolated the waters
and every gathering of water.’

²⁶ Have you not heard long ago of these things that I have done?
From ancient days I ordained them,
but now I have exhibited them, to make desolate the nations that are in strong places
and those who dwell in strong cities.

²⁷ I weakened their hands, and they have withered,
and they have become like dry grass on housetops
and like wild grass.

²⁸ But now I know your resting place, your going out and coming in.

²⁹ And your wrath with which you have raged and your bitterness have come up to me;
so I will put a muzzle on your nose
and a bit on your lips;
I will turn you back on the way
by which you came.

³⁰ “And this shall be the sign for you: This year eat what you have sown, and in the second year what is left; then in the third year sow, reap, and plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. ³¹And those that are left in Judea shall take root downward and bear seed upward, ³²because from Ierousalem shall be those who are left, and from Mount Sion those who are saved. The zeal of the Lord Sabaoth will do these things.

38 Now it happened at that time that Hezekias became sick to the point of death. And the prophet Esaias son of Amos came to him and said to him, “This is what the Lord says: Make arrangements concerning your house, for you shall die; you shall not live.” ²Then Hezekias turned his face to the wall and prayed to the Lord: ³“Remember, O Lord, how I have walked before you with truth, with a true heart, and have done the things that are pleasing in your sight.” And Hezekias wept with a great weeping.

⁴ Then the word of the Lord came to Esaias, saying: ⁵“Go, and say to Hezekias, This is what the Lord, the God of your ancestor Dauid, says: I have heard the voice of your prayer and have seen your tears; look, I am adding fifteen years to your time. ⁶And I will save you out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians and shield this city.

⁷ “This is the sign to you from the Lord, that God will do this thing: ⁸The shadow of the steps on which the sun has gone down—the ten steps of the house of your father—I will turn back the sun those ten steps.” So the sun went up the ten steps on which the shadow had gone down.

⁹Prayer of King Hezekias of Judea, when he had become sick and had recovered from his sickness:

¹⁰ I said: At the height of my days, in the gates of Hades,

I shall leave behind my remaining years.

¹¹ I said, No longer shall I see the salvation of God on the earth;
no longer shall I see a man

12 from my kindred.
I have left behind the rest of my life;
it has gone out and departed from me like the one who having pitched a tent takes it down;
my spirit in me became like the web
of a weaver who approaches to cut it off.

13 In that day I was given over (13) as to a lion until morning;
thus he broke my bones,
for I was given over from day to night.

14 Like a swallow, so will I cry out, and like a dove, so will I mutter^a;
for my eyes have ^bfailed from looking^b
to the height of heaven, toward the Lord, who rescued me
(5) and took away ¹⁵the pain of my soul.

16 Lord, you were indeed told concerning it, and you revived my breath,
and I, comforted, came to life!

17 For you have chosen my soul
so that it may not perish, and you have cast all my sins behind me.

18 For those who are in Hades will not praise
you,
nor will the dead bless you,
nor will those who are in Hades hope for your mercy.

19 The living will praise you,
as I also do,
for from today I will produce children who will declare your righteousness, 20 O Lord of my salvation.
And I will not cease praising you with a harp
all the days of my life,
before the house of the Lord.

21 And Esaias said to Hezekias, "Take a cake of figs, and mash it, and apply it as plaster, and you will be well." ²²And Hezekias said, "This is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the Lord God."

39 At that time Marodach son of Laadan, the king of Babylonia, sent letters and ambassadors and presents to Hezekias, for he heard that he had been sick to the point of death and had recovered. ²And Hezekias rejoiced over them with great joy, and he showed them the house of the nechoth^a and of the oil of myrrh and of the incense and of the perfume and of the silver and of the gold and all the houses of the vessels of the treasure and all the things that were in his storehouses. And there was nothing that Hezekias did not show them in his house. ³Then the prophet Esaias came to King Hezekias and said to him, "What do these men say, and from where have they come to you?" And Hezekias said, "They have come to me from a land far away, from Babylon." ⁴And Esaias said,

"What have they seen in your house?" And Hezekias said, "They have seen all the things that are in my house—and there is nothing in my house that they have not seen—but also the things in my storehouses."

5 Then Esaias said to him, "Hear the word of the Lord Sabaoth: ⁶Look, days are coming, says the Lord, when they will take all the things that are in your house, and whatever your fathers have collected up until this day shall go to Babylon, and they shall leave nothing behind. And God has said ⁷that they shall take also some of your children whom you have begotten and shall make them eunuchs in the house of the king of the Babylonians." ⁸Then Hezekias said to Esaias, "The word of the Lord that he has spoken is good. Let there now be peace and righteousness in my days."

40 Comfort, O comfort my people, says God.
²O priests, speak to the heart of Ierousalem;
comfort her,
because her humiliation has been fulfilled,
her sin has been done away with,
because she has received from the Lord's hand
double that of her sins.

3 A voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
"Prepare the way of the Lord;
make straight the paths of our God.

4 Every ravine shall be filled up, and every mountain and hill be made
low,
and all the crooked ways shall become straight,
and the rough place shall become plains.

5 Then the glory of the Lord shall appear, and all flesh shall see the salvation of God,
because the Lord has spoken."

6 A voice of one saying, "Cry out!"
And I said, "What shall I cry?"
All flesh is grass;
all the glory of man is like the flower of grass.

7 The grass has withered, and the flower has fallen,
8 but the word of our God remains forever.

9 Go up on a high mountain,
you who bring good tidings to Sion;
lift up your voice with strength, you who bring good tidings to Ierousalem;
lift^d it up; do not fear^d;
say to the cities of Ioudas,
"See, your God!"

10 See, the Lord comes with strength, and his arm with authority;
see, his reward is with him,
and his work before him.

11 He will tend his flock like a shepherd

12 Who has measured the water with his hand and heaven with a span
and all the earth by handful?
Who has weighed the mountains with a scale
and the forests with a balance?

13 Who has known the mind of the Lord, and who has been his counselor to instruct him?

14 Or with whom did he consult, and he instructed him?
Or who showed him judgment?
Or who showed him the way of
understanding?

15 If all the nations have been accounted as a drop from a jar
and as the sinking of a balance,
they will also be accounted as spittle.

16 Lebanon is not enough for burning, nor are all the quadrupeds enough for a whole burnt offering.

17 And all the nations are as nothing, and they have been accounted as
nothing.

18 To whom have you likened the Lord, or with what likeness have you likened
him?

19 Has an artisan made an image, or has a goldsmith, after casting gold, gilded it—prepared a likeness of it?

20 For an artisan chooses wood that will not rot,
then inquires wisely how he should set up his image
and ^awhat to do^a so that it will not topple.

21 Will you not know? Will you not hear?
Has it not been declared to you from the beginning?
Have you not known the foundations of
the earth?

22 It is he who holds the circle of the earth, and those who dwell in it are like grasshoppers,
who has set up heaven like a vault and stretched it out like a tent to live in,

23 who has appointed rulers to rule for naught
and has made the earth as nothing.

24 For they will not sow, nor will they plant, neither will their root take root in the
earth;
he blew upon them, and they withered, and a tempest will carry them off like brushwood.

25 Now therefore to whom did you liken me and will I be made equal? said the Holy
One.

26 Look up on high with your eyes, and see:
Who has exhibited all these?
He who brings out his ornamentation by number,
he will call them all by name;
because of abundant glory
and by might of strength, nothing has escaped you.

27 For do not say, O Iakob, and why have you spoken, O Israel, “My way was hidden from God, and my God has taken away my judgment and has withdrawn”?

28 And now, have you not known? Have you not heard?
God everlasting,
God who prepared the ends of the earth,
will not hunger or grow weary—nor is there searching of his
understanding—
giving strength to those who hunger and sorrow to those who are not grieving.

30 For youths will hunger, and the young will be weary,
and the chosen will be powerless, but those who wait for God shall change their strength;
they shall grow wings like eagles;
they shall run and not be weary;
they shall walk and not hunger.

41 Be dedicated to me, O islands, for the rulers will change strength;
let them approach and speak together;
then let them declare judgment.

2 Who has roused righteousness from the east,
called it to its feet and it will go?
He will place it before nations and astonish kings,
and he will place their daggers in the earth, and their bows like brushwood that is driven out.

3 And he will pursue them, and the way of his feet will pass through in peace.

4 Who has wrought and done these things?
The one calling her from the beginning of generations
has called her.
I, God, am first,
and for the things that are coming, I am.

5 The nations saw and became afraid;
the ends of the earth drew near and came
together,
each deciding to help
his neighbor and his brother.

 4 He will blaze up and not be overwhelmed

 5 Thus says the Lord God,
 who created heaven and established it, who bolstered the earth and the things that are in it
 and who gave breath to the people upon it and spirit to those who tread on it:
 6 I, the Lord God, have called you in

 I have given you as a covenant to a race,
 as a light to nations,
 7 to open the eyes of the blind, to bring out from bonds those who are

 and from the prison house those who sit in darkness.
 8 I am the Lord God; this is my name;
 my glory I will not give to another,
 nor my excellences to the graven images.
 9 As for the things that were from the
 beginning,
 see, they have come;
 also new things,
 which I myself will declare,
 and before they sprang forth,
 they were made plain to you.
 10 Sing to the Lord a new song,
 [you, his dominion]!
 Glorify his name from the end of the earth,
 you who go down to the sea and sail it,
 you islands and those who inhabit them.
 11 Rejoice, O wilderness and its villages,
 O homesteads and those who inhabit Kedar.
 Those who inhabit Petra will rejoice;
 they will shout from the tops of the
 mountains.
 12 They will give glory to God;
 they will declare his excellences in the islands.
 13 The Lord God of the powers^c will go forth and crush the war;
 he will stir up jealousy
 and shout against his foes with strength.

14 I have been silent.
 Shall I even always be silent and hold
 back?
 I have endured like a woman in labor;
 I will amaze and wither at once.
 15 And I will turn rivers into islands and dry up marshlands.
 16 And I will lead the blind
 by a road they have not known, and I will make them tread paths
 they had no knowledge of.
 I will turn the darkness into light for them and the crooked places into a straight path.
 I will do these things,
 and I will not forsake them.
 17 But they turned away backwards!
 Be ashamed with shame,
 you who trust in the graven images,
 who say to the cast images,
 "You are our gods."
 18 Hear, you that are deaf, and you that are blind, look up to see!
 19 And who is blind but my servants, and deaf but they who lord it over
 them?
 Even God's slaves have become blind.
 20 You have often seen but not observed; your ears are open, but you have not heard.
 21 The Lord God has willed to be justified and to magnify praise.
 And I saw,
 22 and the people were plundered and spoiled, for the snare was in the secret rooms everywhere,
 as well as in houses where they hid them;
 they have become plunder,
 and there was no one to rescue the prey and no one to say, "Restore!" 23 Who is there among you that will give ear to
 these things,
 that will listen for the things to come?
 24 Who gave Iakob for spoil and Israel to those who plunder him?
 Was it not God, against whom they have sinned,
 and they would not walk in his ways
 nor hear his law?
 25 So he brought upon them the anger of his
 wrath,
 and war overpowered them,
 as did those who were burning them all around.
 And they—each of them—did not know,
 nor did they take it to heart.

43 But now thus says the Lord God,
 he who made you, O Iakob,
 he who formed you, O Israel:

and to the southwest, "Do not hinder;
bring my sons from a land far away
and my daughters from the ends of the earth—7 all who have been called by my name.
For I prepared him in my glory,
and I formed and made him."
- 8 And I have brought forth a blind people, and their eyes are likewise blind,
and they are deaf, though they have ears!
- 9 All the nations have gathered together,
and rulers will be gathered from among them.
Who will declare these things?
Or who will declare to you
the things that were from the beginning?
Let them bring their witnesses,
and let them be justified and speak truths.
- 10 Be my witnesses;
I too am a witness, says the Lord God,
and the servant whom I have chosen so that you may know and believe and understand that I am.
Before me there was no other god, nor shall there be any after me.
- 11 I am God,
and besides me there is none who saves.
- 12 I declared and saved; I reproached, and there was no stranger among you.
You are my witnesses;
I too am a witness, says the Lord God.
- 13 Even from the beginning
there is also no one who rescues from my hands;
I will do it, and who will turn it back?
- 14 Thus says the Lord God,
the one who redeems you, the Holy One of Israel:
For your sake I will send to Babylon and stir up all who are fleeing,
and the Chaldeans will be bound in ships.
- 15 I am the Lord God, your Holy One,
the one who exhibited Israel as your king.
- 16 Thus says the Lord,
who provides a way in the sea,
a path in the mighty water, 17 who has brought out chariots and horse and a mighty throng together;
they have lain down and will not rise;
they have been quenched like a wick that is quenched:
- 18 Do not remember the former things or consider the things of old.
19 Look, I am doing new things that will now spring forth,
and you will know them,
and I will make a way in the wilderness
and rivers in the dry land.
- 20 The wild animals of the field will praise me, sirens and the daughters of ostriches, because I have provided water in the wilderness
and rivers in the dry land,
to give drink to my chosen race,
my people whom I have acquired to set forth my excellences.
- 21
- 22 I have not called you now, O Iakob, nor have I made you weary, O Israel.
- 23 There are no sheep for me from your whole burnt offering,
nor have you glorified me with your sacrifices,
nor have I made you tired with frankincense, 24 nor have you bought me incense with silver, nor did I desire the fat of your sacrifices,
but in your sins and iniquities
I have stood before you.
- 25 I am, I am
the one who blots out your acts of lawlessness, and I will not remember them at all.
- 26 But as for you, do remember, and let us be judged;
you state your acts of lawlessness first so that you may be justified.
- 27 Your fathers first,
also their rulers, acted lawlessly against me.
- 28 And the rulers defiled my ^bholy things^b, and I gave Iakob to destroy him,
and Israel for a reproach.

^aOr I have made Egypt your ransom, and Ethiopia and Soene the ones instead of you ^bOr sanctuaries

44 But now hear, O Iakob my servant and Israel whom I have chosen!
2 Thus says the Lord God who made you and who formed you from the womb:
You will still be helped; do not fear, O Iakob my servant
and the beloved Israel whom I have chosen,
3 because I will provide water in their thirst to those who walk in a dry land;
I will put my spirit on your offspring and my blessings on your children.
4 And they shall spring up like grass in the midst of water
and like a willow by flowing water.
5 This one will say, "I am God's,"
and this one will call out in the name of Iakob;
yet another will inscribe, "I am God's,"
in the name of Israel.

6 Thus says God, the king of Israel, who delivered him, God Sabaoth:
I am first, and I am after these things;
besides me there is no god.
7 Who is like me? Let him stand; let him call,
and let him make ready for me,
inasmuch as I have made man forever, and let them declare to you
the things that are coming before they come.
8 Do not cover yourselves;
did you not give ear from the beginning,
and I declared it to you?
You are witnesses
whether there is a god besides me,
and they were not formerly.

9 All who fashion and carve are vain^a—those who do the things that are in their mind, which will not profit them. But they will be put to shame, ¹⁰all who fashion a god or cast useless things, ¹¹and ^ball from where they came have withered and are mute from among men. Let them all assemble^b and stand together; let them be disgraced and put to shame together.

12 Because the artisan sharpened the iron, he fashioned it with an ax and bored it with a gimlet;
he fashioned it with his strong arm; he also will become hungry and weak and will not drink water.
¹³Having chosen (¹³)a piece of wood, the artisan set it up with a measure and arranged it with glue;
he made it like the form of a man, like human beauty, to set it up in a house. ¹⁴He cut this wood from the forest, which the Lord planted and the rain made grow, ¹⁵so that it might be for people to burn. And taking part of it, he warmed himself, and they burned ^cthe pieces^c and baked bread on them. But the rest they fashioned into gods, and they do obeisance to them. ¹⁶Half of it he burned up in the fire, and after roasting meat over it, he ate it and was satisfied. And having warmed himself, he said, "I am pleased, for I have been warmed and have seen the fire!" ¹⁷The rest he made into a graven god and does obeisance to it, and he prays, saying, "Rescue me, for you are my god!"

18 They did not know how to think, because they were blinded so as not to see with their eyes and understand with their heart. ¹⁹And he has not considered in his heart nor regarded in his soul nor known in his mind that half of it he burned in the fire and that he baked bread on its coals and roasted meat and ate and that the rest of it he made into an abomination, and they are doing obeisance to it. ²⁰Know that their heart is ashes, and they are going astray, and no one is able to deliver his soul. See, will you not say, "There is a lie in my right hand"?

21 Remember these things, O Iakob and Israel, for you are my servant;
I formed you as my servant,
and you, Israel, do not forget me.
22 For see, I have blotted out your acts of lawlessness like a cloud and your sins like darkness;
return to me, and I will redeem you.
23 Rejoice, O heavens, because God has had mercy on Israel;
trumpet, O foundations of the earth;
shout for joy, O mountains,
the hills and all the trees that are in them,
because God has redeemed Iakob, and Israel will be glorified!
24 Thus says the Lord, who redeems you, who forms you from the womb:
I am the Lord, who accomplishes all things;
I alone stretched out heaven,
and I bolstered the earth.
25 Who else (²⁵)will scatter the signs given by ventriloquists
and the divinations from the heart, turning the wise backward and making their counsel foolish 26 and confirming the words of his servant and proving true the counsel of his messengers?
The one who says to Ierousalem, "You shall be inhabited,"
and to the cities of Judea, "You shall be built,"
and her deserted places shall arise^d, 27 who says to the deep, "You will become
desolate,
and I will dry up your rivers," 28 who tells Cyrus to be wise and says^c, "He shall carry out all my wishes," who says to Ierousalem, "You shall be built, and I will lay the foundations of my holy
house."

^aOr and those who fashion and carve were not formerly; they are all vain ^bOr all who made them have withered. And let all who are mute be gathered from among men ^cLacking in Gk ^dOr bring forth

- 45 Thus says the Lord God to my anointed, Cyrus,
 whose right hand I have grasped
 so that nations will obey before him, and I will break through the strength of kings;
 I will open doors before him—
 and cities shall not be closed:
- 2 I will go before you
 and level mountains;
 I will break in pieces doors of bronze and break off bars of iron,
- 3 and I will give you dark treasures;
 hidden, unseen ones I will open for you so that you may know that I am the Lord
 God,
 the God of Israel, who calls your name.
- 4 For the sake of my servant Iakob and Israel my chosen,
 I will call you by my name and receive you, but you did not know
 me,
- 5 because I am the Lord God,
 and there is no other god besides me,
 and you did not know me,
- 6 so that they who are from the rising of the sun
 and from its going down
 may know that there is no one besides me;
 I am the Lord God, and there is no other.
- 7 I am the one who has prepared light and made darkness,
 who makes peace and creates evils;
 I am the Lord who does all these things.
- 8 Let heaven rejoice from above, and let the clouds shower down
 righteousness;
 let the earth bring forth mercy,
 and let it bring forth righteousness as well;
 I am the Lord who created you.
- 9 What better thing have I formed like potter's clay?
 Shall the plowman plow the earth?
 Shall the clay say to the potter, "What are you doing,
 since you are not working, nor do you have hands"?
- 10 ^aIt is like^a the one who says to his father,
 "What will you beget?"
 and to his mother, "With what are you in labor?"
- 11 Because thus says the Lord God, the Holy
 One of Israel,
 the one who has made the things that are coming:
 Ask me about my sons and about my
 daughters,
 and command me concerning the works of my hands.
- 12 I made the earth
 and humankind upon it;
 I bolstered heaven with my hand;
 I commanded all the stars.
- 13 I have raised him with righteousness, and all his paths shall be straight;
 he shall build my city
 and turn back the captivity of my people, not with ransom or with gifts,
 said the Lord Sabaoth.
- 14 Thus says the Lord Sabaoth: Egypt has worked hard,
 as has the commerce of the Ethiopians.
 And the lofty men of Seboin shall come over to you,
 and they shall be your slaves;
 they shall follow behind you bound in handcuffs.
 They will do obeisance to you and pray in
 you,
 because God is in you,
 and they will say,
 "There is no god besides you."
- 15 For you are God, and we did not know it, O God of Israel, Savior.
- 16 All who oppose him shall be ashamed and disgraced,
 and they shall go in shame.
 Dedicate yourselves to me, you islands!
- 17 Israel is being saved by the Lord with everlasting salvation;
 they shall not be ashamed or disgraced
 forever.
- 18 Thus says the Lord,
 who made heaven—
 this is the God who displayed the earth and made it;
 he himself marked its limits;
 he did not make it to be empty
 but to be inhabited:
 I am, and there is no other.
- 19 I have not spoken in secret
 nor in a dark place of the earth;
 I did not say to the offspring of Iakob,
 "Seek a vain thing."
 I am, I am the Lord,
 speaking righteousness
 and declaring truth.
- 20 Assemble yourselves, and come;
 take counsel together,
 you who are being saved from among the
 nations!
 They did not know—
 those who lift up the wood, their graven image,
 and pray as if to gods
 that do not save.
- 21 If they will declare it, let them draw near
 so that they may know together

^aLacking in Gk

^awho made from the beginning these things that are to be heard^a.
Then it was declared to you,
I am God, and there is no other besides
me;
there is no righteous one or savior except
me.

22 Turn to me, and you shall be saved,
you who are from the end of the earth!
I am God, and there is no other.
23 By myself I swear,
"Verily righteousness shall go forth from my
mouth;
my words shall not be turned back, because to me every knee shall bow and every tongue shall acknowledge God, 24 saying, Righteousness and glory shall come to him,
and all who separate themselves shall be ashamed."
25 By the Lord shall they be justified, and all the offspring of the sons of Israel shall be glorified in God.

46 Bel has fallen; Dagon has been crushed; their graven images have become for beasts and cattle;
you carry them bound
as a burden for the weary 2 and the hungry as well as for the feeble who has no strength,
who will not be able to be saved from war,
but themselves have been led captive.
3 Hear me, O house of Iakob and everyone who is left of Israel, you who are being carried from the womb and trained from ^bthe time you were^b a child.
4 Until your old age, I am,
and until you grow old, I am;
I bear with you;
I have made, and I will set free;
I will take up and save you.
5 To whom have you likened me?
See, act with cunning,
you who are going astray!
6 Those who contribute gold from a bag and silver in a balance will set it on a scale, and after hiring a goldsmith, they made handiwork^c,
and bowing down they do obeisance to
them!
7 They carry it on their shoulders and go, and if they set it up, it stays in its place;
it will not move.
And whoever cries out to him, he will not listen;
he will not save him from evils.

8 Remember these things and groan;
repent, you who have gone astray;
turn in your heart,
9 and remember the former things of old, because I am God, and there is no other besides me, 10 declaring the last things first, before they happen,
and at once they came to pass,
and I said, "My whole plan shall stand, and I will do all the things I have planned," 11 calling a bird from the east and from a far country those concerning whom I have planned.
I have spoken and brought it;
I have created and made it.
12 Hear me, you who have ruined your heart,
you who are far from righteousness: 13 I brought near my righteousness, and I will not delay the salvation that comes from me;
I have provided salvation in Sion
to Israel for glorying.

47 Come down; sit on the ground, virgin daughter of Babylon!
Enter the darkness,
daughter of the Chaldeans,
because you shall no longer be called tender and delicate!
2 Take a millstone; grind meal;
uncover your covering;
expose your gray hairs; bare your legs;
pass through rivers.
3 Your shame shall be uncovered;
your reproaches shall be seen.
I will take from you what is right;
I will no longer deliver you over to men.
4 He who delivered you—
the Lord Sabaoth is his name,
the Holy One of Israel—
has said:
5 Sit distressed^d; enter the darkness,
daughter of the Chaldeans!
You shall no more be called the strength of a kingdom.
6 I was provoked at my people;
you defiled my heritage.
I gave them into your hand,
but you granted no mercy to them;
you made the yoke of the elder exceedingly heavy.
7 And you said, "I shall be a ruler forever";
you did not consider these things in your heart,
nor did you remember the last things.
8 But now hear these things, you delicate woman,
who sits securely,

^aOr who made these things heard from the beginning ^bLacking in Gk ^cOr idols ^dPossibly stunned into silence

- who says in her heart,
 "I am, and there is no other;
 I shall not sit as a widow or know bereavement."
 9 But now both these things shall come upon
 you
 suddenly, in one day:
 widowhood and loss of children shall come upon you suddenly in your witchcraft,
 exceedingly in the strength of your enchantments^a,
 10 in the hope of your evil,
 for you said, "I am and there is no other."
 Know that the understanding of these things and your evil shall be your shame.
 And you said in your heart,
 "I am, and there is no other." 11 But destruction shall come upon you,
 and you will not realize it;
 a pit, and you shall fall into it.
 And wretchedness shall come upon you,
 and you will not be able to become clean
 of it,
 and destruction shall come upon you suddenly,
 and you will not realize it.
- 12 Stand now in your enchantments
 and your abundant witchcraft, which you learned from your youth,
 if you will be able to receive benefit.
 13 You have become weary with your counsels;
 let the astrologers of heaven
 stand up and save you,
 those who look at the stars;
 let them declare to you
 what is about to come upon you.
- 14 See, they all will be burned
 like brushwood on a fire, and they will not deliver their soul from the flame;
 since you have coals of fire,
 sit on them—
 15 these will be a help to you.
 You have labored in your traffic from your youth;
 a man has wandered ^bby himself^b,
 but for you there will be no salvation.
- 48 Hear these things, O house of Iakob, who are called by the name of Israel and who came forth out of Ioudas, who swear by the name of the Lord God of Israel,
 remembering^c it, not with truth or with
 righteousness,
 2 and clinging to the name of the holy city and leaning on the God of Israel;
 the Lord Sabaoth is his name.
- 3 The former things I have moreover declared, and they went out from my mouth and came to be heard;
 suddenly I did them, and they came to pass.
 4 I know that you are unyielding, and your neck is an iron sinew,
 and your forehead brass, 5 and I declared to you the things of old;
 before they came upon you I made them to be heard by you;
 do not say, "The idols did them for me," and do not say, "The graven and the cast images commanded me."
 6 You have heard all things, and you yourselves have not known.
 But I have also made to be heard by you,
 from now on,
 the new things that shall come to pass;
 yet you did not speak^d.
 7 They are happening now, not long ago;
 in former days you did not hear of them;
 do not say, "Yes, I know them." 8 You have neither known nor understood, nor did I open your ears from the beginning.
 For I knew that ^ebetraying you would betray^e,
 and that even from the womb you would be called a lawless one.
- 9 For my name's sake I will show you my
 wrath;
 I will bring my glorious deeds upon you so that I may not utterly destroy you.
 10 See, I have sold you, not for silver, but I delivered you from the furnace of poverty.
 11 For my own sake will I do this to you, because my name is being profaned,
 and my glory I will not give to another.
- 12 Hear me, O Iakob,
 and Israel, whom I call:
 I am the first,
 and I am forever.
 13 And my hand laid the foundation of the
 earth,
 and my right hand bolstered heaven;
 I will call them,
 and they will stand together.
 14 And all of them will be gathered and hear.
 Who has declared these things to them?
 Because I love you,
 I have performed your will on Babylon, to do away with the offspring of the Chaldeans.
 15 I have spoken; I have called, brought him and made his way prosperous.
 16 Draw near to me, and hear these things!

^aOr enchanters ^bOr to his own house ^cOr making mention of ^dOr say ^eOr you would surely reject me

- From the beginning I have not spoken in secret;
when it happened I was there,
and now the Lord has sent me and his spirit.
- 17 Thus says the Lord who delivered you,
the Holy One of Israel:
I am your God;
I have shown you how to find the way in which you should go.
- 18 And if you had heard my commandments,
your peace would have become like a river,
and your righteousness like a wave of the sea;
- 19 your offspring would have become like the sand, and the descendants of your womb like the dust of the earth.
Now neither will you be utterly destroyed,
nor will your name perish before me.
- 20 Go out from Babylon, fleeing from the Chaldeans;
proclaim a voice of joy, and let this be heard;
report it to the end of the earth;
say, "The Lord has delivered his slave Iakob!"
- 21 Even if they are thirsty, he will lead them through the wilderness;
he will bring forth water for them out of a rock;
a rock will be split, and water will flow, [and my people will drink].
- 22 "There is no rejoicing," says the Lord, "for the impious."
- 49 Hear me, O islands;
pay attention, O nations!
After a long time it shall stand,
says the Lord.
From my mother's womb he called my name and made my mouth like a sharp dagger, and under the shelter of his hand he hid me;
he made me like a chosen arrow,
and in his quiver he sheltered me.
- 3 And he said to me, "You are my slave, Israel, and in you I will be glorified."
- 4 But I said, "I have labored vainly, and I have given my strength in vain and for nothing;
therefore my judgment is with the Lord,
and my toil before my God."
- 5 And now thus says the Lord, who formed me from the womb to be his own slave,
- to gather Iakob and Israel to him;
I will be gathered and glorified before the Lord,
and my God shall become my strength.
- 6 And he said to me,
"It is a great thing for you to be called my servant
so that you may set up the tribes of Iakob and turn back the dispersion of Israel.
See, I have made you a light of nations, that you may be for salvation to the end of the earth."
- 7 Thus says the Lord who delivered you,
the God of Israel:
"Sanctify him who despises his own soul,
who is abhorred by the nations, the slaves of rulers;
kings shall see him, and rulers shall stand up and do obeisance to him for the Lord's sake, because the Holy One of Israel is faithful, and I have chosen you."
- 8 Thus says the Lord:
In an acceptable time I have listened to you,
on a day of salvation I have helped you;
I gave you as a covenant to nations,
to establish the land,
and to inherit^a a wilderness heritage,
- 9 saying to those who are in bonds, "Come out,"
and to those who are in darkness that they be revealed.
And they shall feed in all their ways;
in all the paths shall be their pasture;
they shall not hunger or thirst,
neither shall burning heat nor sun strike them down,
but he who has mercy on them will comfort them and through springs of water will lead them.
- 10 And I will turn every mountain into a road
and every path into a pasture for them.
Lo, these come from far away,
these from the north and these from the sea
but others from the land of the Persians.
- 11 Rejoice, O heavens, and let the earth be glad;
let the mountains break forth with joy,
and the hills with righteousness^b,
because God has had mercy on his people
and he has comforted the humble of his people.
- 12 And I will turn every mountain into a road
and every path into a pasture for them.
Lo, these come from far away,
these from the north and these from the sea
but others from the land of the Persians.
- 13 Rejoice, O heavens, and let the earth be glad;
let the mountains break forth with joy,
and the hills with righteousness^b,
because God has had mercy on his people
and he has comforted the humble of his people.
- 14 But Zion said, "The Lord has forsaken me;
the Lord has forgotten me."
- 15 Will a mother forget her child

^aOr cause to inherit ^bOm = Zi

so as not to have mercy on the descendants of her womb?
 But even if a woman should forget these,
 yet I will not forget you, said the Lord.
 16 See, I have painted your walls on my hands, and you are continually before me.
 17 And soon you will be built by those by whom you were destroyed, and those who made you desolate will go forth from you.
 18 Lift up your eyes all around, and see them all;
 look, they have gathered and have come
 to you.
 I live, says the Lord;
 you shall clothe yourself with all of them and put them on like a bride's ornament.
 19 Because your desolate and spoiled and ruined places
 will now be crowded on account of your inhabitants,
 and those who swallow you up will be far away from you.
 20 For your sons whom you have lost will say in your ears:
 "The place is too narrow for me;
 make a place for me so that I may settle."
 21 Then you will say in your heart,
 "Who has begotten me these?
 But I was childless and a widow,
 so who has reared these for me?
 But I was left all alone,
 so ^afrom where have these come to me?"
 22 Thus says the Lord:
 Look, I am lifting up my hand to the
 nations,
 and I will lift my signal to the islands, and they shall bring your sons in their bosom,
 and your daughters shall they lift on their shoulders.
 23 And kings shall be your foster fathers, and the women who rule, your nurses.
 On the face of the earth they shall do obeisance to you,
 and they shall lick the dust of your feet.
 Then you will know that I am the Lord,
 and you shall not be put to shame.
 24 Will anyone take spoils from a ^bmighty one^b?
 And if one should take a captive unjustly, shall he be saved?
 25 Thus says the Lord:
 If one should take a ^bmighty one^b captive,
 he will take spoils,
 and by taking them from a strong one,
 he will be saved.

And I will judge your cause,
 and I will rescue your sons.
 26 And those who afflicted you shall eat their own flesh,
 and they shall drink their own blood like new wine and be drunk.
 Then all flesh shall perceive that I am the Lord who rescued you, who assists the strength of Iakob.
 50 Thus says the Lord:
 Of what kind was your mother's bill of divorce
 with which I sent her away?
 Or to which creditor
 have I sold you?
 Look, for your sins you were sold, and for your acts of lawlessness I sent away your mother.
 2 Why was it that I came and no man was
 there?
 I called, and there was none to answer?
 Is not my hand strong to deliver?
 Or am I not strong to rescue?
 Look, by my threat I will make the sea
 desolate,
 and the rivers I will make deserts, and their fish shall be dried up because there is no water,
 and they will die by thirst.
 3 And I will clothe heaven with darkness and make its covering like sackcloth.
 4 The Lord gives me
 the tongue of instruction, that I may know ^cin season^c
 when it is necessary to speak a word.
 He assigned it to me in the morning;
 he added to me an ear to hear.
 5 And the instruction of the Lord opens my ears,
 and I do not disobey nor contradict.
 6 I have given my back to scourges and my cheeks to blows, but I did not turn away my face
 from the shame of spittings.
 7 And the Lord became my helper;
 therefore I was not disgraced,
 but I have set my face like solid rock, and I realized that I would not be put to shame,
 8 because he who justified me draws near.
 Who is the one who contends with me?
 Let him confront me at once.
 Yes, who is the one who contends with me?
 Let him draw near me.
 9 Look, the Lord helps me;
 who will harm me?
 Look, all of you will become old like a garment,
 and as it were a moth will devour you.

^aOr where did I have these ^bOr giant ^cOm = Zi

10 Who among you is the one who fears the Lord?

Let him hear the voice of his servant.
Those who walk in darkness—
they have no light;
trust in the name of the Lord,
and lean upon God.

11 Look, all of you, kindle a fire, and make a flame stronger.
Walk by the light of your fire and by the flame you have kindled.
Because of me, these things came upon you;
you shall lie down in sorrow.

51 Hear me, you that pursue what is righteous, and seek the Lord.

Look to the solid rock that you hewed and to the hole of the pit that you dug.

2 Look to Abraam your father and to Sarra who bore you;
because he was but one, then I called him and blessed him and loved him and multiplied him.

3 And I will comfort you now, Sion;
I comforted all her desolate places,
and I will make her desolate places like the garden of the Lord;
in her they will find joy and gladness, confession and the voice of praise.

4 Hear me; hear, my people, and you kings, give ear to me,
because a law will go out from me,
and my judgment for a light to nations.

5 My righteousness draws near swiftly;
my salvation will go out,
and the nations will hope in my arm;
the islands will wait for me and hope in my arm.

6 Lift up your eyes to heaven,
and look at the earth beneath, because heaven was strengthened like smoke,
and the earth will become old like a garment,
and those who live on the earth will die
like these things,
but my salvation will be forever,
and my righteousness will not fail.

7 Hear me, you who know judgment,
my people, you in whose heart is my law;
do not fear the reproach of men, and do not be dismayed by their contempt.

8 For just as a garment it will be devoured by
time,
and like wool it will be devoured by a moth,
but my righteousness will be forever and my salvation for generations of generations.

9 Awake, awake, O Ierusalem;
put on the strength of your arm!
Awake, as at the beginning of a day,
like a generation of long ago!
Are you not ¹⁰she who made desolate the sea,

the water, the abundance of the deep,
who made the depths of the sea a way of passage

11 for those being delivered and those who have been ransomed?
For by the Lord they shall be returned and come to Sion with joy and everlasting gladness;
for gladness and praise shall be upon their heads
and joy shall take hold of them;
pain and sorrow and sighing have fled
away.

12 I am, I am he who comforts you.
Acknowledge of whom you were cautious;
you were afraid because of a mortal man and a son of man, who have dried up like grass.

13 And you have forgotten God who made you,
who made heaven
and laid the foundations of the earth.
And always, all the days, you feared the face of the fury of the one who was oppressing you,
for just as he planned to do away with you,
and where now is the fury of the one who was oppressing you?

14 For when you are saved,
he will not stand nor linger,

15 because I am your God, who stirs up the sea and makes its waves to sound—
the Lord Sabaoth is my name.

16 I will put my words in your mouth and shelter you under the shadow of my
hand,
by which I established heaven
and laid the foundations of the earth.
And he^a will say to Sion,
"You are my people."

17 Awake, awake!
Stand up, O Ierusalem,
you who have drunk from the hand of the Lord
the cup of his wrath,
for you have drained dry and emptied
the cup of ruin, the goblet of wrath.
18 And there was none who comforted you from among all your children whom you have borne,
and there was none who took hold of your
hand,
not even from among all your sons,
whom you have raised.

19 These two things are set against you—who will grieve with you?— ruin and destruction, famine and dagger—who will comfort you?
 20 Your sons are the ones perplexed, who lie down at the head of every street
 like a half-cooked beet, who are full of the wrath of the Lord,
 made feeble by the Lord God.
 21 Therefore hear, you who are humbled, who are drunk, but not with wine.
 22 Thus says the Lord God,
 who judges his people:
 See, I have taken from your hand
 the cup of ruin, the goblet of wrath,
 and you shall not continue to drink it any longer.
 23 And I will put it into the hands of those who have wronged you and humbled you,
 who have said to your soul, “Bow down, that we may pass by,”
 and you put your back level to the ground, outside, for those who were going by.

52 Awake, awake, O Zion!
 Put on your strength, O Zion,
 and put on your glory,
 O Ierousalem, the holy city;
 the uncircumcised and unclean shall no longer continue to pass through
 you.
 2 Shake off the dust, and rise up;
 sit down, O Ierousalem;
 take off the bond from your neck,
 O captive daughter Zion!

3 Because this is what the Lord says: You were sold for nothing, and not with money you shall be redeemed. ⁴Thus says the Lord: Formerly, my people went down into Egypt to sojourn there, and they were led by force to the Assyrians. ⁵And now, why are you here? This is what the Lord says, Because my people were taken for nothing, you marvel and howl. This is what the Lord says, Because of you, my name is continually blasphemed among the nations. ⁶Therefore my people shall know my name in that day, because I myself am the one who speaks: I am here,

7 like season upon the mountains, like the feet of one bringing glad tidings
 of a report of peace,
 like one bringing glad tidings of good
 things,
 because I will make your salvation heard, saying to Zion, “Your God shall reign,” 8 because the voice of those who watch over you was lifted up,
 and with their voice they shall rejoice
 together,

because eyes shall look at eyes
 when the Lord will have mercy on Zion.
 9 Let the desolate places of Ierousalem break forth together in joy, because the Lord has had mercy on her and has delivered Ierousalem.
 10 And the Lord shall reveal his holy arm before all the nations, and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation that comes from God.
 11 Depart, depart, go out from there,
 and touch no unclean thing;
 go out from the midst of it; be separated,
 you who carry the vessels of the Lord, 12 because you shall not go out with confusion,
 nor shall you go in flight,
 for the Lord will go before you,
 and the Lord God of Israel is the one who gathers you together.
 13 See, my servant shall understand^a,
 and he shall be exalted and glorified exceedingly.
 14 Just as many shall be astonished at you—so shall your appearance ^bbe without glory from men^b, and your glory ^cbe absent^c from the
 men—
 15 so shall many nations be astonished at him, and kings shall shut their mouth, because those who were not informed about him shall see
 and those who did not hear shall understand.

53 Lord, who has believed our report?
 And to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?
 2 He grew up before him like a child, like a root in a thirsty land;
 he has no form or glory,
 and we saw him, and he had no form or beauty.
 3 But his form was without honor, failing beyond all men,
 a man being in calamity and knowing how to bear sickness;
 because his face is turned away,
 he was dishonored and not esteemed.
 4 This one bears our sins
 and suffers pain for us, and we accounted him to be in trouble and calamity and ill-treatment.
 5 But he was wounded because of our acts of lawlessness
 and has been weakened because of our sins;
 upon him was the discipline^d of our peace;
 by his bruise we were healed.

^aOr prosper ^bOr be held in no esteem by men ^cLacking in Gk ^dOr punishment

6 All we like sheep have gone astray;
a man has strayed in his own way,
and the Lord gave him over to our sins.

7 And he, because he has been ill-treated,
does not open his mouth;
like a sheep he was led to the slaughter, and as a lamb is silent before the one shearing it,
so he does not open his mouth.

8 In his humiliation his judgment was taken away.

Who will describe his generation?
Because his life is being taken from the
earth,
he was led to death ^aon account of ^athe acts of lawlessness of my people.

9 And I will give the wicked for his burial and the rich for his death, because he committed no lawlessness,
nor was deceit found in his mouth.

10 And the Lord desires to cleanse him from his blow.
If you give an offering for sin,
your soul shall see a long-lived offspring.

11 And the Lord wishes to take away from the pain of his soul, to show him light
and fill ^bhim with understanding, to justify a righteous one who is well subject to many,

12 Therefore ^che shall inherit many ^c, and he shall divide the spoils of the strong,
because his soul was given over to death,
and he was reckoned among the lawless,
and he bore the sins of many,
and because of their sins he was given over.

54 Rejoice, O barren one who does not bear;
break forth, and shout,
you who are not in labor!
Because more are the children of the desolate woman
than of her that has a husband,
for the Lord has spoken ^d.

2 Enlarge the site of your tent and of your curtains;
make it firm; do not hold back;
lengthen your cords ^e, and strengthen your stakes,

3 because you must spread out to the right and to the left,
and your offspring will inherit the
nations
and will inhabit the cities that have become desolate.

4 Do not fear because you were put to shame, neither feel disgraced because you were reproached,

because you will forget your ancient shame and the reproach of your widowhood you will not remember,

5 because the Lord is the one who makes you,
the Lord Sabaoth is his name,
and the one who delivered you is the very ^f
God of Israel;

he shall be called thus ^g in all the earth.

6 The Lord has not called you as a forsaken and faint-hearted woman, nor as a woman hated from youth,
your God has said.

7 For a brief moment I forsook you, but with great mercy I will have mercy on
you.

8 With a little wrath
I turned my face away from you, but with everlasting mercy I have had mercy
on you,
the Lord who delivered you has said.

9 From the water at the time of Noe, this is my oath ^g:

Just as I swore to him at that time that I would no more be angry at the earth because of you,

10 nor as a threat to you would I remove the mountains, nor would the hills be shifted,
so neither shall the mercy that comes from me to you fail,
nor shall the covenant of your peace be
removed,
for ^hthe Lord said he would be ^hmerciful
to you.

11 O humbled and unsteady one,
you have not been comforted;
see, I am preparing for you charcoal as your stone
and lapis lazuli as your foundations.

12 And I will make your battlements of jasper and your gates of crystal stones and your enclosure of precious stones.

13 And ^gI will make ^gall your sons taught by God and your children to be in great peace.

14 And in righteousness you shall be built;
keep away from injustice, and you shall not be afraid,
and trembling shall not come near you.

15 See, guests shall approach you through me and flee to you for refuge.

16 See, I create you,
not as a smith who blows the coals and produces a vessel for work.

But I have created you not for destruction, to ruin

17 every perishable vessel.

You will defeat all of them, and those who are held by you shall be

There is a heritage for those who do service to the Lord,
and you shall be righteous to me, says the Lord.

55 You who thirst,
go to water,
and as many of you as have no money,
go, buy, and drink wine and fat,
without money and without price.

2 Why do you set a price with money and your labor for that which does not satisfy?
Hear me, and you shall eat good things,
and your soul shall revel in good things.

3 Pay attention with your ears,
and follow my ways;
listen to me,
and your soul will live in good things.
I will make with you an everlasting covenant,
the sacred things of Dauid that are sure^a.

4 See, I have given him as a testimony among
the nations,
a ruler and commander for the nations.

5 Nations that did not know you shall call upon you,
and peoples that do not understand you shall flee to you for refuge, for the sake of your God, the Holy One of Israel,
because he has glorified you.

6 Seek God, and when you find him, call
upon him,
and whenever he should draw near you, 7 let the impious forsake his ways,
and the lawless man his plans, and let him return to the Lord, and he will have mercy,
because he will ^babundantly forgive^b your
sins.

8 For my plans are not like your plans, nor are your ways like my ways, says the
Lord.

9 But as heaven is far from the earth, so is my way far from your ways and your notions from my thought.

10 For as rain or snow comes down from heaven
and will not return until it has soaked the
earth
and brought forth and blossomed and given seed to the sower and bread for food,

11 so shall my word be, whatever goes out from my mouth;
it shall not return
until whatever I have willed is fulfilled, and I will prosper your ways and my commandments.

12 For you shall go out with joy and be taught with happiness;
for the mountains and the hills shall leap forth
as they welcome you with happiness, and all the trees of the field shall clap with their branches.

13 And instead of the brier shall come up a cypress,
and instead of the nettle shall come up a myrtle,
and the Lord shall be^c for a name and for an everlasting sign and shall not fail.

56 This is what the Lord says:
Keep judgment; do righteousness,
for my salvation has drawn near to arrive and my mercy to be revealed.

2 Happy is the man who does these things,
the person who holds them fast, who keeps the sabbaths so as not to profane
them,
and watches his hands so as not to do wrong.

3 Let not the alien who clings to the Lord say,
"So then the Lord will separate me from his people,"
and let not the eunuch say,
"I am a dry tree."

4 This is what the Lord says:
To the eunuchs, as many as keep my sabbaths
and choose the things that I want
and hold fast my covenant,

5 I will give to them, in my house and within my wall,
an esteemed place,
^dbetter than sons and daughters;
I will give^d them an everlasting name,
and it shall not fail.

6 And to the aliens who cling to the Lord, to be subject to him, to love the name of
the Lord,
so that they may be his male and female slaves—
and as for all who keep my sabbaths so as not to profane them
and hold fast my covenant—

^aPossibly the sure decrees given to Dauid ^bOr send far away ^cit shall be to the Lord = Zi ^dI who am better than sons

7 I will bring them into my holy mountain and make them joyful in my house of prayer;
their whole burnt offerings and their sacrifices
will be acceptable on my altar, for my house shall be called a house of prayer
for all the nations—
8 said the Lord, who gathers the dispersed of Israel—
for I will gather to him a gathering.

9 All you wild animals that live in the fields, all you wild animals of the forest, come here; eat!

10 Observe that all have become totally blind;
they have not learned how to think;
they are all silent dogs;
they will not be able to bark,
dreaming in bed,
loving to slumber.

11 The dogs are shameless in their soul,
not knowing satisfaction.
They are evil,
not knowing understanding.
They have all followed their own ways,
each in the same manner.

57 Observe how the righteous has perished, and no one takes it to heart;
righteous men are being taken away,
and no one takes notice,
for the righteous has been taken away from the presence of unrighteousness; 2 his burial will be in peace;
he has been taken away from their midst.

3 But as for you, draw near here,
you lawless sons,
you offspring of adulterers and of a whore.

4 In what have you indulged?
And against whom have you opened your mouth wide?
And against whom have you let loose
your tongue?
Are you not children of destruction,
a lawless offspring?

5 You are the ones who call on their idols
under thick trees,
slaughtering their children in the ravines,
among the rocks.

6 That is your portion;
this is your lot,
and to them you have poured out libations,
and to them you have brought a sacrifice.
Shall I not therefore be angry for these
things?

7 Upon a high and lofty mountain,
there was your bed,
and there you brought up your sacrifices.

8 Behind the posts of your door

you have set up your memorials.
You supposed that if you should desert me,
you would obtain something greater.
You have loved those who lay with you and multiplied your fornication with them, 9 and you have made many those who were far from you
and sent ambassadors beyond your borders,
and you turned away and were humbled
even to Hades.

10 You grew weary with your long journeys, but you did not say, "I will cease to regain strength."
Because you have accomplished these things, therefore you did not entreat me.

11 Of whom were you cautious and afraid, and you lied to me
and did not remember me, nor did you take me into your thought or into your heart?
And when I see you, I disregard you,
and you have not feared me.

12 And I will declare my righteousness and your evils,
which will not help you.

13 When you cry out,
let them deliver you in your affliction!
For the wind will take all of these,
and a tempest will carry them away.
But those who cling to me shall possess the
earth
and inherit my holy mountain.

14 And they shall say,
"Cleanse the ways before him,
and remove the obstructions^a from my people's way."

15 This is what the Lord says, the Most High, who ^bdwells forever^b in lofty places—
Holy among the holy ones is his name, the Lord Most High who rests among the holy ones
and gives patience to the faint-hearted and gives life to those who are broken of
heart:

16 I will not punish you forever, nor will I always be angry with you,
for a spirit shall go forth from me,
and I have made every breath.

17 Because of sin I grieved him a little while;
I struck him and turned my face away
from him,
and he was grieved and went on sullen in his ways.

18 I have seen his ways, and I healed him and comforted him, yes, gave him true comfort—

19 peace upon peace to those that are far and to those that are near.
And the Lord said,

^aOr thorns ^bOr inhabits eternity

I will heal them.
 20 But thus shall the unrighteous be tossed like waves
 and shall not be able to rest.
 21 There is no rejoicing for the impious, said the Lord God.

58 Cry out with strength, and do not hold
 back!
 Lift up your voice like a trumpet,
 and declare to my people their sins, to the house of Iakob their acts of lawlessness.
 2 Day after day they seek me and desire to know my ways.
 Like a people that practiced righteousness and did not forsake the judgment of their God,
 they now ask of me righteous judgment,
 and they desire to draw near to God, 3 saying, "Why is it that we have fasted, but you did not see,
 humbled our souls, but you did not know?"
 For in the days of your fasts you find your own wishes
 and goad all those who are under you.
 4 If you fast for quarrels and fights and you strike a humble person with your fists,
 why do you fast for me as you do today so that your voice may be heard by its clamor?
 5 This is not the fast that I have chosen, even a day for a person to humble himself;
 not even if you bend your neck like a ring and spread under you sackcloth and ashes—
 not even so shall you call it an acceptable fast.

6 I have not chosen such a fast, says the Lord;
 rather loose every bond of injustice; undo the knots of contracts made by force;
 let the oppressed go free,
 and tear up every unjust note.
 7 Break your bread with the one who is hungry,
 and bring the homeless poor into your
 house;
 if you see one naked, clothe him,
 and you shall not neglect
 any of the relatives of your seed.
 8 Then your light shall break forth early in the morning,
 and your healings shall rise quickly,
 and your righteousness shall go before you,
 and the glory of God shall cover you.
 9 Then you shall cry out, and God will listen
 to you;

while you are still speaking, he will say,
 Here I am.

If you remove from you a bond and a ^astretching of the hand^a and a murmuring word
 10 and give to one who is hungry bread from your soul
 and satisfy a soul that has been humbled, then your light shall rise in the darkness,
 and your darkness shall be like noontday.
 11 And your God will be with you continually, and you shall be satisfied exactly as your soul desires,
 and your bones shall be enriched,
 and they shall be like a soaked garden and like a spring whose water has never failed.
 12 And your ancient deserts shall be built,
 and your foundations shall be everlasting,
 for generations of generations,
 and you shall be called a builder of fences, and you shall cause the paths between them to rest.
 13 If you turn your foot away from the sabbaths, so as not to do the things you wish on the holy day,
 and you shall call the sabbaths delightful^b,
 holy to your God,
 you shall not lift your foot for work nor speak a word in anger out of your
 mouth;
 14 then you shall trust in the Lord, and he shall bring you up upon the good things of the earth and feed you with the heritage of your ancestor Iakob,
 for the mouth of the Lord has spoken
 these things.

59 Is not the Lord's hand strong to save?
 Or has he made his ear heavy so as not to listen?
 2 Rather, your sinful acts separate between you and God,
 and because of your sins he has turned his face away from you
 so as not to show mercy.
 3 For your hands have been defiled with
 blood,
 and your fingers with sins,
 and your lips have spoken lawlessness,
 and your tongue plots unrighteousness.
 4 No one speaks righteous things, nor is there true judgment;
 they trust in vanities, and they speak empty words,
 because they conceive trouble and give birth to lawlessness.
 5 They broke the eggs of asps
 and weave the web of a spider,

^aOr vote ^bOr delicate and the one who intended to eat their eggs, upon breaking them found wind,

and in it was a basilisk.
6 Their web shall not become a garment, nor shall they be clothed with their works, for their works are works of lawlessness.
7 And their feet run to evil,
swift to shed blood,
and their reasonings are reasonings of fools;
destruction and wretchedness are in their ways.
8 And a way of peace they do not know,
and there is no judgment in their ways,
for their paths, through which they travel,
are crooked,
and they do not know peace.
9 Therefore their judgment has departed from
them,
and righteousness will not catch up with
them;
having awaited light, darkness came to
them;
having waited for sunlight, they walked in midnight.
10 They will grope like blind men for a wall, and like those who have no eyes they will grope.
And they will fall at noon as at midnight;
like dying men they will groan.
11 Like a bear and like a dove
they will walk together.
We waited for judgment, but there was none;
salvation has withdrawn far from us.
12 For our lawlessness was great before you and our sins have risen up against us;
for our acts of lawlessness are in us,
and we realized our wrongs; 13 we were impious and lied and turned away from behind our God;
we spoke unrighteous things and disobeyed;
we conceived and rehearsed unrighteous words from our heart.
14 And we put away our judgment behind us,
and righteousness withdrew far away,
because truth was consumed in their ways, and they could not travel through a straight path.
15 And truth was taken away, and they removed their thought from
understanding.
The Lord saw it, and it did not please him
that there was no judgment.
16 And he saw, and there was no man, and he took notice, and there was none who helped;
so he defended them with his own arm,
and with his compassion he upheld
them.
17 And he put on righteousness like a breastplate

and placed a helmet of salvation on his head,
and he clothed himself with a garment of vengeance
and with his cloak,¹⁸ as one about to render retribution,
reproach to his adversaries.
19 And those from the west shall fear the name
of the Lord,
and those from the rising of the sun, his glorious name, for anger will come from the Lord like a rushing river—
it will come with wrath.
20 And the one who delivers will come for Sion's sake,
and he will turn impiety away from Iakob.
21 And this is the covenant to them from me, said the Lord, my spirit that is upon you and my words that I have put in your mouth shall not fail out of your mouth or out of the mouth of your offspring, for the Lord has said it, from now on and forever.

60 ^aShine, shine^a, O Ierousalem, for your light has come,
and the glory of the Lord has risen upon
you.
2 Look, darkness and gloom shall cover the earth upon the nations, but the Lord will appear upon you,
and his glory will be seen upon you.
3 Kings shall walk by your light, and nations by your brightness.
4 Lift up your eyes round about,
and see your children gathered together;
look, all your sons have come from far
away,
and your daughters shall be carried on
shoulders.
5 Then you shall see and be afraid and be amazed in your heart, because the wealth of the sea and of nations and of peoples
shall change over to you.
And there shall come to you 6 herds of camels,
and the camels of Madiam and Gaiphar shall cover you.
All those from Saba shall come,
bringing gold,
and they shall bring frankincense and announce the good news of the salvation of the Lord.
7 And all the sheep of Kedar shall be gathered
to you,
and the rams of Nabaioth shall come to
you,
and acceptable things shall be offered on
my altar,
and my house of prayer shall be glorified.

^aPossibly Be enlightened; be enlightened

8 Who are these that fly like clouds, and like doves with their young?
9 The islands waited for me, and the ships of Tharsis among the first,
to bring your children from far away,
and their silver and gold with them, because of the holy name of the Lord and because the Holy One of Israel is glorious.
10 And aliens shall build up your walls,
and their kings shall attend to you;
for because of my wrath I struck you down,
but because of my mercy I loved you.
11 And your gates shall always be opened—day and night they shall not be shut—to bring to you the power of nations, and kings who are being led away.
12 For the nations and kings that will not be subject to you shall perish, and the nations shall be made desolate with desolation.
13 And the glory of Lebanon shall come to you, with cypress and pine and cedar together,
to glorify my holy place.
14 The sons of those who humbled and provoked you
shall come to you with dread;
you shall be called City of the Lord,
Sion of the Holy One of Israel.
15 Because you have become forsaken and hated
and there was none who helped,
and^a I will make you an everlasting
gladness,
a joy for generations of generations.
16 You shall suck the milk of nations, and you shall eat the wealth of kings, and you shall know that I am the Lord who saves you
and rescues you, the God of Israel.
17 And instead of bronze I will bring you gold;
instead of iron I will bring you silver;
instead of wood I will bring you bronze;
instead of stones, iron.
And I will appoint your rulers in peace and your overseers in righteousness.
18 And injustice shall no more be heard in your land,
nor destruction or wretchedness within your borders;
rather your walls shall be called Salvation,
and your gates Sculpture.
19 And the sun shall not be
to you as a light by day, nor shall the rising of the moon give light to you at night, but the Lord will be to you an everlasting light,
and God will be your glory.
20 For your sun shall not go down, and your moon shall not fail;

for the Lord will be to you an everlasting
light,
and the days of your mourning shall be fulfilled.
21 Your people shall all be righteous, and they shall inherit the land forever,
guarding their plant,
the works of their hands, for glory.
22 The smallest one shall become thousands,
and the least, a great nation;
I, the Lord, will gather them in due time.
61 The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me;
he has sent me to bring good news to the poor,
to heal the brokenhearted,
to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, 2 to summon the acceptable year of the Lord and the day of retribution, to comfort all who mourn 3 so that to those who mourn for Sion be given glory instead of ashes,
oil of joy^b to those who mourn^b, a garment of glory instead of a spirit of weariness.
They will be called generations of
righteousness,
a plant of the Lord for glory.
4 They shall build the ^cdesolate places of old;
they shall raise up the former devastated places;
they shall renew the desolate cities,
places devastated for generations.
5 Aliens shall come, feeding your sheep, and allophyles as plowmen and vinedressers,
6 but you shall be called priests of the Lord, ministers of God;
you shall devour the strength of nations,
and with their wealth you shall be admired^d.
7 Thus they shall inherit the land a second
time,
and everlasting joy shall be above their
head.
8 For I am the Lord, who loves righteousness and hates spoils obtained by injustice;
I will give them their hard work righteously, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them.
9 And their offspring and their descendants shall be known among the nations; everyone who sees them shall acknowledge
them,
because these are an offspring blessed by God,
10 and they will rejoice with rejoicing in the Lord.

Let my soul be glad in the Lord, for he has clothed me with a garment of salvation
 and with a tunic of joy;
 he has put on me a headdress as on a bridegroom
 and adorned me with ornaments like a bride.

- 11 And as the earth making its flowers grow,
 and as a garden its seeds,
 so the Lord will cause righteousness and
 gladness
 to spring up before all the nations.

- 62 Because of Sion I will not be silent, and because of Ierousalem I will not slacken
 until my righteousness goes forth like light and my salvation shall burn like a torch.
- 2 And nations shall see your righteousness,
 and kings your glory,
 and he shall call you by your new name,
 which the Lord will name.
- 3 And you shall be a crown of beauty in the hand of the Lord
 and a royal diadem in the hand of your God.
- 4 And you shall no more be called Forsaken, and your land shall not be called Desolate,
 for you shall be called My Will,
 and your land, Inhabited.
- 5 And as a young man lives together in marriage with a virgin,
 so shall your sons dwell with you,
 and it shall be that as a bridegroom shall rejoice over a bride,
 so shall the Lord rejoice over you.
- 6 And upon your walls, O Ierousalem,
 I have posted sentinels
 all day and all night,
 who shall never be silent,
 making mention of the Lord.
- 7 For ^ayou have none like him^a,
 if he should restore Ierousalem and make it a boast on the earth.
- 8 The Lord has sworn by his right hand and by his mighty arm:
 I will not again give your grain and your food to your enemies, and not again shall foreign sons drink your wine
 for which you have labored, but those who gather shall eat them and praise the Lord,
 and those who gather shall drink them
 in my holy courts.

- 10 Go through my gates,
 and make a way for my people,
 and cast the stones out of the way;
 lift up a signal for the nations.

- 11 For see, the Lord has made it to be heard to the end of the earth:
 Say to daughter Sion,
 "See, your Savior comes to you, having his own reward
 and his work before him."
- 12 And he shall call it a holy people, redeemed by the Lord,
 and you shall be called
 "A City Sought After" and "Not Forsaken."

63 "Who is this that comes from Edom, a redness of garments from Bosor,
 so beautiful in apparel,
 in might, with strength?"

- "I discourse about righteousness and judgment of salvation."
- 2 "Why are your garments red,
 and your clothes as if from a trodden wine press?"
- 3 ^bI am^b full of a trampled ^bwine press^b, and of the nations no man is with me,
 and I trampled them in wrath and crushed them like earth and brought down their blood to the
 earth.
- 4 For a day of retribution has come upon
 them,
 and a year of ransom is here.
- 5 And I looked, but no one was a helper,
 and I observed, but no one was assisting;
 so my own arm delivered them,
 and my wrath was present.
- 6 And I trampled them down in my anger, and I brought down their blood to the
 earth."
- 7 I called to mind the mercy of the Lord,
 the excellences of the Lord
 in all the things with which the Lord rewards us;
 the Lord is a good judge to the house of Israel;
 he provides for us according to his mercy, according to the abundance of his righteousness.
- 8 And he said, "Are they not my people—children who will not ^cdeal falsely^c?"
 And he became to them salvation out of all affliction.
- 9 It was no ambassador or angel
 but the Lord himself that saved them, because he loved them and spared them;
 he himself ransomed them and took them up
 and lifted them up all the days of old.
- 10 But they disobeyed
 and provoked his holy spirit;

^aOr there is none like you (Gk pronoun is pl; previous ones sg) ^bLacking in Gk ^cOr reject me

therefore he turned to them in enmity, and he himself warred against them.
 11 Then the one who brought up from the land
 the shepherd of the sheep remembered the days of old:
 Where is the one who put within them
 his holy spirit,
 12 who led Moyses with his right hand?
^aWhere is^a his glorious arm?
 He overcame^b the water from before him,
 to make for himself an everlasting name.
 13 He led them through the deep like a horse through a wilderness, and they did not become weary, 14 and like cattle through a plain.
 A spirit came down from the Lord and guided them.
 Thus you led your people,
 to make for yourself a glorious name.
 15 Turn from heaven, and see from your holy house and glory.
 Where are your zeal
 and your strength?
 Where is the abundance of your mercy
 and of your compassions,
 that you have ^cheld back from^c us?
 16 For you are our father, because Abraam did not know us and Israel did not recognize us,
 but you, O Lord, are our father; deliver us; from the beginning your name is upon us.
 17 Why, O Lord, did you make us stray from your way
 and harden our hearts so that we would not fear you?
 Turn back on account of your slaves, on account of the tribes of your inheritance, 18 so that we may inherit a little of your holy
 mountain;
 our adversaries have trampled down your holy precinct.
 19 We have become as at the beginning,
 when you did not rule us,
 nor ^dwas your name called upon us^d.

64 If you should open heaven, trembling from you would seize the
 mountains,
 and they would melt
 2(1) as wax melts from the fire.
 And fire shall burn up your adversaries, and the name of the Lord shall be manifest among your adversaries; nations shall be confused at your presence!
 3(2) When you do your glorious deeds, trembling from you will seize the
 mountains.
 4(3) From ages past we have not heard, nor have our eyes seen any God besides

 you,
 and your works, which you will do to those who wait for mercy.
 5(4) For he will meet those who do what is right,
 and they will remember your ways.
 Look, you were angry, and we sinned;
 therefore we went astray.
 6(5) And we have all become like unclean
 people;
 all our righteousness is like the rag
 of a ^ewoman who sits apart^e.
 And we have fallen off like leaves because of our acts of lawlessness;
 thus the wind will take us away.
 7(6) And there is no one who calls on your name or remembers to take hold of you, because you have turned your face away from us
 and have delivered us over because of our sins.
 8(7) And now, O Lord, you are our Father,
 and we are clay;
 we are all the work of your hands.
 9(8) Do not be exceedingly angry,
 and do not remember our sins in season.
 And now look upon us, because we are all your people.
 10(9) Your holy city has become a wilderness;
 Sion has become like a wilderness,
 Ierousalem a curse.
 11(10) The house, our holy place, even the glory that our fathers blessed,
 has been burned by fire,
 and all our glorious places have fallen in ruins.
 12(11) And for all this
 you have restrained yourself, O Lord, and have kept silent and have humbled us severely.

65 I became visible to those who were not seeking me;
 I was found by those who were not inquiring about me.
 I said, "Here I am,"
 to the nation that did not call my name.
 2 I stretched out my hands all day long to a disobedient and contrary people, who did not walk in a true way
 but after their own sins.
 3 These are the people who provoke me
 to my face continually;
 they sacrifice in the gardens and burn incense on bricks to the demons, which do not exist, 4 and they fall asleep in the tombs and in the caves for the sake of dreams—those who eat swine's flesh and broth of sacrifices

 This is the smoke of my wrath;

 6 See, it is written before me:
 I will not keep silent
 until I repay into their bosom 7 their sins and those of their fathers—says
 the Lord—
 who burned incense on the mountains and reviled me on the hills;
 I will repay their works into their bosom.
 8 Thus says the Lord:
 As the grape will be found in the cluster,
 and they will say, "Do not destroy it, because the blessing of the Lord is in it," so I will do for the sake of the one who is subject to me.
 For the sake of this one I will not destroy them all.
 9 And I will bring forth the offspring that comes from Iakob and from Ioudas, and it will inherit my holy mountain, and my chosen ones and my slaves shall inherit it and dwell there.
 10 And there shall be in the forest folds of flocks, and the Ravine of Achor shall become a resting place of herds
 for my people who have sought me.
 11 But as for you who forsake me and forget my holy mountain and prepare a table for the demon and fill a mixed drink for Fortune, 12 I will deliver you over to the dagger;
 all of you shall fall by slaughter;
 because I called you and you did not answer,
 I spoke and you misheard,
 and you did what was evil before me
 and chose the things I did not desire.
 13 Therefore this is what the Lord says:
 See, those who are subject to me shall eat,
 but you shall be hungry;
 see, those who are subject to me shall drink,
 but you shall be thirsty;
 see, those who are subject to me shall rejoice,
 but you shall be put to shame; 14 see, those who are subject to me shall be glad with joy,
 but you shall cry out because of the pain of your heart
 and shall wail for crushing of spirit.
 15 For you shall leave your name ^afor fullness to ^amy chosen ones,
 but the Lord will do away with you.
 But to those who are subject to him, a new name shall be called, 16 which shall be blessed on the earth;
 for they shall bless the true God,
 and those who swear on the earth shall swear by the true God,

for they shall forget their first affliction,
 and it shall not come up into their heart.
 17 For heaven will be new,
 and the earth will be new,
 and they shall not remember the former
 things,
 nor shall they come upon their heart, 18 but they shall find joy and gladness in it, because look, I am making Ierousalem as
 gladness,
 and my people as a joy.
 19 And I will be glad over Ierousalem and rejoice over my people, and no more shall a voice of weeping be heard in it,
 nor a voice of crying.
 20 And there shall not be there one ^bwho dies^b untimely or an old person who will not fulfill his
 time;
 for the young person will be a hundred years old,
 but ^cthe one who dies a sinner will be a hundred years old and accursed^c.
 21 And they shall build houses and themselves shall inhabit them,
 and they shall plant vineyards and themselves shall eat their fruit, 22 and they shall not build, and others inhabit;
 they shall not plant, and others eat,
 for according to the days of the tree of life shall the days of my people be;
 they shall make old the works of their labors.
 23 And my chosen ones shall not labor in vain,
 nor bear children for a curse, because they are an offspring blessed by
 God.
 24 And it shall be that before they have cried out I will listen to them;
 while they are yet speaking I will say,
 What is it?
 25 Then wolves and lambs shall feed together,
 and a lion shall eat straw like an ox,
 but a snake ^bshall eat^b earth as bread!
 They shall not do wrong or destroy on my holy mountain,
 says the Lord.

66 Thus says the Lord:
 Heaven is my throne,
 and the earth is the footstool of my feet;
 what kind of house will you build for me, or of what kind will be the place of my rest?
 2 For all these things my hand has made,
 and all these things are mine, says the Lord.
 And to whom will I look but to the one who is humble and quiet and trembles at my words?

 And these have chosen their own ways and their abominations, which their soul

 4 so I will choose mockeries for them and repay them their sins, because I called them and they did not answer me,
 I spoke and they did not hear,
 but they did what was evil in my sight
 and chose the things I did not desire.
 5 Hear the word of the Lord,
 you who tremble at his word;

 to those who hate and abominate us so that the name of the Lord may be glorified and seen in their joy,
 but those ones shall be put to shame.
 6 A voice of crying from the city!
 A voice from the shrine!
 The voice of the Lord,
 rendering retribution to his adversaries!
 7 Before she who was in labor gave birth,
 before the pain of her pangs came,
 she escaped and gave birth to a male.
 8 Who has heard of such a thing?
 And who has seen thus?
 Did the earth give birth in one day?
 Was also a nation born all at once?
 Because Sion was in labor and she gave birth to her children.
 9 But I am the one who gave you this expectation,
 and you did not remember me,
 said the Lord;
 see, was it not I who made the woman who gives birth
 and the one who is barren?
 said God.
 10 Rejoice, O Ierousalem, and celebrate a festival in her, all you who love her;
 rejoice with joy,
 all you who mourn over her—11 that you may nurse and be satisfied from her consoling breast, that by much nursing you may take delight from the entrance to her glory.
 12 Because this is what the Lord says:
 See, I myself turn to them like a river of
 peace,

and like a wadi overflowing the glory of
 nations;
 their children shall be carried on shoulders
 and comforted on knees.
 13 As a mother will comfort someone,
 so also I will comfort you,
 and you shall be comforted in Ierousalem.
 14 You shall see, and your heart shall rejoice,
 and your bones shall grow like grass, and the hand of the Lord shall be known to those who worship him,
 and he shall threaten those who disobey
 him.
 15 For see, the Lord will come like fire,
 and his chariots like a tempest, to render vengeance with wrath
 and repudiation with a flame of fire.
 16 For by the fire of the Lord shall all the earth be judged,
 and all flesh by his sword;
 many shall be wounded by the Lord.

17 Those who sanctify and purify themselves for the gardens and who in the porches eat swine's flesh, the abominations and the mouse shall be consumed together, said the Lord.

18 And I understand their works and their reasonings;
 I am coming to gather all the nations and tongues, and they shall come and shall see my glory. ¹⁹And I will leave signs upon them, and from them I will send forth those who are saved to the nations, to Tharsis and Phoud and Loud and Mosoch and Thobel and to Greece and to the islands far away—those who have not heard my name or seen my glory, and they shall declare my glory among the nations. ²⁰They shall bring your kindred from all the nations as a gift to the Lord, with horses and chariots, in mule-drawn litters with sunshades, into the holy city Ierousalem, said the Lord, so that the sons of Israel may bring to me their sacrifices with music^b into the house of the Lord. ²¹And I will take for myself some of them as priests and as Leuites, said the Lord.

22 For as the new heaven and the new earth, which I am making, remain before me,
 says the Lord,
 so shall your offspring and your name stand.

23 And it shall be that month after month and sabbath after sabbath
 all flesh shall come before me to do obeisance in Ierousalem,
 said the Lord.

24 And they shall go forth and see the limbs^c of the people who have transgressed against me;
 for their worm shall not die and their fire shall not be quenched and they shall become a spectacle to all flesh.

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of Ieremias is based on the critical edition of Joseph Ziegler (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Societatis Litterarum Göttingensis editum XV: Ieremias Baruch Threni Epistula Ieremiae [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1957]), though in a number of instances, notably in chapter 43, we have deviated from Ziegler's edition. The deviation in 52.24 ("way" > "threshold") NETS owes to J. Smith.¹ No systematic and thorough text-critical reassessment has, however, been carried out.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character

Given that, according to opinio communis, Greek Jeremiah (hereafter Ieremias) is based on a Hebrew text substantially at variance with MT, a comparison of the Greek with its source text is no straightforward task. It is nevertheless reasonably clear that the most basic norm of the translator (hereafter Ier²) was that of isomorphism. That is to say, typically each morpheme of the source text is represented in the target text. This is true not only of so-called content words (lexemes) but as well of structure words. For example, Hebrew articles, notae accusativi, infinitival prefix ׀, personal pronouns (even when rendered superfluous by Greek inflection), pronominal suffixes, pleonastic pronouns and adverbs, prepositions, and conjunctions are all regularly represented, whether or not such representation results in standard Greek usage. Though certain structural items are at times added in deference to Greek usage, this occurs almost exclusively at the level of phrase and clause and rarely at the level of discourse. Moreover, deference to Greek literary style was often trumped by Ier's isomorphism, as a result of which Greek articles are notably in short supply.

Be it noted, however, that isomorphism need not mean lexical or grammatical consistency. Thus Hebrew prepositions may at times trigger Greek articles, in the same sort of way that a Hebrew lexeme may be assigned a number of Greek counterparts, differentiated according to contextual demand, whether linguistic or expository, even though the context may be rather narrowly conceived.

In spite of its isomorphism, Ieremias is usually intelligible though rarely elegant. Yet the reader encounters many instances of unintelligibility. As good an example as any is perhaps 52.19, the more since it contains transcriptions (see further below): καὶ τὰ σαφφωθ καὶ τὰ μασμαρωθ καὶ τοὺς ὑποχυτήρας καὶ τὰς λυχνίας καὶ τὰς θυσίας καὶ τοὺς κυάθους, ἃ ἦν χρυσᾶ χρυσᾶ καὶ ἃ ἦν ἀργυρᾶ ἀργυρᾶ, ἔλαβεν ὁ ἀρχιμάγειρος. Though this line is an exact representation of the Hebrew source text—which was evidently very much like MT—what was a Greek reader without access to the Hebrew to make of it? NETS has glossed it as: "And the chief cook took away the saphphoth and the masmaroth and the pitchers and the lampstands and the censers and the ladles, which were gold gold and which were silver silver," with a few notes attached to help the reader of English. Problems encountered by Ier in the source text are typically passed on to the reader. Difficulties, too, may be caused by uncertain referents/antecedents of pronominals (e.g., 27.44; 29.14, 20; 42.2). Especially the Oracles Against the Nations (OAN) present many uncertainties of various kinds. All the same, Ier is not totally oblivious to Greek literary conventions. So for example in 4.23–26 he renders the fourfold ׀׀׀׀ ("I looked at") of his source into two pairs of ἐπέβλεψα . . . εἶδον. All in all, though, Ieremias often lacks semantic transparency, because too little attention was paid to units of discourse beyond the clausal level.

Stipp rightly notes that "diese Übersetzung auf sprachliche Glätte wenig Rücksicht nahm und in ästhetischer Hinsicht ihren Lesern nicht entgegenkam."³

² The label is not intended to preclude more than one translator.

³ Hermann-Josef Stipp, Das masoretische und alexandrinische Sondergut des Jeremiabuches (Freiburg/Göttingen: Universitätsverlag/Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1994) 27 ("This translation paid little attention to linguistic polish and aesthetically failed to accommodate its readers.")

Of Consistency and Inconsistency

Though Ier's most basic norm is that of isomorphism, as noted, this does not need to mean a heavy emphasis on lexical/grammatical consistency. As a result, predictable Hebrew-Greek equivalency and isomorphism may be quite distinct. While lack of consistency can suggest different agents—whether translators or revisers—it is equally true that one and the same agent may make use of such inconsistency to slip into his text interpretive elements, whether of purely local import or possibly with a larger scope. We are here interested in such marked usage, especially those instances that are not readily explained as obligatory differentiation in the target language. Here we note some interesting examples. Though the textual facts are clear, the reasons for them are not always so. In each case, the item in question is distributed throughout the book.

Variation at the Word Level

1a νεκρός (“corpse”) 7.33; 9.22; 19.7; 40.5

1b θνησιμάσιον (“carcass”) 16.18; 41.20; 43.30

In all but 40.5 the Hebrew term is הַלַּבַּד , used for a dead body of human and animal alike. Though in this case one can scarcely speak of a default Hebrew-Greek equivalency, the difference in rendering nevertheless invites examination. Since Greek, like English, differentiates, one might expect that 1a denotes deceased humans and 1b dead animals. When one finds that, in fact, both terms are used to describe human dead, $\theta\eta\eta\sigma\iota\mu\acute{\alpha}\sigma\iota\omicron\nu$ shows itself to be a marked usage and based on contextual considerations. So it seems safe to say that Ier did not think well of King Ioakim, alive or dead (43.30). As might be expected, in Leuitikon (Leviticus) $\theta\eta\eta\sigma\iota\mu\acute{\alpha}\sigma\iota\omicron\nu$ is standard, with the sole exception of 21.5 where reference is made to a human.

2a ἄλλότριοι θεοί (“strange/foreign gods”) 1.16; 5.19; 7.6, 9, 18; 11.10; 13.10; 16.11; 19.4, 13; 22.9; 25.6. In all instances, with the exception of 5.19 (= נַכְרִי), ἄλλότριοι is a rendition of אֱלֹהִים אֲחֵרִים .

2b ἕτεροι θεοί (“other gods”) 16.13; 39.29; 42.15; 51.3, 5, 8, 15. All cases gloss אֱלֹהִים אֲחֵרִים .

The default in this case is reasonably clear. Reasonably clear too would seem to be Ier's reason for differentiation. Though Israel's pursuit of “foreign ways” is already noted in the Hebrew source text, signaled notably by אֱלֹהִים אֲחֵרִים (2.25; 3.13; 5.19; 18.14; 37[30].8) and נַכְרִי (2.21; 5.19; 8.19; 19.4)—all nine glossed by ἄλλότριος—Ier makes it more explicit by differentiating between the worship of “strange/foreign gods” in the homeland (e.g., 5.19) and the worship of “other (non-Yahweh) gods” once the people have been forced to leave their homeland. The same difference in perspective can be seen in Deuteronomy between chapters 4–30 (ἕτερος), on the one hand, and 31–32 (ἄλλότριος), on the other, though Deut 31.16 and 32.12 have explicit warrant for differentiation in the Hebrew.

3a προφήτης (“prophet”) 1.5; 2.8, 26, 30; 4.9; 5.13, 31; 7.25; 8.1; 13.13; 14.13, 14, 15(bis), 18; 18.18; 23.6, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 21, 25, 26, 28, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34; 25.4; 28.59; 33.5; 34.12, 13, 15; 35.8, 9(bis); 36.15; 39.32; 42.15; 44.19; 49.2; 50.6; 51.4, 31.

3b ψευδοπροφήτης (“pseudo-prophet”) 6.13; 33.7, 8, 11, 16; 34.7; 35.1; 36.1, 8. In both cases, all the glosses are for נְבִיאִים .

Ier's standard gloss is patently obvious and both items are distributed throughout the book, although not evenly so. Be it noted, however, that when “pseudo-prophet” appears on the scene “prophet” by no means disappears. Since a prophet does not become a pseudo-prophet (a word which arguably originated with Ier) by prophesying by Baal (2.8) nor by prophesying what is wrong (5.31) or lies in the Lord's name (23.25) nor by not having been sent by the Lord (14.15) nor by being defiled (23.11) or causing defilement (23.15) nor by rendering a vision empty (23.16) or projecting his own thoughts (23.26), it is not immediately clear how a prophet could become a pseudo-prophet. Yet, it is in fact quite possible that Ier is basing his differentiation on Ier 35.9 (= Deut 18.22). That is to say, a prophet is shown to be a pseudo-prophet when what he predicts does not happen. Since after the panoramic overview of 1–32, chapter 33.1 starts the tale of the book anew on a more horizontal plane (see further below), it makes sense that pseudo-prophets should not be shown to exist until chapter 33. Though the term already appears proleptically in 6.13, it does not become applicable until the predicted events are beginning to unfold.

4a ἄρχων (“magistrate/ruler”) 1.18; 2.26; 4.9; 8.1; 17.25 (bis); 24.1; 30.3; 31.7; 32.4; 33.10, 11, 12, 16, 21; 39.32; 41.19, 21; 42.4; 43.12, 14, 21; 44.14, 15; 45.22, 25, 27; 51.17, 21; 52.10. All translate שָׂרֵף . ἄρχων further has no translation equivalent in 51.9.

4b ἡγεμών (“leader”) 45.17; 46.3(bis); 47.7, 13; 48.11, 13, 16; 49.1, 8; 50.4, 5. All translate מֶלֶךְ. ἡγεμών further translates מֶלֶךְ in 28.23, 57 (cf. v. 28).

4c δυναστής (“one with power”) 41.19. Though this term translates מֶלֶךְ, it functions as a replacement for מֶלֶךְ יְרוּשָׁלַיִם. Evidently, Ier did not know what to do with the sequence מֶלֶךְ of Judah and מֶלֶךְ of Jerusalem.

4d μεγιστόν (“noble”) 24.8; 25.18; 27.35; 32.5; 41.10. All translate מֶלֶךְ. μεγιστόν further translates מֶלֶךְ in 14.3.

Though 4a is Ier’s default, 4a, 4b and 4d have wide distribution in the book. Since for Ier the ἄρχοντες are clearly local magistrates, such terminology is evidently deemed inappropriate when the source text speaks of military personnel. That the latter should appear predominantly in later chapters of the book is simply a matter of contents. Both ἄρχων and ἡγεμών are apparently deemed inappropriate when the social elites come into view. Ier clearly does not adhere to a lexical correspondence but differentiates based on context.

5a ἐντέλλομαι (“command”) 1.7, 17; 7.22, 23(bis), 31; 11.4(bis); 13.5, 6; 14.14; 17.22; 19.5; 23.32; 27.21; 28.59; 29.7; 39.23; 42.6, 10, 14, 18; 43.5, 8, 26; 45.10, 27.

5b συντάσσω (“instruct”) 33.2, 8; 34.3; 36.23; 39.13, 35; 41.22; 44.21. In both cases all the glosses are for צִוִּי pi.

Again Ier’s default rendering of the source item is not in doubt nor, for that matter, that this rendering occurs throughout the book, as a result of which the marked item stands in bold relief. It is of interest that, although ἐντέλλομαι is the Septuagintal favorite, most other books show a comparable mix of the two terms. A quick count of the Pentateuch reveals the following statistics: ἐντέλλομαι Gen 18x, Ex 18x, Leu 16x, Num 18x, Deut 82x; συντάσσω Gen 2x, Ex 3x, Leu 12x, Num 27x, Deut 2x. That synonymy determined translational usage to a degree is likely, but it can hardly be the whole story. If ἐντέλλομαι connotes “to give definite orders, implying authority or official function” (emphasis added), as Louw and Nida⁴ note (33.329), not only does the deuteronomic imbalance become understandable, given the nature of the book, but also the occasional use of συντάσσω in Ieremias. A case in point is 39.13 in distinction from 43.5, 8. While in the former the prophet gives Barouch instructions (συντάσσω) about the safe-keeping of a business document, the issue in the latter is that, since Ieremias is in custody, Barouch is commissioned (ἐντέλλομαι) to read Ieremias’ book of oracles in the temple.

What is at issue in the all-too-few examples offered above is not, in the first instance, a “correct” matching of source text and target text but a differentiation in the target language due to context. Hence the variations are not formal but semantic.

Variation at the Phrase/Clause Level

When one moves from the word level to the phrase/clause level, inconsistency for the same Hebrew continues, though again against a general background of consistency. A few examples will have to suffice.

6a στηρίζω τὸ πρόσωπον 21.10 (cf. 24.6 στηρίζω τοὺς ὀφθαλμούς)

6b δίδωμι τὸ πρόσωπον 49.15

6c τίθημι τὸ πρόσωπον 49.17 (cf. 47.4 τίθημι ὀφθαλμούς)

6d ἐφίστημι τὸ πρόσωπον 51.11.

In the four chief instances the gloss is for פָּנֵי עַיִן (“set the face”), with the two added ones for עֵינֵי עַיִן (“set the eye”). That 21.10 and 24.6 should use the same Greek verb might be expected in view of close similarity in context, but that 49.15 and 49.17 should differ is more difficult to explain, since reference is being made to the same act by the same group of people. Similarly unclear is the reason for ἐφίστημι in 51.11. The point to be made, however, is that the translator’s choice though governed by isomorphism, is evidently not necessarily governed by lexical consistency with the source text.

A second example occurs in chapter 41. The Hebrew idiom, כָּרַת בְּרִית, (“make a covenant”), occurs four times within this chapter, namely in vv. 8, 13, 15, 18, but in three different forms.

7a συντελέω διαθήκην 41.8, 15

7b διατίθημαι διαθήκην 41.13

7c ποιέω διαθήκην 41.18

Given the fact that the standard Septuagintal equivalent for כָּרַת בְּרִית is διατίθημαι διαθήκην (at times with the simplex verb) and that both Ier 39.40 and 41.13 feature this idiom, the two deviant forms

come as a surprise, the more since they appear nowhere else in the Septuagint. The issue for Ier in all three verses is evidently the same, namely, that the διαθήκη in question is not the covenant made with Israel by divine initiative. In 41.8, 15 it is an agreement for release between Sedekias and the people. Verse 18 in both MT (34.18) and LXX contains a possible reference to the golden calf episode (Ex 32), but in the latter the διαθήκη of Sedekias and his ilk is thrashed along with the calf—even though it is rather woodenly expressed.

Earlier in Jeremias a similar level of variation obtains both in the Hebrew > Greek direction and vice versa.

8a τάσσω + O(bject) + OC (object complement) 2.15; 3.19

8b τίθημι + O(bject) + OC (object complement) 13.16 (pass. transformation); 22.6; 27.3

8c δίδωμι + O(bject) + OC (object complement) 38.31

In all six cases the Hebrew verb is פָּנָה (“put/set”)

9a κατάσκιον (ξύλον) 2.20

9b ἀλωδῶδες (ξύλον) 3.6; 3.13; 17.8

9c εὐσκίον (ξύλον) 11.16

What is of interest here is not only that all three translate Hebrew יָצַח and that all have reference to “trees,” but that in 2.20; 3.6, 13 these trees are sites of whoredom, as a result of which one might have expected κατάσκιος to have been used in all three. On the other hand, in 11.16 and 17.8 a flourishing tree is a metaphor for Iouda (Judah) and for a person who trusts in the Lord respectively. Thus one might expect the same descriptive to have been used. Again, the central point to be made is that Ier was not stuck on strict lexical correspondence even when the contexts are similar or identical.

We close the discussion in this section with a rather lengthy doublet, namely, Ier 10.12–17 and 28(51).15–19. While the two passages are identical in MT (apart from the added “Israel” in 10.16), the Greek shows some rather remarkable differences:

10.12 κύριος ὁ ποιήσας τὴν γῆν ἐν τῇ ἰσχύι αὐτοῦ, ὁ ἀνορθώσας τὴν οἰκουμένην
28.15 ποιῶν γῆν ἐν τῇ ἰσχύι αὐτοῦ, ἐτοιμάζων οἰκουμένην

10.12 ἐν τῇ σοφίᾳ αὐτοῦ καὶ τῇ φρονήσει αὐτοῦ ἐξέτεινε τὸν οὐρανὸν 28.15 ἐν τῇ σοφίᾳ αὐτοῦ ἐν τῇ συνέσει αὐτοῦ ἐξέτεινε τὸν οὐρανὸν

10.13 καὶ πληθὸς ὕδατος ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἀνήγαγε νεφέλας
28.16 εἰς φωνὴν ἔθετο ἦχος ὕδατος ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ καὶ ἀνήγαγε νεφέλας

10.13 ἐξ ἑσχάτου τῆς γῆς, ἀστραπὰς εἰς ὑετὸν ἐποίησε
28.16 ἀπ’ ἑσχάτου τῆς γῆς, ἀστραπὰς εἰς ὑετὸν ἐποίησε

10.13 καὶ ἐξήγαγε φῶς ἐκ θησαυρῶν αὐτοῦ
28.16 καὶ ἐξήγαγε φῶς ἐκ θησαυρῶν αὐτοῦ

10.14 ἐμωράνθη πᾶς ἄνθρωπος ἀπὸ γνώσεως
28.17 ἐματαιώθη πᾶς ἄνθρωπος ἀπὸ γνώσεως

10.14 κατησχύνθη πᾶς χρυσοχόος ἐπὶ τοῖς γλυπτοῖς αὐτοῦ
28.17 κατησχύνθη πᾶς χρυσοχόος ἀπὸ τῶν γλυπτῶν αὐτοῦ

10.14 ὅτι ψευδῆ ἐχώνευσαν, οὐκ ἔστι πνεῦμα ἐν αὐτοῖς
28.17 ὅτι ψευδῆ ἐχώνευσαν, οὐκ ἔστι πνεῦμα ἐν αὐτοῖς

10.15 μάταιά ἐστιν, ἔργα ἐμπεπαιγμένα, ἐν καιρῷ ἐπισκοπῆς αὐτῶν ἀπολοῦνται 28.18 μάταιά ἐστιν, ἔργα μεμωκῆμένα, ἐν καιρῷ ἐπισκέψεως αὐτῶν ἀπολοῦνται

10.16 οὐκ ἔστι τοιαύτη μερὶς τῷ Ιακωβ
28.19 οὐ τοιαύτη μερὶς τῷ Ιακωβ

10.16 ὅτι ὁ πλάσας τὰ πάντα αὐτὸς κληρονομία αὐτοῦ, κύριος ὄνομα αὐτῶ 28.19 ὅτι ὁ πλάσας τὰ πάντα αὐτὸς ἔστι κληρονομία αὐτοῦ, κύριος ὄνομα αὐτῶ

The point here is that even when one makes due allowance for textual difference between MT and the source text of Ier, one is still left with a considerable number of both stylistic and interpretational differences—and that in what is a patent doublet on the Hebrew side.

Transcriptions

Transcriptions of Hebrew—as well as some translations that might better have been transferred as transcriptions—are found in considerable number throughout Ieremias. In some cases Ier may have had a source text different from MT, while at other times his source text may have been unintelligible to him. Be that as it may, our interest here, again, is in translational norms. As noted above, a basic norm for Ier was that of isomorphism, i.e., that each morpheme of the source text be represented in the target text. The transcriptions give plenty of evidence of that. Accordingly, items are transcribed even though they make little or no sense in the target text: ασιδα (8.7), αγουρ (8.7), μανσα (17.26; 48[41].5), αιδεδ (31[48].33; 32.16[25.30], σιωνιμ (38[31].21), τιμρωριμ (38[31].21), ασαρηωθ (38[31].40), σαφφωθ (52.19), μασμαρωθ (52.19); similarly, transcriptions are supplied with articles when the source text has an article and/or nota accusativi, gender and number being gleaned from the source: τῆς χαρσιθ (19.2), τὴν χρεθ (44[37].16), τὰ σαφφωθ (52.19), τὰ μασμαρωθ (52.19).

Also noted above—against the backdrop of lexical and grammatical consistency—was that Ier often deviates from defaults for, at times, clearly contextual reasons. That too is reflected in the transcriptions. Although one finds οἱμοι κύριε for יְהוָה יְיָ (“O lord”) in 22.18, in 41(34).5 we have ὦ αδων. Likewise, μανσα for מִנְחָה (“grain offering”) occurs in 17.26 and 48(41).5 while θυσία and δῶρον (MT מִנְחָה) appear respectively in 14.12 and 28(51)59—both well attested glosses in the LXX. For נָחַל (“brook”) we have ναχαλ in 38(31).40, χειμάρρους in 29(47).2 and διῶρυξ in 38(31).9, and for בְּצֵרַח (“Bozrah”) 31(48).24 has Βοσορ, but 29.23(49.22) has ὀχυρώματα αὐτῆς. Thirdly, there is evidence here of Ier’s penchant for working at the lower levels of constituent structure at the expense of the larger units of discourse. One such case is Αρχαβιν in 42(35).2. Though the Hebrew is a plural gentilic, the Greek transcription is a (singular) name. In the following clause Ier fails to represent the plural suffixes by singular pronouns, thereby creating a puzzling text. A reverse example is 29.14(49.13) where ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῆς represents בְּצֵרַח (“Bozrah”). Though it may be that, as BHS suggests, the source text differed from MT, the point at issue remains: What can “in her midst” mean in the context? Of a similar kind is Ier’s misreading of הַצֹּר (“Hazor”) throughout the Oracle Against Kedar (30.6[49.28], 8[30], 11[33]) as αὐλή (הַצֹּר). Yet another, very awkward one, is παρ’ ἐμοῦ for מִנִּי (“Minni”) in a series of names. For additional transcriptions see Σορ (21.13), Ιωσεδεκ (23.6), Σαων εσβι εμωδ (26[46].17), Ενακιμ (29[47].5), Αιθαν (27[50].44; 29.20[49.19]), Κεδειμ (30.6[49.28]), Αταθ and Ατατ (31[48].1, 39), Ζογορα (31[48].4, cf. v. 34), Ακκαριωθ (31(48)41), φασεκ (38[31].8), ασελισηλ (45[38].14), and finally an inflected example: χαυῶνες (7.18; 51[44].19).

In sum, the transcriptions are a good index to the book’s textual-linguistic makeup.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF IEREMIAS

This translation aims to be a faithful representation of the Greek text, including many of the warts one finds along the way. In that light the reader should not be surprised to encounter from time to time less than felicitous or even questionable English. For example, since the use of pleonastic adverbs and pronouns is characteristic of the translator’s isomorphism, we have tried to mimic this usage without, we hope, producing unintelligible English. As a result, 11.11 e.g., reads “Behold I am bringing evil upon this people from which they will not be able to escape from it” rather than without the final two words. The translation is therefore often one of formal equivalence, reflective of the relationship deemed to exist between the Greek and its Hebrew source.

In an effort to capture the distinctiveness of some of the key, recurring formulae in Ieremias, we have opted for “This is what the Lord says” (τάδε λέγει κύριος) and “says the Lord” (λέγει κύριος) in distinction from “Thus did the Lord say” (οὕτως εἶπε κύριος) and “quoth the Lord” (φησὶ κύριος). Though “quoth” is admittedly not current English usage and in form is said to be past tense, it has the distinct advantage of underscoring the quotative use of φησὶ.⁵

Though NETS has followed the NRSV in its formatting of Hebrew prose in distinction from poetry, this should not be taken to mean either that the Greek translator made a conscious distinction between the two or that the Greek text contains poetry.

In pursuance of NETS policy, footnotes have been kept to a minimum, though we have supplied certain helps to the English reader that would not have been available to a Greek reader.

ALBERT PIETERSMA and MARC SAUNDERS

1 The dictum of God which came to Jeremiah the son of Chelkias of the priests, who was living in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin; ²a word of God which came to him in the days of King Josias son of Amos of Iouda, in the thirteenth year of his reign. ³And it came in the days of King Ioakim son of Iosias of Iouda, until the eleventh year of King Sedekias son of Iosias of Iouda, until the captivity of Ierousalem in the fifth month.

4 And a word of the Lord came to him, saying^a,

5 "Before I formed you in the belly, I knew you,
and before you came forth from the womb,
I had consecrated you;
a prophet to nations I had made you."

⁶And I said, "You That Are, Sovereign, Lord! Behold, I do not know how to speak, because I am rather young;" ⁷And the Lord said to me,

"Do not say, 'I am rather young,' because you shall go to all to whom I send you, and you shall speak according to all I command you.

8 Do not be afraid before them, because I am with you to deliver you,
says the Lord."

⁹And the Lord stretched out his hand to me and touched my mouth, and the Lord said to me,
"Behold, I have given my words to your mouth.

¹⁰ Behold, today I have appointed you over nations and over kingdoms, to uproot and to pull down and to destroy and to rebuild and to plant.

11 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Jeremias^a, what do you see?" And I said, "A staff of nut wood." ¹²And the Lord said to me, "You have seen well, for I am watchful over my words to perform them." ¹³And a word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying, "What do you see?" And I said, "A cauldron being heated, and its face^b is from the north."

14 And the Lord said to me: From the face of the north evil shall flare up against all the inhabitants of the land, ¹⁵for behold, I am summoning all the kingdoms from the north of the earth, says the Lord, and they shall come, and they shall set, each his throne against the entrances of the gates of Ierousalem and against all its surrounding walls and against all the cities of Iouda. ¹⁶And I will speak to them with judgment about all their wickedness, how they forsook me and burned incense to foreign gods and did obeisance to the works of their own hands. ¹⁷And you, gird up your loins, and stand up, and tell them everything that I command you. Do not be afraid by their presence, nor be terrified before them, because I am with you to deliver you,

says the Lord.

¹⁸Behold, I have made you in this very day like a strong city and like a strong bronze wall, to all the kings of Iouda and its rulers and the people of the land. ¹⁹And they will fight you, and they shall not prevail against you, for I am with you to deliver you,

says the Lord.

2 ²And he said, This is what the Lord says:
I remembered the mercy of your youth

^aOm = Zi ^bI.e. opening

- and the love of your growing up, how you followed the holy one of Israel,
says the Lord.
- 3 [Israel was holy to the Lord,
the firstfruit of his products.
All who eat him will err;
evil will come upon them,
says the Lord.
- 4 Hear a word of the Lord, O house of Jakob and the whole paternal family of the house of Israel. ⁵This is what the Lord says:
What error did your fathers find in me that they stood far from me and went after worthless things and became worthless themselves?
- 6 And they did not say, "Where is the Lord who brought us up out of the land of Egypt,
who led us in the wilderness,
in a land boundless and trackless,
in a land waterless and fruitless, in a land that nothing passed in it and no person settled there?"
- 7 And I brought you into Carmel that you eat its fruit and its good things.
And you entered, and you defiled my land and made my heritage an abomination.
- 8 The priests did not say, "Where is the Lord?"
and those who hold fast to the law did not know me,
and the shepherds would act impiously toward me,
and the prophets would prophesy by the goddess Baal
and went after what does not profit.
- 9 Therefore once more I will go to law with
you,
says the Lord,
and I will go to law with your sons' sons,
for cross to islands of Chettiim and see,
and send to Kedar and examine with care,
and see if such things have happened:
- 11 Will nations change their gods?
And these are no gods.
But my people have changed their glory
for one from which they will not profit.
- 12 The sky was appalled at this and shuddered more and more,
says the Lord,
because my people in fact committed two evils:
they forsook me, fountain of living water,
and they dug out cracked cisterns for themselves
that will not be able to hold water.
- 14 Surely Israel is not a slave or a homebred one?
Why has he become plunder?
- 15 Lions would roar against him and gave forth their voice,
who turned his land into a wilderness,
and his cities were torn down,
to the point that they are not inhabited.
- 16 And sons of Memphis and Taphnas knew
you
and used to mock you.
- (17) Has not your abandoning of me brought about these things for you?
(17)says the Lord, your God.
- 18 And now, what do you have to do with the road to Egypt,
to drink the water of Geon?
And what do you have to do with the road to the Assyrians,
to drink the water of rivers?
- 19 Your apostasy will discipline you, and your wickedness will convict you.
Both know and see that it is bitter for you to forsake me,
says the Lord, your God,
and I took no pleasure in you,
says the Lord, your God.
- 20 because long ago you shattered your yoke
and burst your bonds,
and you said, "I will not be a slave, but I will go on every high hill
and under every shady tree;
there I will sprawl in my whoredom."
- 21 Yet I planted you as a fruitful vine, from pure stock.
How did you turn to bitterness,
you foreign vine?
- 22 Though you wash yourself with nitre and multiply herbs^a for yourself, you have become stained by your injustices
before me,
says the Lord.
- 23 How will you say, "I was not defiled, and I did not go after the goddess Baal"?
Look at your ways in the common burial
place
and know what you did.
Her voice cried out in the evening.
- 24 She widened her ways to the waters of the wilderness;
she was ^bwind-borne^b
by the cravings of her soul.
She was handed over.
Who will turn her back?
None who seek her will toil hard;
in her humiliation they will find her.
- 25 Turn your foot from a rough way and your throat from thirst.
But she said, "I will play the man," because she had loved foreigners and would go after them.
- 26 Like a thief's shame when he is caught,
so the sons of Israel shall be shamed, they and their kings and their rulers and their priests and their prophets.
- 27 They said to the tree, "You are my father,"

^ai.e. with medicinal qualities ^bPossibly inspired and to the stone, "You gave me birth."

 And they turned backs to me,
 and not their faces.
 And in the time of their trouble they will
 say,
 "Rise up, and save us!" 28 And where are your gods that you made for yourself, if they will rise up and save you in your time of trouble?— because according to the number of your cities
 were your gods, O Iouda, and according to the number of Ierusalem's streets
 they were sacrificing to the goddess Baal.
 29 Why do you speak to me?
 You all acted impiously,
 and you all acted lawlessly against me,
 says the Lord.
 30 In vain I have struck your children;
 discipline you did not accept.
 A dagger devoured your prophets like a ravening lion, and you did not fear.
 31 Hear a word of the Lord!
 This is what the Lord says:
 Surely I have not become a wilderness to Israel
 or a dried-out land?
 Why did my people say, "We will not be ruled,
 and we will come to you no more"?
 32 Surely a bride will not forget her adornment,
 and a virgin her breast band?
 Yet my people forgot me,
 days without number.
 33 Why is it that you will take exceptional care
 in your ways to seek affection?
 Not so, but in fact you acted wickedly to defile your ways.
 34 Also on your hands was found blood of innocent souls.
 I did not find them in trenches
 but at every oak.
 35 And you said, "I am innocent;
 only let his anger be turned from me." Behold, I am going to law with you for saying, "I did not sin." 36 Whatever did you greatly despise so as to repeat your ways?
 And you shall be put to shame by Egypt
 as you were put to shame by Assour, 37 because also from there you will come away,
 and your hands will be on your head,
 because the Lord has rejected your hope,
 and you will not prosper through it.

3 If a man dismisses his wife and she goes from him and becomes another man's,

 surely, if she returns, she will not return any more to him?
 Surely when she becomes polluted,
 that woman will be polluted?
 And you have played the whore with many
 shepherds,
 and would you return to me?
 says the Lord.
 2 Raise your eyes straight ahead, and see!
 Where have you not been contaminated?
 By the ways you have sat for them like a desolate crow.
 And you polluted the land
 with your whoring and wickedness.
 3 And you had many shepherds as an obstacle to yourself;
 you got a harlot's look;
 you behaved shamelessly toward all.
 4 Did you not, as it were, call me Home and Father and Originator of your maidenhood?
 5 Surely, it^a will not remain forever,
 nor will it^a be maintained to victory?
 Behold, you spoke,
 and you did these evils, and you prevailed.

6 And the Lord said to me in the days of King Iosias: Have you seen what the settlement^b of Israel did to me? They went to every high mountain and under every woodland tree and played the whore there. ⁷And I said after she did all these things, "Return to me," but she did not return, and faithless Iouda saw her faithlessness. ⁸And I saw that for everything in which the settlement^b of Israel was caught, [in which she committed adultery], and I sent her away and gave her a document of dismissal, and faithless Iouda did not fear, but she too went and played the whore. ⁹And her whoredom came to nothing, and she committed adultery with tree and stone. ¹⁰And in all these things faithless Iouda did not return to me with her whole heart, but only in pretense.

11 And the Lord said to me: Israel has justified his soul vis-à-vis faithless Iouda. ¹²Go, and read these words toward the north, and you will say:
 Return to me, settlement^b of Israel,
 says the Lord,
 and I will not set my face against you,
 because merciful am I,
 says the Lord,
 and I will not cherish wrath against you
 forever.
 13 Only acknowledge your injustice, that you acted impiously against the Lord your God
 and poured out your ways to foreigners under every woodland tree, but you did not obey my voice,
 says the Lord.
 14 Return, O apostate sons,
 says the Lord,

^ai.e. maidenhood ^bPossibly colony

for I will be your lord, and I will take you, one from a city and two
from a paternal family, and I will bring you into Sion.

15 And I will give you shepherds after my own heart, and in shepherding they will shepherd you with skill. ¹⁶And it will be, if you multiply and increase in the land, in those days, says the Lord, they shall no longer say, "Ark of the covenant of the holy one of Israel." It shall not come up in the heart; it shall not be named nor be considered, and it shall not be made again. ¹⁷In those days and at that time they shall call Ierousalem "The Lord's throne," and all the nations shall be gathered into her, and they shall no longer walk after the notions of their own evil heart. ¹⁸In those days the house of Iouda shall join the house of Israel, and they shall come to the same place from a land of the north and from all the countries to the land that I gave their fathers for a heritage.

19 And I said, "May it be, O Lord," because I will make you as children and will give you a choice land as a heritage of God Almighty of
nations,
and I said, "You will call me Father and will not be turned away from me." 20 Instead, as a woman is faithless toward her mate,
so the house of Israel was faithless toward
me,
says the Lord.
21 From lips was heard a voice of weeping and of pleading of Israel's sons, because they did wrong in their ways,
they forgot their holy God.
22 Return, O sons who are given to turning,
and I will heal your fractures.

"We here will be yours,
because you are the Lord, our God.

23 Truly the hills and the power of the mountains
were a delusion,
but through the Lord, our God,
is the salvation of Israel.

24 "But from our youth Shame has devoured the labors of our fathers, their sheep and their bull calves and their sons and their daughters. ²⁵We lay down in our shame, and our dishonor covered us;
for we have sinned against our God, we and our fathers, from our youth until this day, and we have not obeyed the voice of the Lord our God."

4 If Israel returns,
says the Lord,
to me he shall return,
if he removes his abominations from his mouth

and shows reverence because of my presence
2 and if he swears, "The Lord lives!" with truth in judgment and in uprightness,
nations shall also bless in him,
and in him they shall praise God in Ierousalem,
3 because this is what the Lord says to the men of Iouda and to the inhabitants of Ierousalem:
Renew for yourselves what has been made new,
and do not sow among thorns.
4 Be circumcised to your God,
and remove the foreskin of your heart, O men of Iouda and inhabitants of Ierousalem,
or else my anger goes forth like fire
and will blaze forth, and there will be no one to quench
because of the evil of your doings.

5 Declare in Iouda, and let it be heard in Ierou-salem; say:
Give a sign with a trumpet in the land,
and cry greatly; say:
"Gather together, and let us enter into the walled cities!" 6 Take up, and flee to Sion;
hurry, do not stop,
because I am bringing evil from the north,
and a great destruction.
7 A lion has gone up from its lair;
an utter destroyer of nations has set out,
and he has gone out from his place
to make the land a desolation,
and cities will be ruined,
to the point they are not inhabited.
8 For these things put on sackcloth, and lament and wail,
for the anger of the Lord has not turned away from us.

⁹And it shall be on that day, says the Lord, that the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the rulers, and the priests shall be amazed, and the prophets astounded. ¹⁰And I said, "You That Are, O Sovereign, Lord! So then, when misleading you misled this people and Ierousalem, saying, 'There shall be peace.' And behold, the dagger reached as far as their life."

11 At that time they will say to this people and to Ierousalem: There is a spirit of wandering in the wilderness, a way of the daughter of my people not to what is clean nor to what is holy. ¹²A spirit of filling^a will come to me, but now I speak judgments against them.

¹³ Behold, he will come up like a cloud, and his chariots like a whirlwind;
his horses are swifter than eagles—

^aOr satisfaction

- 6 Therefore a lion from the forest struck them, and a wolf right up to the houses
destroyed them,
and a leopard watched against their cities;
all who go out of them shall be hunted—because they multiplied their impieties, they prevailed in their digressions.
- 7 For which of these should I be merciful to
you?
Your sons have forsaken me and would swear by those who are no gods.
And I fed them,
and they were committing adultery
and would lodge in houses of prostitutes.
- 8 They were lusty stallions, each neighing for his fellow's wife.
- 9 Surely I shall not fail to visit for these
things?
says the Lord,
or shall my soul not take vengeance
on such a nation?
- 10 Go up upon her battlements, and raze,
but do not make a full end;
leave behind her under-props,
because they are the Lord's, because in breaking faith, the house of Israel and the house of Iouda broke faith with me.
- 12 They lied to their Lord and said, "These things are not so.
No evil will come upon us,
and we shall not see dagger and famine.
- 13 Our prophets became wind,
and a word of the Lord was not in them.
Thus shall it be to them!"
- 14 Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty says:
Because you spoke this utterance, behold, I have given my words in your mouth as a fire
and this people as wood, and it shall devour them.
- 15 Behold, I am bringing upon you a nation from far away, O house of Israel,
says the Lord,
a nation [the sound of] whose language you will not understand.
- 16 All are strong, 17 and they shall devour your harvest and your
food,
and they shall devour your sons and your
daughters,
and they shall devour your sheep and your bull calves,
and they shall devour your vineyards
and your fig groves and your olive groves, and they shall thresh by sword your fortified cities in which you trust in
them.
- 18 And it shall be in those days, says the Lord, your^a God, I will not make a full end of you. ¹⁹And it shall be when you say, "Why has the Lord our God done all these things to us?" then you shall say to them, "Because you were a slave to foreign gods in your land, so you shall be a slave to foreigners in a land that is not yours."
- 20 Declare these things to the house of Iakob, and let it be heard in Iouda:
- 21 Do hear these things, O foolish and heartless people;
eyes they have and do not see,
ears they have and do not hear.
- 22 Will you not fear me?
says the Lord,
or will you not show reverence before
me
who sets sand as boundary for the sea?
A perpetual ordinance, and it will not transgress it,
and it will toss and will not be able,
and its waves will roar, and it will not transgress it.
- 23 But this people had a noncompliant and disobedient heart;
they have turned aside and gone away.
- 24 And they did not say in their heart,
"Do let us fear the Lord our God, who gives us rain,
early rain and late rain,
according to the season of the satisfaction of the ordinance of harvesting, and he kept it for us."
- 25 Your acts of lawlessness have turned these
away,
and your sins have distanced good things
from you,
because impious ones were found among
my people,
and they set traps to ruin men,
and they would catch them.
- 27 As a trap, when set up, is full of birds,
so their houses are full of treachery;
therefore they have become great and rich,
and they transgressed justice, they did not judge the cause of the orphan,
and the cause of the widow they would not judge.
- 29 Surely I shall not fail to visit for these
things?
says the Lord,
or shall my soul not take vengeance on such a nation?
- 30 Astonishment and horrible things have occurred in the land: 31 the prophets prophesy what is wrong,
and the priests seized with their hands,
and my people loved to have it so.
And what will you do hereafter?

- 6 Prevail, O sons of Benjamin,
 from the midst of Ierousalem!
 And in Thekoue signal with the trumpet,
 and over Baiththacharma raise a signal, because evil has popped up from the north and it is becoming a great destruction.
- 2 And your loftiness, O daughter Zion, shall be removed.
- 3 Shepherds and their flocks shall come into
 her.
 And they shall pitch tents at her all
 around,
 and they shall pasture, each with his
 hand.
- 4 "Prepare for war against her; rise up, and let us go up against her at noon!"
 "Woe to us, for the day has declined, because the shadows of the evening fail!"
- 5 "Rise up, and let us go up by night and destroy her foundations!"—
- 6 because this is what the Lord says:
 Cut down her trees;
 pour out a force against Ierousalem.
 Ah false city, there is nothing but oppression within her.
- 7 As a cistern keeps water fresh,
 so she keeps fresh her wickedness; impiety and distress will be heard within
 her,
 before her always.
 With toil and whip ⁸you will be disciplined,
 O Ierousalem,
 lest my soul stand away from you, lest I make you an untrodden land which will not be inhabited,
- 9 because this is what the Lord says:
 Glean, glean like a vine the remnants of Israel;
 turn back like the grape gatherer to his basket.
- 10 To whom should I speak and give warning,
 and he will hear?
 Behold, their ears are uncircumcised,
 and they cannot hear.
 Behold, the dictum of the Lord was to them
 an object of scorn;
 they will not want it at all.
- 11 And I filled my anger,
 and I held back and did not finish them.
 I will pour it out on infants outside and on a gathering of young men as well, because husband and wife shall be seized,
 an older person with fullness of days.
- 12 And their houses shall be turned over to others,
 fields and their wives together,
 because I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of this land,
 says the Lord,
- 13 because from their small even to their great,
 all carried out lawless deeds;
 from priest even to pseudo-prophet,
 all produced lies.
- 14 And they were doctoring the fracture of my people with contempt and saying, "Peace, peace," and where is peace?
- 15 They were put to shame, because they
 failed;
 yet they were not ashamed like people being put to shame,
 and they did not know their disgrace.
 Therefore they shall fall in their fall, and they shall perish in a time of visitation,
 said the Lord.
- 16 This is what the Lord says:
 Stand at the roads, and see,
 and ask for the ancient paths of the Lord,
 and see what the good way is, and walk in
 it,
 and you will find purification for your souls.
 And they said, "We will not walk in it."
- 17 I have appointed sentinels for you:
 "Hear the sound of the trumpet!"
 And they said, "We will not hear."
- 18 Therefore, the nations heard, and those that were shepherding their flocks.
- 19 Hear, O earth; behold, I am bringing evil on this people,
 the fruit of their turning away,
 because they did not hold on to my words and they rejected my law.
- 20 Why do you bring me frankincense from Saba
 and cinnamon from a land far away?
 Your whole burnt offerings are not acceptable,
 and your sacrifices did not gratify me.
- 21 Therefore this is what the Lord says:
 Behold, I am giving to this people weakness, and they shall be weak with it,
 fathers and sons together;
 a neighbor and his fellow shall perish.
- 22 This is what the Lord says:
 Behold, a people is coming from the north,
 and nations will stir from the farthest
 part of the earth.
- 23 They will grasp bow and spear;
 bold it is and will show no mercy;
 its sound is like a roaring sea;
 on horses and chariots it will draw up in battle order like a fire,
 for battle against you, O daughter Zion!
- 24 "We have heard news of them;
 our hands fell helpless;
 anguish took hold of us,
 pains as of one giving birth.
- 25 Do not go out into a field,
 and do not walk on the roads, because a sword of the enemies sojourns on every side."

- 26 O daughter of my people, put on sackcloth;
sprinkle with ashes;
make for yourself a mourning for a beloved,
a most pitiable lamentation:
because suddenly distress will come upon us.
- 27 I have given you as ^aa tester^a among tested peoples,
and you will know me when I test their way.
- 28 All are noncompliant,
going about with slanders;
bronze and iron,
all of them have been corrupted.
- 29 Bellows failed from a fire;
lead failed;
in vain does a silversmith coin silver;
their wickedness did not melt.
- 30 Call them "rejected silver,"
because the Lord has rejected them.

7 ²Hear a word of the Lord, all Judea. ³This is what the Lord, the God of Israel says: Amend your ways and your doings, and I will cause you to dwell in this place. ⁴Do not trust in yourselves with deceptive words, because they will not benefit you at all, when you say: "A shrine of the Lord, a shrine of the Lord it is."

⁵ Because if in amending, you amend your ways and your doings, and in acting you act with justice between a man and between his fellow ⁶and do not oppress guest and orphan and widow and do not shed innocent blood in this place and do not go after foreign gods to your own hurt, ⁷I will also cause you to dwell in this place, in the land that I gave of old to your fathers and forever.

⁸ But if you trust in deceptive words, whereby you will not benefit, ⁹and murder and commit adultery and steal and swear wrongly and offer incense to the goddess Baal and go after foreign gods that you do not know, ¹⁰so that it be ill for you, and if you came and stood before me in the house, where my name has been called on it, and you said, "We have kept away from doing all these abominations"—¹¹surely my house, there where my name has been called on it, has not become a den of robbers before you? And I, behold, I have seen it, says the Lord, ¹²because go to my place which was in Selô, there where I made my name encamp formerly, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel. ¹³And now, because you have done all these deeds and I spoke to you and you did not hear me and I called you and you did not answer, ¹⁴I will also do to the house, where my name is called on it, in which you trust in it, and to the place that I gave to you and to your fathers, just what I did to Selô. ¹⁵And I will cast out you from before me, just as I cast out your kinsfolk, all the offspring of Ephraim.

¹⁶ And as for you, do not keep praying about this people, and do not request to petition about them, and do not keep making vows, and do not approach me concerning them, because I will not listen. ¹⁷Or do you not see what they themselves are doing in the cities of Iouda and in the streets of Ierousalem? ¹⁸Their sons gather wood, and their fathers burn a fire, and their women knead dough to make cakes for the host of the sky, and they poured out libations to foreign gods in order to provoke me to anger. ¹⁹Are they not provoking me? says the Lord. Is it not themselves so that their faces may be ashamed? ²⁰Therefore this is what the Lord says: Behold, my wrath and anger are being poured on this place, both on human beings and on animals and on every tree of the field and on the produce of the ground, and it will burn and not be quenched.

²¹ This is what the Lord says: Gather your whole burnt offerings with your sacrifices, and eat meat, ²²because in the day that I brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt, I did not speak to them and did not command them concerning whole burnt offerings and sacrifices. ²³But this dictum I commanded them, saying, "Obey my voice, and I will become a god to you, and you shall become a people to me, and walk in all my ways, which I command you, so that it may be well with you." ²⁴And they did not obey me, and they did not turn their ear, but they walked by the notions of their evil heart, and they became backward and not forward. ²⁵From the day that their fathers came out of the land of Egypt even until this day, I have also sent out all my slaves the prophets to you by day, and early in the morning I also sent, ²⁶and they did not obey me, and they did not turn their ear, and they stiffened their necks worse than their fathers.

²⁸ And you shall speak this word to them: This is the nation that did not obey the voice of the Lord and did not accept discipline; faithfulness has failed from their mouth.

²⁹ Shear your head, and throw away^b, and take a lamentation on your lips, because the Lord has discarded and rejected

the generation that did these things,

³⁰ because the sons of Iouda have done evil^c before me, says the Lord; they have arrayed their abominations in the house where my name is called on it, to defile it. ³¹And they built the altar^d of Tapheth, which is in the valley of Hennom's son, to burn their sons and their daughters with fire—which I did not command them, and I did not intend it in my heart. ³²Therefore, behold, days are coming, says the Lord, and they shall no longer say Altar^d of Tapheth and Valley of Hennom's Son, but Valley of the Slain, and they will bury in Tapheth, because there is no room. ³³And the corpses of this people will be food for the birds of the air and for the animals of the earth, and there will not be one to frighten them away. ³⁴And I will abolish a sound of people making mirth and a sound of people rejoicing, a voice of bridegroom and a voice of bride from the cities of Iouda and from the streets of Ierusalem, because all the land shall become a desolation.

8 At that time, says the Lord, they shall bring the bones of the kings of Iouda and the bones of its rulers and the bones of the priests and the bones of the prophets and the bones of the inhabitants of Ierusalem out of their tombs, ²and they shall air them to the sun and to the moon [and to all the stars] and to all the host of the sky, which things they have loved and been slaves to and which they have followed after them and which they have clung to and which they did obeisance to them. They shall not be mourned and shall not be buried, and they shall be an example on the surface of the ground, ³because they chose death over life, even for all the remnants that remain of that generation in every place, there where I have driven them—

4 because this is what the Lord says:
He that falls, does he not rise up,
and he that turns away, does he not return?
5 Why has my people turned away in a shameless turning away and were in the grip of their preference and did not want to return?
6 Do give ear, and hear.
Will they not speak in this manner; “There is no person that repents of his wickedness,
saying, ‘What have I done?’ “
The runner stopped from his own course, like a sweating horse in his neighing.
7 Even the hasida^a in the sky knew its time;
turtledove and swallow, agour^b [sparrows] observe the times of their arrival, but my people did not know
the judgments of the Lord.
8 How will you say, “We are wise, and the law of the Lord is with us?”
A false pen has become of no use to scribes.
9 Wise were put to shame and were terrified and caught, because they have discarded the word of the Lord.
What wisdom is in them?
10 Therefore I will give their wives to others and their fields to heirs.
13 And they will gather their produce,
says the Lord;
there are no grapes on the vines,
and there are no figs on the fig trees;
even the leaves have fallen off.
14 For what do we sit still?
Gather together, and let us go into the fortified cities
and be cast out,
because God has cast us out and has given us water with gall to drink, because we have sinned before him.

15 We gathered for peace, and there was no good,
for a time of healing, and behold,
exertion.
16 From Dan we will hear the sound of the speed of his horses;
at the sound of the neighing of his cavalry
the whole land quaked.
And he will come and devour land and all that fills it,
city and those who live in it.
17 For behold, I am sending out against you deadly snakes
that cannot be charmed,
and they shall bite you.
18 Incurable things with the pain of your puzzled heart.
19 Behold, a voice of the daughter of my
people
from a land far away:
“Is the Lord not in Sion?
Or is there no king there?” (“Why have they provoked me to anger with their carved images and with strange vanities?”) 20 “Summer ended; harvest passed, and we were not saved.” 21 Because of a fracture of the daughter of my
people
I was made dizzy; dismay has taken hold of me,
pains as one giving birth.
22 Is there no pine resin in Galaad, or is a physician not there?
Why has the healing of the daughter of my
people
not come about?

9 Who will give my head water and my eyes a fountain of tears,
and I shall bewail my people day and night,
the slain of the daughter of my people?
2 Who would give me in the wilderness
a remote lodging place, and I shall leave my people
and go away from them?
Because they all commit adultery, a band of faithless they are.
3 And they bent their tongue like a bow; falsehood and not faith grew strong in
the land,
because they proceeded from evil to evil,
and me they did not know.
4 Each of you, beware of his fellow,
and put no trust in their kin, because every brother will trip up with the heel

^aHeb = stork ^bHeb = thrush? ^cOr blind

gold of Mophas
and a hand of goldsmiths—works of craftsmen all;
they will clothe them in blue and purple.
5b Raised they will be carried,
because they will not walk.
Do not be afraid of them,
because they shall not do evil,
and there is no good in them.

11 Thus shall you say to them: Let gods who did not make the sky and the earth perish from the earth and from under this sky.

12 It is the Lord who made the earth by his
strength,
who set upright the world by his wisdom,
and by his prudence he stretched out the sky,
13 and a quantity of water was in the sky,
and he brought up clouds from the end
of the earth.
Lightnings he made into rain,
and he brought out light from his storehouses.
14 Every person was stupid, ^aapart from ^a knowledge;
every goldsmith was put to shame at his carved images,
because they^b cast lies;
there is no breath in them.
15 Worthless they are, works of mockery;
at the time of their visitation they shall
perish.
16 Such a portion is not Iakob's;
because he who formed all things,
he is his inheritance;
the Lord is his name.
17 He gathered your substance from outside, when it was residing in choice places—
18 because this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am tripping up the inhabitants of this land with affliction
so that your plague may be discovered.

19 Woe because of your fracture!
Your plague is painful.
So I said, "Truly this is my wound, and it seized me."
20 My tent endured hardship, and all my skins were torn;
my sons and my sheep are no more;
there is no longer a place for my tent,
a place for my curtains.
21 Because the shepherds played the fool and did not seek out the Lord, therefore the whole pasture did not comprehend,
and they were scattered.

22 A sound of a report! Behold, it is coming—

and a great commotion from a land of the north,
to make the cities of Iouda an annihilation
and a nesting place for sparrows.

23 I know, O Lord, that a human being's way is not his own,
nor shall a man journey and direct his
journey.
24 Correct us, O Lord, but in just measure and not in anger so that you may not make us few.
25 Pour out your anger on nations that do not know you
and on generations that did not call on your name,
because they have devoured Iakob and they have consumed him and his pasture they have made desolate.

11 The word that came from the Lord to Jeremias, saying: ²Hear the words of this covenant. And you shall speak to the men of Iouda and to the inhabitants of Ierousalem. ³And you shall say to them, This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: Cursed be the person who will not heed the words of this covenant, ⁴which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, out of the iron smelter, saying, Hear my voice, and do all that I command you. And you shall become a people to me, and I will become a god to you, ⁵that I may establish my oath that I swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as this day. And I answered and said, "May it be, Lord."

⁶ And the Lord said to me: Read these words in the cities of Iouda and outside of Ierousalem, saying: Hear the words of this covenant and do them.
⁸And they did not.

⁹ And the Lord said to me: A bond of union was found among the men of Iouda and among the inhabitants of Ierousalem. ¹⁰They have turned back to the injustices of their fathers of former times, who did not want to listen to my words, and behold, they are walking after foreign gods to be slaves to them, and the house of Israel and the house of Iouda have scattered the covenant that I made with their fathers. ¹¹Therefore, this is what the Lord says, Behold, I am bringing evil upon this people from which they will not be able to escape from it, and they will cry out to me, and I will not listen to them. ¹²And the cities of Iouda and the inhabitants of Ierousalem will go and will cry out to the gods to whom they are burning incense to them. Surely, they will save them in the time of their troubles?—¹³because your gods were according to the number of your cities, O Iouda, and according to the number of Ierousalem you have set up altars^c to burn incense to the goddess Baal.

14 And as for you, do not keep praying for this

people, and do not keep making a request with petition and prayer on their behalf, because I will not listen at the time they call to me in the time of their trouble. ¹⁵Why has the beloved^a done an abomination in my house? Surely vows and holy flesh will not remove from you your wickedness, or will you escape by means of these things? ¹⁶The Lord called your name a beautiful olive tree, well shaded in appearance; at the sound of its pruning^b the affliction was great on you; its branches were rendered useless. ¹⁷And the Lord, who planted you, pronounced evil against you, in return for the evil of the house of Israel and the house of Iouda, because they have done this to themselves to provoke me to anger by offering incense to the goddess Baal.

- 18 O Lord, make it known to me, and I will know;
then I saw their doings.
19 But I, like an innocent lamb led to be slaughtered, did not know.
They devised an evil scheme against me,
saying,
"Come, and let us throw wood into his
bread,
and let us wipe him out from the land of the living,
and his name will no longer be remembered!"
20 O Lord, when you judge righteously, when you test kidneys^c and heart,
may I see your avenging on them, because to you I have revealed my plea of
right.

21 Therefore this is what the Lord says in reference to the men of Anathoth, who seek my soul, who say, "You shall not prophesy in the name of the Lord; otherwise you will die by our hands"— ²²Behold, I will visit upon them; their young men shall die by dagger, and their sons and their daughters shall come to their end by famine, ²³and there shall be no remnant of them, because I will bring evil upon the inhabitants of Anathoth, in the year of their visiting.

12 You are in the right, O Lord, because I will make my defense to you,
but ^dlet me^d speak of judgments to you.

Why is it that the way of the impious prosper?

Why did all who commit acts of faithlessness thrive?

- 2 You planted them, and they took root;
they bred children and produced fruit;
you are near to their mouths and far from their kidneys^c.
3 And you, O Lord, you know me;
you have tested my heart before you.
Purify them for a day of their slaughter!
4 How long will the land mourn, and all the grass of the field wither from the wickedness of those who live in

it?

Animals and birds were annihilated, because they said, "God will not see our
ways."

- 5 Your feet are running, and they undo you;
how will you prepare for horses?
And you trusted in a land of peace;
how will you fare in the roaring of the Jordan?— 6 because even your kinsfolk and the household of your father,
even they have dealt faithlessly with you;
they too shouted; they were gathered behind you;
do not believe them,
because they will speak good things to
you.
7 I have forsaken my house;
I have let go of my heritage;
I have given my beloved soul into the hands of her enemies.
8 My heritage has become to me like a lion in a forest;
she has given forth her voice against me—
therefore I hated her.
9 Surely my heritage is not a hyena's cave to
me
or a cave all around her?
Go, assemble all the animals of the field,
and let them come to eat her.
10 Many shepherds have destroyed my vineyard;
they have defiled my portion;
they rendered my desired portion an untrodden wilderness.
11 It was made into an annihilation of
destruction;
on my account the whole land was annihilated with annihilation, because there is not a man who lays it to
heart.
12 Upon every trail in the wilderness spoilers have come,
because a dagger of the Lord will devour from one end of the land to the other end of the land;
there is no peace for any flesh.
13 Sow wheat, and reap thorns.
Their farms will not profit them.
Be ashamed of your boasting,
of reproaching before the Lord—14 because this is what the Lord says concerning all the evil neighbors who touch my heritage that I have allotted to my people Israel: Behold, I am tearing them from their land, and Iouda I will cast out from among them. ¹⁵And it shall be after I have cast them out, I will turn and have mercy on them, and I will settle them, each in his heritage and each in his land. ¹⁶And it shall be, if when ^ai.e. Ierousalem ^bOr circumcision ^ci.e. emotions ^dOr I will

learning they learn the way of my people, to swear by my name, "The Lord lives," as they taught my people to swear by the goddess Baal, and they shall be built up in the midst of my people. ¹⁷But if they do not turn, I will even remove that nation with removal and destruction.

13 This is what the Lord says, "Go, and acquire for yourself a linen loincloth, and put it on your loins, and it shall not pass through water." ²And I acquired the loincloth according to the word of the Lord and put it on my loins. ³And a word of the Lord came to me, saying, ⁴"Take the loincloth that is on your loins, and rise up, and go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock." ⁵And I hid it by the Euphrates, as the Lord commanded me. ⁶And it happened after many days that the Lord said to me, "Rise up, go to the Euphrates, and take from there the loincloth that I commanded you to hide there." ⁷And I went to the Euphrates river and dug, and I took the loincloth from the place, there where I had hidden it. And behold, it had been utterly destroyed—which will be good for nothing.

⁸ And a word of the Lord came to me saying: This is what the Lord says: ⁹Just so I will destroy the pride of Iouda and the pride of Ierousalem, ¹⁰this great pride, those who refuse to obey my words and have gone after foreign gods to be slaves to them and to do obeisance to them, and they shall be like this loincloth, which shall be good for nothing, ¹¹because as the loincloth clings to a person's loins, so I made the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Iouda cling to myself in order that they might be for me a people of name, both as a boast and as a glory. And they did not listen to me.

¹² And you shall say to this people: Every wineskin shall be filled with wine. And it shall be if they say to you, "Surely, in knowing shall we not know that every wine-skin will be filled with wine?" ¹³And you shall say to them: This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am filling the inhabitants of this land—both their kings, the sons of Dauid who sit on their throne and the priests and the prophets and Iouda and all the inhabitants of Ierousalem—with drunkenness. ¹⁴And I will scatter them, a man and his brother, and their fathers and their sons in the same manner; I will not yearn after, says the Lord, and I will not spare or have compassion at their destruction.

¹⁵ Hear, and give ear, and do not be lifted up,
because the Lord has spoken.
¹⁶ Give glory to the Lord your God before he brings darkness and before your feet stumble on dark mountains,

and you will wait for light,
and a shadow of death is there, and they shall be placed in darkness.

¹⁷ If you do not hear,
your soul will weep in secret due to pride,
and your eyes will bring down tears,
because the Lord's flock has been smashed.
¹⁸ Say to the king and to those in power:
"Be humbled, and sit down, because your crown of glory has been removed from your head." ¹⁹ The cities toward the south were shut up, and there was no one to open;
Iouda^a was exiled;
he completed a complete exile.
²⁰ Lift up your eyes, O Ierousalem, and see those who come from the north.
Where is the flock that was given you,
sheep of your glory?
²¹ What will you say when they visit you?
And it was you who taught them lessons for rule over you.
Will not pangs take hold of you,
like a woman giving birth?
²² And if you say in your heart,
"Why have these things come against me?"
it is for the greatness of your injustice that your hind parts were uncovered, that your heels were made a spectacle of.
²³ Will an Ethiopian change his skin,
and a leopard her spots?
And will you be able to do good,
though you have learned evil?
²⁴ And I scattered them like firewood driven by the wind into the wilderness.
²⁵ This is your lot
and portion for your disobeying of me,
says the Lord,
because you have forgotten me
and hoped in lies.
²⁶ It is I that will reveal your hindquarters to your face,
and your dishonor will be seen, ²⁷ both your adultery and your neighing and the estranging of your prostitution;
on the hills and in the fields I have seen your abominations.
Woe to you, O Ierousalem!
Because you were not cleansed behind^b
me,
how long will it yet be?

14 And a word of the Lord came to Ieremias concerning the drought:
² Judea mourned,
and her gates were emptied,
and they were darkened in the land, and the cry of Ierousalem went up.

^aIoudas = Zi ^bOr after

3 And her nobles sent their young men for water;
they came to the cisterns and found no water,
and they returned their vessels empty.

4 And the labors of the land failed, because there was no rain;
farmers were put to shame;
they covered their head.

5 Even does in the field gave birth and forsook ^atheir young^a, because there was no herbage.

6 Wild asses stood by wooded valleys;
they snuffed up wind;
their eyes failed,
because there was no grass.

7 If our sins withstood us, O Lord, act for us for your sake,
because our sins are many before you,
because we have sinned.

8 You are Israel's endurance, O Lord, and you save in time of trouble;
why have you become like a resident alien in the land
and like an indigenous person turning aside for lodging?

9 Surely you shall not be like a person asleep
or like a man not able to save?
And you are among us, O Lord,
and your name has been called upon us;
do not forget us!

10 Thus says the Lord with reference to this
people:
They have loved to move their feet,
and they have not spared,
and God found no pleasure in them;
now he will remember their injustice.

11 And the Lord said to me: Do not pray concerning this people for good, ¹²because if they fast, I will not hear their petition, and if they offer whole burnt offerings and sacrifices, I will not have pleasure in them, because by dagger and by famine and by death I will make an end of them.

13 And I said: "You That Are, Lord! Behold, their prophets are prophesying and saying, 'You shall not see a dagger, nor shall famine be among you, because I bestow truth and peace on the land and in this place.'" ¹⁴And the Lord said to me: The prophets are prophesying lies in my name; I did not send them, and I did not command them and did not speak to them, because they are prophesying to you lying visions and divinations and omens and preferences of their own heart. ¹⁵Therefore this is what the Lord says concerning the prophets who prophesy lies in my name, and I did not send them, who say, "Dagger and famine shall not come on this land": By a sickly death they shall die, and by famine the prophets shall come to an end. ¹⁶And the people, to them to whom they prophesy, they also shall be thrown out in the streets of Ierousalem, before the dagger and the famine, and there shall be no one to bury them—^band their wives and their sons and their daughters^b. And I will pour out their evil upon them.

17 And you shall say to them this word:
Bring down upon your eyes tears day and night,
and let them not cease, because the daughter of my people was shattered with a fracture and with a very grievous blow.

18 If I go out into the plain,
and behold, casualties of a dagger!
And if I enter into the city,
and behold, hardship of famine, because priest and prophet went to a land of which they had no knowledge!

19 Surely when rejecting, you did not reject Iouda?
And has your soul departed from Sion?
Why did you strike us,
and there is no healing for us?
We waited for peace, and there was no good,
for a time of healing, and behold,
disturbance.

20 We were aware of our sins, O Lord, injustices of our fathers,
because we have sinned before you.

21 Stop for your name's sake;
do not destroy the throne of your glory;
remember, do not scatter your covenant with us.

22 Surely, there is no one among idols of the nations that brings rain?
And whether the sky will give its abundance . . . ?
Is it not you yourself?
And we will wait on you,
because it is you who did all these things.

15 And the Lord said to me: If Moyses and Samouel stood before me, my soul would not be toward them. Send this people away, and let them go! ²And it shall be, if they say to you, "Where shall we go?" you shall also say to them: This is what the Lord says:

Those destined for death, to death,
and those destined for a dagger, to a dagger;
and those destined for famine, to famine,
and those destined for captivity, to captivity.

³And I will avenge on them four kinds, says the Lord: the dagger for slaughter and the dogs for tearing and the wild animals of the earth and the birds of the air for eating and for corruption. ⁴And

^aLacking in Gk ^bI.e. these shall fare likewise

I will hand them over for anguish to all the kingdoms of the earth on account of King Manasse son of Hezekias of Iouda concerning all he did in Ierousalem.

- 5 Who will be sparing over you,
O Ierousalem,
and who will be in dread over you,
or who will double back for peace for
you?
6 It is you that have turned away from me,
says the Lord;
you will go backward,
and I will stretch out my hand and destroy
you,
and I will let them off no more.
7 And I will disperse them in a dispersion in the gates of my people.
I was made childless;
I destroyed my people because of their
evils.
8 Their widows became more numerous than the sand of the sea;
I have brought against the mother of a youth
wretchedness at noonday;
I threw trembling and haste upon her suddenly.
9 She who bore seven was depleted;
her soul became miserable;
the sun set for her while it was yet midday;
she has been shamed and disgraced.
The rest of them I will give to a dagger before their enemies.

10 Woe is me, O mother! As whom did you bear me? A man being condemned and at variance with the whole land! I neither owed nor did any one owe me; my strength failed amongst those that curse me. ¹¹May it be so, O Sovereign, while they succeed; otherwise I stood before you in a time of their troubles and in a time of their distress for good against the enemy. ¹²Will iron be known? And your strength is a bronze wrap.

13 And your treasures I will give as plunder, as a payment for all your sins, and in all your borders. ¹⁴And I will make you a slave to your enemies all around in the land that you did not know, because from my anger a fire has blazed forth; it shall burn against you.

- ¹⁵ O Lord, remember me, and visit me, and hold me guiltless before my persecutors;
do not incline to forbearance.
Know how on your account I received insult
16 by those who reject your words.
Make an end of them, and your word will be to me gladness
and the joy of my heart,
because your name is called upon me, O Lord Almighty.

- 17 I did not sit in the council of them when they were making sport,
but I was cautious before your hand;
I sat alone, because I was filled with bitterness.
18 Why do those who pain me prevail over
me?
My wound is severe;
how shall I be healed?
As it^a came, it became to me like fake water not having credence.
19 Therefore this is what the Lord says:
If you return, I will also restore you,
and you shall stand before me.
And if you bring out what is precious from what is worthless,
you shall be as my mouth.
And it is they who will turn to you,
and not you who will turn to them.
20 And I will give you to this people as a fortified bronze wall,
and they will fight against you,
and they shall not prevail against you,
for I am with you to save you 21 and to deliver you out of the hand of the wicked
and from the hand of the pestilent.

16 And you, do not take a wife, says the Lord God of Israel, ²and no son or daughter shall be born to you in this place, ³because this is what the Lord says concerning the sons and concerning the daughters who are born in this place and concerning their mothers who bore them and their fathers who begot them in this land: ⁴They shall die by a sickly death. They shall not be lamented, and they shall not be buried; they shall become an example on the surface of the ground, both for the wild animals of the earth and for the birds of the air. By dagger they shall fall, and by famine they shall be brought to an end.

¹⁰ And it shall be when you tell this people all these dicta, and they say to you, "Why has the Lord spoken all these evil things against us? What is our injustice? And what is our sin that we have committed before the Lord our God?" ¹¹And you shall say to them: It is because your fathers have forsaken me, says the Lord, and were going after foreign gods and have been subject to them and did obedience to them and have forsaken me and have not kept my law, ¹²and you have behaved worse than your fathers, and behold, every one of you is following after the things that please your evil heart so as not to obey me. ¹³And I will hurl you from this land into a land that you and your fathers have not known, and there you shall be slaves to other gods who will show you no mercy.

¹⁴ Therefore, behold, days are coming, says the Lord, and they shall no longer say, "The Lord lives who brought the sons of Israel up out of the land of Egypt," ¹⁵but "The Lord lives who brought the house of Israel up out of the land of the north and out of all the countries, there where they had been driven." For I will restore them to their own land that I gave to their fathers.

¹⁶ Behold, I am sending many fishermen, says the Lord, and they shall catch them, and afterward I will send many hunters, and they shall hunt them on every mountain and on every hill and out of the clefts of the rocks, ¹⁷because my eyes were on all their ways and their acts of injustice were not concealed from my sight. ¹⁸And I will doubly repay their injustices and their sins with which they have polluted my land with the carcasses of their abominations and with their lawless acts, by which they erred against my inheritance.

¹⁹ O Lord, my strength and my help and my refuge in a day of troubles, to you shall nations come from the end of the earth and say:
How have our fathers acquired false idols,
and there is no profit in them!

²⁰ Will a person make for himself gods?
But these are no gods!

²¹ "Therefore, behold, I will make clear to them at this time my hand and make known to them my power, and they shall know that my name is the Lord."

17 ⁵Cursed is the person who has his hope in and his heart will stand away from the Lord.

⁶ And he shall be like a wild tamarisk in the wilderness;
he shall not see when good things
come.
And he shall encamp by the seaside, in a wilderness,
in a salt land that is not inhabited.

⁷ And blessed is the person who trusts in the Lord,
and the Lord shall be his hope.

⁸ And he shall be like a tree thriving beside waters,
and it shall send out its roots to moisture.
And it shall not fear when heat comes,
and the trunks on it shall be grove-like;
in a year of drought it shall not fear,
and it shall not cease to produce fruit.

⁹ The heart is deep above all else,
and so^a is man,
and who shall understand him?

and according to the fruit of his doings.

¹¹ A partridge gathered what she did not hatch.

¹² O exalted throne of glory, our sanctity!

¹³ O endurance of Israel! O Lord!
Let all who forsake you be put to shame;
let those who have turned away be recorded
on the earth,
because they have forsaken the fountain of life, the Lord.

¹⁴ Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed;
save me, and I shall be saved,
because you are my boast.

¹⁵ Behold, it is they that say to me,
"Where is the word of the Lord?
Let it come!"

¹⁶ But I have not tired of following after you, and man's day I have not desired;
you understand;
what came from my lips is before you.

¹⁷ Do not become an alienation to me when you spare me in an evil day.

¹⁸ Let my persecutors be shamed, and may I not be shamed;
may they be terrified,
and may I not be terrified;
bring on them an evil day;
smash them with a double fracture!

¹⁹ This is what the Lord says: Go, and stand in the gates of the sons of your people, by them by which kings of Iouda enter and by them by which they go out and in all the gates of Ierousalem, ²⁰and you will say to them: Hear a word of the Lord, you kings of Iouda, and all Judea and all Ierousalem, who enter by these gates. ²¹This is what the Lord says: Watch your souls, and do not bear burdens on the day of the sabbaths, and do not go in by the gates of Ierousalem. ²²And do not carry burdens out of your houses on the day of the sabbaths, and you shall not do any work; keep the day of the sabbaths holy, as I commanded your fathers. (23)And they did not hear and did not incline their ear, 23and they stiffened their neck more than their fathers so as not to hear me and not to receive instruction.

24 And it shall be if you hear me by hearing, says the Lord, so as not to bring in burdens through the gates of this city on the day of the sabbaths and to keep the day of the sabbaths holy so as not to do any work, 25then there shall enter through the gates of this city kings and rulers sitting on the throne of Dauid, and mounted on chariots and horses, they and their rulers, men of Iouda and the inhabitants of Ierousalem, and this city shall be settled forever. 26And they shall come from the cities of Iouda and all around Ierousalem and from the land of Benjamin and from the plain and from the mountain and from the southern land, bringing whole burnt offerings and sacrificial victims and manaa^a and frankincense, bringing praise into the house of the Lord. 27And it shall be, if you do not listen to me, to keep the day of the sabbaths holy, so as not to carry in burdens and not to enter by the gates of Ierousalem on the day of the sabbaths, I will also kindle a fire in its gates, and it shall devour the quarters of Ierousalem and shall not be quenched.

18 The word that came from the Lord to Ieremias, saying: 2“Get up, and go down to the potter’s house, and there you will hear my words.” 3And I went down to the potter’s house, and behold, he was doing a job on the stones. 4And the vessel he was making failed in his hands, and again he made it into another vessel, as seemed good to him to do.

5 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: 6Shall I not have the power to do with you, O house of Israel, just as this potter did? Behold, you are in my hands like the clay of the potter. 7At last ^blet me^b speak with reference to a nation or with reference to a kingdom, to remove them and to destroy, 8and let that nation turn from all their evil, and I will change my mind about the evils that I devised to do to them. 9And at last ^blet me^b speak in reference to a nation and in reference to a kingdom to rebuild and to plant it, 10and let them do evil before me so as not to hear my voice, and I will change my mind about the good things that I had spoken to do to them. 11And now, say to the men of Iouda and to the inhabitants of Ierousalem: Behold, I am shaping evil against you and devising a plan against you. Let each now turn from his evil way and make your doings more noble.

12 And they said, “We will play the man, because we will go after our own aversions, and each of us will do what pleases his evil heart!”

13 Therefore this is what the Lord says:

Do ask among nations:

Who has heard such horrible things which Virgin Israel did exceedingly?

14 Surely, breasts^c will not fail from a rock, or snow from the Lebanon? Surely water violently carried by wind will not change course?

15 Because my people forgot me, they burned incense in vain, and they will become weak in their ways, to tread for miles^d on ancient paths, since they have no road for travel, to render their land an annihilation and a thing to be hissed at forever.

16 All who pass through it will be astonished and shake their head.

17 I will disperse them before their enemies like a scorching wind. I will show them a day of their ruin.

18 And they said, “Come, let us devise a scheme against Ieremias—because law shall not perish from a priest, and counsel from an intelligent person, and a word from a prophet. Come, and let us strike him with the tongue, and we will hear all his words.”

19 Listen to me, O Lord, and listen to the sound of my vindication!

20 Is evil a recompense for good that together they spoke utterances against my soul and hid their punishment for me? Remember me when I stood before you to speak good on their behalf, to turn away your anger from them.

21 Therefore give their sons over to famine, and gather them to a dagger’s power; let their wives become childless and widows, and let their men become destroyed by death and their youths become felled by dagger in battle.

22 Let there be a cry in their houses! You will bring marauders suddenly upon them, because they undertook a plan for catching me and hid snares for me!

23 And you, O Lord, knew all their plotting against me for death. Do not excuse their injustices, and do not blot out their sins from your sight. Let their weakness be before you; in a time of your anger deal with them.

19 Then the Lord said to me: Go, and acquire a fashioned earthenware jug, and you will bring some of the elders of the people and some of the priests, 2and you shall go out to the common

burial ground of the sons of their children which is at the entry of the gate Charsith^a and read there all the words that I tell you. ³And you shall say: Hear a word of the Lord, O kings of Iouda and men of Iouda and inhabitants of Ierousalem and those who enter in these gates. This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: Behold, I am bringing evil upon this place so that the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle. ⁴Because they have forsaken me and have made this place foreign and offered incense in it to foreign gods whom they did not know, they nor their fathers, and the kings of Iouda have filled this place with innocent blood ⁵and built high places of the goddess Baal to burn their sons with fire, which things I did not command nor intended in my heart. ⁶Therefore behold, days are coming, says the Lord, and this place will no longer be called Fall and Burial Ground of Hennom's Son, but Burial Ground of Slaughter. ⁷And I will slaughter the plan of Iouda and the plan of Ierousalem in this place and will make them fall by dagger before their enemies and by the hands of people who seek their souls. And I will give their corpses for food to the birds of the air and to the wild animals of the earth. ⁸And I will make this city into an annihilation and into a hissing; everyone who passes by it will look sullen and will hiss because of all its blow. ⁹And they shall eat the flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and each shall eat the flesh of his fellow in the blockade and in the siege with which their enemies besiege them.

¹⁰ And you shall crush the jug in the sight of the men who go out with you ¹¹and shall say: This is what the Lord says: Thus will I crush this people and this city, as an earthen vessel is crushed, which can never be mended again. ¹²Thus will I do, says the Lord, to this place and to the inhabitants in it, that this city be rendered as the one falling to ruin. ¹³And the houses of Ierousalem and the houses of the kings of Iouda shall be like the ruinous place of unclean things in all the houses on whose roofs they have burned incense to the host of the sky and poured out libations to foreign gods.

¹⁴ And Jeremias came from the Fall, there where the Lord had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the court of the Lord's house and said to all the people: ¹⁵This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am bringing upon this city and upon its villages all the evil that I have spoken against it, because they have stiffened their neck so as not to listen to my commandments.

20 And the priest Paschor son of Emmer—he was also appointed leader of the house of the Lord—heard Jeremias prophesying these words. ²And he struck him and put him into the sluice, which was by the gate of a house designated “the upper,” which was in the house of the Lord. ³And Paschor brought Jeremias out of the sluice, and Jeremias said to him, The Lord has called your name not Paschor, but Deportee, ⁴for this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am assigning you to deportation with all your friends, and they shall fall by their enemies' dagger, and your eyes shall see it. And I will give you and all Iouda into the hands of the king of Babylon, and they shall deport them and shall cut them down with daggers. ⁵And I will give all the strength of this city and all its toils and all the treasures of the king of Iouda into the hands of his enemies, and they shall bring them into Babylon. ⁶And as for you and all who live in your house—you shall go in captivity, and in Babylon you shall die, and there you shall be buried, you and all your friends, to them to whom you have prophesied lies.

- ⁷ O Lord, you have misled me,
and I was misled;
you got the upper hand
and prevailed;
I have become a laughingstock all day long;
I continued to be mocked,
⁸ because I will laugh with my bitter speech;
I will call upon faithlessness and wretchedness,
because the Lord's word has become for me
a reproach and a derision my whole day.
⁹ And I said, “I will not name the name of the Lord
and will no longer speak in his name.”
And it became like a burning fire flaming in my bones,
and I became limp everywhere,
and I cannot bear up,
¹⁰ because I heard the blame of many gathered
around,
“Band together, and let us band together against him,
all you men, his friends!
Watch his intent, whether he can be misled,
and we can prevail against him and take our revenge on him.” ¹¹ And the Lord is with me like a strong warrior;
therefore they persecuted me
and were not able to consider.
They were greatly shamed, because they did not consider their dishonor,
which will never be forgotten.
¹² O Lord, one who tests what is right, one who understands kidneys^b and may I see your avenging among them, because to you I have revealed my

 and the womb one of perpetual conception.
 18 Why is it that I came forth from the womb
 to see toil and sorrow,
 and my days continued in shame?

21 The word that came from the Lord to Jeremias, when King Sedekias sent to him Paschor son of Melchias and the priest Sophonias son of Maasaios, saying, ²Inquire of the Lord about us, because the king of Babylon has taken a stand against us, if the Lord will do according to all his wonderful deeds and he will withdraw from us.

3 And Jeremias said to them: Thus you shall say to Sedekias, king of Iouda: ⁴This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am turning back the weapons of war with which you are fighting with them, against the Chaldeans who have enclosed you outside the wall, into the midst of this city. ⁵And it is I who will fight you with outstretched hand and mighty arm, in anger and great wrath. ⁶And I will strike all the inhabitants in this city, human beings and animals, with great death, and they shall die. ⁷And afterwards, says the Lord, I will give Sedekias, king of Iouda, and his servants and the people left in this city from death and from famine and from the dagger into the hands of their enemies who are seeking their souls, and they shall cut them into pieces with a dagger’s edge; I will not be sparing toward them, and I will not have compassion on
 them.

8 And to this people you shall say: This is what the Lord says: Behold, I have given before you the way of life and the way of death. ⁹He who sits still in this city shall die by dagger and by famine, but he who goes out to side with the Chaldeans who have closed you in shall live and his soul shall be as booty, and he shall live, ¹⁰for I have set my face against this city for evil and not for good. It shall be given over into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.

11 As for the house of the king of Iouda—hear a word of the Lord, ¹²O house of Daud! This is what the Lord says:

Execute judgment in the morning, and guide from the hand of him that wrongs him

 anyone who has been seized in order that my wrath may not be kindled
 like fire
 and burn, and there will be no one to quench it.

13 Behold, I am against you, the inhabitant of the valley of Sor,
 the plain, against those who say, “Who shall terrify us,
 or who shall enter into our dwelling
 place?”

14 I will kindle a fire in its^a forest, and it shall devour all that is round about it^a.

22 This is what the Lord says: Go, and descend to the house of the king of Iouda, and you shall speak there this word, ²and you shall say: Hear a word of the Lord, O King of Iouda who sits on the throne of Daud—you and your house and your people and those who enter by these gates. ³This is what the Lord says: Do justice and righteousness, and deliver one seized from the hand of one who does him wrong. And do not oppress, and do not act impiously against guest and orphan and widow, and do not shed innocent blood in this place, ⁴for if in doing you do this word, by the gates of this house shall also enter kings who sit on the throne of Daud, and mounted on chariots and horses, they and their servants and their people. ⁵But if you will not do these words, by myself I have sworn, says the Lord, that this house shall become a desolation—⁶because this is what the Lord says against the house of the king of Iouda:

You are Galaad to me,
 realm of Lebanon;
 if I do not make you a wilderness,
 cities not to be inhabited!

7 And I will bring destroyers against you,
 a man and his ax,
 and they shall cut down your choice cedars
 and cast them into the fire.

8 And nations will pass through this city, and they will say, each to his fellow, “Why did the Lord deal in this way with this great city?” ⁹And they will say, “Because they abandoned the covenant of the Lord, their God, and did obeisance to foreign gods and were slaves to them.”

10 Do not weep for him who is dead, nor bemoan him;
 with weeping weep for the one who goes
 away,

because he shall return no more nor see his native land—

11 for this is what the Lord says regarding Sel-lem son of Iosias, who was reigning in place of his ^ai.e. valley

father Iosias, who went away from this place: He shall return there no more, ¹²but in the place where I have deported him, there he shall die, and he shall never see this land again.

- 13 Ah, he who builds his house not with righteousness and his upper rooms not with judgment, he will work at his fellow's for nothing,
and he will not pay him his wages.
- 14 You built for yourself a spacious house, ventilated upper rooms fitted with windows and paneled with cedar and painted with vermilion.
- 15 Surely, you will not be king,
because you are irritated with Achaz your father?
They will not eat, and they will not drink;
it is better for you to execute judgment and righteousness.
- 16 They did not know;
they did not judge the cause for the lowly nor the cause of the needy.
Is not this so, because you do not know me?
says the Lord.
- 17 Behold, are not your eyes and your heart on nothing but your greed and on innocent blood to shed it and on wrongdoing
and on committing murder?
- 18 Therefore this is what the Lord says regarding King Ioakim son of Iosias of Iouda:
Woe to this man!
They shall not lament for him, "Ah, brother!"
nor shall they weep for him, "Alas, lord!"
- 19 With the burial of a donkey he shall be buried—swept up, he will be thrown out beyond the gate of Ierousalem.
- 20 Go up to Lebanon, and cry out, and give forth your voice in Basan,
and shout to the other side of the sea,
because all your lovers were crushed.
- 21 I spoke to you in your downfall, and you said, "I will not listen."
This has been your way from your youth;
you have not obeyed my voice.
- 22 A wind shall shepherd all your shepherds,
and your lovers shall go out in captivity, because then you will be ashamed and disgraced because of all who would kiss you.
- 23 O inhabitant of Lebanon, nesting among the cedars,
you will groan when pangs come upon you,
pains as of one giving birth!

24 I live, says the Lord, if King Iechonias son of Ioakim of Iouda ^ain being^a was a signet on my right hand, from there I would tear you off ²⁵and give you into the hands of people seeking your soul, before whose face you are afraid, into the hands of the Chaldeans. ²⁶And I will hurl you and your mother who bore you into a land, there where you were not born, and there you shall die. ²⁷But to the land for which they long with their souls, they shall not return.

- 28 Iechonias was dishonored
like a vessel which is without its use, which was hurled out,
and he was cast out into a land that he did not know.
- 29 O land, land,
hear a word of the Lord!
- 30 Record this man as a banished person, because none of his offspring shall grow up to sit on the throne of Dauid
as ruler again in Iouda.

23 Ah, the shepherds who destroy and scatter the sheep of their pasture! ²Therefore this is what the Lord says regarding those who shepherd my people: It is you who have scattered my sheep and have driven them away, and you have not visited them. Behold, I punish you for your evil doings. ³And it is I who will receive those remaining of my people from every land, there where I have driven them, and I will restore them to their pasture, and they shall increase and multiply. ⁴And I will raise up shepherds for them who will shepherd them, and they shall not fear any longer or be terrified, says the Lord.

⁵ Behold, days are coming, says the Lord, and I will raise up for Dauid a righteous dawn, and a king shall reign and shall understand and shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land. ⁶In his days Iouda^b will be saved, and Israel will encamp in confidence. And this is the name by which he [the Lord] will call him: "Iosedek (⁹) among the prophets."

- 9 My heart was crushed;
within me all my bones shook;
I became like a crushed man and like a person overcome by wine, due to the Lord
and due to the dignity of his glory, because due to these the land mourned,
the pastures of the wilderness were dried up.
And their course became evil,
and their strength not so,
because priest and prophet were defiled,
and in my house I have seen their wickedness.
- 12 Therefore let their way be to them like slipperiness in thick darkness, and they shall be tripped up and fall in it;

^aPossibly when born ^bIoudas = Zi ^ci.e. way

for I will bring evil upon them in the year of their visiting,
 13 And in the prophets of Samaria
 I saw lawless deeds:
 they prophesied by the goddess Baal
 and led my people Israel astray.
 14 And in the prophets of Ierousalem
 I have seen shocking things:
 people committing adultery and walking in lies
 and strengthening the hands of evildoers
 so that no one turns, each from his wicked way;
 all have become like Sodoma to me,
 and its inhabitants just like Gomorra.
 15 Therefore this is what the Lord says:
 "Behold, I will feed them pain and will give them bitter water to drink, because from the prophets of Ierousalem defilement went out to the whole land."

16 Thus says the Lord Almighty: Do not hear the words of the prophets, because they are rendering a vision empty. They speak from their own heart and not from the mouth of the Lord. ¹⁷They say to those who reject the word of the Lord,
 "There shall be peace for you," and to all who walk by their own will, [to every one who walks by the error of his own heart,] they said, "No evil shall come upon you"—

18 because who has stood in support of the Lord
 and seen his word?
 Who has given ear and obeyed?
 19 Behold, an earthquake from the Lord, and wrath goes forth as a ^aseismic upheaval;
 when it^b gathers, it will come against the impious.
 20 And the anger of the Lord will no longer turn back
 until he has executed it^c and until he accomplished it^c due to the undertaking of his heart.
 In the last of days they will understand
 them.
 21 I was not sending the prophets,
 and they themselves kept running;
 I did not speak to them,
 and they themselves kept prophesying.
 22 And if they had stood in support of me and if they had heard my words, they would also have turned them, my
 people,
 from their evil doings.

23 I am a god nearby, says the Lord, and not a god far off. ²⁴If someone shall be hidden in secret places, is it not I that shall also see him? Do I not fill the sky and the earth? says the Lord. ²⁵I have heard what the prophets are saying who prophesy lies in my name, saying, "I have dreamed a dream!" ²⁶How long shall there be lies in the heart of the prophets who prophesy, when in fact they prophesy the will of their own heart, ²⁷those who plan to forget my name by their dreams which they tell, each to his fellow, just as their fathers forgot my name by the goddess Baal? ²⁸Let the prophet in whom there is the dream tell his dream, and let him in whom my word is to him tell my word in truth. What is the chaff to the grain? ²⁹Are not my words just like fire and like an ax that cuts a rock?

³⁰Therefore, behold, I am against the prophets, says the Lord God, who steal my words each from his fellow. ³¹Behold, I am against the prophets who receive prophecies of tongue and slumber their slumber. ³²Behold, I am against the prophets who were prophesying lying dreams, and they kept telling them, and they led my people astray by their lies and by their errors, and it was not I that sent them, and I did not command them, and they will not profit this people with profit.

33 And if this people or a priest or a prophet asks you, "What is the issue of the Lord?" you shall then say to them, "You are the issue, and I will strike you, says the Lord." ³⁴And as for the prophet and the priest and the people who might say,
 "Issue of the Lord," I will also punish that person and his household. ³⁵Thus shall you say, each to his fellow and each to his brother, "What has the Lord answered?" and "What has the Lord spoken?" ³⁶And "Issue of the Lord," do not name it any more, because "the issue" will be the word belonging to the person. ³⁷And what has the Lord, our God, spoken? ³⁸Therefore, this is what the Lord God says: Because you have said this phrase, "Issue of the Lord," and I sent to you, saying, You shall not say, "Issue of the Lord," ³⁹therefore, behold, I am taking you and striking you and the city that I gave to you and your fathers. ⁴⁰And I will render upon you everlasting disgrace and everlasting dishonor which shall not be forgotten.

7 Therefore, behold, days are coming, says the Lord, and they shall no longer say, "The Lord lives who brought the house of Israel up out of the land of Egypt," ⁸but "The Lord lives who gathered all the offspring of Israel from the land of the north and from all the countries, there where he had driven them, and restored them to their land."

24 The Lord showed me two baskets of figs placed before the shrine of the Lord, after King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon had taken into exile from Ierousalem King Iechonias son of Ioakim of Iouda and the rulers and the artisans and the prisoners and the wealthy and had brought them to Babylon. ²The one basket had very good figs, like first-ripe figs, and the other basket had very bad figs, which could not be eaten because of their badness. ³And the Lord said to me,
 "What do you see, Ieremias?" And I said, "Figs, the ^aPossibly earthquake and hurricane ^bI.e. wrath ^cAntecedent unclear.

good ones very good and the bad ones very bad, which will not be eaten because of their badness."

4 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ⁵This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: Like these good figs, so I will regard those exiled from Iouda, whom I have sent away from this place to the land of the Chaldeans, for good. ⁶And I will fix my eyes upon them for good, and I will restore them to this land. And I will rebuild them and never tear down, and I will plant them and never pluck up. ⁷And I will give them a heart that they may know me, that I am the Lord, and they shall become a people to me, and I will become a god to them, because they shall return to me with their whole heart.

8 And as the bad figs which will not be eaten because of their badness—this is what the Lord says: So will I hand over King Sedekias of Iouda and his nobles and the remnant of Ierousalem, those left in this land and those who live in Egypt. ⁹And I will give them as a scattering to all the kingdoms of the earth and as a disgrace and as an illustration and as a thing to be hated and as a curse in every place, there where I drove them. ¹⁰And I will send to them the famine and the death and the dagger until they cease from the land that I gave to them.

25 The word that came to Jeremias regarding all the people of Iouda, in the fourth year of King Ioakim son of Iosias of Iouda, ²which he spoke to all the people of Iouda and to the inhabitants of Ierousalem, saying: ³In the thirteenth year of King Iosias son of Amos of Iouda, and until this day for twenty-three years, and I spoke to you, being early and speaking, ⁴and I would send to you my slaves the prophets, sending them at dawn, but you have not listened and have not paid heed to your ears ⁵when I was saying, "Do^a turn, everyone from his evil way and from your evil doings, and dwell upon the land that I have given to you and your fathers from of old and forever; ⁶do not go after foreign gods to be slaves to them and to do obeisance to them in order that you may not provoke me to anger with the works of your hands so as to do you harm." ⁷And you did not hear me.

8 Therefore this is what the Lord says: Because you have not believed my words, ⁹behold, I am sending for and I will take a paternal family from the north, and I will bring them against this land and against its inhabitants and against all nations around it, and I will utterly devastate them and render them into an annihilation and into a hissing and into an everlasting disgrace. ¹⁰And I will banish from them a sound of mirth and a sound of gladness, a voice of bridegroom and a voice of bride, a fragrance of perfume and light of a lamp. ¹¹And the whole land shall become an annihilation, and they shall be slaves amongst the nations seventy years. ¹²And when seventy years are completed, I will punish that nation, and I will make them an everlasting waste. ¹³And I will bring upon that land all my words that I have spoken against it, everything written in this book.

14(49.34) What Jeremias prophesied against the nations of Ailam.

15(35) This is what the Lord says: Let the bow of Ailam be crushed, mainstay of their dominance. ¹⁶⁽³⁶⁾And I will bring upon Ailam four winds from the four quarters of the sky, and I will scatter them in all these winds, and there shall not be a nation to which it shall not come there—those driven from Ailam. ¹⁷⁽³⁷⁾And I will terrify them before their enemies who seek their soul, and I will bring evil upon them, the wrath of my anger. And I will send my dagger after them until I have consumed them. ¹⁸⁽³⁸⁾And I will set my throne in Ailam and send out from there king and nobles.

19(39) And it shall be in the last of days I will return the captivity of Ailam, says the Lord.

26 ^(46.1)In the beginning when King Sedekias reigned, this word came concerning Ailam.

2 For Egypt, regarding the force of Pharaoh Nechao, king of Egypt, who was by the river Euphrates at Charchamis, whom King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon struck in the fourth year of King Ioakim of Iouda:

- ³ Take up weapons and shields,
and advance for battle!
- ⁴ Saddle the horses;
mount up, you horsemen!
And take your stations with your helmets;
throw your lances,
and put on your breastplates!
- ⁵ Why is it that they are terrified and they fall back?—
for their strong shall be beaten down.
They have fled in flight and did not turn back, being encircled all around!
says the Lord.
- ⁶ Let not the swift flee away,
and let not the strong one escape;
to the north, the regions by the Euphrates were powerless;
they have fallen.
- ⁷ Who is this that will rise up like a river,
and like rivers surge with water?
- ⁸ Waters of Egypt will rise up like a river, and it^b said, I will rise up and cover land and destroy inhabitants in it.
- ⁹ Mount on the horses;
prepare the chariots!
Go forth, O warriors of the Ethiopians and Libyans armed with weapons, and grasp, O Lydians; draw the bow.
- ¹⁰ And that day belongs to the Lord, our God,
a day of vengeance,
to take vengeance on his enemies.

And a dagger of the Lord shall devour and be sated
 and be drunk with their blood, because there^a is a sacrifice for the Lord from the land of the north by the river Euphrates.
 11 Go up, O Galaad, and take pine resin to the virgin daughter of Egypt!
 In vain you have multiplied your medicines;
 there is no help for you.
 12 Nations have heard your voice, and the earth was filled with your cry, because warrior was weak against warrior;
 both have fallen together.

13 What the Lord spoke by the hand of Jeremias that the king of Babylon would come to smite the land of Egypt:

14 Declare in Magdolos, and proclaim in Memphis;
 Say, "Set up, and be ready, because a dagger devoured your yew^b." 15 Why has Apis fled?
 Your [choice] bull calf did not remain,
 because the Lord paralyzed him.
 16 And your multitude was weak and fell,
 and each kept saying to his fellow,
 "Let us rise up and return to our own
 people
 and to our fatherland,
 because of the Greek dagger." 17 Call the name of Pharaoh Nechao, king of Egypt,
 Saon-esbi-emoed^c.

18 I live, says the Lord God, because he^d shall come like Itabyrion^e among the mountains and like Carmel by the sea.
 19 Make for yourself implements for going into exile,
 resident daughter of Egypt, because Memphis shall become an
 annihilation,
 and it shall be burned, because there are no inhabitants in it.

20 A beautified heifer is Egypt—a fragment from the north came upon
 her.
 21 And her mercenaries in her
 are like grain-fed calves,
 for they too have turned and fled together;
 they did not stand,
 because a day of ruin has come upon them,
 and a time for their punishment.

22 A sound like of a hissing snake, because they will travel in sand,
 and they will come against her with axes,

like people felling trees.
 23 They shall cut down her forest,
 says the Lord,
 because there shall be nothing like it^f, because it^f is more numerous than
 grasshoppers,
 and they are without number.
 24 The daughter of Egypt was put to shame;
 she was handed over into the hands of a people from the north.

25 Behold, I am avenging Amon, her son, on Pharaoh and on those who trust in
 him.
 27 But as for you, have no fear, my slave
 Iakob,
 nor be terrified, O Israel;
 for behold, I am saving you from far away and your offspring from the land of their captivity.
 And Iakob shall return and have quiet and sleep,
 and there shall be no one to cause him difficulty.

28 Have no fear, my servant Iakob,
 says the Lord,
 because I am with you,
 because I will make an end among every nation,
 among people to whom I have banished
 you there,
 but I will not make you to fail!
 And I will discipline you in just measure, and when I deem innocent, I will not deem you innocent.

27 ^(50.1)A word of the Lord, which he spoke regarding Babylon.
 2 Declare among the nations, and make
 heard,
 and do not conceal; say:
 Babylon has been taken;
 [Bel] the undaunted was put to shame;
 the gentle [Marodach was undone], 3 because from the north a nation has come up against her; he shall make her land an annihilation, and there shall be no one to live in it, from human being even to animal.

4 In those days and in that time the sons of Israel shall come, they and the sons of Iouda together; they shall come walking and weeping as they seek the Lord, their God. ⁵They shall ask the way to Sion, for here they will set their face, and they shall come and flee for refuge to the Lord God, for an everlasting covenant will not be forgotten.

6 My people have become lost sheep; their shepherds expelled them; they have misled them to the mountains; from mountain to hill they went;
 they have forgotten their fold. ⁷All who would find

^aOr it ^bPossibly holm oak ^cHeb = braggart who missed his chance ^dI.e. Nabouchodonosor? ^eI.e. Mt. Tabor ^fI.e. forest

them would devour them; their enemies said, "Let us not release them, because they have sinned against the Lord. A pasture of righteousness ^athey are^a for the one who gathered their fathers."

8 Become a stranger from the midst of Babylon and from the land of the Chaldeans, and go out, and become like dragons before sheep, ⁹because behold, I am stirring up against Babylon gatherings of nations from the land of the north, and they shall array themselves against her; from there she shall be taken, as an arrow of a skilled warrior will not return empty. ¹⁰Chaldea shall be for plunder; all who plunder her shall be sated—

- 11 because you were rejoicing and boasting while plundering my heritage; for you were frisking about like heifers in pasture, and you were butting horns like bulls;
- 12 your mother was utterly shamed, a mother for good, last^b of nations, a wilderness.
- 13 Because of the wrath of the Lord she shall not be inhabited, and all of her shall become an annihilation, and everyone who passes through Babylon shall be sullen and whistle because of her every wound.
- 14 Take up your positions against Babylon round about, all you that bend a bow; shoot at her; do not be sparing with your arrows.
- 15 And applaud exceedingly over her: "Her hands were paralyzed; her bulwarks have fallen, and her wall was razed." Because vengeance is from God, take vengeance on her; do to her as she has done.
- 16 Utterly destroy seed from Babylon, and the wielder of the sickle in time of harvest; because of the Greek dagger, each of them shall return to his own people, and each of them shall flee to his own land.

17 Israel is a wandering sheep; lions drove him away. The first one, king of Assour, devoured him, and this later one, king of Babylon, his bones. ¹⁸Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am taking vengeance on the king of Babylon and on his land, as I took vengeance on the king of Assour. ¹⁹And I will restore Israel to his pasture, and he shall feed on Carmel and on Mount Ephraim and in Galaad, and his soul shall be satisfied. ²⁰In those days and at that time they will seek the injustice of Israel, and there shall be none, and the sins of Iouda, also they shall not be found, because I will be merciful to those that have remained in the land, says the Lord.

- 21 Go up bitterly against her and against the inhabitants in her; take vengeance, O dagger, and annihilate, ^{says the Lord,} and act according to all that I am commanding you.
- 22 A noise of battle and great destruction is in the land of the Chaldeans!
- 23 How was the hammer of the whole earth broken and shattered! How has Babylon turned into an annihilation among nations!
- 24 They will attack you, and you will be taken, O Babylon, and you will not know it; you were discovered and seized, because you withstood the Lord.
- 25 The Lord has opened his store room and brought out the implements of his wrath, because there is a task for the Lord God in the land of the Chaldeans.
- 26 For her times have come. Open her storehouses; search her like a cave, and destroy her utterly; let there be no remnant of her.
- 27 Dry up all her fruit, and let them go down to slaughter. Woe to them, because their day has come and the time of their punishment!

28 A sound of people fleeing and escaping from the land of Babylon to declare in Sion the vengeance of the Lord, our God.

29 Summon many against Babylon, every one who bends a bow. Make a camp against her, all around; let there be no one to escape. Repay her according to her deeds; just as she has done, do to her—because she withstood the Lord, holy God of Israel. ³⁰Therefore her young men shall fall in her squares, and all her fighting men shall be thrown down, said the Lord.

- 31 Behold, I am against you the arrogant one, ^{says the Lord,} because your day has come and the time of your punishment.
- 32 And your arrogance shall become weak and fall, and there shall not be one to raise it up, and I will kindle a fire in her^c forest, and it will devour everything around her^c.

33 This is what the Lord says: The sons of Israel have been oppressed, and so too the sons of

^aLacking in Gk ^bI.e. mother ^cI.e. Babylon

Iouda; all their captors have oppressed them, because they were unwilling to send them off. ³⁴And he that redeems them is strong; the Lord Almighty is his name. He will judge with judgment against his adversaries, that he may destroy the earth, and for those that inhabit Babylon he will incite

- ³⁵ a dagger against the Chaldeans and against the inhabitants of Babylon and against her nobles
and against her sages, ³⁶ a dagger against her warriors—and they shall be paralyzed—a dagger against their horses and against their chariots, ³⁷ a dagger against their warriors and against the mixed populace in her midst—
and they shall become like women—
a dagger against her treasures—and they shall be scattered ³⁸by her
water,
and they shall be disgraced,
because it is a land of carved images,
and in the islands they were boasting.

³⁹ Therefore phantoms shall live in the islands, and daughters of Sirens shall inhabit her; she shall never again be inhabited forever. ⁴⁰As when God overturned Sodom and Gomorra and those adjacent to them, said the Lord, no person shall live there, and no son of man shall sojourn there.

- ⁴¹ Behold, a people is coming from the north,
and a great nation and many kings shall be stirred from the farthest part of
the earth,
⁴² wielding bow and hand knife;
it^a is reckless and will show no mercy.
The noise of them shall sound like the sea;
they will ride upon horses, equipped, like a fire for battle against you, O daughter Babylon!
⁴³ The king of Babylon heard news of them, and his hands became paralyzed;
affliction tightly seized him, pains like those of one giving birth.

⁴⁴ Behold, just like a lion it^b will come up from the Jordan into Aithan—because I will quickly pursue them away from her^c, and I will set every young man against her. For who is like me? And who will withstand me? And who is this shepherd who will stand against me? ⁴⁵Therefore, hear the plan of the Lord, which he has planned against Babylon, and his purposes that he has formed against the inhabiting Chaldeans: If the lambs of the sheep be not killed, if their pasture be not annihilated from them . . .—⁴⁶because at the sound of the capture of Babylon the earth shall tremble, and her cry shall be heard among nations.

- 28 ^(51.1)This is what the Lord says:
Behold, I am stirring up a destructive scorching wind
against Babylon
and against the inhabiting Chaldeans, ² and I will send insolent men to Babylon, and they shall treat her with insolence and shall maltreat her land.
Woe to Babylon on every side
on the day of her trouble.
³ Let him that bends his bow bend it, and let him who has his armor put it on.
Do not be sparing toward her young men, and annihilate her entire force.
⁴ And they shall fall down slain in the land of the Chaldeans
and be pierced outside of her, ⁵ for Israel and Iouda^d did not become widowed
from their God,
from the Lord Almighty,
because their land is full of injustice against the holy things of Israel!
⁶ Flee from the midst of Babylon, and save your souls, each of you!
And do not be cast aside in her injustice, because it is a time of vengeance on her from the Lord;
he is repaying repayment to her.
⁷ Babylon was a golden cup in the Lord's hand, making all the earth drunken;
nations drank of her wine;
therefore they were shaken.
⁸ And suddenly Babylon fell and was shattered;
wail for her!
Bring pine resin for her ruin,
if perhaps she shall be healed.
⁹ We treated Babylon,
but she was not healed.
Let us forsake her, and let each of us go
away
to his own country,
because her judgment has reached skyward;
it rose up even to the stars.
¹⁰ The Lord has brought forth his judgment;
come, and let us declare in Sion
the works of the Lord, our God.
¹¹ Equip the arrows!
Fill the quivers!
The Lord has stirred up the spirit of the king of the Medes, because his wrath is against Babylon to destroy it utterly, because it is vengeance from the Lord, vengeance for his shrine.
¹² Raise a standard on the walls of Babylon;
set up quivers;
awaken the watch;
prepare weapons;
because he has taken in hand and the Lord will do

- what he spoke against the inhabitants of Babylon,
13 though she encamps by abundant waters and by the multitude of her treasures—your end has truly come into your inwards,
14 because the Lord has sworn by his arm:
For I will fill you with people like
grasshoppers,
and those that come down shall utter a sound against you.
- 15 When he was making the earth by his
strength,
when he was preparing the world by his wisdom,
by his understanding he stretched out the
sky;
16 he made the sound of water a voice in the
sky,
and he brought up clouds from the end
of the earth.
Lightnings he made into rain
and brought out light from his store rooms.
- 17 Every person became vain, ^aapart from^a
knowledge;
every goldsmith was put to shame by his
carved images;
because they^b cast lies,
there is no breath in them.
- 18 Worthless they are, works to be ridiculed;
at the time of their visiting they shall
perish.
- 19 Such a portion is not Jakob's,
because he who formed all things,
he is his inheritance;
the Lord is his name.
- 20 It is you who scatter for me implements of war,
and in you I will scatter nations,
and from^c you I will destroy kings, 21 and in you I will scatter a horse and its rider, 22(21b) and in you I will scatter chariots and their charioteers,
and in you I will scatter young man and girl,
and in you I will scatter man and woman, 23 and in you I will scatter a shepherd and his flock,
and in you I will scatter a farmer and his husbandry,
and in you I will scatter leaders and generals.
- 24 And I will repay to Babylon and all the inhabiting Chaldeans all their wrongs that they have done against Sion before your very eyes, says the Lord.
- 25 Behold, I am against you, the corrupted
mountain
- that corrupts the whole earth, and I will stretch out my hand against you and roll you down from the rocks and render you like a burned-out
mountain.
26 And they shall take no stone from you for a corner
and no stone for a foundation, because you shall be an annihilation
forever,
says the Lord.
- 27 Raise a standard on the land;
trumpet with a trumpet among nations;
consecrate nations against her,
summon against her kingdoms of Araret,
from me also the Aschanazeans;
set up siege engines against her;
mount up against her cavalry like a multitude of grasshoppers.
- 28 Consecrate nations against her,
the king of the Medes and of the whole
earth,
his leading men and all his generals.
- 29 The land shook and toiled, for the Lord's purpose against Babylon stood,
to make the land of Babylon an
annihilation
and that she would not be inhabited.
- 30 Babylon's warrior gave up fighting;
they will sit there under siege;
their dominance was broken;
they became like women;
her quarters were set on fire;
her bars were crushed.
- 31 A pursuer will pursue to meet a pursuer, and a reporter to meet a reporter, to report to the king of Babylon that his city has been taken:
- 32 at the end of his fords they were seized, and their communities were burnt with
fire,
and his fighting men are coming out, 33 for this is what the Lord says:
Houses of the king of Babylon will be threshed
like a threshing floor in season;
yet a little while
and her harvest time will come.
- 34 "King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon has devoured me;
he has apportioned me;
he has seized me, a slim vessel;
he has swallowed me like a dragon;
he has filled his belly with my delicacies.
- 35 My hardships and my miseries drove me into Babylon,"
resident Sion shall say.
"And my blood be^d on the residing Chaldeans,"

Jerusalem shall say,
 36 Therefore this is what the Lord says:
 Behold, I am judging your adversary and will take vengeance for you.
 And I will make desolate her sea
 and make her fountain dry, 37 and Babylon shall become an annihilation and shall not be inhabited.

38 As well, like lions they were aroused, and like lions' whelps.
 39 When they are hot I will give them drink and make them drunk in order that they be stupefied
 and sleep a perpetual sleep and never wake,
 says the Lord.
 40 I will bring them down like lambs to slaughter
 and like rams with kids.

41 How she was taken,
 and the boast of the whole earth taken prey!
 How Babylon has become an annihilation among the nations!
 42 The sea has come up to Babylon by the sound of its waves, and she has been covered up.
 43 Her cities have become a waterless land and untrodden;
 no one will live in her,
 nor will a son of man lodge in her.
 44 I will take vengeance on Babylon and bring out from her mouth what she has swallowed.
 And the nations shall no longer gather to
 her.
 49 And in Babylon slain of all the earth will
 fall.

50 Since you are survivors of the land,
 go, and do not stop!
 You afar off, remember the Lord, and let Jerusalem come up into your
 heart:
 51 We were put to shame, because we have heard our insult;
 dishonor has covered our face;
 aliens have entered into our holy places,
 into the Lord's house.

52 Therefore behold, days are coming, says the Lord,
 and I will take vengeance on her carved
 images,
 and in all her land wounded shall fall, 53 because, if Babylon should mount up like
 the sky,
 and because, if she should fortify the height of her strength, from me those who destroy utterly will come upon her,
 says the Lord.

54 A sound of a cry in Babylon!
 And a great crashing in the land of the Chaldeans,
 55 because the Lord utterly destroyed Babylon and ruined her great voice roaring like
 many waters;
 he gave her voice to destruction, 56 because distress has come against Babylon;
 her warriors were taken;
 their bow has been terrified,
 for a god is repaying them.
 57 The Lord repays repayment to her,
 (57) and he will make drunk with drunkenness her leaders and her sages and her
 generals,
 says the King; Lord Almighty is his name.

58 This is what the Lord says:
 Babylon's wall was made broad;
 in being leveled it shall be leveled,
 and her high gates
 shall be set on fire.
 And peoples will not exhaust themselves for
 nothing,
 and nations shall fail in rule.

59 The word that the Lord commanded Jeremiah the prophet to speak to Saraias son of Nerias son of Maasaia, when he was going with King Sedekias of Iouda to Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign. And Saraias was ruler of gifts. ⁶⁰And Ieremias wrote in one book all the evils that would come on Babylon, all these words that have been written regarding Babylon. ⁶¹And Ieremias said to Saraias: "When you come to Babylon, also see and read all these words, ⁶²and you will say, 'O Lord, O Lord, it was you who spoke against this place to destroy it utterly and so that neither human nor animal inhabitants be in it, because it shall be an annihilation forever.' ⁶³And it shall be when you finish reading this book, you will then tie a stone to it and throw it into the middle of the Euphrates, ⁶⁴and you will say, 'Thus shall Babylon sink, and it shall rise up no more before the Chaldeans whom I am bringing on her.' "

29 ^(47.1)Regarding the allophytes.

(2) This is what the Lord says:
 2 Behold, waters are rising from the north and shall become a wadi overflowing and shall overflow a land and all that fills it, a city and those who live in it.
 And humans shall cry out,
 and all the inhabitants of the land shall shout.
 3 At the noise of his onslaught, at the hoofs of his horses
 and at the commotion of his chariots, the noise of his wheels,
 fathers did not turn back for their sons,
 because of the feebleness of their hands, 4 in the day that is coming to destroy all the allophytes, and I will annihilate Tyre and Sidon and all those that remain for their help, because the Lord will utterly destroy those remaining in the islands.

5 Baldness has come upon Gaza; Ascalon was cast away,
and the remaining Enakim.
6 How long will you cut, you dagger of the Lord?

How long until you will be quiet?
Restore yourself to your scabbard;
rest, and be lifted up!

7 How shall it be quiet?
And the Lord has ordered it^a against Ascalon and against the seashores, against those remaining,
that it^a be aroused.

8(49.7) For Idumea.

This is what the Lord says:

There is no longer wisdom in Thaiman;
counsel has perished from the prudent;
their wisdom is vanishing;

9(8) their face was misled.

Sink deep into sitting,
you that live in Dedan,
because he did difficult things.

I brought them^b upon him at the time when I visited upon him,

10(9) because grape gatherers came,
who shall not leave for you things gleaned.

As thieves by night they shall place their
hand.

11(10) Because I have ravaged Esau,
I have uncovered their hiding places;
they will not be able to hide;
his brother's and his neighbor's rewards perished,
and it is not possible¹²⁽¹¹⁾ for your orphan
to be left in order to live, and widows trust in me—

13(12) because this is what the Lord says: They who were not accustomed to drink the cup drank, and you, though being deemed innocent, shall not be declared innocent,¹⁴⁽¹³⁾ because by myself I have sworn, says the Lord, that you shall become,
in her^c midst, untrodden and an object of reproach and of cursing and all her towns shall be desolate
forever.

15(14) I have heard a tidings from the Lord, and he sent messengers to nations: “Gather yourselves together and come against her^d;
rise up for battle!”

16(15) I rendered you small among nations, despised among humankind.

17(16) Your sporting laid hands on you; recklessness of your heart broke up holes in rocks;
it seized strength of a high hill.

Because like an eagle he set his nest high,
from there I will bring you down.

18(17) Idumea shall become untrodden; everyone who passes by will hiss at her.¹⁹⁽¹⁸⁾ Just as Sodoma was overthrown, and Gomorra and her resident-alien towns, said the Lord Almighty, no person shall ever set down there, and no son of man shall dwell there.²⁰⁽¹⁹⁾ Behold, just like a lion it will come up from the midst of the Jordan to a place of Aithan—because I will quickly pursue them away from her^c. Appoint over her^c the young men—because who is like me? And who can withstand me? And who is this shepherd who will stand against me? ²¹⁽²⁰⁾ Therefore, hear the Lord's plan, which he planned against Idumea, and his purpose, which he purposed against the inhabitants of Thaiman: If the least of the sheep be not swept away, if their lodging be not made untrod-den to her!—²²⁽²¹⁾ because at the sound of their fall the earth feared, and a cry was heard at the sea of Souph. ²³⁽²²⁾ Behold, just like an eagle, he will see and extend the wings over her strongholds!
And the heart of the strong of Idumea in that day shall be like the heart of a woman in labor.

30 ^(49.1) For the sons of Ammon.

Thus did the Lord say:

Surely, there are no sons in Israel,
or have they none to succeed^f?
Why did Melchol take Galaad, and shall their people settle in their towns?

2 Therefore behold, days are coming,
quoth the Lord,
I will make heard the tumult of battles against Rabbath;
they shall become untrodden and a
destruction,
and her altars^g shall be burned down
with fire,
and Israel shall succeed^f his rule.

3 Shout, O Hesebon, because Gai perished!
Cry out, O daughters of Rabbath!
Put on sackcloth,
and lament,
because Melchol shall go in exile,
his priests and his rulers together.

4 Why will you rejoice in the plains,
O daughter of disgrace
who trusted in her treasures, who said, “Who will enter against me?”

5 Behold, I am bringing fear upon you,
said the Lord,
from all your surrounding area,
and you will be scattered, each headlong, and there shall be no one to gather.

6(28) For Kedar, the queen of the court, whom King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon struck.

^aI.e. dagger ^bLacking in Gk ^cPerhaps Idumea? ^dI.e. Idumea ^eReferent unclear ^fI.e. by inheritance ^gGk = bōmos

Thus did the Lord say:
 Rise up, and advance against Kedar,
 and strike the sons of Kedem!
 7(29) They shall take their tents and their sheep;
 their clothes and all their implements and their camels they shall take for themselves.
 And summon destruction against them all
 around!
 8(30) Flee very much; sink deep into sitting,
 you seated in the court,
 because the king of Babylon has planned a plan against you and formed a purpose against you.
 9(31) Rise up, and advance against a nation at ease,
 that sits in respite;
 they have no doors, no bolt pins; [no bars]
 they lodge alone.
 10(32) And their camels shall become plunder, and the multitude of their cattle,
 destruction.
 And with every wind I will winnow them, when they have been sheared before
 them.
 I will bring their rout from their every side,
 said the Lord.
 11(33) And the court shall become a haunt of sparrows
 and untrodden forever;
 no person shall ever sit down there,
 and no son of an earthborn shall settle
 there.
 12(23) For Damascus.
 Hemath and Arphad were put to shame,
 because they have heard bad tidings;
 they were astonished; they were angered;
 they will not be able to rest.
 13(24) Damascus has become undone; she turned to flight;
 trembling seized her.
 14(25) How did she not forsake a praiseworthy city,
 a village which I loved?
 15(26) Therefore young men shall fall in your squares,
 and all your warrior men shall fall,
 quoth the Lord.
 16(27) And I will burn a fire at Damascus' wall, and it shall devour the quarters of the son of Hader.

31 (48.1) For Moab.
 Thus did the Lord say:
 Woe for Nabau, because he^a perished!
 Kariathaim was taken;
 Hamasagab was put to shame, and Hatath.
 2 Healing of Moab is no more;
 in Hesebon they planned evil against her:

"We cut her off from being a nation!"
 She shall stop with a stop;
 a dagger shall go after you, 3 because a voice of people that cry from Horonaim,
 "Desolation and a great fracture!"
 4 "Moab was crushed!" announce to Zogora.
 5 Because Halaoth was filled by weeping, he will go up weeping by way of Horonaim;
 a cry of fracture you have heard.
 6 Flee, and save your souls, and you shall be like a wild ass in a wilderness!
 7 Seeing that you trusted in your strongholds, you also shall be seized.
 And Chamos shall go out in exile,
 his priests and his rulers together.
 8 And destruction shall come upon every
 city;
 it shall not be saved.
 And the valley shall perish,
 and the plain shall be destroyed utterly,
 as the Lord has said.
 9 Give signs to Moab, because she will be kindled with kindling,
 and all her cities shall become untrodden;
 from where will she get an inhabitant?
 10 Accursed is the one who is doing the work of the Lord carelessly by keeping back his dagger from bloodshed.
 11 Moab was at rest from childhood and trusted in his glory;
 he did not pour from vessel to vessel,
 and he was not going into exile;
 therefore his flavor remained in him, and his aroma did not leave.
 12 Therefore behold, days are coming, quoth
 the Lord, and I shall send to him people that deviate, and they will make him deviate, and they shall pulverize his vessels and break up his mixtures.
 13 And Moab shall be ashamed of Chamos, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Baithel, when they had confidence in them.
 14 How will you say, "We are strong and a strong person in warfare"?
 15 Moab perished;
 his city and his choice young men went down to slaughter.
 16 Moab's day is near to come,
 and his wickedness, very swiftly.
 17 Stir for him, all you round about him and all who know his name;
 say, "How has a renowned staff broken to pieces,
 a rod of magnificence!"

^aOr it

18 Come down from glory,
and sit on moist ground;
seated she is being destroyed,
because Moab has perished;
he that ruins your stronghold came up against you.
19 Stand by the road, and watch,
you^a that sit in Aroer!
And ask him that flees and escapes,
and say, "What has happened?" 20 Moab was put to shame, because he was broken to pieces;
wail, and cry!
Tell it in Arnon
that Moab has perished.

21 And judgment is coming to the land of Misor, upon Chelon and upon Rephas and upon Mophaath ²²and upon Daibon and upon Nabau and upon the house of Deblathaim ²³and upon Kariathaim and upon the house of Gamol and upon the house of Maon ²⁴and upon Karioth and upon Bosor and upon all the cities of Moab, those far and those near. ²⁵Moab's horn was cut off, and his effort was crushed.

26 Make him drunk, because he was magnified against the Lord, and Moab shall clap with his hand, and he too shall become a laughingstock.
²⁷And if not, was Israel a jest for you? If he was found among your thefts, ^{bis} it^b because you kept fighting him?

28 The inhabitants of Moab left the cities and lived among rocks;
they became like doves that nest among rocks
at the mouth of a gorge.
29 I heard of Moab's insolence;
he was very insolent in his insolence and his arrogance.
And his heart was lifted up.
30 But I knew his works.
It was not enough for him;
he did not do thus.
31 Therefore wail for Moab on all sides; shout to the men of Kir Hadas, of drought.
32 As with the weeping for Iazer I will weep for
you,
O vine of Sebema!
Your branches crossed over the sea;
cities reached Iazer;
upon your summer fruit, upon your grape gatherers
destruction has fallen.
33 Joy and gladness were swept away from the land of Moabitis, and wine was in your vats;
they did not tread in the early morning;
"aided"^c "aided"^c, [they did] not "aided"^c

34 From a cry of Hesebon as far as Eleale, their cities gave forth their voice, from Zogor as far as Horonaim and Agela Salasia, because even the water of Nebrim shall become something burnt.

³⁵And I will destroy Moab, quoth the Lord, since he ascends upon an altar^d and offers incense to his gods. ³⁶Therefore my heart will "rumble"^b for Moab^e as pipes will rumble; my heart will rumble like a pipe for the people of Kir Hadas. Therefore, what one gained perished [from a person].

³⁷They will have every head in every place shaved, and every beard shall be shaved, and all hands shall beat, and sackcloth on every loin, ³⁸even on all the housetops of Moab and in her squares, because I have crushed her, quoth the Lord, like a container for which no one has any use. ³⁹How Hatat shouted! How Moab turned her back! Moab was ashamed and became a laughingstock and an object of indignation to all those about her—

⁴⁰because thus did the Lord say: ⁴¹Hakkarioth was seized,
and the strongholds were also seized.
⁴²And Moab shall be destroyed from being a crowd,
because he was magnified against the
Lord.
⁴³Trap and fear and pit are upon you,
you seated one of Moab!
⁴⁴He who flees from before fear
shall fall into the pit,
and he who climbs out of the pit shall be caught in the trap, because I will bring these things upon Moab
in the year of their visiting.

32 ^(25.15)Thus did the Lord, the God of Israel, say: Take from my hand the cup of this unmixed wine, and you shall make all the nations, to them to whom I send you, drink, ²⁽¹⁶⁾and they are vomiting and will go out of their minds before the dagger that I am sending among them.

³⁽¹⁷⁾And I took the cup from the Lord's hand and made the nations, to whom the Lord sent me to them, drink: ⁴⁽¹⁸⁾Jerusalem and the cities of Iouda and its kings and its rulers, to make them a desolation and something untrodden and a hissing ⁵⁽¹⁹⁾and Pharaoh king of Egypt and his servants and his nobles ⁶⁽²⁰⁾and all his people and all the mixed peoples and all the kings of the allophytes, Ascalon and Gaza and Akkaron and the remnant of Azotus ⁷⁽²¹⁾and Idumea and Moabitis and the sons of Ammon ⁸⁽²²⁾and the kings of Tyre and the kings of Sidon and the kings who are across the sea ⁹⁽²³⁾and Dedan and Thaiman and Ros and every one shaven on his face ¹⁰⁽²⁴⁾and all the mixed peoples that lodge in the wilderness ¹¹⁽²⁵⁾and all the kings of Ailam and all the kings of the Persians ¹²⁽²⁶⁾and all the kings from the east wind, those far and those near, each with his brother, and all the kingdoms that are on the surface of the earth.

¹³⁽²⁷⁾And you shall say to them, Thus did the Lord Almighty say: Drink, and get drunk, and vomit, and you will fall and rise no more from before the dagger that I am sending among you.

14(28) And it will be if they refuse to accept the cup from your hand so as to drink, and you shall say: Thus did the Lord say: In drinking you shall drink, ¹⁵⁽²⁹⁾because I am beginning to bring evil on a city that my name is called on it, and you will not be cleansed with cleansing, because I am summoning a dagger against those settled on the earth.

16(30) And you shall prophesy against them these words, and you will say:

The Lord will give an oracle from on high;
from his holy place give forth his voice;
he will give a word as an oracle over his place,
and they will answer, "aided"^a, like those that reap,
and destruction has come on the inhabitants of the earth,

¹⁷⁽³¹⁾ on a part of the earth,
because the Lord has an indictment against the nations;
he is entering into judgment with all flesh,
and the impious will be given over to a dagger,

says the Lord.

¹⁸⁽³²⁾ Thus did the Lord say:

Behold, evil is coming from nation to nation,
and a great tempest is issuing from the farthest part of the earth!

19(33) And there shall be slain by the Lord on the day of the Lord from one part of the earth even to another part of the earth. They shall not be interred; they shall become dung on the surface of the ground.

²⁰⁽³⁴⁾ Shout, you shepherds, and cry out, and beat yourselves, you rams of the sheep,
because your days for slaughter have been fulfilled,
and you shall fall like the choice rams.

²¹⁽³⁵⁾ And flight shall perish from the shepherds, and deliverance from the rams of the sheep.

²²⁽³⁶⁾ A sound of a cry of the shepherds and a shouting of the rams of the sheep, because the Lord despoiled their fattened animals!

²³⁽³⁷⁾ And the lodgings of peace will cease from before the wrath of my anger.

²⁴⁽³⁸⁾ Like a lion he has left his lodging, because their land became untrodden from before the great dagger.

33 ^(26.1) At the beginning of King Ioakim son of Iosias, this word came from the Lord: ² Thus did the Lord say: Stand in the court of the Lord's house, and you will give an oracle to all the Judeans that come to do obeisance in the house of the Lord all the words, which I instructed you to give them as an oracle; do not hold back a thing,

³ Perhaps they will hear and will turn each from his evil way, and I will cease from the evils that I am planning to do to them on account of their evil doings. ⁴ And you shall say: Thus did the Lord say: If you do not hear me, to walk in my precepts that I have given before you, ⁵ to heed the words of my servants the prophets whom I send to you early in the morning, and I sent and you did not heed me, ⁶ I will also give over this house like Selo, and I will give over the city as a curse, to all the nations of the entire earth.

⁷ And the priests and the pseudo-prophets and all the people heard Ieremias speaking these words in the house of the Lord. ⁸ And it happened when Ieremias had stopped speaking all that the Lord had instructed him to speak to all the people, then the priests and the pseudo-prophets and all the people laid hold of him, saying, "You shall die by death! ⁹ Whatever did you prophesy in the name of the Lord, saying, "This house shall be like Selo, and this city shall be made desolate of inhabitants?" And all the people assembled against Ieremias in the house of the Lord.

¹⁰ And Iouda's rulers heard this matter, and they came up from the king's house to the house of the Lord and took their seat in the entry of the new gate of the house of the Lord. ¹¹ And the priests and the pseudo-prophets said to the rulers and to all the people, "A sentence of death on this person, because he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your own ears."

¹² And Ieremias spoke to the rulers and to all the people, saying, "The Lord sent me to prophesy against this house and this city all the words you have heard. ¹³ And now make your ways and your deeds better, and obey the voice of the Lord, and the Lord will cease from the evils that he has spoken against you. ¹⁴ And behold, I am in your hands. Do with me as seems advantageous and as is better to you. ¹⁵ Only, in knowing you will know that, if you kill me, you are bringing innocent blood upon yourselves and upon this city and upon its inhabitants in it, because in truth the Lord has sent me to you to speak all these words in your ears."

¹⁶ And the rulers and all the people said to the priests and to the pseudo-prophets, "There is no sentence of death on this person, because he has spoken to us in the name of the Lord, our God."

¹⁷ And men of the elders of the land arose and said to the entire gathering of the people, ¹⁸ "There was Michaias the Morasthite in the days of King Hezekias of Iouda, and he said to all the people of Iouda: 'Thus did the Lord say,

Sion shall be plowed like a field;
and Ierousalem shall become untrodden,
and the mountain of the house a forest grove.'

¹⁹ Surely, when killing, Hezekias and all Iouda did not kill him? Was it not that they feared the Lord and that they entreated the face of the Lord, and the Lord ceased from the evils that he had spoken

^aHeb = shouting

against them? And we did great evils against our souls!"

20 There was a person prophesying in the name of the Lord, Ourias son of Samaias from Kariathiarim, and he prophesied concerning this land according to all the words of Ieremias. ²¹And King Ioakim and all the rulers heard all his words, and they were seeking to kill him, and Ourias heard of it and entered into Egypt. ²²And the king sent men to Egypt, ²³and they brought him from there and led him to the king, and he struck him with a dagger and threw him into the burial place of the sons of his people.

24 In any case, the hand of Achikam son of Saphan was with Ieremias so as not to hand him over into the hands of the people to kill him.

34 ^(27.2)Thus did the Lord say: Make bonds and collars, and put them around your neck. ²⁽³⁾And you will send them to the king of Idumea and to the king of Moab and to the king of the sons of Ammon and to the king of Tyre and to the king of Sidon by the hands of their envoys who are coming to meet them in Ierousalem, to King Sedekias of Iouda. ³⁽⁴⁾And you will instruct them to say to their masters: Thus did the Lord, the God of Israel say: Thus you shall say to your masters: ⁴⁽⁵⁾Because it is I who by my great strength and my lofty effort have made the earth, I will also give it to whom it may seem good in my eyes, ⁵⁽⁶⁾I have given the earth to King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon to be subject to him, and the wild animals of the field to work for him.

⁶⁽⁸⁾ And the nation and the kingdom, as many as do not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, I will visit them with dagger and with famine, said the Lord, until they fail in his hand. ⁷⁽⁹⁾And you, do not keep heeding your pseudo-prophets and your diviners and your dreamers and your soothsayers and your sorcerers, when they say, "You shall not work for the king of Babylon," ⁸⁽¹⁰⁾because they are prophesying lies to you so as to distance you far from your land. ⁹⁽¹¹⁾And the nation that brings its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon and works for him, I will also leave him on his own land, and it will work for him and will live in it^a.

¹⁰⁽¹²⁾ And I spoke to King Sedekias of Iouda according to all these words, saying: Bring your neck, and work for the king of Babylon, ¹¹⁽¹⁴⁾because they are prophesying wrong things to you, ¹²⁽¹⁵⁾because I did not send them, quoth the Lord, and they are prophesying wrongly in my name so as to destroy you, and you will perish, you and your prophets who are [wrongly] prophesying lies to you.

¹³⁽¹⁶⁾ I spoke to you and all this people and the priests, saying, Thus did the Lord say: Do not listen to the words of the prophets who are prophesying to you, saying, "Behold, the vessels of the Lord's house are returning from Babylon," ^bbecause they are prophesying wrong things to you;

¹⁴⁽¹⁷⁾I did not send them^b. ¹⁵⁽¹⁸⁾If they are prophets and if there is a word of the Lord in them, let them counter me, ¹⁶⁽¹⁹⁾because thus did the Lord say: Even some of the remaining vessels, ¹⁷⁽²⁰⁾which the king of Babylon did not take when he exiled Iechonias from Ierousalem, ¹⁸⁽²²⁾shall enter into Babylon, says the Lord.

35 ^(28.1)And it happened in the fourth year of King Sedekias of Iouda, in the fifth month that the pseudo-prophet Hananias son of Azor, from Gabaon, said to me in the house of the Lord, in the sight of the priests and all the people, saying, ²"Thus did the Lord say: I have crushed the yoke of the king of Babylon. ³Yet two years of days and I will bring back to this place the vessels of the Lord's house ⁴and Iechonias and the exile of Iouda, because I will crush the yoke of the king of Babylon."

⁵ And Ieremias said to Hananias in the sight of all the people and in the sight of the priests who stood in the house of the Lord, ⁶and Ieremias said, "Truly, thus may the Lord do; may the Lord establish the word which you prophesy, to bring back to this place from Babylon the vessels of the house of the Lord and all the exile. ⁷In any case, hear a word of the Lord that I speak in your ears and in the ears of all the people. ⁸The prophets who preceded me and preceded you^c from ancient times also prophesied with reference to much land and great kingdoms for war. ⁹As for the prophet who prophesied for peace—when the matter came to pass, they would know the prophet, him whom the Lord had sent in faithfulness."

¹² And a word of the Lord came to Ieremias after Hananias had crushed the collars from his neck: ¹³Go, and say to Hananias, saying, Thus did the Lord say: Wooden collars you have crushed, and I will make iron collars in place of them!—¹⁴because thus did the Lord say: I have put an iron yoke on the neck of all the nations so that they might work for the king of Babylon. ¹⁵And Ieremias said to Hananias, "The Lord has not sent you, and you have made this people trust wrongly. ¹⁶Therefore thus did the Lord say: Behold, I am sending you from off the earth. In this year you will die." ¹⁷And he died in the seventh month.

36 ^(29.1)And these are the words of the book, which Ieremias sent from Ierousalem to the elders of the exile and to the priests and to the pseudo-prophets, as a letter to the exile in Babylon and to all the people, ²later than when King Iechonias and the queen and the eunuchs and every free person and prisoner and artisan had departed from Ierousalem, ³by the hand of Eleasa son of Saphan and Gamarias son of Chelkias, whom King Sedekias of Iouda sent to the king of Babylon in Babylon, saying: ⁴Thus did the Lord God of Israel say to the exile which I exiled from Ierousalem: ⁵Build houses, and settle down, and plant orchards, and eat their fruit, ⁶and take wives, and produce sons and daughters, and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, and multiply, and do not decrease, ⁷and seek for peace of the land into which I have exiled you there, and pray to the Lord on their behalf, because in their peace there will be peace for you—⁸because thus did the Lord say: Do not let the pseudo-prophets who are among you persuade you, and do not let your diviners persuade you, and do not listen for your dreams that you dream, ⁹because it is wrong what they are prophesying to you in my name, and I did not send them—¹⁰because thus did the Lord say: When Babylon's seventy years are about to be completed, I will visit you, and I will establish my words upon you to bring your people back to this place. ¹¹And I will plan a plan of peace for you, and not to give you these evils. ¹²And pray to me, and I will listen to you. ¹³And seek me out, and you will find me, because you will seek me with your whole heart, ¹⁴and I will appear to you.

^ai.e. his own land ^bPossibly Because they are prophesying wrong things to you, I did not send them ^cGk = pl

¹⁵ Because you have said, "The Lord appointed prophets for us in Babylon," ²¹ thus did the Lord say with reference to Achiab and with reference to Sedekias: Behold, I am delivering them into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall strike them before your eyes. ²² And from them they shall receive a curse in the whole exile of Iouda in Babylon, saying: "May the Lord make you as he made Sedekias and as Achiab, whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire," ²³ on account of the lawlessness they perpetrated in Israel, and they would commit adultery with the wives of their citizens and gave as oracle in my name a word that I did not instruct them, and it is I that am witness, quoth the Lord.

²⁴ And to Samaias the Nelamite you shall say: ²⁵ I did not send you in my name and to say to the priest Sophonias son of Maasaias: ²⁶ The Lord has given you as priest instead of the priest Iodae to be an officer in the house of the Lord over every person prophesying and every person in a frenzy, and you will give him over to the lockup and to the sluice. ²⁷ And now why have you not reviled Ieremias of Anathoth who prophesied to you? ²⁸ Has he not for this reason sent to us in Babylon, saying, "It is far off; build houses, and settle down, and plant gardens, and eat their fruit"?

²⁹ And Sophonias read the document in the ears of Ieremias. ³⁰ And a word of the Lord came to Ieremias, saying: ³¹ Send to the exile, saying, Thus did the Lord say with reference to Samaias the Nelamite: Whereas Samaias has prophesied to you, and I did not send him, and he has made you trust wrongly, ³² therefore thus did the Lord say: Behold, I am going to visit upon Samaias and upon his family, and he shall not have a person in your midst to see the good that I am going to do for you.

37 ^(30.1) The word that came to Ieremias from the Lord to say: ² Thus did the Lord, the God of Israel, say, saying: Write in a book all the words that I gave you as oracles, ³ because, behold, days are coming, quoth the Lord, and I will bring back the exile of my people, Israel and Iouda, said the Lord, and I will bring them back to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall have dominion over it.

⁴ And these are the words that the Lord spoke with reference to Israel and Iouda.

⁵ Thus did the Lord say:

A sound of fear you will hear.

Fear there is, and no peace.

⁶ Ask, and see if a male gave birth, and about fear, with which they will hold on to loin and safety.

[Why have I seen every person, and his hands are on his loins?]

Faces turned, they became jaundiced,

⁷ because that day is great and there is none like it;

it is a limited time for Iakob,

⁸ and from this he shall be saved.

(8) On that day, said the Lord, I will shatter a yoke from off their neck, and I will burst their bonds, and they shall no more work for foreigners. ⁹ And they shall work for the Lord, their God, and I will raise up Daudid as their king for them.

¹² Thus did the Lord say:

I raised up a fracture;

your wound was grievous.

¹³ There is no one to judge your cause;

you were doctored into pain;

there is no benefit for you.

¹⁴ All your friends have forgotten you;

they will never inquire;

because I struck you a blow of an enemy,

firm discipline,

your sins multiplied relative to all your injustice.

¹⁶ Therefore all who eat you shall be consumed, and all your enemies shall eat all their own flesh,

and those who plunder you shall become plunder, and all those who ravage you I will give over to ravaging,

¹⁷ because I will bring up your healing and I will cure you from a painful blow, quoth the Lord, because you were called dispersed:

"She is our prey, because there is no one seeking for her!"

¹⁸ Thus did the Lord say:

Behold, I am bringing back the exile of

Iakob

and will have mercy on his captivity, and a city shall be built upon its^a mound,

 and the shrine will sit on its rightful site.
 19 And out of them shall come singers and the sound of merrymakers.
 And I will make them many,
 and they shall not be made few.
 20 And their sons shall go in as formerly,
 and their testimonies shall be rectified
 before me,
 and I will visit those who oppress them.
 21 And his stronger ones shall be over them, and his ruler shall come out from his
 midst,
 and I will gather them, and they shall return
 to me,
 because who is this that gave his heart to return to me?
 quoth the Lord,
 23 because a fierce wrath of the Lord has gone
 forth;
 a revolving wrath has gone forth;
 it will come upon the impious.
 24 Wrath of the Lord's anger shall not turn back
 until he has executed
 and until he has accomplished
 the undertaking of his heart.
 In the latter days you will understand them.

38 ^(31.1)At that time, said the Lord, I will be-shall come a god to the race of Israel, and they shall become a people to me.
 2 Thus did the Lord say:
 I found him warm in a wilderness with
 people
 that perished by dagger.
 Go, and do not destroy Israel!
 3 The Lord appeared to him from far away.
 I have loved you with an everlasting love;
 therefore I have drawn you into compassion.
 4 Again I will build you, and you shall be built,
 O virgin Israel!
 Again you shall take your tambourine and go forth with a gathering of jesters.
 5 Again you shall plant vineyards on the mountains of Samaria.
 Plant, and praise,
 6 because it is a day of calling of people who argue in the mountains of Ephraim:
 "Rise up, and go up to Sion,
 to the Lord our God," 7 because thus did the Lord say to Iakob:
 Be glad, and neigh for the head of nations;
 make heard, and give praise;
 say, "The Lord saved his people,
 the remnant of Israel."
 8 Behold, I am bringing them from the north, and I will gather them from the farthest
 part of the earth
 at the feast of phasek^b, and you will breed a large crowd,

 and they shall return here.
 9 With weeping they went out, and with consolation I will bring them
 up,
 making them lodge by channels of waters
 in a straight road,
 and they shall not wander in it,
 because I became a father to Israel,
 and Ephraim is my firstborn.
 10 Hear a word of the Lord, O nations, and declare it in the islands far off; say,
 "He who winnowed Israel will gather him and will keep him, as he who feeds his flock."
 11 Because the Lord has redeemed Iakob, he has delivered him from the hand of people stronger than he.
 12 And they shall come and be glad on the mountain of Sion,
 and they shall come to the good things of
 the Lord,
 to a land of grain and wine
 and fruit and cattle and sheep, and their soul shall become like a fruitful tree,
 and they shall hunger no more.
 13 Then shall girls rejoice in a gathering of young men,
 and the old shall rejoice,
 and I will turn their mourning into joy,
 and I will make them glad.
 14 I will magnify and intoxicate the soul of the priests, sons of Leui,
 and my people shall be satisfied with my good things.
 15 Thus did the Lord say:
 A voice of lamentation and weeping and mourning was heard in Rama; Rachel did not want to stop weeping for her sons,
 because they are not.
 16 Thus did the Lord say:
 Let your voice cease from weeping,
 and your eyes from tears,
 because there is a wage for your works,
 and they shall come back from a land of
 enemies;
 17 there will be permanence for your children.
 18 In hearing I heard Ephraim mourning:
 "You instructed me, and I was instructed;
 I was not trained like a calf.
 Bring me back, and I shall come back, because you are the Lord my God.
 19 Because ^clater than^c my captivity I repented, and ^dlater than that I became^d aware, I sighed for days of shame,
 and I yielded to you,
 because I bore the disgrace of my youth."

^aI.e. city's ^bHeb = passover ^cI.e. induced by ^dI.e. induced by my becoming

20 Ephraim is my beloved son, a child to delight in;
 because, since my words are in him,
 I will remember him with remembrance.
 Therefore I hurried for him;
 in having mercy I will have mercy on
 him,
 quoth the Lord.

21 Set up for yourself sionim^a;
 make timrorim^b;
 give your heart to the shoulders.
 Return by the road which you went,
 O virgin Israel.

22 Return to your cities in mourning.
 How long will you turn away,
 O dishonored daughter?— because the Lord has created salvation for a new planting
 in which people will go about in safety.

23 Thus did the Lord say: Once more they shall speak this word in the land of Iouda and in his cities
 when I bring back his captivity:

“Blessed be the Lord
 on his righteous, holy mountain!”

24 And there shall be people dwelling in the cities of Iouda, and in all his land, together with the farmer, and he shall be raised up^c with a flock,

25 because I intoxicated every thirsty soul and every hungry soul I replenished.

26 For this reason I awoke and saw, and my sleep was pleasant to me.

27 Therefore behold, days are coming, quoth the Lord, and I will sow Israel and Iouda with the seed of a human and the seed of an animal. 28 And it shall be just as I used to watch over them to pull down and bring evil, so I will watch over them to build and to plant, quoth the Lord. 29 In those days
 they shall not say:

“The fathers have eaten unripe grapes, and the children’s teeth were set on edge.”

30 But each shall die for his own sins, and the teeth of him who eats unripe grapes shall be set on edge.

31 Behold, days are coming, quoth the Lord, and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Iouda. 32 It will not be like the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by their hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, because they did not abide in my covenant, and I was unconcerned for them, quoth the Lord, 33 because this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, quoth the Lord. Giving I will give my laws in their mind, and I will write them on their hearts, and I will become a god to them, and they shall become a people to me. 34 And they shall not teach, each his fellow citizen and each his brother, saying, “Know the Lord,” because they shall all know me, from their small even to their great, because I will be gracious regarding their injustices, and remember their sins no more.

35(37) If the sky be elevated to midair,
 quoth the Lord,
 and if the floor of the earth below be
 brought low,
 even then I will not reject the race of Israel,
 quoth the Lord,
 because of all they have done.

36(35) Thus did the Lord say,
 who gives the sun as light by day, moon and stars as light by night,
 and a scream in the sea and its waves made a booming noise—
 the Lord Almighty is his name:

37(36) If these laws cease from before me, quoth the Lord, also the race of Israel will cease to be a nation before me, all the days.

38 Behold, days are coming, quoth the Lord, and a city shall be built for the Lord from the tower of Hananeel to the gate of the corner. 39 And its measuring shall go out before them to the hills of Gareb, and it shall be encompassed all round with a circle of choice stones. 40 And all hasaremoth^d as far as Nachal Kedron, to the corner of the gate of horses in the east, a holy precinct to the Lord, and it shall never again fail and shall never ever be destroyed.

39 (32.1) The word that came from the Lord to Jeremias in the tenth year of King Sedekias;
 this was the eighteenth year for King Nabou-chodonosor of Babylon. 2 And the force of the king of Babylon raised a barricade against Ierusalem, and Ieremias was being confined in the court of the guard that was in the house of the king 3 in which King Sedekias had shut him up, saying, “Why do you prophesy, saying: Thus did the Lord say: Behold, I am giving this city in the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it, 4 and Sedekias shall not be saved out of the hand of the Chaldeans, because in handing over he shall be handed over into the hands of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak to his mouth and his eyes shall see his eyes, 5 and Sedekias shall enter into Babylon and be seated there.”

6 And a word of the Lord came to Ieremias, saying: 7 Behold, Hanameel son of Salom your father’s brother is coming to you, saying, “Acquire for yourself the field that is at Anathoth, because the right of acquisition is yours to take.” 8 And Hanameel son of Salom my father’s brother came to me in the court of the guard and said to me, “Acquire my field that is in the land of Benjamin at Anathoth, because the right to acquire is yours, ^aHeb = road marks ^bHeb = guideposts ^cPerhaps gotten under way ^dHeb = the fields?

and you are the elder. And I knew that it was a word of the Lord.

9 And I acquired the field from Hanameel son of my father's brother and weighed out to him seventeen shekels of silver. ¹⁰And I wrote in a document and sealed it and got witnesses to witness and weighed the silver on a scale. ¹¹And I took the document of purchase, the sealed one and the open one, ¹²and I gave it to Barouch son of Nerias son of Maasaia, in the sight of Hanameel son of my father's brother and in the sight of those who were present and signed the document of purchase, and in the sight of the Judeans who were in the court of the guard. ¹³And in their sight I instructed Barouch, saying, ¹⁴Thus did the Lord Almighty say: Take this document of purchase and the open document, and you shall put it in an earthenware jar in order that it may last for rather many days, ¹⁵because thus did the Lord say: Fields and houses and vineyards shall again be bought in this land.

16 And after I had given the document of purchase to Barouch son of Nerias, I prayed to the Lord, saying: ¹⁷"You That Are, Lord! It is you who made the sky and the earth by your great strength and by your high arm! Nothing shall be hidden from you ¹⁸when you do mercy for thousands and repay the sins of fathers into the laps of their children after them, you the great, the strong God, ¹⁹Lord of great counsel and powerful in deeds, the great God Almighty, Lord of great name. Your eyes are on the ways of the sons of men, to give each according to his way, ²⁰you who performed signs and wonders in the land of Egypt to this day both in Israel and among the earthborn, and you have made yourself a name, as this day. ²¹And you brought your people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and with wonders and with a strong hand and with a high arm ²²and with great spectacles, and you gave them this land, which you swore to their fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey, ²³and they entered and took it and did not obey your voice and did not walk by your ordinances; all you commanded them they did not do. And you have made all these evils to happen to them. ²⁴Behold, a crowd has come against^a the city to take it, and the city has been given into the hands of the Chaldeans who are fighting it from before the dagger and the famine. As you spoke, so it happened. ²⁵And you are saying to me, "Acquire for yourself the field for money." And I wrote a document and sealed it and had witnesses witness it, and the city was given into the hands of the Chaldeans.

26 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²⁷I am the Lord, the God of all flesh; surely nothing will be hidden from me? ²⁸Therefore, thus did the Lord say: When this city is surrendered it will be given over into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall seize it. ²⁹And the Chaldeans who are fighting against this city shall come and shall burn this city with fire, and they shall burn down the houses in which, on their roofs, they burnt incense to the goddess Baal and they would pour libations to other gods so as to embitter me, ³⁰because the sons of Israel and the sons of Iouda were alone in doing evil in my sight from their youth, ³¹because this city existed for my wrath and for my anger, from the day they built it even until this day, to remove it from before me, ³²because of all the evils of the sons of Israel and Iouda that they did to embitter me, they and their kings and their rulers and their priests and their prophets, men of Iouda and those that inhabit Ierousalem. ³³And they have turned their back to me and not their face, and I have taught them in the early morning, and I have taught, and they did not hear to accept instruction. ³⁴And they set up their defilements in the house, where my name is called on it, in their impurities. ³⁵And they built the altars^b to the goddess Baal, which are in the valley of Hennom's son, to offer up their sons and their daughters to ^cthe kings, things which I did not instruct them to do, and it did not arise in my heart that they do this abomination so as to cause Iouda to sin.

36 And now thus did the Lord, the God of Israel, say with reference to the city of which you say, "It will be given over into the hands of the king of Babylon by dagger and by famine and by dispatch": ³⁷Behold, I am gathering them from every land, there where I dispersed them in my wrath and in my anger and in great irritation, and I will bring them back to this place, and I will settle them in confidence. ³⁸And they shall become a people to me, and I will become a god to them. ³⁹And I will give them another way and another heart, to fear me all the days, both for their own good and for that of their children after them. ⁴⁰And I will make an everlasting covenant with them, which I will not turn away from behind them, and I will assign my fear to their heart so that they may not turn away from me. ⁴¹And I will visit them to do good to them, and I will plant them in this land in faithfulness, both with all my heart and with all my soul, ⁴²because thus did the Lord say: Just as I have brought all these great evils upon this people, so I will bring upon them all the good that I told them. ⁴³And fields shall be acquired again in the land of which you are saying, It is untrodden by human being or animal, and they were given over into the hands of the Chaldeans. ⁴⁴And they shall acquire fields with money, and you shall write in a document and seal it and have witnesses witness it in the land of Beniamin and around Ierousalem and in the cities of Iouda and in the cities of the mountain and in the cities of the Sephela and in the cities of the Nageb, because I will bring back their exiles.

40 ^(33.1)And a word of the Lord came to Jeremias a second time, and he was still confined in the court of the guard, saying: ²Thus

did the Lord say, when he was making earth and forming it to establish it—the Lord is his name: ³Cry to me, and I will answer you and will tell you great and mighty things, them that you have not known, ⁴because thus did the Lord say concerning the houses of this city and concerning the houses of the king of Iouda that have been torn down for stakes and breastworks ⁵to do battle against the Chaldeans and to fill it with corpses of people whom I struck in my wrath and in my anger, and I turned away my face from them for all their acts of wickedness. ⁶Behold, I am bringing it soundness and healing, and I will make clear to them and heal it and make for them peace and trust. ⁷I will return the exile of Iouda and the exile of Israel and build them as they were before. ⁸And I will cleanse them from all their injustices which they sinned against me, and I will not remember their sins which they sinned against me and they withdrew from me. ⁹And it shall be for gladness and for praise and for greatness for all the people of the earth, whoever shall hear of all the good that I shall perform, and they shall fear and be embittered concerning all the good and concerning all the peace which I shall make for them.

¹⁰ Thus did the Lord say: There shall yet be heard in this place of which you say, “It is a wilderness ^aapart from^a human beings and animals,” in the cities of Iouda and outside of Ierousalem, that are desolate, to the point that there are no human being or animal, ¹¹a voice of gladness and a voice of joy, a voice of bridegroom and a voice of bride, a voice of people saying,

“Acknowledge the Lord Almighty, because the Lord is kind,
because his mercy is forever!”

And they will bring gifts into the house of the Lord, because I will return the exile of that land as before, said the Lord.

¹² Thus did the Lord say: There shall again be in this place that is waste and in all its cities, lodgings of shepherds resting sheep. ¹³In the cities of the hill country and in the cities of the Sephela and in the cities of the Nageb and in the land of Beniamin and in those around Ierousalem and in the cities of Iouda sheep shall again pass under the hand of one who counts them, said the Lord.

41 ^(34.1)The word that came to Ieremias from the Lord, and King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon and all his army and all the land under his dominion were fighting against Ierousalem and against all the cities of Iouda, saying: ²Thus did the Lord say: Go to King Sedekias of Iouda, and you shall say to him: Thus did the Lord say: In surrender this city shall be surrendered into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall seize it and burn it with fire. ³Even you shall not be saved from his hand, and with a seizing you shall be seized and given over into his hands, and your eyes shall see his eyes, and you shall enter into Babylon.

⁴But hear a word of the Lord, O King Sedekias of Iouda! Thus says the Lord, ⁵You shall die in peace. And as they wept for your fathers, those who reigned before you, they shall also weep for you and lament for you: “Alas, Adon^b,” because I have spoken a word, said the Lord.

⁸ The word that came to Ieremias from the Lord, after King Sedekias had concluded a covenant with the people to call for a release, ⁹to send off free each his Hebrew male servant and each his Hebrew female servant so as not to have a man from Iouda in slavery. ¹⁰And all the nobles and all the people, who had entered into the covenant to dismiss each his male servant and each his female servant, reneged and let them ¹¹be their male and female servants. ¹²And a word of the Lord came to Ieremias, saying: ¹³Thus did the Lord say: It was I that made a covenant with your fathers in the day I delivered them from the land of Egypt, from a house of slavery, saying, ¹⁴“When six years are complete, you shall dismiss your Hebrew brother, who will be sold to you. And he shall work for you for six years, and you shall send him off free.” And they did not hear me and did not incline their ear. ¹⁵And today they have turned to do what is right before my eyes, to call for a release, each of his fellow, and they concluded a covenant before me in the house where my name is called on it. ¹⁶And you turned and profaned my name when each of you turned back his male servant and each his female servant, whom you had sent off free, for their own self, as male and female servants for you. ¹⁷Therefore, thus did the Lord say: You have not obeyed me by calling for a release, each pertaining to his fellow. Behold, I am calling for a release for you to the dagger and to death and to the famine, and I will give you as a dispersion to all the kingdoms of the earth. ¹⁸And as for the men who have transgressed my covenant, those that did not stand by my covenant that they made before me, I will render them as the bull calf which they made, to work for it: ¹⁹the rulers of Iouda and those with power and the priests and the people. ²⁰And I will hand them over to their enemies. And their carcasses shall become food for the birds of the air and the wild animals of the earth. ²¹And as for King Sedekias of Judea and their rulers, I will hand them over into the hands of their enemies—and the force of the king of Babylon is for those that are running away from them. ²²Behold, I am giving instructions, quoth the Lord, and will bring them back to this land, and they will fight against it and take it and burn it down with fire, and the cities of Iouda, and I will render them desolate ^aapart from^a inhabitants.

42 ^(35.1)The word that came to Jeremias from the Lord in the days of King Ioakim of Iouda, saying: ²Go to the house of Archabin^a, and you shall bring them into the house of the Lord, into one of the courts, and you shall offer them wine to drink. ³And I brought out Iezonias son of Ieremin son of Chabasin and his brothers and his sons and the whole house of Archabin^a. ⁴And I brought them into the house of the Lord into the priestly chamber of the sons of Hananias son of Godolias, man of God, which was near the house of the rulers who were over the house of Maasaia son of Selom, the keeper of the court. ⁵And I gave before them a jug of wine and cups, and I said, "Drink wine." ⁶And they said, "We will not drink wine, because our father Ionadab son of Rechab commanded us, saying, 'You shall not drink wine, you and your sons forever, ⁷and you shall not build a house, and you shall not sow seed, and you shall not have a vineyard, because you shall live in tents all your days, that you may live many days in the land in which you spent time in it.' ⁸And we have obeyed the voice of our father Ionadab so as not to drink wine all our days, we and our wives and our sons and our daughters, ⁹and so as not to build houses to live there. And we did not have vineyard and field and seed, ¹⁰and we have lived in tents and obeyed and acted in accordance with all that our father Ionadab commanded us. ¹¹And it happened, when King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon came up against the land, we also said, 'Come, and let us enter into Ierousalem from before the force of the Chaldeans and from before the force of the Assyrians,' and we are living there."

¹² And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹³Thus says the Lord: Go, and say to a person of Iouda and the inhabitants of Ierousalem, Will you not receive instruction to obey my words? ¹⁴The sons of Ionadab son of Rechab upheld the dictum which he commanded his children so as not to drink wine, and they did not drink. And I spoke to you early, and I spoke, and you did not obey. ¹⁵And I have sent to you my servants the prophets, saying, "Turn, everyone from his evil way, and make your doings better, and do not go after other gods to be slaves to them, and live in the land that I gave to you and your fathers." And you did not incline your ears and did not obey. ¹⁶And the sons of Ionadab son of Rechab have upheld the command of their father, but this people have not obeyed me. ¹⁷Therefore, thus did the Lord say: Behold, I am bringing on Iouda and on the inhabitants of Ierousalem all the evils that I have spoken against them.

43 ^(36.1)In the fourth year of Ioakim son of Iosias, king of Iouda, a word of the Lord came to me saying: ²Take for yourself a small roll of a book, and write on it all the words that I gave you as oracles against Ierousalem and against Iouda and against all the nations, from the day of my speaking to you, from the days of King Iosias of Iouda even until this day. ³Perhaps the house of Iouda will hear of all the evil that I intend to do to them in order that they turn from their evil way, and I shall be gracious regarding their injustices and their sins.

⁴ And Ieremias called Barouch son of Nerias, and Barouch^b wrote on a small roll of a book from the mouth of Ieremias all the words of the Lord that he had given as oracles to him. ⁵And Ieremias commanded Barouch, saying, "I am under guard. I shall not be able to enter into the house of the Lord, ⁶and on a day of fasting you shall read from this small roll into the ears of the people in the Lord's house and in the ears of every one of Iouda, those that come out from their city—you shall read to them. ⁷Perhaps mercy for them^c will come about before the Lord, and they^c will turn them out of their evil way, because great is the anger and wrath of the Lord that ^bthe Lord^b spoke against this people." ⁸And Barouch did according to all that Ieremias commanded him, to read in the book the Lord's words in the Lord's house.

¹¹ And Michaias son of Gamarias son of Saphan heard all the words of the Lord from the book. ¹²And he went down to the king's house, into the secretary's house, and behold, all the rulers were sitting there: Elisama the secretary and Dalaias son of Selemias and Ionathan son of Akchobor and Gamarias son of Saphan and Sedekias son of Hananias and all the rulers. ¹³And Michaias told them all the words that he had heard Barouch read in the ears of the people. ¹⁴And all the rulers sent Ioudin son of Nathanas son of Selemias son of Chousi to Barouch son of Nerias, saying, "The small roll in which you were reading in it, in the ears of the people, take it into your hand, and come." And Barouch ^dson of Nerias^d took the small roll and went down to them. ¹⁵And they said to him, "Again read it into our ears." And Barouch read. ¹⁶And it happened, when they heard all the words, they took counsel, each with his fellow, and they said, "In reporting let us report all these words to the king." ¹⁷And they questioned Barouch, saying, "From where did you write all these words?" ¹⁸And Barouch said, "From his mouth Ieremias proclaimed to me all these words, and I would write them in a book." ¹⁹And they said to Barouch, "Go, hide, you and Ieremias, and let no person know where you are."

²⁰ And they entered to the king in the court, and the small roll they gave to be watched in the house of Elisama, and they reported all the words to the king. ²¹And the king sent Ioudin to take the small roll, and he took it from the house of Elisama, and Ioudin read it into the ears of the king and into the ears of all the rulers who stood around the king. ²²And the king was sitting in his winter house, and there was a hearth of fire in front of him. ²³And it happened when Ioudin would read three or four columns, he^a would cut them off with the secretary's penknife and would throw them into the fire that was in the hearth, until the entire roll had vanished into the fire that was in the hearth. ²⁴And the king and his servants, who were hearing all these words, were not alarmed, and they did not tear their garments. ²⁵And Elnathan and Dalaias^b and Gamarias suggested to the king not to burn the small roll. ²⁶And the king commanded Ieremeel the king's son and Saraias son of Esiel to arrest Barouch and Ieremias. And they were hidden.

²⁷ And after the king had burned the small roll, all the words that Barouch wrote from the mouth of Ieremias, a word of the Lord came to Ieremias, saying: ²⁸Again, take another small roll, and write all the words that were in the small roll, which words King Ioakim has burned. ²⁹And you shall say: Thus did the Lord say, You burned this small roll, saying, Why have you written on it, saying, In coming the king of Babylon will come and destroy utterly this land, and human and animals will fail from it? ³⁰Therefore thus did the Lord say with reference to King Ioakim of Iouda: He shall have no one to sit upon the throne of Dauid, and his carcass shall lie cast out in the heat of the day and in the frost of the night. ³¹And I will visit upon him and upon his family and upon his servants, and I will bring upon them and upon the inhabitants of Ierusalem and upon the land of Iouda all the evils, which I have spoken to them—and they did not listen.

³² And Barouch took another small roll and wrote on it from the mouth of Ieremias all the words of the book, which words Ioakim had burned, and more words like these were yet added to them.

44 ^(37.1)And Sedekias son of Iosias became king in place of Ioakim, whom King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon made king to be king over Iouda. ²And he and his servants and the people of the land did not obey the words of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of Ieremias.

³ And King Sedekias sent Ioachal son of Selemias and the priest Sophonias son of Maasaia to Ieremias, saying, "Pray for us to the Lord."

⁴And Ieremias went and passed through the midst of the city, and they had not consigned him to the house of the guard. ⁵And a force of Pharao had come out of Egypt, and the Chaldeans heard news of them, and they withdrew from Ierusalem.

⁶ And a word of the Lord came to Ieremias, saying: ⁷Thus did the Lord say: Thus you shall say to the king of Iouda, who sent to you to inquire of me, Behold, Pharao's force, which came out for assistance, will return to the land of Egypt. ⁸And the Chaldeans themselves shall return and fight against this city, and they shall seize it and burn it with fire, ⁹because thus did the Lord say: Do not suppose in your souls, saying, "In departing the Chaldeans will go away from us," for they will not go away. ¹⁰Even if you struck the whole force of the Chaldeans, those who are fighting you, and there remained of them some pierced, each in his place, these would rise up and burn this city with fire.

¹¹ And it happened, when the force of the Chaldeans had withdrawn from Ierusalem from before Pharao's force, ¹²Ieremias set out from Ierusalem to go to the land of Beniamin to buy property there among the people. ¹³And he was at the gate of Beniamin, and there was a person with whom he used to lodge, Sarouia son of Selemias son of Hananias, and he arrested Ieremias, saying, "You are fleeing to the Chaldeans." ¹⁴And he said, "That is a lie; I am not fleeing to the Chaldeans." And he did not listen to him, and Sarouia arrested Ieremias and brought him to the rulers. ¹⁵And the rulers were embittered against Ieremias, and they struck him and sent him to the house of the secretary Ionathan, because they had made this into a house of the guard. ¹⁶And Ieremias went into the house of the cistern and into the chereth^c and sat there many days.

¹⁷ And King Sedekias sent word and called him. And the king questioned him secretly to say if there was a word from the Lord. And he said, "There is! You shall be handed over into the hands of the king of Babylon." ¹⁸And Ieremias said to the king, "What wrong have I done you and your servants and this people that you are giving me over into the house of the guard? ¹⁹And where are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying, 'The king of Babylon will not come against this land'? ²⁰And now, my lord king, let mercy for me come about before you, and why do you return me to the house of the secretary Ionathan? And shall I not die there?" ²¹And the king gave instructions, and they committed him to the court of the guard and would give him one loaf of bread a day from outside where they bake until the bread of the city was gone. And Ieremias sat in the court of the guard.

45 ^(38.1)And Saphatias son of Matthan and Godolias son of Paschor and Ioachal son of Selemias heard the words that Ieremias was speaking to the crowd, saying, ²Thus did the Lord say, He who lives in this city shall die by sword and by famine, and he who goes out to the Chaldeans shall live, and his soul shall be his windfall, and he shall live, ³because thus did the Lord say, In being handed over this city shall be handed over into the hands of the force of the king of Babylon, and he shall seize it. ⁴And they said to the king, "Let that person be put to death, because he is relaxing the hands of the people that fight, who are left in the city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking such words to them. For this person does not utter an oracle of peace to this people but only hardship." ⁵And the king said, "Behold, he is in your hands," because the king was powerless against them. ⁶And they threw him into a cistern of Melchias, the king's son, which was in the court of the guard, and they let him down into the cistern. And there was no water in the cistern, but only mire, and he was in the mire.

⁷ And Abdemelech the Ethiopian—and he was in the king's house—heard that they had consigned Jeremias to the cistern. And the king was at the gate of Benjamin. ⁸And he went out to him, and he spoke to the king and said, ⁹"You acted wickedly in what you did to kill this person from before the famine, because there is no longer any bread in the city." ¹⁰And the king commanded Abdemelech, saying, "Take in hand thirty persons from here, and bring him up out of the cistern so that he may not die." ¹¹And Abdemelech took the persons and entered into the house of the king—the underground chamber—and took from there old rags and old ropes and threw them into the cistern to Jeremias. ¹²And he said, "Put these under the ropes." And Jeremias did so. ¹³And they drew him up by the ropes and brought him up out of the cistern. And Jeremias sat in the court of the guard.

¹⁴ And the king sent word and called him to himself at the house of Aselisela^a, which is in the house of the Lord. And the king said to him, "I will ask you a matter, and do not hide any dictum from me." ¹⁵And Jeremias said to the king, "If I tell you, will you not put me to death with death? And if I give you advice, you will not hear me." ¹⁶And the king swore to him, saying, "The Lord lives, who made for us this life, if I shall kill you and if I shall give you into the hands of these people!"

¹⁷ And Jeremias said to him, "Thus did the Lord say, If in going out you go out to the leaders of the king of Babylon, your soul shall live, and this city shall not be burned with fire, and you shall live and your house. ¹⁸And if you do not go out, this city shall be handed over into the hands of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and you shall not be saved." ¹⁹And the king said to Jeremias, "I have a concern regarding the Judeans who have fled to the Chaldeans, lest they give me into their hands and they shall mock me." ²⁰And Jeremias said, "They will not deliver you up. Obey a word of the Lord, which I say to you, and it shall be better for you, and your soul shall live. ²¹And if you are not willing to go out, this is the word the Lord has shown me: ²²And behold, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Iouda were being led out to the rulers of the king of Babylon, and they kept saying,

'Your men of peace have misled you and will overpower you,
and they will sink your feet in slipperiness;
they turned away from you.'

²⁴ And the king said to him, "Let no person know any of these words, and you will not die. ²⁵And if the rulers hear that I have spoken with you, and they come to you and say to you, Tell us what the king said to you; do not conceal it from us, and we will not kill you. And what did the king say to you?' ²⁶And you shall say to them, 'I am casting pity for me in the sight of the king so as not to return me to the house of Ionathan to die there.' " ²⁷And all the rulers came to Jeremias and questioned him, and he told them according to all these words which the king had commanded him. And they maintained silence, because a word of the Lord was not heard. ²⁸And Jeremias sat in the court of the guard until the time when Ierousalem was seized.

46 ^(39.1)And it happened in the ninth year of King Sedekias of Iouda, in the tenth month, King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon and all his force came against Ierousalem, and they were laying siege to it, ²and in the eleventh year of Sedekias, in the fourth month, on the ninth of the month, the city was breached. ³And all the leaders of the king of Babylon entered and sat in the middle gate: Nargalsarasar, Samagoth, Nabousarsachar, Nabousaris, Nargalsaraser, Rabamag and the rest of the leaders of the king of Babylon. ⁴And they sent and took Jeremias from the court of the guard and gave him to Godolia son of Achikam son of Saphan, and they brought him out, and he sat in the midst of the people.

¹⁵ And a word of the Lord came to Jeremias in the court of the guard, saying: ¹⁶Go, and say to Abdemelech the Ethiopian: Thus did the Lord, the God of Israel, say: Behold, I am bringing my words against this city for evil and not for good. ¹⁷And I will save you on that day, and I shall not hand you over into the hands of the people, before them whom you fear, ¹⁸because in saving I will save you, and you shall not fall by sword, and your soul shall be your windfall, because you have trusted in me, quoth the Lord.

47 ^(40.1)The word that came from the Lord to Jeremias after Nabouzardan the chief cook from Dama sent him off, when he took him in handcuffs in the midst of the exile of Iouda, those led away to Babylon. ²And the chief cook took him and said to him, "The Lord, your God, has given in oracles these evils against this place, ³and the Lord acted, because you sinned against him and did not obey his voice. ⁴Behold, I have released you from the handcuffs on your hands. If it is good before you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will set my eyes on you. ⁵But if not, depart, and return to Godolias son of Achikam son of Saphan, whom the king of Babylon has appointed in the land of Iouda, and live with him among the people in the land of Iouda. Go to all that is good in your eyes to go to." And the chief cook gave him presents and sent him off. ⁶And he went to Godolias at Massepha and settled among the people who were left in the land.

⁷ And all the leaders of the force in the open country, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Godolias in the land and that he had committed to him men and their women, whom he had not exiled to Babylon. ⁸And there came to Godolias at Massepha Ismael son of Nathaniah and Ioanan son of Karee and Saraia son of Thanaemeth and sons of Ophei the Netophati and Iezonias son of the Mochati, they and their men. ⁹And Godolias swore to them and their men, saying, "Do not be afraid before the servants of the Chaldeans. Settle in the land, and work for the king of Babylon, and it shall be better for you. ¹⁰And behold, I am stationed before you at Massepha, to stand before the Chaldeans who may come to us, and as for you, gather wine and summer fruit and oil, and put them in your vessels, and live in the cities that you have taken over." ¹¹And all the Judeans, those in Moab and those among the sons of Ammon and those in Idumea and those in any other land, heard that the king of Babylon had given a remnant to Iouda and that he had appointed over them Godolias son of Achikam. ¹²And they came to Godolias to the land of Iouda at Massepha, and they gathered wine and summer fruit in great abundance.

¹³ And Ioanan son of Karee and all the leaders of the force, those in the open fields, came to Godolias at Massepha ¹⁴and said to him, "Do you know by knowledge that Beelias, king of the sons of Ammon, has sent to you Ismael to strike your soul?" And Godolias did not believe them. ¹⁵And Ioanan said to Godolias secretly at Massepha, "I will indeed go and strike Ismael, and let no one else know, lest he slay your soul, and all Iouda, those gathered to you, be scattered, and those remaining of Iouda shall perish." ¹⁶And Godolias said to Ioanan, "Do not do this thing, because you are telling lies about Ismael."

48 ^(41.1)And it happened in the seventh month, Ismael son of Nathaniah son of Eleasa of the family of the king came and ten men with him to Godolias at Massepha. And they ate bread together there. ²And Ismael got up, and the ten men who were with him, and they struck Godolias, whom the king of Babylon had appointed over the land, ³and all the Judeans who were with him at Massepha and all the Chaldeans who were found there.

⁴ And it happened on the second day after he had struck Godolias, and no person knew, ⁵men also arrived from Sychem and from Salem and from Samaria, eighty men with their beards shaved and their clothes torn and beating themselves, and manaa^a and frankincense in their hands to bring to the house of the Lord. ⁶And Ismael came out to meet them. They were going and weeping, and he said, "Enter to Godolias." ⁷And it happened, when they came into the middle of the city, he slaughtered them into the well. ⁸And ten men were found there, and they said to Ismael, "Do not kill us, because we have stores of wheat and barley, honey and oil in a field." And he passed them over and did not kill them in the midst of their brothers.

¹¹ And Ioanan son of Karee and all the leaders of the force, those with him, heard of all the evil that Ismael had done, ¹²and they brought their whole army and went out to fight him. And they found him at a great water in Gabaon. ¹³And it happened when all the people who were with Ismael saw Ioanan and the leaders of the force that was with him, ¹⁴they then went back to Ioanan. ¹⁵And Ismael was saved with eight people and went to the sons of Ammon. ¹⁶And Ioanan and all the leaders of the force, those with him, took all the rest of the people whom he had turned away from Ismael—mighty men in war and the women and the rest and the eunuchs, whom he brought back from Gabaon. ¹⁷And they went out and settled at Gaberoth Chamaam, which is near Bethleem, to go to Egypt ¹⁸from before the Chaldeans, because they feared before them, because Ismael had struck Godolias, whom the king of Babylon had appointed in the land.

49 ^(42.1)And all the leaders of the force and Ioanan and Azarias son of Maasaias and all the people from small even to great approached ²the prophet Ieremias and said to him, "Let mercy for us come about before you, and pray to the Lord, your God, for these that remain, because there are a few of us left out of many, as your eyes see. ³And let the Lord your God tell us the way we should go in it and the word we should do." ⁴And Ieremias said to them, "I have heard; behold, I shall pray to the Lord, your God, according to your words, and it shall be, the word whichever the Lord will answer, I will tell you; I will not hide from you what is said." ⁵And they in their turn said to Jeremias, "Let the Lord be among us as a just and faithful witness, if—according to every word with which the Lord sends you to us—we shall not act thus. ⁶Both if it is good and if it is bad, we will obey the voice of the Lord, our God, to him to whom we are sending you, in order that it may go better with us, because we will obey the voice of the Lord our God."

⁷ And it happened after ten days a word of the Lord came to Jeremias. ⁸And he summoned Ioanan and the leaders of the force and all the people from small even to great ⁹and said to them, "Thus did the Lord say: ¹⁰If in settling you settle in this land, I will build you up and not pull down, and I will plant you and not pluck up, because I am at rest regarding the evils that I have done to you. ¹¹Do not be afraid before the king of Babylon, whom you fear before him. Do not be afraid, quoth the Lord, because I am with you, to rescue you and to save you from his hand. ¹²And I will grant you mercy, and I will have mercy on you and return you to your land. ¹³And if you keep saying, 'We will not settle in this land,' so as not to obey the voice of the Lord, ¹⁴because we will go into the land of Egypt, and we shall not see war, and we shall not hear a trumpet sound, and we shall not be hungry because of bread, and there we will live,' ¹⁵therefore hear a word of the Lord. Thus did the Lord say: If you incline your face towards Egypt and enter to live there, ¹⁶it shall also be that the sword, which you fear before it, shall find you in Egypt, and the famine, regarding which you have a concern before it, shall seize you in Egypt, and there you shall die. ¹⁷And there shall be: all the people and all the aliens who have set their faces towards the land of Egypt to live there, they shall expire by sword and by famine, and there shall not be any of them that escapes from the evils that I am bringing upon them, ¹⁸because thus did the Lord say: Just as my anger dripped on the inhabitants of Ierousalem, so my anger will drip on you, when you go into Egypt. And you shall become untrudden and be in subjection and become a curse and a reproach, and you shall see this place no more. ¹⁹This is what the Lord has spoken to you who remain of Iouda: Do not enter into Egypt. And now in knowing you shall know ²⁰that you have acted wickedly in your souls in having sent to me, saying, 'Pray for us to the Lord, and according to everything, whatever the Lord speaks to you, we will do.' ²¹And you have not obeyed the voice of the Lord by which he sent me to you. ²²And now you shall expire by sword and by famine in the place where you desire to go to settle there."

50 ^(43.1)And it happened, when Jeremias stopped saying to the people all the words of the Lord, with which the Lord had sent him to them—all these words—²then Azarias son of Maa-saias said, and Ioanan son of Karee and all the men who had spoken to Jeremias, saying, "Lies! The Lord did not send you to us to say, 'Do not enter into Egypt to live there,' ³but Barouch son of Nerias is inciting you against us in order that you hand us over into the hands of the Chaldeans that they put us to death and that we be exiled to Babylon." ⁴And Ioanan and all the leaders of the force and all the people did not obey the voice of the Lord, to settle down in the land of Iouda. ⁵And Ioanan and all the leaders of the force took all those remaining of Iouda who had returned to settle down in the land—⁶the mighty men and the women and the rest and the daughters of the king and the souls whom Nabouzardan had left with Godolias son of Achikam and the prophet Jeremias and Barouch son of Nerias. ⁷And they entered into Egypt, because they did not obey the voice of the Lord. And they entered into Taphnas.

⁸ And a word of the Lord came to Jeremias in Taphnas, saying: ⁹Take some large stones for yourself, and hide them in the entrance to Pharaoh's house in Taphnas in the sight of the men of Iouda. ¹⁰And you will say, Thus did the Lord say: Behold, I am sending for and will bring King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon, and he will set his throne over these stones that you have hidden, and he will raise his weapons against them^a, ¹¹and he shall enter and strike the land of Egypt, giving those who are destined for death, to death, and those who are destined for going into exile, to going into exile, and those who are destined for the sword, to the sword.

¹²And he shall burn a fire in the houses of their gods, and he shall set them^b on fire and exile them^a, and he shall delouse the land of Egypt, as a shepherd delouses his cloak, and he shall depart in peace. ¹³And he shall crush the pillars of Heliopolis, those in On, and their^c houses he shall burn down with fire.

51 ^(44.1)The word that came to Jeremias for all the Judeans living in Egypt, even those settled in Magdolos and in Taphnas and in the land of Pathoures, saying, ²Thus did the Lord, the God of Israel, say: You have seen all the evils that I have brought on Ierousalem and on the cities of Iouda. And behold, they are desolate of inhabitants ³because of their wickedness that they committed, to embitter me, by having gone to burn incense to other gods that they did not know. ⁴And I sent to you my servants the prophets early in the morning, and I sent, saying, "Do not do the thing of this defilement that I hated!" ⁵And they did not listen and did not incline their ear, to turn from their evils so as not to offer incense to other gods. ⁶And my wrath and my anger dripped, and it burned in the cities of Iouda and outside of Ierousalem, and they became a desolation and something untrudden, as this day. ⁷And now thus did the Lord Almighty say: Why are you doing great harm to your souls, to cut off your man and woman, infant and suckling, from the midst of Iouda so as not to have any one left, ⁸to embitter me with the works of your hands, to offer incense to other gods in the land of Egypt, there where you have come to live, that you be cut off and that you become a curse and reproach among the nations of the earth? ⁹Surely, you have not forgotten the evils of your fathers and the evils of the kings of Iouda and the evils of your rulers and the evils of your wives, which they committed in the land of Iouda and outside of Ierousalem? ¹⁰And they have not stopped to this day, and they have not clung to my ordinances that I gave before their fathers.

11 Therefore thus did the Lord say: Behold, I am setting my face ¹²to destroy all those remaining who are in Egypt, and they shall fall; by sword and by famine they shall fail from small even to great, and they shall become a reproach and destruction and a curse. ¹³And I will visit upon those who are settled in Egypt, as I have visited upon Ierousalem, with sword and with famine, ¹⁴and none of those remaining of Iouda who sojourn in the land of Egypt shall be saved to return to the land of Iouda, there to which they hope in their souls to return; they shall not go back, except as escapees.

15 And all the men, who were aware that their wives were offering incense to other gods, and all the women, a great gathering, and all the people who settled in Pathoures in the land of Egypt answered Ieremias, saying: ¹⁶"As for the word that you have spoken to us in the name of the Lord, we are not going to hear you, ¹⁷because in doing we will do every word that shall come out of our mouth, to offer incense to the queen of the sky and to pour out libations to her, just as we and our fathers and our kings and our rulers did in the cities of Iouda and outside of Ierousalem. And we were filled with bread, and we were well-off and saw no evil. ¹⁸But when we left off offering incense to the queen of the sky, we all were diminished and have failed by sword and by famine. ¹⁹And because we were offering incense to the queen of the sky and poured out libations to her—surely, we did not make cakes for her and poured out libations to her without our husbands?"

20 And Ieremias said to all the people, the mighty men and the women and all the people who answered him words, saying: ²¹"As for the incense offering that you offered in the cities of Iouda and outside of Ierousalem, you and your fathers and your kings and your rulers and the people of the land, did not the Lord remember it, and did it not come up in his heart? ²²And the Lord could no longer bear up before the evil of your deeds, before the abominations that you committed, and your land became a desolation and something untrodden and a curse, as this day. ²³Because you were burning incense and because you sinned against the Lord and did not obey the voice of the Lord and did not walk by his ordinances and by his law and by his testimonies, these evils have also taken hold of you."

24 And Ieremias said to the people and the women, "Hear a word of the Lord, ²⁵Thus did the Lord, the God of Israel, say: You wives have spoken with your mouth and have accomplished with your hands, saying, 'In enacting we will enact our agreements to which we have agreed, to burn incense to the queen of the sky and to pour out libations to her'. In respecting you respected your agreements, and in enacting you enacted! ²⁶Therefore hear a word of the Lord, all Iouda who settled in the land of Egypt: Behold, I swore by my great name, said the Lord, if my name shall ever be in the mouth of all Iouda in all the land of Egypt to say, 'The Lord lives!'—²⁷because, behold, I am watchful over them to harm them and not to do good, and all Iouda, those who live in the land of Egypt, shall fail by sword and by famine until they expire. ²⁸And those who have escaped from the sword shall return to the land of Iouda, few in number, and those remaining of Iouda, who are established in the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall know whose word will endure! ²⁹And this shall be the sign that I am going to visit upon you for evil: ³⁰Thus did the Lord say, Behold, I am giving Ouaphre, king of Egypt, into the hands of his enemy and into the hands of people that seek his soul, just as I gave King Sedekias of Iouda into the hands of King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon, his enemy and one who sought his soul."

31(45.1) The word that the prophet Ieremias spoke to Barouch son of Nerias, when he would write these words in a book from the mouth of Ieremias, in the fourth year of Ioakim son of King Iosias of Iouda: ³²(2) Thus did the Lord say with reference to you, O Barouch: ³³(3) Because you said, "Woe is me! Woe is me! because the Lord has added sorrow to my pain, I slept in groaning, and I found no rest." ³⁴(4) Say to him, "Thus did the Lord say: Behold, I bring down whom I have built up and pluck up whom I planted. ³⁵(5) And you will seek great things for yourself. Do not seek them because, behold, I am bringing evil upon all flesh, says the Lord, but I will give your soul as a windfall in every place, there where you may go."

52 It being Sedekias' twenty-first year when he began to reign—and he reigned eleven years in Ierousalem, and his mother's name was Hamital daughter of Ieremias from Lobena.

4 And it happened in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon came with all his force against Ierousalem, and they blockaded it and walled it in on four sides, all around. ⁵And the city came under siege until the eleventh year of King Sedekias. ⁶On the ninth of the month also the famine took a firm hold in the city, and there were no loaves for the people of the land. ⁷And the city was breached, and all the men of war went out by night by the way of the gate between the wall and the outer wall, which was by the king's garden, and the Chaldeans were at the city, all around. And they went in the direction of Araba. ⁸And the force of the Chaldeans pursued after the king and overtook him across from Ieri-cho, and all his servants were scattered from him. ⁹And they captured the king and brought him to the king of Babylon at Deblatha, and he spoke to him in judgment. ¹⁰And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Sedekias before his eyes, and he slew all the rulers of Iouda at Deblatha. ¹¹And he blinded the eyes of Sedekias and bound him in fetters, and the king of Babylon brought him to Babylon and delivered him to the mill house until the day he died.

¹² And in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month, Nabouzardan the chief cook, who stood before the king of Babylon, came to Ierousalem. ¹³And he set on fire the house of the Lord and the house of the king and all the houses of the city, and every great house he set on fire with fire. ¹⁴And the force of the Chaldeans, which was with the chief cook, pulled down every wall around Ierousalem. ¹⁶And the chief cook left a residue of the people to be vinedressers and tillers of the soil.

¹⁷ And the pillars of bronze that were in the house of the Lord and the bases and the bronze sea that was in the house of the Lord, the Chaldeans broke in pieces and took their bronze and carried it off to Babylon. ¹⁸And the rim and the saucers and the meat hooks and all the bronze vessels with them with which they were ministering. ¹⁹And the chief cook took away the saphphoth^a and the mamaroth^b and the pitchers and the lampstands and the censers and the ladles, which were ^cgold gold^c and which were ^dsilver silver^d. ²⁰And as for the two pillars and the one sea and the twelve bronze bull calves under the sea, which things King Salomon had made for the house of the Lord, there was no weighing of their bronze. ²¹And as for the pillars, the height of the one pillar was thirty-five cubits, and a cord of twelve cubits encompassed it, and its thickness was four fingers all round. ²²And upon them was a bronze cornice, and the excess of the one cornice was five cubits in length, and latticework and pomegranates were on the cornice all round; all was of bronze. And the second pillar had the same, with eight pomegranates to a cubit for the twelve cubits. ²³And there were ninety-six pomegranates on the one side, and all the pomegranates on the latticework were one hundred, all around.

²⁴ And the chief cook took the first priest and the priest ranked second and the three that were guarding the threshold^e ²⁵and one eunuch, who was overseer of the men of war, and seven men of name in the presence of the king, who were found in the city, and the recorder of the forces, who was recording for the people of the land, and sixty persons of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. ²⁶And Nabouzardan the chief cook took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at Deblatha. ²⁷And the king of Babylon struck them at Deblatha in the land of Hemath.

³¹ And it happened in the thirty-seventh year after King Ioakim of Iouda had been exiled, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fourth of the month, King Oulaimaradach of Babylon, in the year in which he became king, received the head of King Ioakim of Iouda and brought him out the house where he was being guarded, ³²and he spoke kindly to him and gave him a seat above the seats of the other kings who were with him in Babylon. ³³And he exchanged his prison robe, and he would always eat bread in his presence all the days he lived. ³⁴For the allowance was given him always by the king of Babylon, from day to day, until the day he died.

BAROUCH

EDITION OF GREEK TEXT

The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of Barouch (Baruch) is based on the critical edition of Joseph Ziegler (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Societatis Litterarum Göttingensis editum XV: Ieremias Baruch Threni Epistula Ieremiae [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1957]).

LITERARY MAKE-UP

Barouch, an “apocryphal” text of five chapters, is a composite collection of different literary genres that divides easily into two sections.

Bar 1.1–3.8

The first section (1.1–3.8), written in prose, uses the historical background of the Babylonian captivity as a context for presenting what is essentially an admission of guilt read to the captives in Babylon. Included is an expression of hope that God will deliver them from their deserved fate. The liturgical purpose of offering sacrifices at the Jerusalem temple (1.10–11) places a focus on where the captives came from. Interestingly, God is continually addressed in the third person until 2.11 when suddenly there is a switch to second person followed by some first person references (2.23, 29–35) before returning to second person references until 3.8. There are considerable linguistic ties with the book of Ieremias in the first section suggesting, if not a shared authorship, then perhaps a common Greek translator.

Bar 3.9–5.9

The style of the second part turns suddenly into a poetic homily. Though the Greek itself from the perspective of Greek metrics is not poetry, it does reflect Hebrew poetic technique in terms of form and style. It begins at 3.9 with a plea to Israel, addressed in the second person, to contemplate wisdom and God’s law and the relationship between them. At 4.5 there is a change in the subject matter wherein the author seeks to comfort the captives (four times they are urged to “take courage”: 4.5, 21, 27, 30). This second section (3.9–5.9) shifts from focusing on the land they came from to the land they now reside in. Along with a genre and a subject change, there is also a noticeable adjustment in attitude toward the Babylonian captors in this second section. Whereas they are instructed to pray for the lives of their captors in the first section (1.11), they are informed of God’s future destruction of them in the second section (4.25, 31–32).

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

Barouch as a Translation

Barouch is a fascinating book from the perspective of translation since, despite the fact that there are no extant Hebrew versions, it is held almost unanimously among scholars that the first section (1.1–3.8) was originally written in Hebrew. This conclusion is based on the kind of Greek that is apparent in the text and the fact that some phrases are unclear without recourse to a Hebrew retroversion. There are possible mistranslations of an original Hebrew. So, for example, 3.4, “those of Israel who have died,” might have been a misreading of מֵיָמֵינוּ “men,” which when unvocalized can be read as “dead” (see Esa 5.13), and 2.25, “by dispatch,” might have been a misreading of דַּבָּר “famine.” There are also many pronounced Hebraisms of the Greek in this portion, such as sustained parataxis with καί (“and”) or ἄνθρωπος (“person”) for distributive ἕκαστος (“each”) or again pleonastic adverbs, οὐ . . . ἐκεῖ (“where . . . there”) (2.4, 13, 29; 3.8), and pronouns, e.g., ὧν . . . αὐτῶν (“of whom . . . of them”) in 2.17.

Emanuel Tov has made a Hebrew retroversion of this first section. His intent was to show how the translator of Barouch showed affinities with the translation of Ieremias (Jeremias). Tov theorizes that the entire book of Ieremias had originally been translated into Greek as a unit and then, subsequently, was revised but that only the second half of that revision (chaps. 29–52 of Ieremias) has survived. Tov furthermore postulates that the same reviser also revised Bar 1.1–3.8. Since Jeremias is clearly based on a Hebrew original, its affinities with the first section of Barouch (1.1–3.8) provide solid support for an original Hebrew of this section.

Barouch as Greek Composition

The second section (3.9–5.9) is the subject of much debate concerning its original language. On the one hand, there is a general Greek character to it. It also possesses one Septuagintal hapax legomenon, the μυθολόγοι “storytellers” (3.23), and several words, many of which are neologisms, that only appear here in all of the Septuagint, i.e., συμμιάινω “to be defiled with” (3.11), μακροβίωσις “longevity” (3.14), ἀντανίστημι “to rise up against” (3.19), the ἐκζητηταί “seekers” (3.23), ἐπιμήκης “extensive” (3.24), λάμψις “shining” (4.2) and δεκαπλασιάζω “to multiply by ten” (4.28). Add to these data the facts that 4.36–5.9 has strong parallels with the Greek version of the Psalms of Salomon 11 and that the phraseology of 4.28 is difficult to reconstruct back into biblical Hebrew, and one might have good grounds to argue for an original Greek composition.

On the other hand, the literary style, especially the use of the vocative or the imperative and the strong use of parallelism, allow for the possibility of a Hebrew original. There are also a few instances where the Greek appears to be a mistranslation of the Hebrew, such as the unique appearance of the city Merran (3.23), which may have been a Hebrew corruption of Midian (the r and d in Hebrew are easily confused), followed by the Greek doubling of the r, which occurs occasionally in the transliteration of Hebrew proper names (e.g., Sarra in LXX Gen 17.19 and Gomorra in LXX Gen 18.20). David G. Burke has produced his own retroversion of this second section based on the conclusion that it was originally composed in Hebrew. Despite Burke’s ability to retrovert this section into Hebrew, however, the evidence for this section being translation Greek is by no means conclusive. It is just as possible that it was originally written in Greek. Much earlier, J. J. Kneucker was satisfied that the entire book had originally been written in Hebrew, and he created his own retroversion of what he thought to be the original Hebrew.

Ultimately though, since one does not find ties between Jeremias and this second section of Barouch as is clearly the case with the first section, it is likely that it was the work of a different author who could easily have composed in Greek. All of the biblical citations found here are based on the LXX rather than on the Hebrew and therefore are suggestive of a Greek origin. It is just as likely that the author of this section of Barouch was trained in a Septuagintal style of writing and deliberately created an original Greek text in this manner. Perhaps by the time of Barouch’s composition Hebraisms such as εἰς πένθος (4.34) “to mourning” (Hebrew מַלְּחָמָה, 2 Sam 19.3; Amos 8.10; Lam 5.15) were becoming commonplace in the Jewish tradition of biblical composition and therefore are nothing more than stylistic imitations of the Septuagint. Nevertheless, despite the apparent problems of determining the original language of composition for 3.9–5.9, since no Hebrew text for any part of Barouch has survived, NETS is based in its entirety solely on the Greek. That being the case, any attempt to create a translation profile for the book lacks credibility. Since the Hebrew “versions” we do have available are retroversions from the Greek and thus are based on assumed Hebrew-Greek equivalencies, using them as evidence is inherently problematic.

General Character of the Greek

There are subtle differences in the style or presentation of Greek between the two sections. Whereas the first section is replete with Hebraisms in the Greek, the second has far fewer. Nevertheless, since it attempts to imitate Hebrew poetry, the Greek is not altogether a fluid rendering.

Content

Barouch is a highly eclectic text. It reads like a patchwork of expressions and ideas borrowed from other parts of biblical material rather than an original work of its own. To give just a few examples, 1.15–2.12 shows considerable influence from Dan 9.7–14, and 2.13 compares well with Deut 28.62 and Jer 42.2. Barouch 3.29–4.4 is indebted to Job 28.12–27 as well as Deutero-Isaiah (e.g., 3.36 and 5.5, 7), Ecclesiast (Qoheleth) and the Psalms of Salomon for most of its ideas and expressions. Barouch 3.14 is reminiscent of Prov 3.13–18, and 4.15 is based on Deut 28.49–50. There are faint echoes of Reigns as well. And, of course, the book of Jeremiah/Jeremias lies behind much of the content in the first section.

Barouch shows inconsistency in the use of divine titles. Though not problematic as Greek per se, such inconsistency might be indicative of multiple authors/translators and hence would constitute a way of noting different Greek usage. The first section (1.1–3.8) prefers κύριος to refer to the deity, whereas the first part of second section (3.9–4.4) commonly uses θεός. The second part of the second section (4.5–5.9) then introduces ὁ αἰώνιος “the everlasting one” as a preference. There is even the unique (to Barouch) and unexpected use of παντοκράτωρ “Almighty” as a divine epithet in 3.1, which almost suggests a different author/translator for the first eight verses of chapter three.

The appearance of very different basic words and phrases in the second section, not evident in the first, is both interesting and significant. In the previous prose section, the Greek καί (probably translating the Hebrew ו) is very prominent, but in this poetic section δέ appears most often. As well, ὅτι seems to be the translation of choice for the prose, but the translator prefers γάρ for the poetic material (both no doubt translating the Hebrew ׀). Perhaps, all such “clues” to different translators/authors are merely due to a change in the content.

I owe an immeasurable debt to Albert Pietersma for his precedent-setting initial translation of the Psalms that has been the beacon for all subsequent NETS work. I wish to express a heartfelt, sincere gratitude for his personal encouragement and inexhaustible patience in advising on and editing this particular translation. There is clearly a debt here that can never be wholly repaid.

TONY S. L. MICHAEL

1 And these are the words of the book which Barouch son of Nerias son of Maasaias son of Sedekias son of Hasadias son of Chelkias wrote in Babylon, ²in the fifth year, on the seventh of the month, at the time when the Chaldeans took Ierousalem and set it on fire.

3 And Barouch read the words of this book in the ears of Iechonias son of Ioakim, king of Iouda, and in the ears of all the people, those who came to the book, ⁴and in the ears of the mighty and the sons of the kings and in the ears of the elders and in the ears of all the people, from small to great, all who lived in Babylon by the river Soud.

5 And they kept weeping and fasting and praying before the Lord, ⁶and they collected silver as the hand of each was able ⁷and sent it to Ierousalem to the priest Ioakim son of Chelkias son of Salom and to the priests and to all the people who were found with him in Ierousalem ⁸when he took the vessels of the house of the Lord which were carried out of the shrine to return to the land of Iouda on the tenth of Siouan—the silver vessels that King Sedekias of Iouda son of Iosias had made, ⁹after Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, exiled Iechonias and the magistrates and the prisoners and the mighty and the people of the land from Ierousalem, and he brought him^a to Babylon.

10 And they said: Look, we sent you silver; and buy with the silver whole burnt offerings and for sin and incense, and make manaa^b, and offer them on the altar of the Lord our God; ¹¹and pray concerning the life of King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon and regarding the life of his son Baltasar so that their days on the earth may be like the days of the sky. ¹²And the Lord will give strength to us, and he will illuminate our eyes, and we shall live under the shadow of King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon and under the shadow of his son Baltasar, and we shall be subject to them many days, and we shall find favor before them. ¹³And pray concerning us to the Lord our God, for we have sinned against the Lord our God, and the anger of the Lord and his wrath have not turned away from us until this day. ¹⁴And you shall read aloud this book, which we sent to you to declare in the house of the Lord on a feast day and on days of a season.

¹⁵ And you shall say: To the Lord, our God, belongs righteousness but to us shame of faces as this day, to a person of Iouda, to the inhabitants of Ierousalem, ¹⁶to our kings and to our magistrates and to our priests and to our prophets and to our fathers, ¹⁷for which things we have sinned before the Lord, ¹⁸and we disobeyed him and have not listened to the voice of the Lord, our God, to walk by the decrees of the Lord that he gave before us. ¹⁹From the day when the Lord brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt even until this day, we were being disobedient to the Lord our God, and we were acting carelessly so as not to listen to his voice. ²⁰And there have clung to us the bad things and the curse that the Lord instructed to his servant Moyses in the day he brought out our ancestors from the land of Egypt, to give to us a land flowing with milk and honey, as this day. ²¹And we did not listen to the voice of the Lord our God according to all the words of the prophets whom he sent to us, ²²and each of us went off in the intent of his evil heart to work for other gods, to do evil things in the eyes of the Lord our God.

2 And the Lord established his word which he spoke to us and to our judges who judged Israel and to our kings and to our magistrates and to a person of Israel and Iouda. ²It was not done under the whole sky as he did in Ierousalem, according to that which is written in the law of Moyses—³that we should eat, a person the flesh of his son and a person the flesh of his daughter. ⁴And he gave them as subjects to all the kingdoms around us as a disgrace and as something untrodden, among all the peoples around us there where the Lord scattered them. ⁵And they became beneath and not above, because we sinned against the Lord, our God, so as not to listen to his voice.

⁶ To the Lord, our God, belongs righteousness but to us and to our fathers shame of faces, as this day. ⁷All these bad things which the Lord spoke to us have come upon us. ⁸And we did not entreat the face of the Lord to turn away, each from the designs of their wicked heart. ⁹And the Lord kept watch over the bad things, and the Lord brought them upon us, for the Lord is just in all his works, which he commanded us. ¹⁰And we have not listened to his voice to walk by the decrees of the Lord that he gave before us.

¹¹ And now, O Lord God of Israel, you who brought out your people from the land of Egypt by a mighty hand and with signs and with wonders and with great power and with a high arm and you made yourself a name, as this day. ¹²We have sinned; we have been impious; we have done wrong, O Lord our God, against all of your requirements. ¹³Let your anger turn away from us, for few of us have been left behind among the nations, there where you scattered us. ¹⁴Listen, O Lord, to our prayer and our petition, and deliver us for your sake, and give us favor before the face of those who carried us off to exile ¹⁵in order that all the earth may know that you are the Lord our God, for your name has been called upon Israel and upon his family.

¹⁶ O Lord, look down from your holy house, and think of us. Incline, O Lord, your ear, and listen. ¹⁷Open your eyes, and see, for the dead in Hades, those whose spirit has been taken from their inward parts, will not give glory and justification to the Lord. ¹⁸But that you are the Lord who is grieving over the magnitude^a, that walks bowed and is weak, and the eyes that are failing and the soul that is hungry—they shall give you glory and righteousness, O Lord.

¹⁹ For it is not because of acts deemed righteous of our fathers and our kings that we throw down our^b mercy before you, O Lord, our God. ²⁰For you have brought your anger and your wrath against us, as you had spoken by the hand of your servants the prophets, saying: ²¹Thus did the Lord say: Incline your shoulder, and work for the king of Babylon, and sit upon the land which I gave to your fathers. ²²And if you do not obey the voice of the Lord to work for the king of Babylon, ²³I will make to fail from the towns of Iouda and from outside of Ierousalem a voice of merriment and a voice of delight, a voice of bridegroom and a voice of bride, and all the land will become untrodden by inhabitants.

²⁴ And we did not obey your voice to work for the king of Babylon, and you have established your words which you spoke by the hands of your servants the prophets, that the bones of our kings and the bones of our fathers may be carried out from their place. ²⁵And look, they^c are cast out in the heat of the day and the frost of the night, and they died in wicked pains, by famine and by sword and by dispatch. ²⁶And you made the house, where your name was called over it, as this day because of the wickedness of the house of Israel and the house of Iouda.

²⁷ And you have done to us, O Lord, our God, according to all your fairness and according to all your great compassion ²⁸as you spoke by the hand of your servant Moyses in the day when you commanded him to write your law before the sons of Israel, saying, ²⁹"If you do not obey my voice, surely this great, voluminous buzzing^d will turn into a small one among the nations, there where I will scatter them. ³⁰For I knew that they would not obey me, because the people are stiff-necked. And they will return to their heart in the land of their exile, ³¹and they will know that I am the Lord their God. And I will give them a heart and hearing ears, ^aPossibly great mass of people ^bI.e. for us ^cI.e. the bones ^dI.e. of people

³²and they will praise me in the land of their exile, and they will remember my name, ³³and they will turn away from their hard back and from their wicked deeds, because they will remember the way of their fathers who sinned before the Lord. ³⁴And I will return them to the land, which I swore to their fathers, to Abraam and to Isaak and to Iakob, and they will rule over it, and I will multiply them, and they will not diminish. ³⁵I will establish with them an everlasting covenant, that I be god to them and they be a people to me, and I will not disturb again my people Israel from the land that I have given them."

3 O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, a soul in straits and a weary spirit calls out to you. ²Listen, O Lord, and show mercy, for we have sinned before you. ³For you are seated forever, and we are perishing forever. ⁴O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, listen now to the prayer of those of Israel who have died and of the sons of those who kept sinning before you, who did not listen to the voice of the Lord, their God, and bad things have clung to us. ⁵Do not remember the injustices of our ancestors; rather, remember your hand and your name in this season. ⁶For you are the Lord, our God, and we will praise you, O Lord. ⁷For because of this you have given your fear in our heart in order that we call upon your name, and we will praise you in our exile, for we have put away from our heart all the injustice of our fathers who sinned before you. ⁸Look, we are today in our exile, there where you have scattered us for a reproach and for a curse and for a penalty according to all the injustices of our fathers who departed from the Lord our God.

¹⁵ Who has found her place, and who entered into her treasuries?
¹⁶ Where are the magistrates of the nations and those who have dominion over the beasts that are on the earth, ¹⁷ those who make sport among the birds of
the sky
and who store up silver and gold,

in which humans have trusted,
and there is no end to their acquisition, ¹⁸ those who scheme for silver and are anxious,
and there is no trace of their works?
¹⁹ They have vanished and gone down to Hades,
and others have arisen in their place.
²⁰ Younger ones saw light, and they lived upon the earth, but they did not know the way of ²¹ nor understood her paths, nor did they take hold of her.

Their sons ended up far away from their

²² She has neither been heard of in Chanaan nor been seen in Thaiman—²³ nor the sons of Hagar who seek out intelligence upon the earth, the merchants of Merran and Thaiman and the storytellers and the seekers for intelligence.
But they did not know the way of wisdom
nor remembered her paths.

34 but the stars shone in their watches and were glad;
 35 he called them, and they said, "We are

 They shone with gladness for him who made them.
 36 This is our God;
 no other will be reckoned with him.
 37 He discovered the whole way of knowledge and gave her to his servant Iakob and to Israel who was loved by him.
 38 After this she appeared on earth and associated among humans.

4 She^a is the book of the decrees of God and the law that remains forever.
 All who seize her are for life,
 but those who forsake her will die.
 2 Turn, O Iakob, and take hold of her;
 pass through toward the shining in the presence of her light.
 3 Do not give your glory to another and your benefits to a foreign nation.
 4 Happy are we, O Israel, because what is pleasing to God is known
 to us.

5 Take courage, my people, reminder of Israel!
 6 You were sold to the nations not for destruction,
 but because you angered God
 you were delivered to your adversaries.
 7 For you provoked the one who made you by sacrificing to demons and not to God.
 8 And you forgot the one who nursed you,
 God everlasting,
 and you even grieved Ierousalem who reared you.
 9 For she saw the anger that came upon you
 from God,
 and she said:
 Listen, you neighbors of Sion,
 God has brought great mourning upon
 me;
 10 for they saw the captivity of my sons and
 daughters,
 which the Everlasting brought upon
 them.
 11 For I reared them with gladness, but I sent them away with weeping and grief.
 12 Let no one rejoice against me, the widow and one forsaken by many;
 I was left desolate because of the sins of my
 children,
 because they turned away from God's law.
 13 And they did not recognize his statutes; neither did they walk in the ways of God's commandments
 nor tread on the paths of instruction by his righteousness.

14 Let the neighbors of Sion come.
 And remember the captivity of my sons and daughters,
 which the Everlasting brought upon
 them.
 15 For he brought against them a far off nation, a shameless nation and one speaking an alien tongue,
 who did not respect an old man nor showed mercy to a child.
 16 And they led away the beloved sons of the widow and isolated the lonely woman from her daughters.

17 But I^b, how am I able to help you?
 18 For he who brought these bad things upon
 you
 will deliver you from the hand of your enemies.
 19 Walk, children, walk,
 for I have been left desolate.
 20 I have taken off the robe of peace and put on sackcloth for my petition;
 I will cry out to the Everlasting in all my days.

21 Take courage, O children; call out to God, and he will deliver you from domination, from the hand of
 enemies.
 22 For I have hoped in the Everlasting for your salvation,
 and joy has come to me from the Holy
 One
 because of the mercy that will soon come to
 you
 from your everlasting savior.
 23 For I dispatched out with mourning and weeping,
 but God will give you back to me with delight and merriment forever.
 24 For as the neighbors of Sion have seen your captivity now,
 so they will quickly see your salvation
 from God,
 which will come to you with the great glory
 and splendor of the Everlasting.
 25 O children, bear patiently the wrath that has come upon you from God.
 The enemy has pursued you,
 but you will quickly see their destruction and will tread upon their necks.
 26 My pampered children have traveled rough roads;
 they were taken away like a flock carried off by enemies.
 27 Take courage, O children, and call out to God,
 for there will be mention of you by the one who brought this.

LAMENTATIONS

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The basis for the NETS translation of Lamentations is the critical edition of the Greek text established by Joseph Ziegler for the Göttingen Septuagint Series (J. Ziegler, Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Societatis Litterarum Göttingensis editum XV: Ieremias Baruch Threni Epistula Ieremiae [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1957]).

I have departed from the critical text of Ziegler in four instances. First are the alphabetic labels. The Hebrew book of Lamentations is comprised of five poems. The first four are alphabetic acrostics: each verse (or triplet of verses in the case of chapter 3) begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. While the fifth poem is not an acrostic per se, the number of lines (22) does correspond to the Hebrew alphabet. This acrostic structure is clearly represented not only in the Hebrew manuscript tradition by spacing techniques but also in the Greek (as well as in the Peshitta and Vulgate) tradition by including the Hebrew alphabet letters in Greek transcription as discrete labels heading each unit. Neither Alfred Rahlfs' Handausgabe (1935) nor Joseph Ziegler's critical edition recognizes these alphabetic labels as original text. Albert Pietersma has recently shown that they are indeed from the hand of the translator.¹ The alphabetic labels, therefore, are included in the NETS translation.

Second, neither the lemma of Rahlfs' or Ziegler's text includes 3.22–24 as original text. This is the entire Π strophe. Since the endings of v. 21 and v. 24 are virtually identical (in both Hebrew and Greek), the omission might be blamed on an error of parablepsis due to homoioteleuton.

לַחֲפִיל עַל בֵּן אֲחִי לִי = διὰ τοῦτο ὑπομενῶ (v. 21)

לַחֲפִיל לִי עַל בֵּן אֲחִי לִי = διὰ τοῦτο ὑπομενῶ αὐτόν (v. 24)

Pietersma has argued cogently, however, that the parablepsis occurred in the textual transmission of the Greek text and that the verses were part of the original translation.² The missing text may be gleaned from Ziegler's apparatus as follows:

τὰ ἔλεη κυρίου, ὅτι οὐκ ἐξελίπομεν, ὅτι οὐ συνετελέσθησαν οἱ οἰκτιρμοὶ αὐτοῦ.
καινὰ εἰς τὰς πρῶϊας,
πολλὴ ἡ πίστις σου.
μερίς μου κύριος, εἶπεν ἡ ψυχὴ μου·
διὰ τοῦτο ὑπομενῶ αὐτόν.

Third, neither Rahlfs' nor Ziegler's lemma have anything corresponding to 3.29. Certain witnesses in the textual transmission of the Septuagint do have the verse as follows:

fin. Or. II 176] + (29) δώσει εν χωματι (+ το 407) στομα αυτου ει ρα εστιν ελπις (+ υπομονης L'-538 Tht. Ambr. Spec.) O-Q^{ms} L'-538 87^{mg}-91^{mg}-239 Arm Tht. Ambr. V 204. 206 Spec.

The omission of the line was doubtless caused by parablepsis due to homoiocartcon. While the omission might be blamed on either pre-Greek transmission or on the translator, since both vv. 29 and 30 begin with לַחֲפִיל, it is also possible that the parablepsis occurred in the textual transmission of the Greek. Both Rahlfs and Ziegler no doubt thought the entire line hexaplaric and therefore secondary. Moreover, Ziegler boldly attributes the text to Symmachus, though no manuscript attributes it to one of the Three. Indeed, support for the inference that the line is hexaplaric is weak. Text extant in Hebrew but not in Origen's Old Greek was added to his Fifth Column from one of the Three, usually Theodotion. Material in the Hexaplaric Text that clearly cannot be connected with the Three, as is the case here, is almost certainly Old Greek. Origen himself stated that for Lamentations, versions from Aquila and Theodotion were not extant, only those from the Septuagint and Symmachus (see Ziegler, p. 467). This statement, however, is only partially supported by evidence elsewhere: fragments attributed to Aquila are extant for Lamentations, but none attributed to Theodotion is found. Therefore one cannot on the basis of this statement automatically assign marginal materials lacking attribution to Symmachus. Ziegler's attempt to attribute 3.29 to Symmachus is not convincing; the translation technique may well fit Theodotion or Aquila but not the style of Symmachus. Note, for example, the rendering of עָפַר by χῶμα. In 2.10b, the only other occurrence of עָפַר in Lamentations, we have the similar term χούς. This pattern is similar to Theodotion in Job (עָפַר = χῶμα 14.8b, 19b; 17.16b; 19.25b; 20.11b; 22.24a; 28.6b; = χούς 39.14b), but uncharacteristic of Symmachus. Where Symmachus can be distinguished from Old Greek, Aquila and Theodotion, he has χούς only in Job 41.25, never χῶμα, and uses alternative equivalents like κόνις in Job 5.6; 40.13; Ps 21(22).30; 29(30).10. An unanswered question is whether or not our Old Greek text of Lamentations is the work of Theodotion. Either Theodotion did not render or revise this book, or he did, and all evidence is now lost, or the Old Greek text we now have is from Theodotion. The external evidence for 3.29 does look suspiciously recensional, but interestingly, most of the support is from witnesses that have also preserved 3.22–24, although support is not as widespread. True, a full citation of 3.27–29 by Origen (Contra Celsum 7.25) does not have the line in question, but it is possible that the parablepsis occurred before Origen's time. The case is by no means as straightforward as that of 3.22–24 and external evidence weaker, but it is easier to imagine the mistake being made in the transmission of the Greek text than being made by the original translator. The text will be included, but enclosed within square brackets to indicate uncertainty.

² See Pietersma, "Acrostic Poems," 195–199.

εἰ ἄρα ἐστὶν ἐλπίς.]

Fourth is the case of 3.42. The editions of Rahlfs and Ziegler are as follows, including Apparatus I of Ziegler and the Masoretic Text:

Ra: Ἠμαρτήσαμεν, ἠσεβήσαμεν, καὶ οὐχ ἰλάσθης.

Zi: Ἠμαρτήσαμεν ἠσεβήσαμεν καὶ παρεπικράναμεν, καὶ οὐχ ἰλάσθης.

PsCyp.] > rel.: homoiot. | οὐχ pr. συ O-Qmḡ L' c-239 Tht. PsCyp. = MT
נחננו פשענו ומרינו אתה לא סלחת

This problem can best be resolved by careful consideration of translation technique. Clearly καὶ οὐχ ἰλάσθης renders סלחת לא אתה or סלחת לא in the parent text. Less clear, however, are the original renderings of the first two predications. Leaving 3.42 aside for the moment, all instances of the verb חטא are rendered solely by ἁμαρτάνω (1.8a; 5.7a, 16b). The noun חטאת occurs twice in the parent text and in both instances is translated by ἁμαρτία (1.8a; 3.39). The noun חטאת occurs three times in the Hebrew and is twice rendered by ἀνομία (4.6a, 13a), once by ἀσέβημα 4.22b. The verb פשע occurs only in 3.42, but the noun is found three times in the parent text and is rendered by ἀσέβεια in 1.5b, by ἀσέβημα in 1.14a and by ἁμαρτήμα in 1.22b. The parent text has three instances of the verb מרה and all are rendered by παραπικραίνω (1.18a, 20bbis). In addition, the adjective מר is translated by πικραίνω in 1.4c and the noun מרה by πικρία in 3.15. πικρία also renders Hebrew לענה in 3.20[19 MT], but χολή is employed for the other instance of this word in 3.15. To complete the picture, note that the noun עון is rendered by ἀνομία three times, (4.6a, 22a, 22b), by ἀνόμημα once (5.7b) and by ἀδικία twice (2.14b; 4.13a). While the Greek translator of Lamentations is not absolutely rigid in his equivalents for Hebrew terms for “sin,” the degree of stereotyping is high. Normally words from the ἁμαρτ- root are employed for words in Hebrew from חטא, words from פשע are rendered by lexemes from the ἀσεβ- root, and עון is rendered by ἀνομία and ἀδικία. The translator tries to distinguish the nouns חטאת and חטאת by employing ἁμαρτία for the former and ἀνομία for the latter. The use of ἀνομία in 4.22a for עון is what motivates the use of ἀσέβημα as an alternative for חטאת in 4.22b. The rendering of lexemes from מרה by words from the πικρ- root is stereotypical.

If Rahlfs is right, פשע would be rendered by ἁμαρτάνω and מרה by ἀσεβέω, uniquely in both cases. Neither is likely in terms of translation technique. Ziegler is an advance on Rahlfs, since he correctly includes καὶ παρεπικράναμεν, omitted due to parablepsis. Ziegler is also aware that 3.42 is a confession of sin that is somewhat typical in the Old Testament and attributes variants largely in the L group (Lucianic recension) to the influence of parallel passages. Unfortunately, he did not pursue this tack far enough. Almost certainly, ἀσεβήσαμεν is the rendering of the Greek translator for פשענו and ἠμαρτήσαμεν is due to harmonization from parallel passages along with the loss of καὶ παρεπικράναμεν through parablepsis.

There is also no good reason to exclude the pronouns ἡμεῖς and σύ as hexaplaric just because they are in the Hexaplaric Group and equal MT. First, there is no textual testimony to indicate that they were introduced from the Three. Second, in terms of translation technique, the independent first and second person pronouns are always rendered by pronouns in Greek elsewhere by the Greek translator (״נָס = ἐγώ 1.16a[15cMT], 21a; 3:1, 63; וְנַנְסָא = ἡμεῖς 5.7b; וְנָסָא = σύ 1.21b; 5.19a), and the third person pronouns are usually so (״נָסָא by αὐτός in 3.10, by ἐστίν in 1.18a; ״נָסָא by αὐτή in 1.4c, 8c and zero in 1.3b; ״נָסָא by αὐτοί in 1.19a). It is therefore out of character for the Greek translator not to render וְנַנְסָא and ״נָסָא in 3.42. Thus, we consider the following to be the original text: Ἡμεῖς ἠσεβήσαμεν καὶ παρεπικράναμεν, καὶ σύ οὐχ ἰλάσθης.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

Greek Lamentations is chiefly characterized by formal equivalence to the source language, i.e., Hebrew. More particularly, it belongs to a group of both translations and revisions known as the καίγε tradition, due to its standard rendering of ״נָס/״נָסָא by καίγε. D. Barthélemy first identified the tradition in his Les Devanciers d'Aquila (1963).³ He delineated nine key chief characteristics of members of the tradition. The chart below lists the traits and marks their presence (P) or inapplicability (NA) in the case of Greek Lamentations.

1. ״נָס/״נָסָא = καίγε	P
2. ״נָסָא = άνήρ	P
3. ״נָסָא = ἐπάνωθεν / ἀπάνωθεν + Genitive	NA
4. ״נָסָא - ״נָסָא = στηλόω	P
5. ״נָסָא ״נָסָא = σάλπιγγι / קרן = κερατίνη	NA
6. Elimination of Historical Presents	P
7. ״נָסָא = οὐκ ἔστιν when context = future / past	P
8. ״נָסָא = ἐγώ εἰμι	NA
9. ״נָסָא ״נָסָא = εἰς συνάντησιν	NA

Brief comments on patterns present in the Greek Lamentations are necessary.

1) καίγε for ״נָס (״נָסָא does not occur) is well attested: 1.8c; 2.9c; 3.8; 4.3a, 15b, 21b.

2) άνήρ for ״נָסָא appears in 3.33, but not as a distributive.

3) ״נָסָא is rendered twice. In 2.4a וְנַנְסָא ״נָסָא is translated ἐστερέωσε δεξιάν αὐτοῦ. Thus the equivalent is στερέωω, and the Hebrew parent text appears to be read as Hiphil rather than Niphal.⁴ In 3.12 וְנַנְסָא ״נָסָא is rendered by καὶ ἐστήλωσέ με and is therefore true to pattern.

4) Since in only one instance (4.19a = MT 18b) does a Greek present appear, it can safely be said that the translator was not in the habit of using historical presents.

5) The pseudo-verbal ״נָסָא is glossed six times as οὐκ ἔστιν (1.9b, 17a, 21a; 2.9b; 4.4b; 5.8b), once as οὐκ ἦν (1.7c), and three times as οὐκ ὑπάρχει/ὑπάρχουσιν (1.2b; 5.3a, 7a). Once ״נָסָא is rendered by τοῦ μὴ εἶναι (3.49). 1.21a is not in a succession of aorists and can be eliminated.

In sum, only three of the five patterns provide strong support that the Greek Lamentations belongs to the καίγε tradition.

Other scholars have proposed patterns additional to these nine, but they are not as crucial or significant.⁵ It is clear that some relationship exists between Greek Lamentations and other texts in the καίγε tradition, but it is not systematic.⁶

For the purposes of NETS it is useful to note that the approach of the translator to his task is one where faithfulness is defined and measured by a degree of quantitative alignment between Greek translation and Hebrew original. The Greek translation of Ruth is similar.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF LAMENTATIONS

In accordance with NETS policy this translation makes an attempt at reflecting the style of the Greek.

⁶ So also I. Assan-Dhote, "La version grecque des Lamentations de Jérémie" (Ph.D. diss. Université de Paris-Sorbonne, 1996) 55–62. An exhaustive study is now available: Kevin J. Youngblood, "Translation Technique in the Greek Lamentations" (Ph.D. diss. The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 2004).

Though ungrammatical English has been avoided, less than felicitous English may be expected. Formal equivalence is frequently given higher priority than idiomatic English.

The attempt to follow a model of translation similar to that of the Greek translator has occasionally created clashes with the NRSV. For example, in 3.33 NRSV has a free and idiomatic rendering of the Hebrew text: "for he does not willingly afflict or grieve anyone." Greek Lamentations renders the same Hebrew in extreme literalism. Some differences between NETS and NRSV are due to the fact that the Greek translator interprets the Hebrew differently; others reflect a difference in translational approach between the two.

On occasion the gender inclusive language policy of NRSV had to be abandoned in order to reflect the Greek adequately. For example, according to the approach of the Greek translator, אָנָשׁ is rendered by ἄνθρωπος (3.36, 39) and אִשָּׁה by ἄνθρωπος (3.33). This enables the Greek reader to track the differences between the two words in the parent text. In NETS, while gender inclusive renderings may be maintained for ἄνθρωπος, ἄνθρωπος is gender specific in Greek and is translated accordingly in English. There are also instances where gender inclusive language has been achieved by converting generic masculine singular pronouns and verbs to common gender plural pronouns and verbs or by altering active constructions to passive. Sometimes this so alters the formal equivalence between NRSV and the Hebrew that the formal equivalence between the Greek and the Hebrew cannot be fairly represented this way. 3.35 and 36 may illustrate the attempt in NETS to represent the exact way in which the Greek reproduces the Hebrew text.

EDITORIAL POLICY

While the Greek translator does not always read the beginning and ending of sentences or connections between clauses in the Hebrew in the same way as NRSV, in essence the same versification is used. Differences can be indicated by different grammar and punctuation.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

NETS is for the most part a completely fresh translation of the Greek adapted to NRSV. Occasionally, the translation of Brenton was consulted and found to be useful. The doctoral dissertation of I. Assan-Dhote⁷ was graciously sent to me by the author, but unfortunately not until the Fall of 2000 when all research for the NETS Lamentations was virtually complete. It is interesting to note that she connects the Greek Lamentations with Theodotion, but her analysis of translation technique is not exhaustive.

PETER J. GENTRY

And it happened, after Israel was taken captive and Ierousalem was laid waste, Ieremias sat weeping and gave this lament over Ierousalem and said:

1 alph
How the city sat alone,
she who was full of peoples!
She has become like a widow—multiplied among the nations!
A ruler among the countries,
she has become tribute.

2 beth Weeping she wept in the night,
and her tears were on her cheeks;
of all those who love her
there is no one to comfort her.

All that were her friends dealt treacherously with her;
they became enemies to her.

her young girls are being led away,
and she, being embittered in herself.

Look, O Lord, and see that I have become one dishonored.

5 Those that oppress her have become
he head,
and her enemies kept flourishing, because the Lord humbled her for the multitude of her impieties;
her babes went away in captivity before an oppressor.

12 It is nothing to you,
labd all you who pass along the road!
Turn, and see if there is a sorrow like my sorrow, which has happened;
the Lord humbled me
on the day of the wrath of his anger.

6 And from daughter Sion^a has departed^a ouau all her majesty.
Her rulers became like rams that find no pasture,
and they were going in no strength before a pursuer.

13 From his height he sent fire in my bones;
mem he brought it down;
he spread a net for my feet;
he turned me backwards;
he gave me as one^c put away,
suffering pain all day long.

7 Ierusalem remembered
zai days of her humiliation and her rebuffs.
As for all her desired objects that were from days of old—when her people fell into the hands of an oppressor,
then there was no one to help her.
When her enemies saw,
they laughed at her being settled.

14 He was kept awake over all my impious noun deeds;
by my hands they were plaited
together;
they came up upon my neck;
my strength became weak;
because the Lord gave them in my hands,
I shall not be able to stand.

8 Ierusalem sinned sin,
heth so she became ashaken;
all those that honored her humiliated her,
for they saw her shame;
indeed, while she herself is groaning,
she also turned her face away.

15 The Lord removed samch all my strong men from my midst;
he proclaimed a season against me
to crush my choice men;
the Lord trod the wine vat
for virgin daughter Iouda.

(16)For these things I weep.

9 Her uncleanness^b was from^b her feet;
teth she did not remember her extremities.
And she brought down
things of great size;
there is no one to comfort her.
"O Lord, look at my humiliation, for an enemy became great!"

16 My eye has brought down water, ain because the one to comfort me is far from me,
the one to restore my life;
my sons became put away,
for an enemy prevailed.

10 An oppressor spread out his hand ioth over all her desired objects;
for she saw nations enter into her holy precinct, with reference to whom you commanded that they not enter into your assembly.

17 Sion spread out her hands;
pe there is no one to comfort her;
the Lord commanded regarding Iakob;
around him are those oppressing him.
Ierusalem became as one^c sitting apart^d among them.

11 All her people are groaning chaph as they search for bread;
they gave her desired objects for food to restore life.

18 The Lord is in the right, sade because I have made his mouth bitter.
Hear then, all you peoples,
and behold my sorrow;
my young women and my young men
went away in captivity.

19 I called to my lovers, but they deceived me;
 my priests and my elders failed in the city,
 because they sought food for themselves
 to restore their life,
 and they did not find it.

20 See, O Lord, that I am distressed;
 my stomach churned;
 my heart was turned in me,
 because I have embittered, when embittering.
 Outside a dagger made childless,
 just as death at home.

21 Hear then, because I am groaning;
 there is no one to comfort me.
 All my enemies heard of my troubles,
 and they rejoiced that you have acted.
 You brought on the day; you proclaimed the
 time,
 and they became just like me.

22 May all their evil doing come before
 you,
 and glean every grape of theirs
 as you gleaned in connection with all my sins,
 for my groanings are many
 and my heart is grieved.

2 How the Lord brought gloom in his anger over daughter Zion!
 He has thrown down from heaven
 to earth the splendor of Israel.
 And he did not remember the footstool of his feet

2 in the day of his anger.

(2)The Lord has drowned without sparing all the beauties of Iakob;
 in his wrath he broke down the strongholds of daughter Iouda;
 he glued them^a to the ground;
 he profaned her king and her rulers.

3 He broke off in the anger of his wrath
 every horn of Israel;
 he turned back his right hand
 from before the enemy, and he kindled in Iakob a flame like
 fire,
 and it consumed all things around.

4 He bent his bow as an enemy;
 he fixed firm his right hand as an opponent,
 and he killed all that my eyes desired
 in the tent of daughter Zion;
 he poured out his wrath like fire.

5 The Lord became like an enemy;
 he drowned Israel;
 he drowned her bastions;
 he laid in ruins its strongholds, and he multiplied in daughter Iouda
 a woman humiliated and humbled.

6 And he tore down his covert like a vine;
 he ruined his feast;
 the Lord made feast and sabbath to be forgotten in Zion, and he provoked in the indignation of his anger
 king and priest and ruler.

7 The Lord rejected his altar;
 he shook off his holy precinct;
 he crushed by the hand of an enemy the wall of her bastions;
 they gave forth a cry in the house of the Lord
 as on a feast day.

8 And the Lord returned to lay in ruins
 the wall of daughter Zion;
 he stretched out a measuring line;
 he did not turn back his hand from drowning,
 and the outer wall mourned,
 and the wall became weak along with it.

9 Her gates were stuck in the ground;
 he destroyed and shattered her bars,
 her king and her rulers among the nations.
 There is no law;
 indeed, her prophets did not see a vision from the Lord.

10 They sat on the ground;
 elders of daughter Zion were silent;
 they brought up dust on their head;
 they girded themselves with sackcloth;
 they brought down to the ground leading young women of Ierusalem.

11 My eyes failed in tears;
 my stomach churned;

my honor was poured out on the ground because of the fracture of the daughter of
my people,
as infant and suckling fail
in city squares.

12 To their mothers they said,
"Where is bread and wine?"
as they faint like the wounded
in city squares,
as their life is poured out into their mothers' bosom.

13 What witness shall I bear of you, or to what shall I compare you,
O daughter Ierousalem?
With what shall I equate you and comfort
you,
O virgin daughter Sion?
For the cup of your ruin was made great;
who will heal you?

14 Your prophets saw for you what is worthless and foolishness, and they did not expose your injustice,
to turn your captivity around;
and they saw for you worthless messages—and banishments!

15 All who pass along the road clapped their hands at you;
they hissed and wagged their head
at daughter Ierousalem:
"Is this the city, of which they say,
'Crown of splendor, Joy of all the
earth?'"

16 All your enemies opened their mouth against you;
they hissed and gnashed their teeth;
they cried, "We have swallowed her!
Only, this is the day
that we were expecting;
we have found it; we have seen!"

17 The Lord has done what he purposed;
he has carried out his words,
what he commanded from ancient days;
he demolished and did not spare,
and he has made the enemy rejoice over you;
he exalted the horn of the one oppressing
you.

18 Their heart cried out to the Lord:
O walls of Sion!

Bring down tears like wadis day and night!
Give yourself no calming down!
May your eye not be silent, O daughter!

19 Arise, give a cry of joy in the night at the beginnings of your watch!
Pour out like water your heart
before the presence of the Lord!
Lift your hands to him
for the life of your babes who faint with hunger at the beginning of all exits.

20 Look, Lord, and consider for whom have you gleaned grapes thus.
Will women eat the fruit of their womb?
A butcher^a made a gleaning.
Will you kill in the holy precinct of the Lord
priest and prophet?

21 Young child and old man fell asleep on the ground in the exits;
my young women and my young men
fell by the sword;
in the day of your anger you killed;
you slaughtered them; you did not spare.

22 He invited my sojournings from all around as to a feast day,
and on the day of the anger of the Lord
there was no one saved and left behind, as I^b prevailed and multiplied all my
enemies.

3 I am the man who sees poverty
by the rod of his wrath;
2 he took me along and led me away into darkness and not light; 3 only, against me he turned his hand all day long.

4 He made my flesh and my skin old;
he shattered my bones;
5 he built^c up against me and encircled my
head,
and it became exhausted;
6 he made me sit in dark places like the dead of long ago.

25 The Lord is good to those who wait for him, to the soul that will seek him.
26 A good thing it is—and it^e will wait and be quiet for the salvation of the Lord.
27 It is a good thing for a man when he bears a yoke in his youth.

28 He will sit alone and be silent, because he raised it on himself; [29 he will give his mouth in a heap of earth, if perhaps there is hope;]

30 he will give a cheek to him that smites it;
he will be fed with insults.

31 For the Lord will not reject forever; 32 for he who humbled will have compassion, according to the abundance of his mercy; 33 for he did not answer from his heart,
and he abased a man's sons:

34 to abase under his feet all the prisoners of
the land,
35 to turn aside a man's case in the presence of the Most High, 36 to condemn a person when he goes to law—did not the Lord see?

37 Who is this that spoke, and it happened?
Did the Lord not command it?
38 Will bad and good not come from the mouth of the Most High?
39 Why will any person alive grumble,
a man, concerning his sin?

40 Our way was investigated and examined, and so let us return to the Lord.
41 Let us take up our hearts in our hands to a high one in heaven.
42 We^f have acted impiously, and we embittered you^g,
and you were not appeased.

43 You covered us over in wrath and pursued us;

LETTER OF IEREMIAS

TO THE READER

EDITION OF GREEK TEXT

The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of the Letter of Jeremias (Jeremiah) is based on the critical edition of Joseph Ziegler (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Societatis Litterarum Göttingensis editum XV: Ieremias Baruch Threni Epistula Ieremiae [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1957]). The verse numbering follows that of the critical text.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

Translation from Hebrew?

Although in the Septuagint the Letter of Jeremias (LetJer) is a discrete unit, in the Vulgate it forms chapter 6 of the book of Barouch. Many scholars are convinced that, even though no Semitic Vorlage for the Greek text is extant, it is indeed a translation. A number of features of the book are more typical of original Greek composition, however. Carey Moore identifies “three lines of linguistic evidence” that he considers probative for concluding that the Letter originated as a translation.¹ First, a number of Greek readings seem to stem from misreadings of a Hebrew parent text. So, for example: (1) In v. 11 the Greek claims that the idols of the Gentiles cannot save themselves from “rust and foods (βρωμάτων).” The “translator” has apparently confused two possible pointings of מֵאֲכָל—one meaning “from a devourer” (so, for example, in Mal 3.11 a consuming insect, locust or moth) and one meaning food;² (2) γνώριμοι in v. 14 represents a mistake on the part of the “translator,” who evidently read מוֹרְעִים as a noun rather than a participle;³ and (3) in v. 71 the translator produced “from the purple and marble (μαρμάρου) that rots upon them.” Of course, marble does not rot, and here we see a confusion of the Hebrew word for “alabaster” or “marble,” שֵׁשׁ, with its homograph, which means “fine linen.”⁴ Second, a Semitic original seems the best explanation for the existence of some variant readings. So, for instance, in v. 54, the Greek reads, “like crows (κορώναι) between heaven and earth,” for which the Syriac has “ravens.” The inherent difficulty of the verse and the Syriac’s “ravens” together suggest that the Greek “translator” may have read a Hebrew כַּעֲרִבִים, “as the clouds,” as כַּעֲרִבִים, “as the crows.”⁵ Third, Moore notes the presence of what he identifies as “Hebraisms,” such as the use of the Greek future tense as a present tense and what looks like the rendering of the Hebrew infinitive absolute in v. 4—μη καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀφομοιωθέντες τοῖς ἀλλοφύλοις ἀφομοιωθήτε, “lest you too, having been made like the allophytes, become like them.”⁶ One last bit of evidence that we have in LetJer is that in v. 69 the Greek has, “For like a scarecrow in a cucumber patch,” a phrase that occurs in the Hebrew of Jer 10.5, but not in the Greek, which indicates that the author of the Letter drew on the Hebrew of Jeremiah, and the Greek translator rendered what he had before him.

Each of these “lines of linguistic evidence”—misreadings, variant readings, and Hebraisms—are characteristic of the translation process, and they could point to the genesis of LetJer as a translation. At least two of Moore’s examples are somewhat weak, however. First, the use of γνώριμοι in v. 14 might not be a misreading at all, since the Greek word can just as well be an adjective as a noun. Second, two obstacles stand in the way of understanding the phrase ἀφομοιωθέντες τοῖς ἀλλοφύλοις ἀφομοιωθήτε as reflecting an infinitive absolute in a presumed Hebrew Vorlage. Both the existence of paranomasia in the Greek and the interposition of τοῖς ἀλλοφύλοις between the participle and the verb, since the infinitive absolute in Hebrew keeps the two verbal forms immediately adjacent to one another, mitigate the force of this interpretation.

Composition in Greek?

Whereas Letler undeniably contains elements indicative of translation, other features of this work are not typical of the kind of Greek normally seen in the Septuagint. One of the most frequently occurring is the use of Greek particles. Letler often uses as connectors particles that require second position in the clause—a feature not found in Hebrew grammar. The numbers are really quite staggering for a book of a scant 72 verses: οὐν, 12x; γάρ, 16x; δέ, 23x; τε (counting its use as a coordinator of all types, including the negative οὐτε) 33x. Some entire books of the Septuagint do not contain 23 occurrences of δέ. The appearance of these particles might suggest that the Greek writer was interested in the logical connection of one clause to another, but that is by no means apparent in the frequency with which these words appear. In fact, their logical force is almost blunted by how many times they appear sequentially in one clause after the other.

Finally, there are a number of places where the Greek text really makes little sense, or, at least, one has to work very hard to wrest some sense from it. In other books of the Septuagint, scholars often understand such difficult passages as indicating the translator's inability to make sense of the Hebrew Vorlage. Perhaps the best example of such a case in Letler is vv. 40–41. In these two verses, one is often at a loss to know what the writer is trying to communicate. In v. 40 the claim is made that the Chaldeans dishonor their gods. The Greek as we have it, however, really does not satisfactorily say how they do this. They encounter and then bring a mute person to Bel—but then the uncertainty really begins. The third clause of the verse, because the object is not explicit, is not clear as to whether the Chaldeans expect the mute person to speak or whether it is their god Bel who should talk. In v. 41, the Greek grammar suggests that the Chaldeans, even though they understand that their gods cannot speak or make the mute speak, cannot abandon their gods and thus are as senseless as they. How, one wonders, does their inability to leave their gods dishonor them? Perhaps this logical difficulty is what prompts both the NRSV and Moore to render the text so that, contrary to the Greek, the Chaldeans do not perceive and thus they actually do abandon their gods—precisely the opposite of what the Greek grammar would lead one to think. Moore's and the NRSV's English translations at least bring a logical consistency to the passage and the actions could thus be understood as dishonoring the idols.

One approach to this conundrum would be to conclude that the difficulty reflects a translator who did not understand the full import of a Hebrew parent text or who got lost in a difficult Hebrew sentence, and as a result he made something of a mess out of these verses. A possible way to check or confirm this explanation might be to reconstruct a possible Hebrew Vorlage for these verses. Although any attempt at retroversion from Greek into Hebrew ought to be undertaken with caution, these verses do not retrovert into Hebrew very readily at all. Indeed, the complexity of the verses really looks more like an overworked stab at Greek rhetorical style than a translation.

Inconclusive Evidence

So, Letler presents us with a confusing situation. On the one hand, several features of this text could be the result of the process of translating from Hebrew to Greek. On the other hand, the relatively frequent appearance of elements of compositional style and certain normal features of Greek, such as the extensive use of particles and the occurrence of verbal adjectives ending in -τεος (for which there is no Hebrew equivalent) indicate that the writer is working at the least at the discourse level (and perhaps originally in Greek). When one surveys the entire work, there is a notable absence of telltale signs of the different translational styles that one finds elsewhere in the Jewish-Greek corpus. Further study of this problem in Letler seems necessary and would benefit from an analysis of the letter's Greek style, which seems a desideratum for the work. At best, then, we can conclude that the evidence for Letler being a translation is inconclusive at this juncture.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF THE LETTER

Since Letler does display at least some evidence of being a translation, I have taken a practical approach and followed all of the usual NETS guidelines for a translated text. In those cases where the Greek could be a misreading of a missing Semitic parent, I have retained the "misreading." So, for example, even though marble does not rot, that is what the Greek writer produced and that is the text I have translated. In several cases where the Greek is awkward or even close to nonsensical, I have retained that flavor in NETS, while maintaining grammatical English. As a result, the NETS translation varies from the NRSV (and Moore's translation incidentally) at quite a number of places, since the NRSV assumes that the Letler is a self-standing Greek text that should be comprehensible on its own. NETS does not make such assumptions.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

The best commentary on the Letter to date is Carey A. Moore's Anchor Bible Commentary—Daniel, Esther and Jeremiah: The Additions (AB 44; Garden City, NY: Doubleday, 1977). For other literature on Letter, see Moore's bibliography, AB 331–332.

BENJAMIN G. WRIGHT

A copy of a letter that Ieremias sent to those who would be led as captives into Babylon by the king of the Babylonians to proclaim to them just as it was commanded to him by God.

1 On account of the sins that you have sinned against God, you will be led into Babylon as captives by Nabouchodonosor, king of the Babylonians. ²When, therefore, you come into Babylon, you will be there for rather many years, even for a long time, as long as seven generations. But after this, I will bring you from there with peace. ³Now then, you will see in Babylon silver and gold and wooden gods being carried upon shoulders causing fear to the nations. ⁴Beware, therefore, lest you too, having been made like the allophyles, ^abecome like^a them and reverence for them^b seizes you ⁵when you see a crowd before and behind them doing obeisance to them, but say in thought, "It is necessary to bow down to you, O Master." ⁶For my angel^c is with you, and he himself is seeking out your souls.

7 For their tongue has been smoothed by a craftsman, and they are overlaid with gold and silver. Yet they are fake and are not able to speak. ⁸And just as for a maiden who loves ornamentation, taking gold, ⁹they construct crowns upon the heads of their gods. But it is also the case that the priests, purloining gold and silver from their gods, will spend it on themselves. ¹⁰And they will give of them also to the prostitutes at the brothel. And they adorn them^b with clothes like human beings—gods of silver and gold and wood. ¹¹But they are not kept safe from rust and food^d. When they are dressed in purple clothing, ¹²they have their face wiped because of the dust from the house, which is rather much upon them. ¹³And he^e has a scepter like a human district judge, he^e who will not destroy the one who sins against him. ¹⁴And he has a hand-knife in his right and an ax but will not deliver himself from war and robbers. Whence they are recognizable as not being gods. Do not, therefore, fear them.

15 For just as when a person's implement, when broken, becomes useless, ¹⁶such are their gods, though they are established in houses. Their eyes are full of dust from the feet of those who enter. ¹⁷And just as the courtyards are fortified all around against anyone who has wronged the king as though sentenced to death, the priests secure their houses with doorways and bolts and bars, lest they be stripped by robbers. ¹⁸They burn lamps even more than for themselves, none of which they^b can see. ¹⁹Just like one of the beams of the house they are, and they do not notice that their hearts, it is said, are licked out, as the creeping creatures from the earth devour both them and their clothing, ²⁰blackened in their face by the smoke from the house. ²¹Bats, swallows and birds ride upon their bodies and their heads, just as also the cats do. ²²Whence you will know that they are not gods. Do not, therefore, fear them.

23 For the gold, which they wear for beauty, unless someone wipes off the corrosion, they will not make it shine, for they were not sentient, even when they were cast. ²⁴Those things in which there is no breath are bought at all cost. ²⁵Lacking feet they are carried upon shoulders displaying their dishonor to people, and even those who attend to them are ashamed ²⁶on account of the fact that they are made to stand up by them, lest it^e fall to the ground. Not even if some one makes it stand upright, will it move by itself, nor if it leans over, will it straighten itself up, but gifts are placed before them, just as before the dead. ²⁷But their priests, by selling their sacrifices, use them^b. And likewise also their wives preserve some of them^f, but they do not share any with the poor or disabled. ²⁸One who sits apart^g and one who has just given birth touch their sacrifices. Since you know, therefore, from these things that they are not gods, do not fear them.

29 For on what basis can they be called gods? Because women serve up for gods of silver and gold and wood! ³⁰And in their houses the priests take their seat with their tunics torn and their heads and beards shaved, whose heads are uncovered. ³¹And they howl and shout before their gods as some do at a funeral feast for a corpse. ³²Taking from their^b clothing, the priests clothe their wives and children. ³³Whether they experience evil from someone, or whether it be good, they will not be able to repay. They can neither empower a king nor can they remove him. ³⁴Likewise they can neither give wealth nor money^h. If anyone, professing a vow to them, does not keep it, they will not demand it. ³⁵They will not deliver a person from death nor rescue a weak person from a strong one. ³⁶They will not restore a blind person to sight; they will not rescue a person who is in anguish.

³⁷They will not have pity on a widow nor treat an orphan well. ³⁸These things that are made of wood and overlaid with gold and silver are like stones from a mountain, and those who attend to them will be put to shame. ³⁹Why then should they be thought to be or be called gods?

40 Furthermore, though the Chaldeans themselves bring them into disrespect—when they see a mute incapable of speech, bring him and request that Bel utter an articulate sound, as though he^a were capable of sensation—⁴¹they are incapable of abandoning them^b, though they themselves have observed it. For they^c have no sense. ⁴²And the women, wrapping cords around themselves, sit in the streets burning bran as incense! ⁴³And when one of them is drawn away by one of those who passes by to have sexual intercourse, she chides her companion, because she was not valued as she herself was, nor has she had her cord^d torn. ⁴⁴Everything that happens for them^b is fake. How then should one consider or call them gods?

45 They have been constructed by carpenters and goldsmiths; they are nothing other than what the artisans want them to be. ⁴⁶And they who construct them will not themselves be long-lived. ⁴⁷How then indeed are the things made by them going to be gods? For they have left behind lies and disgrace for those who come after. ⁴⁸For when war or evils come upon them^b, the priests take counsel with themselves about where to hide with them^b. ⁴⁹How then can one not perceive that they are not gods, who save themselves neither from war nor from calamities? ⁵⁰For being wood and overlaid with gold and silver, it will be known thereafter that they are fake; it will be clear to all nations and kings that they are not gods but the works of human hands and that there is no divine work in them. ⁵¹By whom then should it not be known that they are not gods?

52 For they will not set up a king of a country, nor will they give rain to people. ⁵³And they will not decide their own case or deliver one who is wronged, since they are powerless. ⁵⁴For like crows between heaven and earth they are. For also when fire attacks a house of gods who are wooden or overlaid with gold or silver, their priests flee and will come through safely, but they^b will be burned up like the center beams. ⁵⁵And they shall not withstand king or enemies. ⁵⁶How then must it be admitted or reckoned that they are gods?

Gods made of wood and overlaid with silver and gold will not be safe either from thieves or from bandits, ⁵⁷the strong of whom will strip away the gold and silver, and they make off with the clothing they^b wear. Nor shall they^b help themselves. ⁵⁸So it is better to be a king who displays his manliness or a useful vessel in a house, which the owner will use, than these fake gods, or even a door in a house that keeps safe those things that are in it than these fake gods, and a wooden pillar in palaces than these fake gods.

59 For sun and moon and stars are bright, and when they are sent for a service, they are obedient. ⁶⁰So also lightning, when it flashes, is conspicuous. And the same wind also blows in every country. ⁶¹And as for clouds, when ordered by God to traverse the entire inhabited world, they accomplish what is ordained. ⁶²And the fire sent out from above to destroy utterly mountains and woods will do what is prescribed. But these things^b are similar neither in appearances nor in powers. ⁶³Whence one should neither think them to be nor call them gods, since they are not able either to judge a case or to treat humans well. ⁶⁴Since you know, therefore, that they are not gods, do not fear them.

65 For they cannot curse or bless kings, ⁶⁶and they cannot show signs in heaven among the nations or shine like the sun or give light like the moon. ⁶⁷The animals, which, fleeing to shelter, are able to help themselves, are superior to them. ⁶⁸It is clear to us that they are in no manner gods. Therefore do not fear them.

69 For as a scarecrow in a cucumber field guards nothing, so are their gods of wood and gold and silver overlay. ⁷⁰In the same way also their gods of wood and overlaid with gold and silver are similar to a thorn bush in a garden on which every bird perches, and so also to a corpse thrown out in darkness. ⁷¹And from the purple and marble^e that rots upon them you will know that they are not gods. And finally they will themselves be consumed, and there will be disgrace in the country. ⁷²Better, therefore, is a righteous person who does not have idols, for he will be far from reproach.

IEZEKIEL

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The NETS version of Iezekiel (Ezekiel) follows the Greek edition by Joseph Ziegler Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum XVI.1: Ezekiel (Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1977) in all points with the exception of some matters of punctuation and sentence divisions.

With the MT as the point of comparison, the LXX text features numerous omissions as well as some additions. Larger omissions occur in chaps. 32 and 33, where all of 32.19; and 33.26 are absent from the Septuagint text, and the larger part of 32.23, 25, 31; 33.25 and 27 are lacking. Larger plusses occur in Iezek 40.6–8 and 43 and 44. The reader will also note a shuffling in the order of verses at the beginning of chap. 7.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

The Greek translators follow an isomorphic model of translation quite closely, preferring to employ a Greek item to represent each Hebrew item. But within this approach, (explained as the interlinear model; see “TO THE READER OF NETS”), the Greek translators employ relative freedom in the choice of the exact terms used in various contexts. The translation shows both semantic leveling, as one Greek term can be used to represent several Hebrew terms, but it also shows a great deal of semantic differentiation, as many Greek terms can be used to render one Hebrew term. To cite a particularly clear example of semantic differentiation, the single Hebrew term “sword” (כֶּלֶבֶת) is translated by four different Greek terms: “sword” (ρόμφαία), “dagger” (μάχαιρα), “hand-knife” (ἐγχειρίδιον) and “rapier” (ξίφος). The first two terms alternate as the most common translation of כֶּלֶבֶת depending on the political context of the prophecies, while the latter two terms occur only five times overall, being reserved for specific contexts. In chaps. 5–24 where the prophecies concern Israel, the standard translation is “sword” (ρόμφαία), occurring 34x, whereas “dagger” (μάχαιρα) only occurs twice in these same chapters. The relative frequency inverts in chaps. 25–32 where the focus of the prophecies shifts to other nations. There “dagger” (μάχαιρα) occurs 27x compared to only 7 for “sword” (ρόμφαία). Then in chap. 33 the situation inverts again as the focus of the prophecies shifts back to Israel and “sword” (ρόμφαία) occurs 5x compared to one for “dagger” (μάχαιρα). In yet another reversal the prophecies concerning Gog and Magog in chaps. 38 and 39 “dagger” (μάχαιρα) occurs four times as the exclusive translation for כֶּלֶבֶת. “Hand-knife” (ἐγχειρίδιον) occurs only three times, in 21.3, 4 and 5, where it describes the Lord’s own weapon, and “rapier” (ξίφος) occurs only in 16.40 and 23.47, in both contexts describing a lover’s sword used to slay a prostitute.

The choice of terms in many cases possibly reflects changes made according to political contexts, since terms seem to vary based upon the nation being discussed, be it Israel, Egypt, Idumea (Edom), Tyre, Sidon or others. While it is possible that the translators were trying to be sensitive to political nuances, another explanation would be that different translators handled different materials and therefore word choices reflect the individual preferences of separate translators.

So for example, the terms for political leaders show both semantic leveling and differentiation that generally correspond to political contexts. The translators seem to avoid using royal language to describe the rulers of Israel, even when the Hebrew employs royal language to describe them. Instead, to describe the leaders in Israel the translators use the rather generic terms “leader/guide” (ἀφηγούμενος) and “guide/leader” (ηγούμενος) or “ruler” (ἄρχων). So even when the Hebrew uses the term “king” (מֶלֶךְ) three times to describe the kings of Israel in 43.7 and 9, the Greek translators use the term “guide/leader” (ηγούμενος). Elsewhere, the translators regularly use the royal term “king” (βασιλεύς) to translate מֶלֶךְ, but in those contexts it does not describe the kings of Israel but rather the kings of Babylon (17.12 and 16 and elsewhere), of the earth (27.33), of the islands (27.35), of Egypt (29.2; 30.10 and elsewhere). The only king of Israel or Judah who bears the title “king” (βασιλεύς) is Ioakim in 1.2. Even David is not described as “king” (βασιλεύς) in 37.24 but rather as “ruler” (ἄρχων), even though the Hebrew reads

"king" (מֶלֶךְ). Likewise, the term מִשְׁנֵי, which the NRSV translates as "prince" when referring to princes in Israel, is rendered with the terms "ruler" (ἄρχων), "leader/guide" (ἀφηγούμενος) and "guide/leader" (ἡγούμενος) (see 12.12; 46.2; 45.7).

The translators also (possibly) show variations in their choice of terms to describe the destruction of different political entities, including cities and countries. So they translate the term "desolation" (שְׁמָמָה) as "annihilation" (ἀφανισμός), i.e., devastation to the point of complete disappearance, when describing the destruction of Israel in chaps. 6–23. But when describing the "desolation" (שְׁמָמָה) of Egypt in chap. 29, the Greek has the term "destruction/ruin" (ἀπώλεια), and then "desolation" (ἔρημία or ἔρημος) when describing Mount Seir in chap. 35, which implies that the land is emptied but still exists. So "wilderness" (ἔρημος) translates the term "wilderness" (מִדְבָּר) in chaps. 6–20, when the discussion concerns Israel; then it translates "ruins" (חֲרָבָה) in chaps. 25–30 when the discussion switches to Edom, Tyre and Egypt. In chaps. 33–35 where the discussion concerns the mountains of Seir and Israel, "wilderness" (ἔρημος) translates "desolation" (שְׁמָמָה). Then in chaps. 36 and 38, which promise the restoration of the ruined areas in Israel, "wilderness" (ἔρημος) once again translates "ruins" (חֲרָבָה). Other words for destruction in both noun and verb forms show similar patterns of differentiation.

As a final set of examples of possible political contextualization, the terms regarding sin show a high degree of differentiation in various political contexts, although not as consistently as the terms for rulers or even the terms for destruction. So the term "misdeed" (עוֹן) is rendered as "injustice" (ἀδικία) in chaps. 3–24, regarding the sin of Israel. An exception occurs in 16.49, in the long comparison of Israel to a prostitute where "misdeed" (עוֹן) is translated as "lawless act" (ἀνομία). But the same term "misdeed" (עוֹן) is rendered as "sin" (ἁμαρτία) regarding the ruler of Tyre in 28.18 and as "lawlessness" (ἀνομία) regarding the misdeeds of Egypt, Mosoch (Meshech) and Thobel (Tubal) in 29.16 and 32.27. Then, in chaps. 33–44, where the discussion reverts to Israel, "misdeed" (עוֹן) is translated by four different terms, "lawlessness" (ἀνομία), "impiety" (ἀσέβεια), "sin" (ἁμαρτία) and "injustice" (ἀδικία) in 33.8; 33.9; 39.23 and 44.10, respectively.

The variation of terms found in the Greek translation does not concern only political contexts but is reflected in many other terms as well. For example, the term "spirit" or "wind" (רוּחַ) is translated by six different Greek terms: "wind" (ἄνεμος), "spirit/wind" (πνεῦμα), "blast/breath" (πνοή), "fervor" (θυμός), "face" (πρόσωπον) and "part" (μέρος), depending on the precise linguistic context.

As a result of the nuancing of their terms, the translators produce a Greek text that is, for the most part, quite understandable, although their excessive literalism can present problems for the reader of the Greek text. Very problematic is the lack of nuance shown in rendering the Hebrew word נָתַתְּ "give," which can also mean "to set," "establish," "appoint" or "turn into." But despite the variations of the Hebrew meanings, the translators almost always render it with δίδωμι "give," which does not have the same extended range of meanings as does Hebrew נָתַתְּ, with the result that many turns of phrase must have sounded odd to a Greek ear.

Also problematic is the literal translation of the Hebrew oath formula, as exemplified in 16.48: "I live, says the Lord, if your sister Sodoma has acted, she and her daughters, as you and your daughters acted! . . ." What follows the "if" clause is left unspoken, so the reader is left with an unresolved conditional clause and a sentence fragment.

THE NETS TRANSLATION

There are two ways to depart from a literal one-for-one correspondence of Greek terms for Hebrew terms. Either several Greek terms can be used to translate a single Hebrew term or a single Greek term can be used for several Hebrew terms. Both are commonplace in the Greek translation of Iezekiel in a way that cannot be characterized as either pure semantic leveling or as pure semantic nuancing, because one-for-many and many-for-one substitutions occur for the same terms. So, for example, the Greek term "stretch out" (ἐκτείνω) translates five different Hebrew terms: פָּרַד (1.11); שָׁר (1.23); שָׁלַח (2.9); נָטָה (1.22); and קָרַם (37.6). Taken by itself it would appear to be a case of semantic leveling. But if one looks at פָּרַד, one of the Hebrew terms translated by ἐκτείνω, פָּרַד is itself translated by five distinct Greek terms: ἐξαποστέλλω (3.6); ἀποστέλλω (7.3); ἐκτείνω (8.3); ἐπαποστέλλω (14.19); ψιλόω (44.20). As a result, it is impossible to assert that the translators were leveling the translations for the term פָּרַד and related terms. There is an interlocking pattern of both one-for-many and many-for-one substitutions.

As a result where there is a pattern of one-for-one translations for terms, NETS also follows a straight one-for-one substitution following the NRSV, as much as possible. But where there is a many-for-one pattern interwoven with a one-for-many pattern, NETS varies the terms that are used for the Greek terms, as much as possible. Each Greek-for-Hebrew translation couplet is represented by distinct English terms. So when ἐκτείνω translates פָּשַׁח, it is represented in NETS by “extend,” but when it translates נָטַח, it is represented by “stretch out,” since ἐκτείνω is being used in two different ways. Likewise, when פָּשַׁח is translated by ἐξαποστέλλω, NETS uses “send,” whereas when פָּשַׁח is translated by ἐκτείνω, again NETS uses “extend,” because two different terms are being used to translate a single Greek term. Since the translations display neither pure leveling nor nuancing, the departures from literal one-for-one substitutions are both marked by a variation of the terms in NETS.

As for the exceptional one-for-one literalism in the use of δίδωμι for נָתַן, NETS seeks to represent the problem by rendering “give” (δίδωμι) with synonyms for “give,” even when they produce a somewhat forced translation, to try to represent the literalism of the Greek translation with regard to the term.

Finally, there are numerous cases of disagreement between subject and verb of the sentence, where a plural noun disagrees with a singular verb. In these cases, the offending noun and pronoun or verb are rendered as they are in Greek to indicate a disruption of the normal pattern of grammatical agreement. For example 3.7 reads: “But the house of Israel shall not be willing to listen to you, for they do not wish to listen to me, because all the house of Israel are contentious and hard-hearted.” The singular “house of Israel” does not agree with the plural forms of the verb in the next clauses, resulting in a lack of agreement in the NETS translation.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

I would like to thank Albert Pietersma for all his insightful comments regarding the translation of Iezekiel, Benjamin Wright for his efforts to organize the project and keep it on track, and Matt Olsen and my wife, Meredyth Hubler, for their patient proofreading. Good use has been made of the standard grammars and lexica.

J. NOEL HUBLER

1 And it happened in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth of the month, and I was in the middle of the captivity by the river Chobar, and the heavens were opened, and I saw divine appearances. ²On the fifth of the month (this was the fifth year of the captivity of King Iozakim) ⁽³⁾and a word of the Lord came to the priest Iezekiel son of Bouzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chobar, ³and the hand of the Lord came upon me.

⁴ And I looked, and behold, a rising wind was coming out of the north, and a great cloud was in it, and radiance was all around it and fire flashing forth, and in the middle of it^a was something like a sight of electrum in the middle of the fire, and radiance was in it^b. ⁵And in the middle was something like a likeness of four living beings, and this was their appearance: a human likeness was upon them, ⁶and one had four faces, and one had four wings. ⁷And their legs were straight, and their feet were winged, and there were sparks like flashing bronze, and their wings were nimble. ⁸And a human hand was underneath their wings on their four parts, and the faces of the four ⁹were not veering when they were going. Each was moving opposite their face. ¹⁰And as for the resemblance of their faces: there was a face of a human, and the four had a face of a lion on the right, and the four had a face of a calf on the left, and the four had a face of an eagle. ¹¹And the four had their wings, stretched out above. Each had two adjoined to each other, and two were covering up over their body. ¹²And each was moving according to its face. Wherever was the spirit as it moved, they were moving and were not veering. ¹³And in the middle of the living beings was an appearance like burning coals of fire, as the look of torches coming together between the living beings, and a radiance of the fire, and lightning was issuing from the fire.

¹⁵ And I looked, and behold, the four had one wheel on the ground, close to the living beings. ¹⁶And the aspect of the wheels was like the aspect of tharsis^c, and the four had one likeness, and their construction was just as if a wheel was within a wheel. ¹⁷They were moving upon their four parts, and they were not veering when they were moving, ¹⁸nor were their backs, and they had height, and I looked at them, and the four had their backs full of eyes all around. ¹⁹And when the living beings were moving, the wheels were moving next to them, and when the living beings rose from the ground, the wheels were raised. ²⁰Wherever was the cloud, there was the spirit to move; the living beings were moving, and the wheels were being raised with them, for a spirit of life was in the wheels. ²¹When the living beings were moving, they were moving, and when the living beings stopped, they stopped, and when the living beings rose from the ground, they were raised with them, for a spirit of life was in the wheels.

22 And over the head of the living beings, they had a likeness just like a firmament—like a sight of ice—stretched out on their wings from above. 23And under the firmament, their wings were stretched out, flapping, one against the other. Each had two wings covering over their bodies. 24And when they were moving, I heard the sound of their wings, like the sound of abundant water, and when they were pausing, their wings were resting. 25And behold, a voice from above the firmament that was over their heads.

26 Like an appearance of a lapis lazuli stone was the likeness of a throne upon it, and on the likeness of the throne was a likeness just as a form of a human above. 27And I saw something like the view of electrum from the appearance of the loin and up, and from the appearance of the loin and all the way down, I saw something like an appearance of fire, and its radiance was all around. 28Like an appearance of a bow whenever it is in the cloud in a day of rain, so was the vision of the radiance all around.

2 This was the appearance of a likeness of the glory of the Lord, and I looked and fell upon my face, and I heard a voice of one speaking.

(2.1) And he said to me: Son of man, stand upon your feet, and I will speak to you. 2And a spirit came upon me and took me up and raised me and set me upon my feet, and I heard him speaking to me, 3and he said to me, Son of man, I am sending you out to the house of Israel, those who are embittering me—who embittered me, they and their fathers, to this very day, 4and you shall say to them, “This is what the Lord says.” 5Whether then they hear or are terrified (for it is an embittering house), they shall also know that you are a prophet in their midst. 6And you, son of man, do not be afraid of them nor be dismayed from before them, because they will sting and band together against you all around, and you live in the midst of scorpions; do not be afraid of their words, and do not be dismayed from before them, for it is an embittering house. 7And you shall speak my words to them, whether then they hear or are terrified (for it is an embittering house).

8 And you, son of man, hear the one speaking to you. Do not become one who embitters just like the embittering house; open wide your mouth, and eat the things that I give you. 9And I saw and, behold, a hand stretched out to me, and in it was a scroll of a book. 10And he^a unrolled it before me, and on it the front and back were inscribed, and lamentation and strain and woe had been inscribed.

3 And he said to me, Son of man, devour this scroll, and go, and speak to the sons of Israel. 2And I opened wide my mouth, and he fed me the scroll. 3And he said to me, Son of man, your mouth shall eat, and your belly shall be filled with this scroll that has been given to you. And I ate it, and in my mouth it was like sweet honey.

4 And he said to me, Son of man, go, enter to the house of Israel, and speak my words to them, 5for not to a thick-lipped and heavy-tongued people are you being sent out, to the house of Israel— 6nor to many people of other languages or other tongues, neither being robust with their tongue, whose words you will not understand. Even if I had sent you out to such, these would have listened to you. 7But the house of Israel shall not be willing to listen to you, for they do not wish to listen to me, because all the house of Israel are contentious and hard-hearted. 8And behold, I have rendered your face powerful against their faces, and I will make strong your contention^b against their contention^b, 9and it shall be continually stronger than rock. Do not be afraid of them, nor be terrified from before them, for it is an embittering house. 10And he said to me, Son of man, all the words that I have spoken with you, take into your heart, and hear with your ears, 11and go, enter into the captivity, to the sons of your people, and you will speak to them and say to them, “This is what the Lord says”; whether, then, they hear, whether, then, they give in.

12 And a spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me a sound of a great shaking, “Blessed is the glory of the Lord from his place.” 13And I perceived the sound of the wings of the living beings as they flapped, one against the other. And there was a sound of the wheels beside them, and a sound of the shaking. 14And the spirit lifted me up and took me up, and I went in a rush of my spirit, and the hand of the Lord came strong upon me. 15And I came into the captivity high up and went around those living by the river Chobar, those that were there, and I sat there seven days face about among them.

16 And after seven days, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: 17Son of man, I have given you as a sentinel to the house of Israel, and you shall hear a word from my mouth, and you shall warn them from me. 18When I say to the lawless, “By death you shall be put to death,” and you did not give him strict orders, nor did you speak in order to give the lawless one strict orders to turn back from his ways that he might live, that lawless one shall die for his injustice, and I will demand his blood from your hand. 19And if you give the lawless one strict orders and he does not turn back from his lawlessness and his way, that lawless one shall die for his injustice, and you shall rescue your soul. 20And when a righteous one turns away from his righteous acts, and if he commits transgression, and I will give the test in front of him^c, he shall die, because you did not give him strict orders. And he shall die in his sins, for his righteous acts that he did shall not be remembered, and I will demand his blood from your hand. 21But you, if you give the righteous strict orders not to sin, and he does not sin, the righteous shall live by life, because you gave him strict orders, and you shall rescue your own soul.

22 And the hand of the Lord came upon me, and he said to me, "Rise up, and go out into the plain, and there it shall be spoken to you." 23 And I rose up and went out into the plain, and behold, the glory of the Lord stood there, just like the appearance and just like the glory that I saw by the river Chobar, and I fell upon my face. 24 And a spirit came upon me and set me on my feet, and he spoke to me and said to me: Enter, and be closed in within your house. 25 As for you, son of man, behold, bands have been given upon you, and they shall bind you with them, and you shall not go out from their midst. 26 And I will bind fast your tongue, and you shall be made mute, and to them you shall not be as a man who reproves, for it is an embittering house. 27 And when I speak to you, I will open your mouth, and you shall say to them, "This is what the Lord says." Let the one who hears hear, and let the one who refuses refuse, for it is an embittering house.

4 And you, son of man, take for yourself a brick, and you shall set it in front of you and portray upon it a city, Ierousalem. 2 And you shall give an enclosure against it and build siege walls against it and cast a palisade against it and give camps against it and line up the batteries of war engines all around. 3 And take for yourself an iron frying-pan, and you shall place it as an iron wall between you and between the city^a, and you shall ready your face against it. And it shall be in an enclosing, and you shall enclose it^a. This is a sign for the sons of Israel.

4 And you shall lie on your left side, and you shall place the injustices of the house of Israel upon it^b, in number, one hundred fifty days, during which you lie upon it^b, and you shall receive their injustices. 5 And I have given to you their two injustices for a number of days, one hundred ninety days. And you shall take the injustices of the house of Israel, 6 and you shall complete these things, and you shall lie on your right side and take the injustices of the house of Ioudas for forty days. A day for a year I have assigned you. 7 And for the enclosing of Ierousalem you shall ready your face, and you shall make firm your arm and prophesy against it^c. 8 As for me, behold, I have given bands upon you, and do not turn from your side to your side until the days of your enclosing are completed.

9 And you, take for yourself wheat and barley and beans and lentils and millet and spelt, and you shall put them into one earthen vessel and make them into bread for yourself, and during the number of days that you lie on your side, one hundred ninety days, you shall eat them. 10 And your food that you shall eat shall be twenty shekels a day by weight. From time to time you shall eat them. 11 And you shall drink water, by measure, one sixth of a hin^d. From time to time you shall drink. 12 And you shall eat them as an ash-baked loaf of barley. You shall cover them before their eyes with pieces of human dung. 13 And you shall say: This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says, "Thus shall the sons of Israel eat unclean things among the nations." 14 And I said, "In no way, O Lord, God of Israel, if my soul has not been defiled in uncleanness and from my birth until now I have not eaten a carcass or that which was killed by animals, and no day-old meat has come into my mouth." 15 And he said to me, "Behold, I have given you dung of cattle instead of human dung, and you shall prepare your bread upon it."

16 And he said to me, Son of man, behold, I am shattering the support of bread in Ierousalem, and they shall eat bread by weight and in need and drink water in measure and in annihilation 17 so that they be in need of bread and water, and a person and his brother shall be annihilated, and they shall waste away in their injustices.

5 And you, son of man, take for yourself a sharp sword. Just like a barber's razor you shall acquire it for yourself and lay it upon your head and upon your beard. And you shall take a balance of weights and divide them^e. 2 A quarter you shall burn in the fire in the midst of the city according to the completion of the days of the enclosing, and you shall take a quarter, and you shall burn it up in its^f midst, and a quarter you shall cut up with a sword around it; a quarter you shall scatter by the wind, and I will unsheathe a dagger after them^e. 3 And from there you shall take a few in number and bundle them^e in your robe. 4 And you shall take some from them^e again and throw them^e into the midst of the fire and burn them^e up in the fire; from it a fire shall go forth.

And you shall say to all the house of Israel, 5 This is what the Lord says: This is Ierousalem. I have set her and the countries surrounding her in the midst of the nations. 6 And you shall speak my statutes and my laws to the lawless one out of the nations, out of the countries around her, for they rejected my statutes and in my precepts they have not walked in them. 7 Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Because your starting point was from the nations around you and you did not walk in my precepts and did not perform my statutes—on the contrary, you have not even acted according to the statutes of the nations around you—8 therefore, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am against you, and I will execute judgment in your midst before the nations, 9 and I will do in you what I have not done and the like of which I will not do again because of all your abominations. 10 Therefore, fathers shall eat children in your midst, and children shall eat fathers, and I will execute judgments against you, and I will scatter all your survivors to every wind. 11 Therefore, I live, says the Lord. Surely, because you defiled my holy places with all your abominations, I will also thrust you aside. My eye shall not spare, and I will have no pity. 12 A quarter of you shall be dispensed by death, and a quarter of you shall be finished off by famine in your midst, and a quarter of you, to every wind I will scatter them, and a quarter of you shall fall by the sword around you, and a dagger I will unsheathe after them.

13 And my wrath and my fury shall be completed upon them, and you shall recognize that I, the Lord, have spoken in my jealousy, when I spend my anger on them. ¹⁴And I will make you and your daughters around you into a wilderness before every passer-by. ¹⁵And you shall be mourned and be wretched among the nations around you when I execute my judgments against you in the punishment of my wrath; I, the Lord, have spoken. ¹⁶When I send out my missiles of famine upon them, they shall also become a wiping out, and I will shatter your support of bread. ¹⁷And I will send out famine and harmful animals against you, and I will take vengeance against you, and death and blood shall pass through upon you, and I will bring a sword upon you from all around; I, the Lord, have spoken.

6 And word of the Lord came to me, saying, ²Son of man, set your face upon the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them. ³And you shall say, As for the mountains of Israel—hear a word of the Lord. This is what the Lord says to the mountains and the hills and the ravines and the dells: Behold, I myself am bringing a sword upon you, and I will utterly destroy your high places, ⁴and your altars and your sacred precincts shall be shattered, and I will throw down your wounded in front of your idols. ⁵And I will scatter your bones around your altars. ⁶In every habitation of yours the cities shall be devastated, and the high places will be annihilated so that your altars shall be utterly destroyed and your idols broken and your sacred precincts razed. ⁷And the wounded shall fall in your midst, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

⁸ When there are some of you who are rescued from the sword among the nations and are in your dispersion among the countries, ⁹the rescued ones of you shall also remember me among the nations, there where they were taken prisoner. I have sworn to their heart that is whoring away from me and to their eyes that play the whore after their practices, and they shall strike their faces for all their abominations, ¹⁰and they shall recognize that I, the Lord, have spoken.

¹¹ This is what the Lord says: Clap your hand, and stomp your foot, and say, Good, good! For all the abominations of the house of Israel, they shall fall by the sword and by death and by famine. ¹²The one who is near shall fall by the sword, while the one who is far away shall come to an end by death, and the one gripped by hunger shall be finished off, and I will spend my anger upon them. ¹³And you shall know that I am the Lord, when your wounded are in the midst of your idols around your altars, on every lofty hill and under a shady tree, where they gave an odor of fragrance to all their idols. ¹⁴And I will stretch out my hand against them and make their land into an annihilation and destruction from the wilderness of Deblatha, out of every habitation, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

7 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²And you, son of man, say, This is what the Lord says to the land of Israel:

- An end has come. The end has come upon the four extremities of the land.
- ³⁽⁶⁾ The end has come upon you, the inhabitant of the land.
- ⁴⁽⁷⁾ The time has come near; the day has arrived not with tumult or with anguish.
- ⁵⁽⁸⁾ Now close by I will pour out my anger upon you and I will spend my fury against you, and I will judge you by your ways and will give against you all your abominations.
- ⁶⁽⁹⁾ My eye will not spare, nor will I show pity, for I will give your ways against you and your abominations shall be in your midst, and you shall recognize that it is I, the Lord, who strike.
- ⁷⁽³⁾ Now the end is upon you, and I will send it upon you, and I will punish you for your ways, and I will give against you all your abominations.
- ⁸⁽⁴⁾ My eye will not spare, nor will I show pity, for I will give your way against you and your abominations shall be in your midst. And you shall recognize that I am the Lord, because this is what the Lord says:
- ¹⁰ Behold, the end has come, behold, a day of the Lord. Even if the rod has blossomed, insolence has arisen.
- ¹¹ And it shall shatter a support of a lawless one and not with tumult or with haste.
- ¹² The time has come, behold, the day; let not the buyer be glad, and let not the seller mourn,
- ¹³ for the buyer shall no longer return to the seller, and a person shall not gain control of his life by his eye.
- ¹⁴ Trumpet with a trumpet, and judge all things.
- ¹⁵ War by the sword is from without, and famine and death from within. The one on the plain shall come to an end by the sword, while those in the city famine and death shall finish off.
- ¹⁶ And the survivors of them shall survive and shall be upon the mountains; I will slay them all, each in his injustices.
- ¹⁷ All hands shall grow feeble,

- and all thighs shall be sullied with moisture.
- 18 And they shall gird themselves round with sackcloth, and amazement shall cover them.
And shame shall be on every face on them,
and baldness on every head.
- 19 Their silver shall be thrown into the streets, and their gold shall be despised.
Their souls shall not be satisfied, and their bellies shall not be filled, for a test of their injustices has occurred. ²⁰Choice things of decoration—they made them into arrogance, and they made from them^a images of their abominations; therefore I have given them^a to them as impurity.
- 21 And I will hand them^a over into the hands of foreigners to seize them^a and to the pestiferous ones of the earth as plunder, and they shall profane them^a.
- 22 And I will turn back my face from them,
and they shall defile my visitation.
And they will enter into them^a without precaution,
and they will profane them^a.
- 23 And they shall create disorder, because the land is full of peoples and the city is full of lawlessness.
- 24 And I will turn back the wantonness of their strength, and their holy things^b shall be defiled.
- 25 Atonement shall come, and it shall seek peace,
and it shall not be.
- 26 Woe shall be upon woe,
and rumor shall be upon rumor.
And vision shall be sought from a prophet,
and law shall perish from the priest,
and counsel from the elders.
- 27 And a ruler shall be clothed in annihilation, and the hands of the people of the land shall be disabled.
According to their ways I will deal with them,
and by their judgments I will judge them.
And they shall know that I am the Lord.

8 And it happened in the eighth year, in the fifth month, on the fifth of the month, I was sitting in my house, and the elders of Ioudas were sitting before me, and the hand of the Lord came upon me, ²and I saw, and behold, a likeness of a man, and from his loin and all the way down was fire, and from the loin up was as an appearance of white gold. ³And a likeness of a hand extended and lifted me up by the top of my head, and a spirit took me up between earth and between sky and brought me to Ierusalem in a divine vision to the entry of the gate looking north, where the stele of the buyer was. ⁴And behold, the glory of the Lord God of Israel was there like the vision that I saw in the plain.

5 And he said to me, "Son of man, look up with your eyes to the north." And I looked up with my eyes to the north, and behold, from the north to the gate to the east! ⁶And he said to me, "Son of man, have you seen what these are doing? They are committing great acts of lawlessness here by keeping themselves far from my holy things. And you will see still greater acts of lawlessness."

7 And he brought me to the entry of the court ⁸and said to me, "Son of man, dig." And I dug and behold, one door. ⁹And he said to me, "Go in, and see the lawless acts that they are committing here." ¹⁰And I went in and looked, and behold, vain abominations and all the idols of the house of Israel were portrayed on it all around, ¹¹and seventy men from the elders of the house of Israel; Iezonias the son of Saphan stood in the midst of them in front of them, and each had his censer in his hand, and the vapor of the incense was ascending. ¹²And he said to me, "Son of man, have you seen what the elders of the house of Israel are doing, each of them in their hidden bedroom? For they said, 'The Lord does not see; the Lord has forsaken the land.'" ¹³And he said to me, "You will see still greater acts of lawlessness that these are committing."

14 And he brought me to the entry of the gate of the house of the Lord looking north, and behold, women sitting there, lamenting Thammouz, ¹⁵and he said to me, "Son of man, have you seen? And you will see still practices greater than these."

16 And he brought me into the inner court of the house of the Lord, and behold, at the entry of the shrine of the Lord, between the^c ailam^d and between the altar there were about twenty men, their behinds to the shrine of the Lord and their faces opposite, and they were doing obeisance to the sun. ¹⁷And he said to me, "Have you seen, son of man? Is it only a small thing for the house of Ioudas to commit the lawless acts that they have committed here? For they filled the land with lawlessness, and behold, they are like ones that turn their nose up. ¹⁸And I will act against them with wrath; my eye shall not spare, nor will I show pity."

9 And he cried out into my ears in a loud voice, saying, "The judgment of the city has come near," and each had the instruments of annihilation in his hand. ²And behold, six men were coming from the way of the high gate looking north, and each had an ax in his hand, and one man in the midst of them wearing a full-length robe, and a sapphire^e belt was upon his loin, and they entered and stood close to the bronze altar.

3 And the glory of the God of Israel ascended from the cheroubin. It was upon them up to the atrium of the house. And he summoned the man who wore the full-length robe who had the belt upon his loin. ⁴And he said to him, "Pass through the middle of Ierusalem, and give the mark upon the foreheads of the men who sigh and have been afflicted over all the lawless acts that happen in their midst.”⁵ And to these he said as I was listening, “Go over after him into the city, and smite, and do not spare with your eyes, and you shall show no pity; ⁶exterminate elder and young man and unmarried girl and little children and women unto obliteration, but you shall not approach anyone upon whom is the mark, and begin from my holy places.” And they began from the men who were inside, in the house.⁷ And he said to them, “Defile the house, and fill the roads with the dead as you go out, and smite.”⁸ And it happened, when they were smiting, I also fell upon my face and shouted out and said, “Woe is me, O Lord, are you wiping out the survivors from Israel when you pour out your wrath upon Ierousalem?”⁹ And he said to me, “The injustice of the house of Israel and Ioudas has become very, very great, because the land was filled with many people and the city was filled with injustice and uncleanness, for they said, ‘The Lord has forsaken the land; the Lord does not watch.’¹⁰ And my eye shall not spare, nor shall I show pity; I have given their ways against their heads.”

11 And behold, the man who wore the full-length robe and girded with a belt on his loin and he answered, saying, “I have done as you commanded me.”

10 And I saw, and behold, above the firmament over the head of the cheroubin was something like a lapis lazuli stone; a likeness of a throne was upon them.² And he said to the man clothed in the robe, “Go into the midst of the wheelworks under the cheroubin, and fill your hands with coals from the fire in the midst of the cheroubin, and scatter them upon the city.” And he went in before me.³ And the cheroubin stood on the right of the house when the man was entering, and the cloud filled the inner court.⁴ And the glory of the Lord arose from the cheroubin into the atrium of the house, and the cloud filled the house, and the court was filled with the radiance of the glory of the Lord.⁵ And a sound of wings of the cheroubin was heard as far as the outer court like a voice of God Saddai when he speaks.

6 And it happened, when he was commanding the man clothed in the holy robe, saying, “Take fire from the midst of the wheelworks from the midst of the cheroubin,” and he went in and stood close to the wheels.⁷ And he extended his hand into the midst of the fire that was among the cheroubin and took and gave it into the hands of the one clothed in the holy robe, and he took it and went out.⁸ And I saw the cheroubin; a likeness of human hands was underneath their wings.

9 And I saw, and behold, four wheels stood close to the cheroubin, one wheel close to one cheroub, and the appearance of the wheels was as the appearance of a stone of carbuncle.¹⁰ And their appearance was one likeness belonging to the four, as whenever a wheel is in the midst of a wheel.¹¹ When they^a were moving, they were moving in their four parts. They were not veering when they were moving, because they were moving to whichever place ^bthe one first element^b looked, and they were not veering when they were moving.¹² And their backs and their hands and their wings and their wheels were full of eyes all around the four wheels.¹³ Now, as I was listening, the name Gelgel was assigned to these wheels.

15 And the cheroubin rose up. This is the living being that I saw by the river of Chobar.¹⁶ And when the cheroubin were moving, the wheels were moving, and they were close to them. And when the cheroubin were lifting up their wings to be borne aloft from the earth, their wheels were not veering.¹⁷ When they^a stopped, they^b stopped, and when they^a were being borne aloft, they^b were being borne aloft with them, for a spirit of life was in them.

18 And the glory of the Lord went out from the house and mounted upon the cheroubin,¹⁹ and the cheroubin lifted up their wings, and they were borne aloft from the earth before me when they went out together with the wheels beside them, and they stood at the entry of the opposite gate of the house of the Lord, and the glory of God of Israel was upon them from above.

20 This is the living being that I saw below the God of Israel by the river Chobar, and I knew that they were cheroubin.²¹ One had four faces, and one had eight wings, and a likeness of human hands was underneath their wings.²² As for the resemblance of their faces: these were the faces that I saw below the glory of the God of Israel by the river Chobar, and they were moving, each in front of them.

11 And a spirit lifted me up and brought me to the opposite gate of the house of the Lord, the one looking east, and behold, at the entry of the gate were about twenty-five men, and in the midst of them I saw Iezionias the son of Ezer and Phaltias the son of Banaias, the commanders of the people.² And the Lord said to me, “Son of man, these are the men who devise empty things and deliberate wicked counsel in this city,³ the ones who say, ‘Have not the dwellings been built recently? This^c is the cauldron while we are the meat.’⁴ Therefore, prophesy against them; prophesy, son of man.”

5 And a spirit fell upon me and said to me, “This is what the Lord says: Speak thus, O house of Israel, I understand even the deliberation of your spirit.⁶ You multiplied your dead in this city and packed full your roads with the wounded.⁷ Therefore this is what the Lord says: Your dead that you have set out in its^c midst—these are the meat, and this^c is the cauldron—and I will take you out from its^c midst.⁸ You fear a sword, and I will bring a sword upon you, says the Lord.⁹ And I will take you out from its midst and give you over to the hands of foreigners, and I will execute judgments among you.¹⁰ You shall fall by the sword, I will judge you at the borders of Israel, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord. ¹¹This^a shall not be for you as a cauldron, and you shall not become in its midst as meat. I will judge you at the borders of Israel, ¹²and you shall recognize that I am the Lord."

13 And it happened, while I was prophesying, and Phaltias son of Banaias died, and I fell upon my face, and I shouted with a loud voice and said, "Woe is me; woe is me, O Lord; are you making an end of the remnant of Israel?"

14 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁵Son of man, your brothers and the men of your captivity and the entire house of Israel have been finished off, those to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, "You keep far from the Lord. To us the land has been given as a portion." ¹⁶Therefore, say: This is what the Lord says, "I will drive them away into the nations, and I will scatter them into all the earth, and I will be for them as a small holy precinct in the countries, there where they enter." ¹⁷Therefore I said, This is what the Lord says: And I will take them in from the nations and will assemble them from the countries, in them where I dispersed them, and I will give them the land of Israel. ¹⁸And they shall enter there, and they shall remove all its abominations and all its lawless acts from it. ¹⁹And I will give them another heart, and I will impart a new spirit in them, and I will draw forth the heart of stone from their flesh, and I will give them a heart of flesh ²⁰so that they might walk by my ordinances and keep my statutes and perform them, and they shall be for me as a people, and I will be a god for them. ²¹And against the heart of their abominations and of their lawless acts—just as their heart was going, I have given their ways against their heads, says the Lord.

22 And the cheroubin lifted up their wings, and their wheels were beside them, and the glory of the God of Israel was upon them, above them, ²³and the glory of the Lord ascended from the midst of the city and stopped on the mountain that was opposite the city. ²⁴And a spirit took me up and brought me to the land of the Chaldeans, into the captivity, in a vision, in a divine spirit, and I ascended in the vision that I saw, ²⁵and I spoke to the captivity all the words of the Lord that he showed me.

12 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, you are living in the midst of their injustices—they who have eyes to see but do not see and have ears to hear but do not hear, because it is an embittering house. ³And you, son of man, make for yourself baggage of captivity by day before them, and you shall be taken captive from your place to another place before them so that they see, ^{for}^b it is an embittering house. ⁴And you shall carry out your baggage, baggage of captivity, by day before their eyes, and you shall go out in the evening as a captive goes out. ⁵Before them dig through for yourself into the wall, and you shall go out through it. ⁶Before them you shall be lifted up on shoulders, and you shall go out concealed. You shall veil your face, and you shall not see the earth at all, for I have given you as a sign to the house of Israel.

7 And I did so in everything that he commanded me, and I carried it out as the baggage of captivity by day, and by evening I dug through the wall for myself, and I went out concealed. Upon shoulders I was lifted up before them.

8 And a word of the Lord came to me in the morning, saying: ⁹Son of man, did not the house of Israel, the embittering house, say to you, "What are you doing?" ¹⁰Say to them, "This is what the Lord says: The ruler and the leader are in Jerusalem and in all the house of Israel, who are in their midst." ¹¹Say: "I am making signs in its midst. As I have done, so shall it be for them; they shall go in exile and in captivity," ¹²and the ruler in their midst shall be lifted upon shoulders, and he shall go out concealed through the wall, and he shall dig through, to go out through it. He shall veil his face so that he shall not be seen by eye, and he himself shall not see the land. ¹³And I will spread out my net over him, and he shall be caught in my enclosure, and I will bring him to Babylon, to the land of the Chaldeans, and he shall not see it, and he shall come to an end there. ¹⁴And I will distribute to every wind all his helpers around him and all who assist him, and I will unsheathe a sword after them. ¹⁵And they shall know that I am the Lord after I scatter them among the nations, and I will distribute them among the countries. ¹⁶And I will retain from them men by number, from sword and from famine and from death, so that they shall tell of all their lawless acts among the nations where they enter, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

17 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁸Son of man, you shall eat your bread in grief, and you shall drink your water in torture and suffering, ¹⁹and you shall say to the people of the land of Israel, This is what the Lord says to the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the land of Israel: They shall eat their bread in need, and they shall drink their water in annihilation so that the land is extinguished together with its fullness, for all who live in it are engaged in impiety, ²⁰and their inhabited cities shall be devastated, and the land shall become an annihilation, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

21 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²²Son of man, what is this comparison of yours about the land of Israel as they are saying, "Distant are the days; vision has perished?" ²³Therefore, say to them, "This is what the Lord says: And I will turn back the comparison, and the house of Israel shall no longer speak this comparison," because you shall speak to them, "The days and word of every vision have come near." ²⁴For there shall no longer be any false vision and one giving divina-

^ai.e. the city ^bPossibly that

tion for favor in the midst of the sons of Israel. ²⁵For I, the Lord, will speak my words; I will speak and act and no longer delay, because in your days, O house that embitters, I will speak a word and perform it, says the Lord.

²⁶ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²⁷Son of man, behold, the house of Israel that embitters—when they speak, they say, “The vision that he beholds is for many days, and he prophesies for far times.” ²⁸Therefore, say to them, This is what the Lord says: No longer shall any of my words delay, whatever I will speak; I will speak and perform, says the Lord.

13 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel, and you shall prophesy and say to them: “Hear a word of the Lord!” ³This is what the Lord says: Woe to those who prophesy from their heart and perhaps do not see at all. ⁴Your prophets are like foxes in the deserts, O Israel. ⁵They did not stand upon a solid body and gather flocks to the house of Israel. Those who say, “In the day of the Lord” did not stand up. ⁶Those who say, “The Lord says” are seers of falsehoods and diviners of vanities, and the Lord has not sent them, and they began to set up a word. ⁷Have you not beheld a false vision and spoken vain divinations?

⁸ Therefore, say, This is what the Lord says: Because your words are false and your divinations are vain, therefore, behold, I am against you, says the Lord, ⁹and I will stretch out my hand against the prophets who behold falsehoods and utter vanities; they shall not be engaged in the instruction of my people, nor shall they be enrolled in the register of the house of Israel, and they shall not enter the land of Israel, and they shall know that I am the Lord. ¹⁰Because they have misled my people, saying, “Peace, peace,” and there was no peace, also this one builds a wall, and they themselves plaster it; it shall fall. ¹¹Say to the ones who plastered it, “It shall fall,” and there will be a torrential rain, and I will give hurled stones against their bondings, and they shall fall, and there shall be a sweeping wind, and it shall be broken. ¹²And behold, the wall has fallen, and shall they not say to you, “Where is your plaster that you plastered?” ¹³Therefore, this is what the Lord says: And I will let loose a sweeping blast with wrath, and there shall be a torrential rain in my rage, and I will bring the hurled stones in wrath unto completion, ¹⁴and I will raze the wall that you plastered, and it shall fall, and I will set it on the ground, and its foundations shall be uncovered, and it shall fall, and you shall be finished off with reproach, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord. ¹⁵And I will spend my wrath upon the wall and upon those who plaster it; it shall fall. And I said to you, The wall is not, nor are those who plaster it, ¹⁶the prophets of Israel who prophesy concerning Jerusalem and who behold peace for it, and there is no peace, says the Lord.

¹⁷ And you, son of man, set your face against the daughters of your people, who prophesy from their heart, and prophesy against them, ¹⁸and you shall say, This is what the Lord says: Woe to those who stitch together cushions for every bend of the arm and make veils for every head of every age-group so as to pervert souls; the souls of my people were perverted, and they maintain their own souls. ¹⁹And they were profaning me before my people for the sake of a handful of barley and on account of pieces of bread so as to slay souls that should not die and to preserve souls that should not live, when you were uttering vain utterances to a listening people.

²⁰ Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am against your cushions whereby you collect souls, and I will tear them from your arms, and into a dispersion I will send out their souls, which souls of theirs you distort. ²¹And I will tear through your veils, and I will rescue my people from your hand, and they shall no longer be in your hands for gathering, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord. ²²Because you were perverting the heart of a righteous person and I was not perverting him even to make strong the hands of a lawless person so that he might not turn back at all from his wicked way and he might live, ²³therefore, you shall not behold falsehoods and no longer perform divinations, and I will rescue my people from your hand, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

14 And men from the elders of Israel came to me and sat down in front of me. ²And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ³Son of man, these men set their thoughts upon their hearts, and they set the punishment of their injustices in front of them; am I to answer them by answering? ⁴Therefore speak to them, and you shall say to them, This is what the Lord says: Person by person from the house of Israel, whoever sets his thoughts upon his heart and arranges the punishment of his injustice in front of him and comes to the prophet, I, the Lord, will answer him by those things by which his mind is held fast ⁵in order that he may turn aside the house of Israel according to their hearts that are estranged from me through their notions.

⁶ Therefore say to the house of Israel, This is what the Lord says: Turn about, and turn back from your practices and from all your impieties, and turn your faces around. ⁷For person by person from the house of Israel and from the guests who are guests in the house of Israel, whoever is estranged from me and sets his notions upon his heart and arranges the punishment of his injustice in front of him and comes to the prophet to inquire of him by me—I, the Lord, will answer him by that whereby he is held fast. ⁸And I will set my face against that person, and I will make him into a wilderness and into annihilation, and I will take him away from the midst of my people, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

⁹ And the prophet, if he should ever deceive and speak, I, the Lord, have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand against him and will annihilate him from the midst of my people, Israel. ¹⁰And they shall receive their injustice; like the wrongdoing of the inquirer and like the wrongdoing, so shall it be for the prophet ¹¹so that the house of Israel may no longer ^{ago astray} from me and so that they may not defile themselves further in all their transgressions, and they shall be for me as a people, and I will be a god for them, says the Lord.

¹² And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹³Son of man, if a land sins against me so that transgression occurs, I will also stretch out my hand against it and will shatter its support of bread, and I will send out famine upon it and will take away human and cattle from it. ¹⁴Even if these three men were in its midst, Noe and Daniel and Iob, they shall be saved by their righteousness, says the Lord. ¹⁵Even if I bring harmful animals against the land, I shall also take vengeance on it, and it shall be as an annihilation, and there shall not be one who passes through from before the animals, ¹⁶even if these three men were in its midst, I live, says the Lord, if sons or daughters shall be saved! But they alone would be saved, while the land would be for annihilation. ¹⁷Or again, if I bring a sword upon that land and say, "Let a sword pass through the land" and I will take away human and cattle from it ¹⁸and these three men be in its midst, I live, says the Lord, they shall rescue neither sons nor daughters. They alone shall be saved. ¹⁹Or again, if I send out death upon that land and I pour out my wrath upon it with blood so as utterly to destroy human and cattle from it ²⁰and Noe and Daniel and Iob shall be in its midst, I live, says the Lord, if sons or daughters should be left behind! They shall rescue their souls by their righteousness.

15 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²And you, son of man, what might the wood of the vine become from all the trees, the branches that are among the trees of the forest?
³ Shall they take wood from it to make it into a product?
Shall they take a peg from it to hang any object on it?

⁴ On the contrary, it has been given to the fire for consumption;
the fire consumes the yearly cleansing of it, and it fails completely;
shall it actually be useful for production?
⁵ Not even when it is still whole shall it be for production.
How much less if ever fire consumes it completely shall it still be fit for production?

⁶ Therefore, say: This is what the Lord says: Like the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, that which I have given to the fire for consumption, so have I given the inhabitants of Ierousalem. ⁷And I will give my face against them; they shall go out from the fire, and fire shall devour them, and they shall recognize that I am the Lord when I set my face against them. ⁸And I will give the land into annihilation, because they fell away in transgression, says the Lord.

16 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, testify to Ierousalem about her lawless acts, ³and you shall say, This is what the Lord says to Ierousalem: Your origin and your birth is from the land of Chanaan; your father is an Amorrite, and your mother a Chettite. ⁴And as for your birth—in the day that you were born, they did not bind your breasts, and you were not bathed with water, nor were you salted with salt, and you were not wrapped in cloths, ⁵neither did my eye spare you so as to do for you one of all these things to show feeling to you. And you were thrown out on the surface of the plain by the perversion of your soul in the day that you were born.

⁶ And I passed by you and saw you fouled by your own blood and said to you, "From your blood is life; ⁷grow up, just like the sprouting of the field I have rendered you." And you grew up and became tall and entered into cities of cities; your breasts were set right, and your hair grew, but you were naked and disgraced.

⁸ And I passed by you and saw you, and behold, your season was a season of lodgers^b, and I spread my wings over you and covered your disgrace, and I swore to you and entered into a covenant with you, says the Lord, and you became mine. ⁹And I bathed you with water and washed your blood from you and anointed you with oil, ¹⁰and I clothed you with embroidered clothes and shod you with blue and girded you with fine linen and clothed you in a fine hair-veil, ¹¹and I adorned you with an ornament and put bracelets around your arms and a chain around your neck, ¹²and I gave an earring on your nostril and small rings on your ears and a crown of boasting upon your head. ¹³And you were adorned with gold and silver, and your wraps were of fine linen and of woven hair and embroidered. You ate choice flour and oil and honey, and you became very beautiful. ¹⁴And your fame went out among the nations on account of your beauty, because you had been completed in attractiveness by the elegance that I set upon you, says the Lord.

15 And you trusted in your beauty, and you whored because of your fame and poured out your whoring on every passer-by. ¹⁶And you took some of your garments and made for yourself stitched figures and played the whore on them, and you shall not enter, nor shall it happen. ¹⁷And you took your objects of boasting from my gold and from my silver, from that which I gave you, and you made for yourself male images and played the whore with them. ¹⁸And you took your embroidered apparel and put them on, and you set my oil and my incense in front of them, ¹⁹even my bread that I gave you. I fed you choice flour and oil and honey, and you set them in front of them as an odor of fragrance, and it happened, says the Lord. ²⁰And you took your sons and your daughters whom you bore, and you sacrificed them to them as consumption, as if you played the whore just a little. ²¹And you slaughtered your children and delivered them up when you were appeasing them through them. ²²This was in addition to all your whoring, and you did not remember the days of your childhood, when you were naked and disgraced, and you lived fouled in your blood.

23 And it happened after all your evil acts, says the Lord, ²⁴you also built for yourself a whoring chamber, and you made a proclamation for yourself in every boulevard. ²⁵And at the head of every way you built your whorehouses, and you spoiled your beauty and drew your legs apart for every passer-by and multiplied your whoring. ²⁶And you played the whore with the sons of Egypt who accompanied you, who were great in flesh, and you played the whore frequently so as to provoke me. ²⁷Now if I stretch out my hand against you and I will take away your precepts, I will also give you to the souls of those who hate you, to daughters of allophyles who divert you from your way in which you acted impiously. ²⁸And you played the whore with the daughters of Assour, and even so you were not satisfied, and you played the whore but were not satiated. ²⁹And you multiplied your covenants with the land of the Chaldeans, and you were not even satisfied with them.

30 How should I treat your daughter, says the Lord, when you did all these things, deeds of a woman of whoredom? And you played the whore three times with your daughters. ³¹You built your brothel at every head of a road, and you made your pedestal in every boulevard, and you became like a whore gathering payments. ³²The adulterous wife is like you, taking payments from her husband. ³³She would dole out payments to all those who played the whore with her, and you have given payments to all your lovers, and you would load them down to come to you from all around for your whoring. ³⁴And there was something perverted in you compared to other women in your whoring, and ^anext after^a you they have not played the whore, while you would dole out payments, and payments were not given to you. And there were in you things perverted.

35 Therefore, O whore, hear a word of the Lord: ³⁶This is what the Lord says, Because you have poured out your money, your shame in your whoring shall also be uncovered to your lovers, both for all the thoughts of your lawless acts and because of the streams of blood of your children that you gave them. ³⁷Therefore, behold, I am gathering against you all your lovers, those with whom you consorted, and all those you loved, with all those you hated, and I will gather them against you from all around and will uncover your evil acts to them, and they shall see all your shame. ³⁸And I will take vengeance on you with vengeance of an adulteress, and I will place you in the blood of wrath and jealousy. ³⁹And I will give you over into their hands, and they shall eradicate your brothel, and they shall demolish your pedestal, and they shall strip you of your apparel and take the objects of your boasting and leave you naked and disgraced. ⁴⁰And they shall bring on throngs against you, and they shall stone you with stones, and they shall slay you with their rapiers. ⁴¹And they shall burn your houses with fire, and they shall execute judgments against you before many women, and I will turn you back from whoring, and you shall not make payments any more. ⁴²And I will let loose my wrath on you, and my jealousy shall be taken away from you, and I will take my rest, and I will no longer be vexed. ⁴³Because you did not remember the day of your childhood and you would pain me with all these things, and behold, I have given your ways against your heads, says the Lord.

And thus you have committed impiety in addition to all your lawless acts. ⁴⁴These are all the things that they said about you in a comparison, saying, "Like mother ⁴⁵like daughter." You are your mother's daughter, she^b who thrust aside her husband and her children, and the sisters of your sisters are those who thrust aside their husbands and their children; your mother is a Chettite, and your father an Amorrite. ⁴⁶Your elder sister is Samaria, she and her daughters, she who was living on your left, and your younger sister who was living on your right is Sodoma and her daughters. ⁴⁷And you did not even walk in their ways, nor did you act according to their lawless acts; in fact, you almost surpassed them in all your ways. ⁴⁸I live, says the Lord, if your sister Sodoma has acted, she and her daughters, as you and your daughters acted! ⁴⁹But this was the lawless act of Sodoma, your sister: arrogance. She and her daughters were indulging in excess of bread and in prosperous ease; this belonged to her and her daughters, and they were not holding the hand of the poor and the needy. ⁵⁰And they were boasting and committed lawless acts before me, and I took them away, just as I saw. ⁵¹And Samaria sinned not half of your sins, and you multiplied your lawless acts beyond them and made your sisters right by all your lawless acts that you committed. ⁵²And you shall bear your trial, for you ruined your sisters with your sins by which you acted lawlessly beyond them and rendered them right beyond yourselves, and be ashamed, you, and receive your dishonor for rendering your sisters right.

⁵³ And I will turn back your turning back, the turning back of Sodom and her daughters, and I will turn back the turning back of Samaria and her daughters, and I will turn back your turning back in their midst ⁵⁴in order that you may bear your trial and be dishonored as a result of all that you have done when you provoked me. ⁵⁵And your sister Sodom and her daughters shall be restored, just as they were from the beginning, and Samaria and her daughters shall be restored, just as they were from the beginning, and you and your daughters shall be restored, just as you were from the beginning. ⁵⁶And surely Sodom your sister was not as a report in your mouth in the days of your arrogance, ⁵⁷before your evil acts were uncovered, as you are now an ignominy to daughters of Syria and all the daughters of allophytes around her that enclose you all around? ⁵⁸Your impieties and your lawless acts—you have carried them off, says the Lord.

⁵⁹ This is what the Lord says: And I will deal with you just as you have done, as you have dishonored these things so as to transgress my covenant. ⁶⁰And I will remember my covenant with you in the days of your childhood, and I will establish with you an everlasting covenant. ⁶¹And you will remember your way, and you shall be completely dishonored when you receive back your elder sisters with your younger ones, and I will give them to you for a building and not on account of your covenant. ⁶²And I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord ⁶³in order that you shall remember and be ashamed and it be impossible for you any longer to open your mouth from before your dishonor, when I am appeased with you for everything that you have done, says the Lord.

17 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, tell a tale, and speak an illustration to the house of Israel, ³and you shall say: This is what the Lord says:

The great eagle with great wings, large in extent, full of talons, who ^ahas the guidance^a to enter into Lebanon.

And he took the select parts of the cedar; ⁴ he broke off the tender tops.

And he carried them to the land of Chanaan;

he set them into a walled city.

⁵ And he took from the seed of the earth and gave it into the plain.

A plant by abundant water, he set it out as something gazed upon.

⁶ And it sprouted and turned into a weak vine,

small in size for it to appear.

Its shoots were upon it, and its roots were under it.

And it turned into a vine and made layers and extended its climbers.

⁷ And another great eagle came with great wings and many talons. And behold, this vine was wrapped around him, and its roots were against him.

And it shot out its shoots toward him to water it^b together with the bed of its planting.

⁸ Into a good plain by abundant water it thrives so as to make shoots and to bear fruit, to be as a large vine.

⁹Therefore, say: This is what the Lord says: Will it go straight?

Will not its tender roots and fruit rot, and all that first sprouts from it wither?

And not by a great arm nor by many people so as to pull it from its roots.

¹⁰ And behold, it thrives; will it actually go straight?

Shall it not be withered in dryness as soon as the scorching wind touches it?

It shall wither together with the clump of its sprouting.

¹¹ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹²Son of man, say now to the embittering house: Did you not understand what these things were? Say: When the king of Babylon comes upon Jerusalem, he shall also take its king and its rulers and bring them to himself to Babylon. ¹³And he shall take the offspring of the reign^c and shall make a covenant with him and will bring him in under an imprecation, and he shall take the chief men of the land ¹⁴so that it might become an altogether weak reign so that he might not be raised up to keep his covenant and to raise it up. ¹⁵And he shall rebel against him so as to send out his own ambassadors to Egypt, that he might give him horses and many people. Shall he go straight? Shall he who produces opposition escape? And when he transgresses a covenant, shall he be saved? ¹⁶I live, says the Lord, if he shall not come to an end in the place where the king is who made him king—he who dishonored my imprecation and who transgressed my covenant—with him in the midst of Babylon! ¹⁷And not with a great force or with a great throng shall Pharaoh make war with^d him, in casting up a palisade and in constructing batteries of war-engines to take away souls. ¹⁸And he dishonored oath-making so as to transgress a covenant, and behold, he has given his hand, and he did all these things to him. Shall he then be saved? ¹⁹Therefore, say: This is what the Lord says: I live, if I will not also impart upon his head my oath-making that he dishonored and my covenant that he transgressed! ²⁰And I will spread out the net over him, and he shall be captured in its enclosure. ²¹In his every battle they shall fall by the sword, and I will disperse the survivors to every wind, and you shall recognize that I, the Lord, have spoken.

22 Therefore, this is what the Lord says:

And it is I who will take some from the select parts of the cedar;
I will snip off something from the top of their heart.

And it is I who will transplant on a high mountain.

23 And I will hang him
in a mountain of Israel high in the air.
And I will transplant him, and he shall produce a shoot and bear fruit and become a large cedar.

And every animal shall rest under him,
and every winged creature shall rest
under his shade,
and his shoots shall be restored.

24 And all the trees of the plain shall know that I am the Lord,
he who brings low a high tree and exalts a low tree
and withers a green tree and makes a dry tree flourish.

I, the Lord, have spoken,
and I will do it.

18 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, why do you^a have this comparison among the sons of Israel, when they are saying, "The fathers ate unripe grapes, and the teeth of the children had pain?" ³I live, says the Lord, if this comparison ever comes to be spoken again in Israel! ⁴For all the souls are mine; as is the soul of the father mine, so also is the soul of the son. Mine they are. The soul that sins, this one shall die.

committed robbery and did not restore a pledge and set his eyes upon idols, has committed lawlessness, ¹³has given with interest and taken excess, he shall not live by life; he has committed all these lawless acts; by death he shall be put to death; his blood shall be upon him.

¹⁴ Now if he produces a son and he sees all the sins of his father that he has done and he is afraid and does not act according to them, ¹⁵he has not eaten upon the mountains and did not set his eyes to the notions of the house of Israel and did not defile his neighbor's wife ¹⁶and did not oppress a person and did not exact a pledge and did not commit robbery, gave his bread to the needy and clothed the naked ¹⁷and turned his hand back from iniquity, he did not take interest nor excess, performed justice and walked in my ordinances, he shall not come to an end for the iniquities of his father; he shall live by life. ¹⁸But his father, if he extorts with extortion and robs what was robbed, he did the opposite in the midst of my people, and he shall die for his injustice.

¹⁹ And you shall say, "Why is it that the son of the father did not receive the injustice?" Because the son did justice and mercy, he observed all my precepts and did them; he shall live by life. ²⁰But, the soul that sins shall die, but the son shall not receive the injustice of the father, nor shall the father receive the injustice of the son; the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the lawlessness of the lawless shall be upon him.

²¹ And if the lawless turns back from all his lawless acts that he committed and keeps all my commandments and does justice and mercy, he shall live by life; he shall not die. ²²None of his transgressions that he committed shall be remembered; by his righteousness that he did he shall live. ²³By my will do I actually will the death of the lawless one, says the Lord, rather than for him to turn back from his wicked way and live? ²⁴After the righteous one turns back from his righteousness and commits injustice like all the lawless acts that the lawless commits, none of his righteous acts that he performed shall be remembered, for his transgression by which he transgressed and in his sins that he committed in these he shall die.

²⁵ And you said, "The way of the Lord does not go straight." Hear now, O house of Israel; does my way not go straight? Is it not your way that does not go straight? ²⁶When the righteous turns back from his righteousness and should he commit transgression and die, by the transgression that he committed—by it he shall die. ²⁷And when a lawless one turns back from his lawlessness that he committed and should he perform judgment and righteousness, he has preserved his soul ²⁸and has turned back from all his impieties that he committed; he shall live by life; he shall not die. ²⁹And they say—the house of Israel—"The way of the Lord is not straight." Is my way not straight, O house of Israel? Is it not your way that is not straight?

30 I will judge you, each one, according to his way, O house of Israel, says the Lord. Turn about, and turn back from all your impieties, and they shall not be for you as a punishment for injustice. ³¹Throw away from yourselves all your impieties that you committed against me and make for yourselves a new heart and a new spirit. And why are you dying, O house of Israel? ³²For I do not will the death of the dying, says the Lord.

19 And as for you, take up a lamentation over the ruler of Israel, ²and you shall say:

What is your mother?

A whelp in the midst of lions!

She was born in the midst of lions and multiplied her whelps.

³ And one of her whelps ran off and became a lion, and he learned to catch prey and ate human beings.

⁴ And nations heard of him; he was caught in their destruction, and they brought him in a muzzle to the land of Egypt.

⁵ And she saw that he had rejected her, and her confidence perished. And she took another of her whelps and made him a lion.

⁶ And he would dwell among lions; he became a lion, and he learned to catch prey; he ate human beings.

⁷ And he would feed in his rashness and devastated their cities, and he annihilated the land and its fullness, with a voice of his roaring.

⁸ And they gave nations against him from countries all around. And they spread their nets upon him, and he was caught in their destruction.

⁹ And they put him in a muzzle and in a cage. He came to the king of Babylon, and he brought him into custody so that his voice might not be heard on the mountains of Israel.

¹⁰ Your mother was like a vine, like a flower in a pomegranate planted in water;

its fruit and its shoot came to be from abundant water.

¹¹ And a rod of strength became for it as a tribe of leaders, and it was exalted in its size in the midst of trunks, and he^a saw its size in the multitude of its shoots.

¹² And it was broken off in wrath, thrown upon the ground, and a scorching wind withered its choice parts, and they were punished. And its rod of strength was withered; fire consumed it.

¹³ And now they have planted it in the wilderness, in a waterless land.

¹⁴ And fire went out from a rod of its choice parts and has devoured it.

And a rod of strength was not in it.

A tribe for an illustration of a lament it is, and it shall become a lament.

20 And it happened in the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month, men came from the elders of the house of Israel to inquire of the Lord, and they sat down in front of me. ²And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ³Son of man, speak to the elders of the house of Israel, and you shall say to them: This is what the Lord says: Are you coming to inquire of me? I live, if I will answer you! says the Lord. ⁴Will I judge them with punishment? Son of man, testify to them of the lawless acts of their fathers, ⁵and you shall say to them: This is what the Lord says: From the day that I chose the house of Israel and I was made known to the offspring of the house of Iakob and became known to them in the land of Egypt and took hold of them with my hand, saying: I am the Lord, your God, ⁶in that day I took hold of them with my hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt into the land that I prepared for them, a land flowing with milk and honey; it is a honeycomb beyond every land. ⁷And I said to them: Let each throw away the abominations of his eyes, and do not defile yourselves with the practices of Egypt; I am the Lord, your God. ⁸And they rebelled against me and were unwilling to listen to me; they did not throw away the abominations of their eyes and did not forsake the practices of Egypt.

And I spoke in order to pour out my wrath upon them, to spend my rage against them in the midst of the land of Egypt. ⁹And I acted so my name shall not be altogether profaned before the nations, among whom they were, among whom I was known to them before them so as to bring them out from the land of Egypt. ¹⁰And I led them out from the land of Egypt and brought them into the wilderness, ¹¹and I gave them my ordinances, and I made known to them my statutes, those that a person shall perform, and by them he shall live. ¹²And I gave them my sabbaths to be a sign between me and between them, that they might know that I am the Lord who sanctifies them. ¹³And I said to the house of Israel in the wilderness: Walk by my ordinances. And they did not walk, and they rejected my statutes, those that a person shall perform and shall live by them, and they greatly profaned my sabbaths.

And I spoke in order to pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness so as to consume them. ¹⁴And I acted so my name shall not be altogether profaned before the nations out of which I brought them before their eyes. ¹⁵And I raised my hand against them in the wilderness so that I might not bring them at all into the land that I gave them, a land flowing with milk and honey—it is a honeycomb beyond every land—¹⁶because they rejected my statutes, and by my ordinances they did not walk by them, and they were profaning my sabbaths and were going after the notions of their hearts. ¹⁷And my eye spared them from wiping them out, and I did not make an end of them in the wilderness.

18 And I said to their children in the wilderness: Do not walk by the precepts of your fathers, and do not keep their statutes, and do not be mixed up together with their practices, and do not defile yourselves. ¹⁹I am the Lord, your God; walk by my ordinances, and keep my statutes, and perform them, ²⁰and hallow my sabbaths, and it shall be as a sign between me and you, that you might know that I, the Lord, am your God. ²¹And they and their children embittered me; they did not walk by my ordinances, and they did not keep my statutes so as to perform them, that a person shall perform and live by them, and they were profaning my sabbaths.

And I spoke in order to pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness so as to spend my rage on them. ²²And I acted so my name shall not be altogether profaned before the nations, out of which I brought them before their eyes. ²³And I raised up my hand against them in the wilderness so as to scatter them among the nations, to disperse them in the countries, ²⁴because they did not perform my statutes and rejected my ordinances and were profaning my sabbaths, and their eyes were after their fathers' notions. ²⁵And it was I who gave them ordinances that were not good and statutes whereby they shall not live. ²⁶And I will defile them with their gifts when I am passing through everything that opened up a womb so that I might annihilate them.

27 Therefore, speak to the house of Israel, son of man, and you shall say to them: This is what the Lord says: Thus far your fathers angered me by their transgressions by which they transgressed against me. ²⁸And I brought them into the land that I raised my hand to give it to them, and they saw every high hill and every shady tree and sacrificed there to their gods and set out there an odor of fragrance and poured there their libations. ²⁹And I said to them: What is Habama, that you enter there? And they called its name, Habama, to this very day. ³⁰Therefore, speak to the house of Israel: This is what the Lord says: Are you defiling yourselves in the lawless acts of your fathers, and are you playing the whore after their abominations? ³¹And by the first fruits of your gifts, with what has been set apart, you defile yourselves in all your notions to this day. And am I to answer you, O house of Israel? I live, says the Lord, if I will answer you and if it will come up into this spirit of yours.

32 And it shall not be as you say: We will be like the nations and like the tribes of the earth by serving wood and stones.

33 Therefore, I live, says the Lord, surely with a strong hand and a raised arm and with out-poured wrath I will reign over you, ³⁴and I will bring you out from the peoples and take you in from the countries, where you were scattered in them, with a strong hand and with a raised arm and with out-poured wrath. ³⁵And I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and I will execute judgment against you there, face-to-face. ³⁶As I executed judgment against your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I judge you, says the Lord. ³⁷And I will drive you under my rod and bring you in by number, ³⁸and I will select out of you the impious and rebellious; for from a land of their sojourn I will bring them out, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

39 And you, O house of Israel: This is what the Lord says: Each one of you, take away your practices and after this, unless you listen to me, and you shall no longer profane my holy name with your gifts and with your practices.

40 For, on my holy mountain, on a lofty mountain, says the Lord, there they shall be slaves to me, the entire house of Israel completely, and there I will accept them, and there I will look upon your first fruits and the first fruits of what has been set apart by you in all your holy precincts. ⁴¹In an odor of fragrance I will accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples and take you in from the countries, those in which you were scattered, and I will be hallowed among you in the eyes of the peoples. ⁴²And you shall recognize that I am the Lord, when I bring you into the land of Israel, into the land to which I raised my hand to give it to your fathers. ⁴³And there you shall remember your ways and your practices in which you were defiling yourselves, and you shall strike your faces because of all your evil acts. ⁴⁴And you shall recognize that I am the Lord, when I deal thus with you so that my name shall not be profaned according to your evil ways and according to your corrupt practices, says the Lord.

45 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ⁴⁶Son of man, set your face toward Thaiman, and gaze upon Darom, and prophesy against the leading forest of the Nageb. ⁴⁷And you shall say to the forest of the Nageb: Hear a word of the Lord, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am kindling a fire in you, and it shall devour every green tree in you and every dry tree; the kindled flame shall not be quenched, and by it every face shall be burned up from east wind to north. ⁴⁸And all flesh shall recognize that I, the Lord, have scorched it; it shall not be quenched. ⁴⁹And I said, Never Lord, O Lord; they are saying to me, "Has not this comparison been spoken?"

21 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Therefore, prophesy, son of man; set your face toward Ierousalem, and gaze upon their holy things, and you shall prophesy against the land of Israel, ³and you shall say to the land of Israel: Behold, I am against you and will draw my hand-

knife out of its sheath and will utterly destroy the unjust and the lawless from you. ⁴Because I will utterly destroy the unjust and the lawless from you, thus my hand-knife shall come out of its sheath against all flesh from the east wind to the north, ⁵and all flesh shall recognize that I, the Lord, have drawn my hand-knife out of its sheath. No longer shall it turn back. ⁶And you, son of man, sigh in the rubbing together of your loin, and in grief you shall groan before their eyes. ⁷And it shall be, if they say to you, "Why do you groan?" and you shall say, "Because of the news, for it comes, and every heart shall be enfeebled, and all hands shall be paralyzed, and all flesh and every spirit shall pass out, and all thighs shall be sullied with moisture." Behold, it comes, and it shall be, says the Lord.

⁸ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ⁹Son of man, prophesy, and you shall say: This is what the Lord says, Say:

O sword, O sword, be sharp and enraged.

¹⁰ That you might slaughter victims, be sharp, that you might become aflashing, prepared for undoing.

Slaughter; annihilate; expel every tree.

¹¹ And he gave it, ready for his hand to grasp; a sword was sharpened; it is ready to give it^a into a slayer's hand.

¹² Shriek, and wail, son of man, because it came to be among my people; it is among all the leaders of Israel; they shall sojourn upon a sword; it came to be among my people; therefore, clap upon your hand.

¹³For it has been deemed just, and why, even if a tribe has been rejected? It shall not be, says the Lord.

¹⁴ And as for you, son of man, prophesy, and clap hand upon hand.

And double a sword; the third sword for casualties is the great sword for casualties.

¹⁵ And it shall confound them, that the heart might be broken and the weak be multiplied upon every gate.

They have been given over as victims of the sword.

Good! It has come for slaying.

Good! It has come for flashing.

¹⁶ Go through, sharpen on right and on left, wherever your face may be aroused.

¹⁷ But I too will clap my hand against my hand and will let loose my wrath; I, the Lord, have spoken.

¹⁸ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁹And you, son of man, lay out for yourself two ways ²⁰so that a sword of the king of Babylon might enter; the two will issue from one country, and a hand^b is at the beginning of the way of the city. ⁽²⁰⁾From the beginning of the way you shall

lay it out so that a sword might come against Rabbath of the sons of Ammon and against Judea and against Jerusalem in its midst. ²¹For the king of Babylon shall stand upon the prime way, at the beginning of the two roads to practice^c divination, to throw up a rod and to consult by carved objects^d and to inspect livers upon his right. ²²And the oracular response came against Jerusalem, to throw up a palisade, to open wide a mouth in a shout, to raise up high a voice with a cry, to throw up a palisade against its gates and to put up a ramp and to build batteries of war-engines. ²³And he shall be to them as one divining vain things before them, and he shall be as one recalling injustice to be seized.

²⁴ Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Because you recalled your injustices when your impieties were uncovered, that your sins be seen in all your impieties and in your practices—because you recalled, you shall be captured by means of them.

²⁵ And as for you, profane, lawless leader of Israel, whose day has come, an end in a time of injustice,

²⁶ this is what the Lord says: Remove the turban, and put off the crown; this^e shall not be such.

You abased that which is high and exalted that which is low.

²⁷ Injustice, injustice, I will make it! (But this^e shall not be such.) Until he comes to whom it is due, I will also give it over to him.

²⁸ And as for you, son of man, prophesy, and you shall say: This is what the Lord says to the sons of Ammon and to their reproach, and you shall say:

A sword, a sword drawn for victims and drawn for completion.

²⁹ Rouse yourself that you may flash in your vain vision and in your divining of lies, to give you over onto necks of lawless wounded, whose day has come, an end in a time of injustice.

³⁰ Turn back, do not lodge in this place in which you were born; in your own land I will judge you, and I will pour out my indignation upon you.

³¹ In a fire of my wrath I will breathe upon you and give you into hands of barbarian men as they devise destruction.

³² You shall be food in the fire; your blood shall be in the midst of the earth.

There will not be any memory of you, for I, the Lord, have spoken.

22 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²And you, son of man, will you judge the city of streams of blood? So declare to it all its lawless acts, ³and you shall say: This is what the Lord says: Oh city, shedding streams of blood in its midst so that its time might come and producing notions against it so as to defile it; ⁴by their streams of blood that you shed you have transgressed, and by your notions that you kept producing you were defiling yourself, and you brought your days near and brought a time of your years. Therefore, I have given you as a disgrace to the nations and for mockery to all the countries ⁵that come near to you and to those that are far from you, and they shall mock you: Your fame is unclean and great in lawless acts.

⁶ Behold, the leaders of the house of Israel, each with his kindred—they wallowed together in you so that they shed blood; ⁷they were reviling father and mother in you and dealing unjustly with the guest in you; they were oppressing orphan and widow in you, ⁸and they were despising my holy things and were profaning my sabbaths in you. ⁹Men were robbers in you so that they shed blood in you, and upon the mountains in you they ate; they were committing unholy acts in your midst. ¹⁰They uncovered a father's shame in you and were abasing a woman sitting apart in uncleanness in you. ¹¹Each one with his neighbor's wife—they would act lawlessly, and each would defile his bride in impiety, and each one his sister, a daughter of his father—they would abase in you. ¹²In you, they would take bribes in order to shed blood; they would take interest and excess in you, and you completed a completion of your evil by oppression, and they forgot me says the Lord.

¹³ If I will bring my hand upon my hand over what you have completed, that which you have done, and over your streams of blood that have come about in your midst, ¹⁴shall your heart endure? Shall your hands be strong in the days that I will act against you? I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will do it. ¹⁵And I will scatter you among the nations and disperse you in the countries, and your uncleanness shall depart from you. ¹⁶And I will receive my heritage in you before the eyes of the nations, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

¹⁷ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁸Son of man, behold, the house of Israel have all become to me mixed up with bronze and iron and tin and lead; in the midst of silver it is mixed up. ¹⁹Therefore, say: This is what the Lord says: Because you have become as one mixture, therefore, behold, I take you into the middle of Ierusalem. ²⁰Just as silver and bronze and iron and tin and lead are taken into the middle of a furnace to blow fire into it to be melted, so I will take you in with my rage and gather and melt you, ²¹and I will blow upon you with the fire of my wrath, and you shall be melted in the midst of it. ²²As silver is melted in the midst of a furnace, so you shall be melted in its midst, and you shall recognize that I, the Lord, poured out my wrath upon you.

²³ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²⁴Son of man, say to it: You are a land that is not rained upon, nor did rain come upon you in a day of indignation, ²⁵whose leaders in its midst are like roaring lions catching prey, devouring souls with dominance, taking honors, and your widows have been multiplied in your midst. ²⁶And its priests nullified my law and were profaning my holy things; they were making no distinction between holy and profane, and they were making no distinction between unclean and clean, and they were hiding their eyes from my sabbaths, and I was being profaned in their midst. ²⁷Its rulers in its midst were like wolves catching prey to shed blood so that they gain through greed. ²⁸And its prophets, while smearing^a them, shall fall, while they behold idle things, giving lying divination, saying, "This is what the Lord says," and the Lord has not spoken, ²⁹while they oppress the people of the land in injustice and committing robberies, oppressing poor and needy, and did not deal with judgment toward the guest. ³⁰And I was seeking from them a man who behaved rightly and stood in front of me entirely in the time of the land so as not to wipe it out completely, and I did not find him. ³¹And I poured out my ire upon it with the fire of my wrath to complete it; I have given their ways upon their heads, says the Lord.

23 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, two women were daughters of one mother, ³and they played the whore in Egypt in their youth; there their breasts fell; there they lost their virginity. ⁴And their names were Oola the elder and Ooliba her sister. And they became mine and bore sons and daughters. As for their names: Oola was Samaria, and Ooliba was Ierusalem.

⁵ And Oola played the whore away from me and laid herself upon her lovers, upon the Assyrians who were coming near to her ⁶clothed in blue, governors and commanders. They were all elite young men, horsemen riding upon horses. ⁷And she granted her whoring to them; they were all the chosen sons of Assyrians, and she was defiling herself upon all, upon whom she laid herself, with all her notions. ⁸And she did not give up her whoring from Egypt, for they were lying with her in her youth, and they took her virginity and poured out their whoring upon her. ⁹Therefore, I gave her over into the hands of her lovers, into hands of the sons of Assyrians upon whom she was laying herself. ¹⁰They uncovered her shame; they took her sons and daughters and killed her by sword, and she became prattle for women, and they executed judgment against her upon her daughters.

¹¹ And her sister, Ooliba, saw and was corrupting her aggression beyond her and her whoring beyond the whoring of her sister. ¹²She applied herself to the sons of Assyrians, governors and commanders near her, wearing fine purple, horsemen riding upon horses. They were all elite young men. ¹³And I saw that she had been defiled, one way for the two. ¹⁴And she added to her whoring, and she saw men painted upon the wall, images of the Chaldeans, painted by brush, ¹⁵girded with brocades upon their loins and dyed tiaras on their heads; all had a triple aspect, a likeness of sons of Chaldeans of their native land. ¹⁶And she applied herself to them in the vision of her eyes and sent out messengers to them into the land of the Chaldeans. ¹⁷And the sons of Babylon came to her for a bed of lodgers, and they were defiling her in her whoring, and she was defiled with them, and her soul recoiled from them. ¹⁸And she uncovered her whoring and uncovered her shame, and my soul recoiled from her, as my soul recoiled from her sister. ¹⁹And you multiplied your whoring to remind them of the days of your youth when you whored in Egypt, ²⁰and you applied yourself to the Chaldeans, whose flesh was like that of donkeys and their privates were privates of horses. ²¹And you reflected upon the lawlessness of your youth, what you used to do in Egypt in your lodging, where the breasts of your youth were.

²² Therefore, O Ooliba, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am rousing your lovers against you, those from whom your soul recoiled, and I will bring them against you from all around, ²³sons of Babylon and all the Chaldeans, Phakoud and Soue and Koue and all the sons of Assyrians with them, elite young men, all leaders and commanders, triples^a and famed riders upon horses. ²⁴All shall come against you from the north, chariots and wheelworks with a throng of people, oblong and small shields^b, and they shall cast a guard upon you all around. ²⁵And I will give judgment in front of them, and they shall judge you with their judgment. And I will give my jealousy against you, and they shall deal with you in furious anger; they shall remove your nose and ears, and they shall throw down your remnants by the sword. They shall seize your sons and daughters, and fire shall devour your remnants. ²⁶And they shall strip you of your clothing and seize the objects of your pride. ²⁷And I will turn back your impieties from you and your whoring from the land of Egypt, and you shall not lift your eyes upon them, and you shall remember Egypt no longer. ²⁸For this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am giving you into the hands of those whom you hate, those from whom your soul recoiled, ²⁹and they shall deal with you in hatred and take away all your labors and hardships, and you shall be naked and debased, and the shame of your whoring shall be exposed, and your impiety. And your acts of whoring ³⁰accomplished these things for you when you played the whore after nations and you were defiling yourself with their notions. ³¹You walked in the way of your sister, and I will give her cup into your hands. ³²This is what the Lord says:

You shall drink the cup of your sister, the deep and extra wide one to complete the intoxication, ³³and you shall be filled with faintness. And the cup of annihilation is a cup of your sister, Samaria. ³⁴And you shall drink it, and her feasts and new moons I will overturn, for I have spoken, says the Lord. ³⁵Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Because you forgot me and threw me away behind your body, so, you, receive your impiety and your whoring.

³⁶ And the Lord said to me: Son of man, will you not judge Oola and Ooliba? And you shall declare to them their lawless acts, ³⁷for they were committing adultery and blood was on their hands; they were committing adultery with their notions and they drove their children that they bore me through flames to them. ³⁸While they did these things to me, they were defiling my holy things and profaning my sabbaths. ³⁹And when they were slaughtering their children to their idols, they were also entering into my holy things to profane them. And it is that they would act thus in the midst of my house!

⁴³ And I said: Do they not commit adultery with these? And with actions of a whore, she too played the whore. ⁴⁴And they were entering into her; as they enter into a whoring woman, so they were entering into Oola and Ooliba to commit lawlessness. ⁴⁵And righteous men themselves shall judge them with the retribution of an adulteress and with the retribution of blood, because they are adulteresses and blood is on their hands.

⁴⁶ This is what the Lord says: Bring up a throng against them, and impart tumult and plundering among them, ⁴⁷and cast stones upon them with the stones from throngs, and pierce them with their rapiers; they shall kill their sons and daughters and set ablaze their houses with fire. ⁴⁸And I will turn back impiety from the land, and all the women shall be educated and shall not act according to their impieties. ⁴⁹And your impiety shall be given against you, and you shall receive the sins of your notions, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

24 And a word of the Lord came to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the ^aOr in threes ^bi.e. and without a rim ^ci.e. the couch ^di.e. the women's tenth of the month, saying: ²Son of man, write for yourself for a day from this day, from which the king of Babylon leaned on Ierousalem, from this very day. ³And speak an illustration to the embittering house, and you shall say to them: This is what the Lord says:

4 Set on the cauldron, and pour water into it, and throw in it pieces cut in two,
every good piece cut in two,
leg and shoulder,
5 flesh cleaned from the bones
taken from choice cattle, and burn the bones underneath them.
It boiled; it boiled,
and her^a bones were kindled in her^a
midst.

6 Therefore, this is what the Lord says:
Oh city of shed blood,
a cauldron wherein there is rust,
and the rust did not leave her^a.
She brought forth from her^a piece by piece;
no lot has fallen upon her^a, 7 for her^a blood is in her^a midst;
I have arranged it^b upon a bare rock;
I have not poured it^b out on the ground,
that the earth might cover it^b, 8 that wrath might ascend for vengeance to be avenged;
I have given her^a blood upon a bare rock
in order not to cover it^b.

⁹Therefore, this is what the Lord says:
And I shall magnify the firebrand.
10 And I will multiply the wood and stoke the fire
so that the meat may dissolve and the broth be lessened 11 and it^c stand upon the coals so that it^c be set on fire and her^a copper be made hot and melt in the midst of her^a uncleanness, and her^a rust be gone, 12 and much of her^a rust may not come out of her^a,
and her^a rust shall be completely shamed, 13 because you were defiling yourself.
And what if you are no longer cleansed until I will sate my fury?

¹⁴I, the Lord have spoken, and it shall come, and I will act; I will not distinguish, nor will I show mercy; according to your ways and according to your notions I will judge you, says the Lord. Therefore, I will judge you according to your spilled blood, and I will judge you according to your notions, you "the unclean one," "the notorious one and abundant in embittering."

15 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁶Son of man, behold, I am taking from you the desires of your eyes in battle; you shall not mourn nor weep. ¹⁷It is a groan of blood, of a loin, of mourning; your hair shall not be plaited upon you, or your sandals on your feet; you shall not be consoled by their lips, and you shall not eat the bread of men. ¹⁸And I spoke to the people in the morning as he commanded me in the evening, and I did in the morning as I was ordered.

19 And the people said to me, "Shall you not proclaim to us what these things are that you are doing?" ²⁰And I said to them: A word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²¹Say to the house of Israel, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I will profane my holy things, the wantonness of your power, the desires of your eyes, and over which your souls are concerned. And your sons and your daughters whom you left behind shall fall by the sword. ²²And you shall do as I have done; from their mouth you shall not be consoled, and you shall not eat the bread of men, ²³and your hair shall be on your head, and your sandals on your feet; you shall neither mourn nor weep and break down in your injustices, and you shall console, each his brother. ²⁴And Iezekiel shall be to you for a sign; according to everything, whatever he has done, you shall do, when these things come, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

25 And you, son of man, in the day when I take their strength from them, the swelling of their boast, the desires of their eyes and the swelling of their soul, their sons and their daughters—²⁶surely in that day he who has escaped shall not come to you to report to you, to your ears? ²⁷In that day your mouth shall be opened wide to the one who has escaped, and you shall speak and be mute no longer, and you shall be to them for a sign, and they shall recognize that I am the Lord.

25 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, set your face against the sons of Ammon, and prophesy against them. ³And you shall say to the sons of Ammon, Hear a word of the Lord: This is what the Lord says: Because you exulted over my holy things that they were profaned and over the land of Israel that it was annihilated and over the house of Ioudas that it went into captivity, ⁴therefore, behold, I am giving you over to the sons of Kedem as a portion, and they shall encamp with their equipment among you, and they shall give their coverts in you; they shall eat your fruits, and they shall drink your drinks. ⁵And I will give the city of Ammon as pastures for camels and the sons of Ammon as a pasture for sheep, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord. ⁶For this is what the Lord says: Because you clapped your hand and stamped with your foot and rejoiced from your soul over the land of Israel, ⁷therefore, I will stretch out my hand against you and give you for plundering among the nations, and I will utterly destroy you from the peoples and destroy you from the countries with destruction, and you shall recognize that I am the Lord.

8 This is what the Lord says: Because Moab said, "Behold, the house of Israel and Ioudas is like all the nations," ⁹therefore, behold, from the cities of his extremities I will loose the shoulder of Moab, an excellent land, a house of Asimouth above the fount of the city by the sea. ¹⁰I will give them^a along with the sons of Ammon to the sons of Kedem as a portion so that there be no memory of the sons of Ammon. ¹¹And I will take retribution against Moab, and they shall recognize that I am the Lord.

¹² This is what the Lord says: Because of what Idumea did when they retaliated against the house of Ioudas with retaliation and they bore a grudge and retaliated with judgment, ¹³therefore, this is what the Lord says, So I will stretch out my hand against Idumea and utterly destroy from it human being and cattle and will make it a wilderness, and those pursued from Thaiman shall fall by the sword, ¹⁴and I will give my vengeance against Idumea by the hand of my people, Israel, and they shall act against Idumea according to my rage and according to my wrath, and they shall recognize my vengeance, says the Lord.

26 And it happened in the eleventh year, on the first of the month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, because Sor said concerning Ierusalem, “Good! It was shattered; the nations have perished;

she has turned toward me;

she that was full has become desolate”;

³therefore, this is what the Lord says:

Behold, I am against you, O Sor,

and I will bring up against you many nations,

as the sea comes up with its waves.

⁴ And they shall overthrow the walls of Sor and cast down your towers, and I will winnow its soil from it and render it as a bare rock,

⁵ and it shall be a drying-place for dragnets in the midst of the sea,

for I have spoken, says the Lord.

And it shall become plunder for the nations.

⁶ And its daughters in the plain shall be killed by dagger.

And they shall know that I am the Lord.

⁷ For this is what the Lord says: O Sor, behold, I am bringing against you Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, from the north—he is king of kings—together with horses and chariots and riders and a gathering of very many nations.

⁸ By dagger he shall kill your daughters on the plain and give an outpost against you.

And he shall build around you and make a palisade and an encirclement of troops against you all around,

and his spears he shall give opposite you.

⁹ He shall drop your walls and your towers with his daggers.

¹⁰ From the number of his horses—

their dust shall cover over you.

And your walls shall be shaken from the sound of his riders and the wheelworks of his chariots,

when he enters your gates

as one enters a city from a plain.

¹¹ They shall trample all your streets with the hoofs of his horses.

He shall kill your people by dagger and bring down the foundation of your power onto the ground.

¹² And he shall plunder your force and seize your belongings

and cast down your walls and demolish your desired houses.

And he shall cast your stones and wood and soil

into the midst of the sea.

¹³ And he shall disband the multitude of your musicians, and the voice of your harps shall be heard no longer.

¹⁴ And I will give you as a bare rock;

you shall be a drying-place for dragnets.

You shall never again be built,

for I have spoken, says the Lord.

¹⁵ For this is what the Lord says to Sor: Shall not the islands be shaken from the voice of your fall, when a wounded groans when a dagger is drawn in your midst? ¹⁶And all the rulers from the nations of the sea shall step down from their thrones and remove the headdresses from their heads and take off their embroidered apparel; they shall become amazed with amazement, they shall sit on the ground and be frightened for their destruction and become sullen over you. ¹⁷And they shall take up for themselves a lament over you and say:

How have you been dismissed from the sea, you laudable city that imposed terror of itself

on all its inhabitants?

¹⁸ And the islands shall be frightened from the day of your fall.

¹⁹ For this is what the Lord says: When I render you as a desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited, when I bring up the abyss against you, abundant water shall also cover you, ²⁰and I will force you down to those who descend into a hole, to a people of long ago, and I will make you live in the depths of the earth as an everlasting wilderness with those who descend into a hole so that you

^ai.e. the sons of Moab shall not be inhabited nor rise upon a land of life.

²¹And I will give you into destruction, and you shall no more exist forever, says the Lord.

27 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying:
²Son of man, take up a lament over Sor,
³and you shall say to Sor, which lives at the entrance to the sea, to the trading-station of the peoples from many islands: This is what the Lord says to Sor:

You have said,

"I wrapped myself with my beauty."

⁴ In the heart of the sea of Gobelin, your sons wrapped you with beauty.
⁵ A cedar from Sanir was built for you, fillets of timber of cypress were taken from Lebanon
 to make fir-tree masts for you.
⁶ They made your oars from Basanitis;
 they made your ^aholy things^a from ivory, woodland houses from the islands of the Chettiin.
⁷ Fine linen with embroidery from Egypt became your bedding
 so as to wrap you with glory and to clothe you with blue and purple from the islands of Elisai, and they became your covering.
⁸ And your rulers, those who inhabited Sidon, and Aradians became your rowers;
 your skilled ones, O Sor, were among you;
 these were your pilots.
⁹ The elders of the Byblians and their wise ones were within you,
 and they were strengthening your counsel,
 and all the ships of the sea and their rowers became yours unto the west of the west.
¹⁰ Persians and Lydians and Libyans were in your force;
 your warrior men
 hung up small, light shields and helmets in
 you;
 these furnished your glory.
¹¹ Sons of Aradians and your force were guards on your walls,
 in your towers.
 They hung up their quivers on your places
 of anchorage all around;
 they made perfect your beauty.

¹² Carthaginians, your dealers from all the abundance of your strength, gave your market silver and gold and iron and tin and lead. ¹³Greece and its entirety and its neighboring regions—they were trafficking in human souls for you and gave bronze vessels as your merchandise. ¹⁴From a house of Thegrama, horses and riders supplied your market. ¹⁵Sons of the Rhodians, merchants from islands, multiplied your commerce in ivory tusks, and for the imports you would exchange your wages, ¹⁶human beings as your commerce from an abundance of your sundries: oil of myrrh and brocades from Tharsis and Ramoth and Chorchor supplied your market; ¹⁷Ioudas and the sons of Israel—these are your merchants in sale of grain and myrrh and cassia, and they gave first^b honey and oil and resin into your sundries. ¹⁸Damascus is your merchant, as a result the abundance of all your might. Wine was from Chelbon and wool from Miletus, and they supplied wine to your market; ¹⁹from Asel, wrought iron and casting are among your sundries; ²⁰Dedan are your merchants with choice beasts for chariots; ²¹Arabia and all the rulers of Kedar—these are your merchants through your hand: camels and rams and lambs in which they do business with you. ²²Merchants of Saba and Ragma—these are your merchants in first^b fragrances and fine stones, and they supplied your market gold; ²³Charran and Channa—these are your merchants; Assour and Charman are your merchants ²⁴bearing commerce in blue and choice treasures bound with cords and cypress wood ²⁵ships. In them are Carthaginians as your merchants, in abundance, among your sundries, and you were filled up, and you were greatly weighed down in the heart of the sea.

²⁶ Your rowers would lead you in much water; the wind of the south wrecked you in the heart of the sea.

²⁷ They were your powers and your wage even of your sundries.

And your rowers and your pilots and your advisers and your sundries^c from your sundries

and all your men, your warriors that are in you

and all your gathering in your midst—they shall fall in the heart of the sea in the day of your fall.

²⁸ At the voice of your cry, your pilots shall fear with fear,

²⁹ and all the rowers and passengers and bow-officers of the sea

shall debark from the ships and stand on the ground,

³⁰ and they shall howl loudly over you with their voice

and cry bitterly.

And they shall put earth upon their head and shall make a bed of ashes.

³² And their sons shall take up a lament over
 you

and a lamentation for Sor:

³³ "How great a wage have you found from the sea?"

You satisfied nations from your abundance and from your sundries;

you enriched all kings of the earth.

³⁴ Now, you have been shattered in the sea,
 in a depth of water;

your sundries and all your gathering,
 all your rowers, fell in your midst.

³⁵ All the inhabitants of the islands

^aOr temples ^bPossibly best ^cPerhaps dealers in sundries?

became sullen over you,
and their kings became astounded with astonishment,
and their face cried tears.

36 Merchants from nations hissed at you;
you have become destruction,
and you shall no more exist forever."

28 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying:
2And you, son of man, say to the ruler of Tyre, This is what the Lord says:

Because your heart was exalted and you said, "I am a god;
I have inhabited a habitation of a god
in the heart of the sea,"
yet you are human and not a god, and you rendered your heart as a god's heart.

3 Surely, you are not wiser than Daniel?
Or did wise ones not discipline you with their knowledge?

4 Surely, by your knowledge and by your prudence
you did not make for yourself power, both gold and silver in your treasuries?

5 Or by your great knowledge and commerce did you multiply your power?

Was your heart exalted by your power?

6 Therefore, this is what the Lord says:
Since you have rendered your heart
as a god's heart,

7 therefore, behold, I am bringing against you foreign pests from the nations, and they shall unsheathe their daggers
against you

and against the beauty of your knowledge and wound your beauty unto destruction.

8 And they shall bring you down, and you shall die by the death of the wounded
in the heart of the sea.

9 When you speak, will you actually say, "I am a god,"

before those that are killing you?
But you are a human and not a god.

10 By a multitude of the uncircumcised you shall perish, by the hands of foreigners,
for I have spoken, says the Lord.

11 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying:

12Son of man, take up a lament over the ruler of Tyre, and say to him, This is what the Lord says:

You were a signet in likeness and a crown of beauty.

13 In the delight of the orchard of God you were born;
you have bound on every fine stone, carnelian and topaz and emerald and carbuncle and lapis lazuli and jasper and silver and gold and ligure and agate and amethyst
and chrysolite^a and beryl and onyx.

And you filled with gold your treasuries and your storerooms among you.

14 From the day you were created, I placed you with the cherub

in a holy, divine mountain;
you were born in the midst of fiery stones.

15 You were born blameless in your days from the day you were created until acts of iniquity were found in you.

16 From the abundance of your commerce you filled your storehouses with
lawlessness,
and you sinned and were wounded from God's mountain,
and the cherub drove you from the midst of the fiery stones.

17 Your heart was exalted because of your beauty,
and your knowledge was corrupted by your beauty.

Because of the multitude of your sins, I threw you on the ground;
before kings I gave you to be made an example.

18 Because of the multitude of your sins and the injustice of your commerce,
I profaned your temples,
and I will bring out fire from your midst.

This shall devour you,
and I will render you into ashes upon your land
before all who see you.

19 And all who understand you among the
nations
shall become sullen over you;
you became destruction,
and you shall exist no more forever.

20 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying:

21Son of man, set your face against Sidon, and prophesy against it, 22and say, This is what the Lord says:

Behold, I am against you, O Sidon, and I will be glorified in you,
and you shall know that I am the Lord,
when I execute judgments against you,
and I will be hallowed in you.

23 Blood and death
shall be in your streets, and those who have been wounded by daggers

shall fall in you all around you.
And they shall know that I am the Lord.

24 And the house of Israel shall no longer have a thorn of bitterness or a prick of pain from those all around them, who dishonor them, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

25 This is what the Lord says: And I will gather Israel from the nations, there where they were scattered, and I will be hallowed among them before the peoples and the nations. 26And they shall live upon their land, which I have given to my slave, Iakob, (26)and they shall live upon it in hope and ^aPossibly yellow topaz

shall build houses and plant vineyards and live in hope, when I execute judgment among all who dishonor them among those around them, and they shall know that I am the Lord, their God, and the God of their fathers.

29 In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the first of the month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, set your face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and prophesy against him and against all Egypt, ³and say, This is what the Lord says:

Behold, I am against Pharaoh, the great dragon who is ensconced in the midst of his streams and the one who says, "The streams are
mine,
and I made them."

⁴ And I will give snares into your jaws and glue the fish of your stream to your fins.

And I will bring up you and all the fish of your stream
from the midst of your stream.

⁵ And I will fling you and all the fish of your stream down with speed;
upon the surface of the plain you shall
fall,
and you shall not be gathered and shall not be interred.

I have given you to the animals of the earth and to the birds of the air for food.

⁶ And all who inhabit Egypt shall know
that I am the Lord,
because you became a rod of reed
for the house of Israel.

⁷ When they seized you with their hands, you were crushed,
and when every hand prevailed over them and when they rested upon you, you were
shattered,
and you broke every loin of theirs.

⁸ Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am bringing against you a sword, and I will destroy human beings and cattle from you, ⁹and the land of Egypt shall be destruction and a wilderness, and they shall know that I am the Lord, instead of your saying, "The streams are mine, and I made them." ¹⁰Therefore, behold, I am against you and against all your streams, and I will give the land of Egypt into a wilderness and a sword and destruction from Magdolos and Syene and as far as the borders of the Ethiopians. ¹¹And no human foot shall pass through it, and no cattle hoof shall pass through it, and it shall not be inhabited for forty years. ¹²And I will give its land as a destruction in the midst of a desolated land, and its cities shall be in the midst of desolated cities for forty years, and I will scatter Egypt among the nations and winnow them into the countries.

¹³ This is what the Lord says: After forty years,

I will gather Egyptians from the nations, there where they were scattered, ¹⁴and I will turn back the captivity of the Egyptians and settle them in a land of Pathoures in the land, there from where they were taken, and it shall be a lowly principality ¹⁵compared to all principalities, and it will never again be exalted over the nations, and I will make them least so that they might not be rather numerous among the nations. ¹⁶And the house of Israel shall no longer have them for a hope that recalls lawlessness, when they follow after them, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

¹⁷ And it happened in the twenty-seventh year, on the first of the first month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁸Son of man, Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, treated his force as slaves with great slavery against Tyre. Every head was bald, and every shoulder hairless, and no wage accrued to him and to his force against Tyre even in return for the slavery with which they slaved against it. ¹⁹This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am giving to Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, the land of Egypt, and he shall foray for its booty and seize its spoils, and there shall be a wage for his force. ²⁰In return for his ministry, which he slaved against Tyre, I have given him the land of Egypt. This is what the Lord says: ²¹In that day a horn shall sprout up for all the house of Israel, and I will give to you an open mouth in their midst, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

30 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, prophesy, and say, This is what the Lord says:

Ah, ah the day,

³ for the day of the Lord is near;
a day shall be an end of nations.

⁴ And a dagger shall come upon the Egyptians,
and there shall be tumult in Ethiopia, and those who have been wounded shall fall in Egypt,
and its foundations shall collapse.

⁵Persians and Cretans and Lydians and Libyans and all those mixed in and some of the sons of my covenant shall fall in it^a by dagger.

⁶ And the supports of Egypt shall fall, and the insolence of its power shall come down
from Magdolos to Syene;
they shall fall in it^a by dagger, says the
Lord.

⁷ And it shall be made desolate in the midst of desolated countries, and their cities shall be in the midst of desolate cities.

⁸ And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I give fire upon Egypt and all those who help it are shattered.

⁹ In that day, messengers shall go out rushing to annihilate Ethiopia, and there shall be tumult

^ai.e. Egypt

among them in the day of Egypt, for behold, it has come.

- 10 This is what the Lord says:
And I will destroy a mass of Egyptians by the hand of Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon,
11 of him^a and of his people;
pests they are, dispatched from nations to destroy the land,
and all shall unsheathe their daggers
against Egypt,
and the land shall be filled with wounded.
12 And I will render their streams desolate and destroy the land and its fullness by the hands of foreigners;
I, the Lord have spoken,
13 because this is what the Lord says:
And I will destroy nobles from Memphis and rulers from the land of Egypt.
And they shall no longer be.
14 And I will destroy the land of Pathoures and give fire against Tanis and execute judgment against Diospolis.
15 And I will pour out my wrath upon Sais, the strength of Egypt,
and destroy the mass of Memphis.
16 And I will give fire against Egypt, and Syene shall fall in tumult.
And in Diospolis there shall be a breach,
and waters shall pour through.
17 Young men of Heliopolis and Bubastus shall fall by dagger,
and the women shall go in captivity.
18 And in Taphnas the day shall become completely dark,
when I shatter there the scepters of Egypt.
And the insolence of its strength shall perish
there,
and a cloud shall cover it,
and its daughters shall be led away as prisoners.
19 And I will execute judgment in Egypt,
and they shall know that I am the Lord.

20 And it happened in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh of the month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²¹Son of man, I shattered the arms of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and behold, he has not been bound up to be given healing, to be given padding upon it, to be given strength to wield daggers. ²²Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am against Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and I will shatter his strong and outstretched arms, and I will throw down his dagger from his hand. ²³And I will scatter Egypt into the nations and winnow them into the countries, ²⁴and I will make strong the arms of the king of Babylon and give my sword into his hand and bring it out against Egypt, and he^b shall foray for its plunder and seize its spoils. ²⁵And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon but the arms of Pharaoh shall fall, and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I give my sword into the hands of the king of Babylon and he shall stretch it out against the land of Egypt. ²⁶And I will scatter Egypt into the nations and winnow them into the countries, and all shall know that I am the Lord.

31 And it happened in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first of the month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, say to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and to his mass:

- To whom^c did you liken yourself in your height?
3 Behold, Assour is a cypress in Lebanon;
beautiful in limbs he is and high in size;
his top came to be into the midst of clouds.
4 Water nourished him;
the abyss raised him high;
it^d led its^d rivers around his plants^e,
and it^d sent out its^d systems to all the trees of the plain.
5 On this account, his size was exalted above all the trees of the plain, and his branches were multiplied
from abundant water.
6 All the birds of the air nested in his limbs,
and underneath his branches all the animals
of the plain gave birth;
in his shade all the multitude of nations lived.
7 And he became beautiful in his height, because of the multitude of his branches,
because his roots came into abundant water.
8 Such cypresses do not exist in the orchard of God,
and pine trees were not like his limbs,
and silver firs were not like his branches;
no tree in the orchard of God resembled him in his beauty 9 on account of the abundance of his branches.
The trees in the orchard of God's delight were jealous of him.

10 Therefore, this is what the Lord says: On account of the fact that you became great in size and you gave your top into the midst of clouds, I also looked after he was exalted, ¹¹and I gave him over into the hands of a ruler of nations, and he accomplished his destruction. ¹²And foreign pests from nations destroyed him utterly and flung him down upon the mountains; in all the ravines his branches fell, and his trunks were shattered in every plain of the earth, and all the peoples of the nations came down from their shelter and beat him flat.

13 All the birds of the air rested upon his fall, and all the animals of the field came to be upon his trunks, ¹⁴that all the trees in the water might not be exalted in their size, and they did not give their top into the midst of the clouds, and all those who would drink water did not approach them in their height.

^aI.e. Nabouchodonosor ^bOr it ^cPossibly what ^dI.e. the abyss ^ePossibly seedlings

All were handed over to death
into the depth of the earth,
in the midst of sons of humans,
to people who descend into a hole.

15 This is what the Lord says: In the day he descended into Hades, the abyss lamented him, and I halted its rivers and blocked an abundance of water, and Lebanon grew dark over him; all the trees of the plain fainted because of him. ¹⁶From the sound of his fall, the nations were shaken, when I was bringing him down into Hades with those who descend into a hole. And all the trees of delight even the choice ones of Lebanon, all that drink water, were consoling him on earth^a. ¹⁷For they descended into Hades with him among those wounded by dagger, and his offspring, those who lived under his shelter, perished in the middle of their life.

18 To whom^b were you likened? Descend, and be brought down with the trees of delight into the depth of the earth; in the midst of the uncircumcised you shall lie among those wounded by dagger. This is Pharaoh and all the multitude of his strength, says the Lord.

32 And it happened in the eleventh year, in the twelfth month, on the first of the month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, take up a lament over Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and you shall say to him:

You were likened to a lion of nations, and you were like a dragon that is in the sea,
and you were raising a horn against your streams and were troubling water with your feet and trampling down your streams.

3 This is what the Lord says:

And I will wrap you with nets of many peoples and haul you up by my hook.

4 And I will stretch you out upon the ground; plains shall be filled with you.

And I will settle upon you all the birds of the air and satisfy all the animals of the earth.

5 And I will give your flesh upon the mountains and fill all the earth from your blood.

6 And the earth shall be given to drink from your excrement, from your mass upon the mountains;
I will fill ravines with you.

7 And I will cover over heaven after you are extinguished and make its stars dark;

I will cover the sun with a cloud,
and the moon shall not show its light.

8 All that shine light in the sky shall grow dark over you, and I will give darkness against your land,
says the Lord.

9 And I will provoke the heart of many peoples, when I take your captivity into the nations,
into a land that you did not know.

10 And many nations shall become sullen over you, and their kings shall be amazed with amazement
when my sword flies in their face, as they accept their fall after^c the day of your fall.

11 For this is what the Lord says:
A sword of the king of Babylon shall come to you

12 with daggers of giants.
And I will throw down your strength;
all are pests from nations,
and they shall destroy the insolence of Egypt,
and all its strength shall be shattered.

13 And I will destroy all its cattle
from abundant water,
and no human foot shall trouble it^d any longer,
and no cattle print shall trample it^d.

14 So then their waters shall be quiet, and their streams shall run like oil, says the Lord.

15 When I give Egypt into destruction and the land is made desolate together with its plenty,
when I disperse all the inhabitants in it,
then they shall know that I am the Lord.

16 A lament it is, and you shall ^elament it^e,
and the daughters of the nations shall ^elament it^e.
Over Egypt and over all its strength, they shall ^elament it^e,
says the Lord.

17 And it happened in the twelfth year, in the first month, on the fifteenth of the month, a word of the Lord came to me, saying:

18 Son of man, bewail the strength of Egypt, and the nations shall bring down its daughters dead
into the depth of the earth
to those who descend into a hole.

²⁰In the midst of those wounded by daggers, they shall fall down with him^f, and all his^f strength shall lie down. ²¹And the giants in the depth of the hole shall say to you, "You are greater than whom? Descend, and lie with the uncircumcised in the midst of those wounded by dagger."

22 Assour is there, and all his gathering; all the wounded were given there, and their burial is in a depth of a hole, and his gathering came to be all

^aOr the ground ^bPossibly what ^cOr as a result of ^di.e. water ^eOr bewail him ^fOr it(s); antecedent unclear, perhaps Egypt's king around his tomb, all the wounded who have fallen by dagger, ²³who gave their fear upon^a the land of life.

24 Ailam is there, and all his force all around his tomb, all the wounded who have fallen by dagger and those who descend uncircumcised into the depth of the earth, who gave their fear upon^a the land of life and received their trial with those who descend into a hole ²⁵in the midst of the wounded.

26 Mosoch and Thobel were given there, and all their strength all around his tomb, all his wounded, all the uncircumcised wounded by dagger, who have given their fear upon^a the land of life, ²⁷and they lay down with the giants fallen long ago, who descended into Hades by military arms and placed their daggers under their heads, and their lawless acts came to be upon their bones, because they terrified giants in the land of life. ²⁸And you shall lie in the midst of the uncircumcised, with those who have been wounded by dagger.

29 The rulers of Assour were given there, who gave their strength for a wound by dagger; they lay down with the wounded, with those who go down into a hole.

30 The rulers of the north are there, all commanders of Assour, those who were descending as wounded, together with their fear and with their strength; they lay down uncircumcised with the wounded by dagger, and they bore their trial with those who descend into a hole.

31 King Pharao shall see them and be consoled over all their strength, says the Lord. ³²Because I have given his fear upon the land of life, he shall also lie down in the midst of the uncircumcised with the wounded by dagger, Pharao and all his multitude, says the Lord.

33 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, speak to the sons of your people, and you shall say to them, A land—if I bring a sword upon it and if the people of the land take one person from them and give him to themselves as a sentinel ³and if he sees the sword coming against the land and if he trumpets with the trumpet and if he signals to the people ⁴and if the one who hears the sound of the trumpet and does not take heed and if the sword arrives and overtakes him, his blood shall be on his head! ⁵For after hearing the sound of the trumpet, he did not take heed, his blood shall be on him, and he, because he took heed, delivered his soul. ⁶And the sentinel, if he sees the sword coming and does not signal with the trumpet and the people do not take heed and the sword comes and takes from them a soul, this one was taken on account of its own lawlessness, and I will seek the blood from the hand of the sentinel.

7 And you, son of man, I have given you as a sentinel to the house of Israel, and you shall hear a word from my mouth. ⁸When I say to the sinner,

“By death you shall be put to death,” and should you not speak so that the impious might take heed from his way, the lawless one himself shall die by his lawlessness, but his blood I will seek from your hand. ⁹But you, if you announce to the impious his way, to turn back from it, and he does not turn back from his way, he shall die by his lawlessness, and you have delivered your own soul.

10 Now you, son of man, say to the house of Israel, Thus you spoke, saying, “Our errors and lawless acts are with us, and in them we waste away. And how will we live?” ¹¹Say to them, I live, says the Lord; I do not wish the death of the impious, rather that the impious turn back from his way and he live. Turn back from your way by turning back, and why are you dying, O house of Israel? ¹²Say to the sons of your people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in whatever day he err, and the lawlessness of the impious shall not harm him on whatever day he turn back from his lawlessness, and the righteous shall not be able to be saved. ¹³When I say to the righteous, “He trusts in his righteousness,” and should he commit lawlessness, none of his righteous acts shall be recalled in his injustice that he has committed; in it he shall die. ¹⁴And when I say to the impious, “By death you shall be put to death, and you shall turn back from your sin,” and should he perform judgment and righteousness ¹⁵and restore a pledge and give back robbery, walk in the ordinances of life so as not to do what is wrong, by life he shall live, and he shall not die; ¹⁶none of his sins that he has committed shall be recalled, for he has performed judgment and righteousness; in them he shall live.

17 And the sons of your people shall say, “The way of the Lord is not right,” and this way of theirs is not right. ¹⁸When a righteous one has turned back from his righteousness and should he commit acts of lawlessness, he shall also die in them. ¹⁹And when the sinner turns back from his lawlessness and performs judgment and righteousness, in them he shall live. ²⁰And this is what you said, “The way of the Lord is not right”; I will judge each of you by his ways, O house of Israel.

21 And it happened in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the fifth of the month of our captivity, he that had escaped came to me from Ierusalem, saying, “The city has been taken.” ²²And the hand of the Lord came upon me in the evening before he came, and my mouth was open until he came to me in the morning, and when opened, my mouth was constrained no longer.

23 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²⁴Son of man, the inhabitants of ^bdesolated places^b upon the land of Israel say, “Abraam was one man, and he possessed the land, and we are more; the land has been given to us as a possession.” ²⁵Therefore, say to them, ²⁷This is what the Lord says: I live; surely those in ^bdesolated ones^b shall fall by dagger, and those upon the surface of the plain shall be given to the animals of the field for food, and I will slay by death those in walled places^a and those in caves. ²⁸And I will render the land a wilderness, and the insolence of its strength shall perish, and the mountains of Israel shall be made desolate so as not to be passed through. ²⁹And they shall know that I am the Lord, and I will make their land a wilderness, and it shall be made desolate because of all their abominations that they committed.

30 And as for you, son of man, the sons of your people who speak about you by the walls and in the gateways of their dwellings, and they speak, a person to his brother, saying, "Let us go together and hear what comes from the Lord," ³¹they also come to you, as a people comes together, and they sit before you and hear your words, and they shall not do them, because a lie is in their mouth, and their heart is after defilements. ³²And you shall be to them as a tone of a sweet, harmonious harp, and they shall hear your words, and they shall not do them. ³³And whenever it comes, they shall say, "Behold, it has come," and they shall know that a prophet was in their midst.

34 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel; prophesy, and say to the shepherds, This is what the Lord says: Oh, you shepherds of Israel, do shepherds feed themselves? Do not shepherds feed the flocks? ³Behold, you devour the milk and wrap yourselves with the wool and slaughter the fatling, but you do not feed my sheep. ⁴You did not strengthen the weakened and did not build up the unwell and did not bind up the crushed and did not turn about the one that strayed and did not seek the lost, and you subdued the strong with hardship. ⁵And my sheep were scattered because there were no shepherds, and they were as food for all the animals of the field. ⁶And my sheep were scattered on every mountain and upon every lofty hill, and they were scattered upon the surface of every land, and there was not one who searched for them nor one who turned them back.

7 Therefore, shepherds, hear a word of the Lord: ⁸I live, says the Lord, surely because my sheep were for plunder and my sheep were as food for all the animals of the plain, because there were no shepherds and the shepherds did not search for my sheep and the shepherds fed themselves but did not feed my sheep—⁹because of this, you shepherds, ¹⁰this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am against the shepherds, and I will search for my sheep from their hands and turn them back so as not to shepherd my sheep, and the shepherds shall no longer feed them, and I will deliver my sheep from their mouth and they shall no longer be for them as food.

11 For this is what the Lord says: Behold, I will search for my sheep and watch over them. ¹²Just as the shepherd seeks his flock by day, when there is thick darkness and cloud in the midst of the separated sheep, so will I seek out my sheep and drive them away from every place, there where they were scattered in a day of cloud and thick darkness. ¹³And I will bring them out from the nations and gather them from the countries and will bring them into their land, and I will feed them upon the mountains of Israel and in the ravines and in every habitation of the land. ¹⁴I will feed them in a good pasture; their folds shall be on the lofty mountain of Israel; there also they shall lie down, and there they shall rest in fine luxury, and they shall be fed in a rich pasture on the mountains of Israel. ¹⁵It is I who will feed my sheep, and it is I who will give them rest, and they shall know that I am the Lord. This is what the Lord says: ¹⁶I will seek the lost, and I will turn about the one that strayed, and I will bind up the crushed, and I will strengthen the abandoned, and I will watch the strong, and I will feed them with judgment.

17 And you, O sheep, this is what the Lord says: Behold, I am deciding between sheep and sheep, rams and goats. ¹⁸And was it not enough for you that you were feeding in a beautiful pasture, and you were treading with your feet the rest of the pasture? And you were drinking the calm water, and you were troubling the rest with your feet? ¹⁹And my sheep were feeding upon the troddings of your feet and were drinking the water troubled by your feet.

20 Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Behold, it is I who am deciding between a strong sheep and between a feeble sheep. ²¹Since you pushed through with your sides and shoulders and were butting with your horns and were afflicting every abandoned^b one, ²²I will also save my sheep, and they shall no longer be as plunder, and I will judge between ram against ram.

23 And I will raise up over them another shepherd, and he shall shepherd them, my slave Daud, and he shall be their shepherd, ²⁴and I, the Lord, will be a god for them, and Daud shall be ruler in their midst; I, the Lord, have spoken.

25 And I will make with Daud a covenant of peace, and I will annihilate harmful animals from the land, and they shall live in the wilderness and sleep in the forests. ²⁶And I will give them all around my mountain, and I will give rain to you, a rain of blessing. ²⁷And the trees in the plain shall yield their fruit, and the land shall yield its strength, and they shall live upon their land in hope of peace, and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shatter their yoke, and I will deliver them from the hand of those who enslaved them. ²⁸And they shall no longer be for plunder for the nations, and the animals of the land shall no longer eat them, and they shall live in hope, and there shall be no one who terrifies them. ²⁹And I will raise up for them a plant of peace, and no longer shall they perish by famine upon the land, and they shall no longer suffer the reproach of nations. ³⁰And they shall know that I am the Lord, their God, and they are my people, the house of Israel, says the Lord. ³¹You are my sheep and the sheep of my flock, and I, the Lord, am your God, says the Lord.

^aPossibly cities ^bOr faint

35 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, turn your face against Mount Seir, and prophesy against it, ³and say to it, This is what the Lord says:

Behold, I am against you, Mount Seir, and will stretch out my hand against you and render you a wilderness, and you shall be made desolate.

⁴ And I will make a solitude in your cities, and you shall be a wilderness, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

¹⁰ Because you said, "The two nations and the two countries shall be mine, and I will take possession of them"—and the Lord is there, ¹¹therefore, I live, says the Lord, I will also deal with you according to your enmity, and I will be known to you, when I judge you, ¹²and you shall know that I am the Lord. I have heard the voice of your blasphemies; for you said, "The mountains of Israel are deserted; they have been given to us for food," ¹³and you talked big against me with your mouth. I heard! ¹⁴This is what the Lord says: In the joy of all the earth, I will make you a wilderness. ¹⁵A wilderness you shall be, Mount Seir, and all Idumea shall be consumed, and you shall know that I, the Lord, am their God.

36 And you, son of man, prophesy against the mountains of Israel, and say to the mountains of Israel, Hear a word of the Lord. ²This is what the Lord says: Because the enemy said of you, "Good! Everlasting desert places have become for us a possession," ³therefore, prophesy, and say: This is what the Lord says: Because of your being dishonored and your being hated by those around you so that you are as a possession for the remaining nations and you ascended as prattle to the tongue even as an insult for nations, ⁴therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear a word of the Lord: This is what the Lord says to the mountains and to the hills and to the ravines and to the wadis and to the devastated and annihilated places and to the abandoned cities, which became as plunder and as a downtrodden place for the nations that were left^b, all around; ⁵therefore, this is what the Lord says: Surely I spoke in the fire of my ardor against the rest of the nations and against all Idumea, for they have given themselves my land as a possession with joy, dishonoring souls so as to annihilate in plunder. ⁶Therefore, prophesy against the land of Israel, and say to the mountains and to the hills and to the ravines and to the dells, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I spoke in my jealousy and in my wrath, because you bore the insults of nations. ⁷Therefore, I will raise my hand against the nations that are all around you; they shall receive their dishonor.

⁸ But as for your mountains, O Israel, my people shall devour your grapes and fruit, for they are getting close to coming. ⁹For behold, I am for you, and I will look upon you, and you shall be worked and sown. ¹⁰And I will multiply human beings upon you, every house of Israel totally, and the cities shall be inhabited, and the desolate one^c shall be built. ¹¹And I will multiply human beings and cattle upon you and settle you as in your beginning, and I will treat you well just as was your former condition, and you shall know that I am the Lord. ¹²And I will produce human beings upon you, my people Israel, and they shall take possession of you, and you shall be for them as a possession, and no longer shall you continue to be childless by them.

¹³ This is what the Lord says: Because they said to you, "You are one who has devoured human beings, and you have become childless by your own nation," ¹⁴therefore, you shall no longer eat human beings, and you shall no longer deprive your nation of children, says the Lord. ¹⁵And no longer shall the dishonor of nations be heard against you. You shall no longer bear the insults of the peoples, says the Lord.

²² Therefore, say to the house of Israel, This is what the Lord says: I do not act for you, O house of Israel, but rather on account of my holy name, which you profaned among the nations, there where you entered. ²³And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the nations, which you profaned in their midst, and the nations shall know that I am the Lord, when I am hallowed among you before their eyes. ²⁴And I will take you from the nations and gather you from all the lands and bring you into your own land. ²⁵And I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and you shall be cleansed from all your unclean acts and from all your idols, and I will cleanse you. ²⁶And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will give in you, and I will remove the stone heart from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh. ²⁷And I will give my spirit in you and will act so that you walk in my statutes and keep my judgments and perform them. ²⁸And you shall live upon the land that I gave to your fathers, and you shall be for me as a people, and I will be a god for you. ²⁹And I will save you from all your unclean acts and will summon the grain, ³⁰and I will multiply it and will not give famine upon you, and I will multiply the fruit of the tree and the produce of the field so that you may not take the reproach of famine among the nations. ³¹And you shall remember your wicked ways and your practices that were not good, and you shall be sorely angered in front of them by your lawless acts and by your abominations. ³²Not for you do I act, says the Lord; it shall be known to you; be put to shame, and turn back from your ways, O house of Israel.

³³ This is what the Lord says: In the day I will cleanse you from all your lawless acts; I will also settle the cities, and the deserts^a shall be built, ³⁴and the annihilated one shall be tilled instead of becoming annihilated before the eyes of every passer-by. ³⁵And they shall say, "That annihilated land became like a garden of delight, and the cities devastated and annihilated and razed sat firm." ³⁶And whatever nations are left around you shall know that I, the Lord, built the desolated ones^a and planted the annihilated ones^b; I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will do it.

³⁷ This is what the Lord says: I will yet be in great demand to the house of Israel to do this for them: I will multiply them, human beings like sheep. ³⁸Like holy sheep, like the sheep of Jerusalem at her feasts, so the deserted cities shall be full of sheep, of human beings, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

37 And the hand of the Lord came upon me, and the Lord brought me out in a spirit^c and set me in the midst of the plain, and this was full of human bones, ²and he brought me all around them in a circle, and behold, very many, very dry, upon the surface of the plain. ³And he said to me, "Son of man, shall these bones live?" And I said, "O Lord, you know these things." ⁴And he said to me, Prophecy over these bones, and you shall say to them: O dry bones, hear a word of the Lord. ⁵This is what the Lord says to these bones: Behold, I am bringing into you a spirit^c of life, ⁶and I will give sinews on you and bring flesh upon you and draw out skin over you and give my breath^d into you, and you shall live, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

⁷ And I prophesied as he commanded me. And it happened, when I prophesied, and behold, a shaking^e, and he brought forth the bones, each to its joint. ⁸And I looked, and behold, sinews and flesh were growing upon them, and skin was coming up upon them, on top, but no breath^d was in them. ⁹And he said to me, Prophecy to the breath^d; prophecy, son of man, and say to the breath^d; This is what the Lord says: Come from the four winds, and blow into these corpses, and they shall live. ¹⁰And I prophesied just as he commanded me. And the breath^d came into them, and they lived and stood upon their feet, a very great gathering.

¹¹ And the Lord spoke to me, saying: Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel, and they say, "Our bones have become dry; our hope has perished; we are lost." ¹²Therefore, prophecy, and say, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am opening your tombs and will bring you up out of your tombs and bring you into the land of Israel, ¹³and you shall know that I am the Lord, when I open your graves so that I might bring my people up out of their graves. ¹⁴And I will give my spirit^c into you, and you shall live, and I will place you upon your own land, and you shall know that I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will act, says the Lord.

¹⁵ And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ¹⁶Son of man, take for yourself a rod, and write on it, "Ioudas and the sons of Israel who are joined to him," and you shall take for yourself a second rod, and you shall inscribe it "For Ioseph," a rod of Ephraim and all the sons of Israel who have been added to him. ¹⁷And you shall join them to each other into one rod for yourself so as to bind them, and they shall be in your hand. ¹⁸And it shall be when the sons of your people shall say to you, "Will you not proclaim to us what is this thing of yours?" ¹⁹then you shall say to them, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I will take the tribe of Ioseph (which is through the hand of Ephraim) and the tribes of Israel joined to him, and I will give them onto the tribe of Ioudas, and they shall be as one rod in the hand of Ioudas. ²⁰And the rods, those upon which you wrote, shall be in your hand before them, ²¹and you shall say to them, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am taking the whole house of Israel from the midst of the nations, there where they went, and I will gather them from all those around them and bring them into the land of Israel, ²²and I will give them into one nation in my land and on the mountains of Israel, and they shall have one ruler, and they shall no longer be as two nations, nor shall they be divided into two kingdoms ²³so that they never again defile themselves with their idols. And I will recue them from all their lawless acts, whereby they have sinned, and I will cleanse them, and they shall be for me as a people, and I, the Lord, will be a god for them.

²⁴ And my slave, Daudid, shall be ruler in their midst, and they shall all have one shepherd, for they shall walk by my ordinances and keep my judgments and perform them. ²⁵And they shall live upon their land that I have given to my slave, Iakob, there where their fathers lived, and they shall live upon it, and Dauid, my slave, shall be their ruler forever. ²⁶And I will make a covenant of peace with them, and it shall be an everlasting covenant with them; I will set my holy things in their midst forever. ²⁷And my encamping shall be among them, and I will be a god for them, and they shall be my people. ²⁸And the nations shall know that I am the Lord who sanctifies them when my holy things are in their midst forever.

38 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying: ²Son of man, set your face against Gog and the land of Magog, ruler^a of Ros, Mosoch and Thobel, and prophesy against him, ³and say to him, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am against you, Gog, ruler of Ros, Mosoch and Thobel, ⁴and I will round up you and all your force, horses and riders, clothed in all their armor, a great gathering, shields and helmets and daggers, ⁵Persians and Ethiopians and Libyans, all with helmets and shields, ⁶Gomer and all around him, the house of Thegrama from the extreme north and all those around him, and many nations shall be with you.

⁷ Be ready, ready yourself, you and all your gathering, the ones amassed with you, and you shall be an outpost to me. ⁸After rather many days he shall be prepared, and at the end of years he shall arrive and come into the land turned back by dagger, assembled^b from many nations, against the land of Israel that became deserted throughout, and he has come out from the nations, and all shall live in peace. ⁹And you shall go up like rain and come like a cloud to deluge the land, and there^c shall you be, and all those around you and many nations with you.

¹⁰ This is what the Lord says: And it shall be in that day, words shall come up into your heart, and you will scheme a wicked scheme, ¹¹and you shall say, "I will come up into a rejected land, and I will come upon people resting in quiet, living in peace, all inhabiting the land, in which there does not exist a city-wall nor barriers, and they have no doors, ¹²to foray for booty and seize their spoils, to turn my hand to the desolate one^d, which was settled, and against a nation gathered from many nations, people that have acquired possessions, living at the navel of the earth." ¹³Saba and Dedan and Carthaginian dealers and all their villages shall say to you, "Are you coming to forage for booty and to seize spoils? Have you gathered your gathering to take silver and gold, to carry away for yourselves property, to seize spoils?"

¹⁴ Therefore, prophesy, son of man, and say to Gog: This is what the Lord says: In that day, when my people Israel are settled in peace, shall you not be roused? ¹⁵And you shall come from your place out of the extreme north and many nations with you, all riders on horses, a great gathering and a large force, ¹⁶and you shall come up against my people Israel like a cloud to cover the land. At the end of days it shall be, and I will lead you up against my land so that all the nations know me, when I have been hallowed in you before them.

¹⁷ This is what the Lord says to Gog: You are the one of whom I spoke before the former days by a hand of my slaves, the prophets of Israel, in those days and years to bring you up against them. ¹⁸And it shall be in that day, in a day on which day Gog comes upon the land of Israel, says the Lord, my wrath shall go up, ¹⁹and my jealousy. In the fire of my anger I spoke: Surely, in that day there shall be a great shaking^e upon the land of Israel, ²⁰and the fish of the sea and the birds of the air and the animals of the plain and all the creepers that creep on the ground and all the human beings on the surface of the earth shall be shaken from before the Lord, and the mountains shall be rent asunder, and the ravines shall fall, and every city-wall shall fall to the ground. ²¹And I will summon every fear against him says the Lord; a person's dagger shall be against his brother. ²²And I will judge him with death and blood and torrential rain and hailstones, and I will rain fire and sulfur upon him and upon all who are with him and upon many nations with him. ²³And I will be made great and be hallowed and glorified and known before many nations, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

39 And you, son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am against you, Gog, ruler of Ros, Mosoch and Thobel, ²and I will gather you and guide you down and bring you up from the extreme north and lead you up against the mountains of Israel. ³And I will destroy your bow from your left hand and your arrows from your right hand and throw you down ⁴upon the mountains of Israel, and you shall fall, you and all those around you, and the nations that are with you shall be given to a multitude of birds, and I have given you to every winged creature and all the animals of the plain for food. ⁵You shall fall upon the surface of the plain, for I have spoken, says the Lord. ⁶And I will send fire upon Gog, and the islands shall be inhabited in peace, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

⁷ And my holy name shall be known in the midst of my people, Israel, and my holy name shall no longer be profaned, and all the nations shall know that I am the Lord, the holy one of Israel. ⁸Behold, it has come, and you shall know that it shall be, says the Lord; this is the day of which I spoke.

⁹ And the inhabitants of the cities of Israel shall go out and burn among the weapons, shields and poles and bows and arrows and hand-roads and spears, and they shall burn among them for seven years. ¹⁰And they shall not take trees from the plain or chop from forests, but they shall burn weapons with fire, and they shall plunder those who plundered them and will despoil those who despoiled them, says the Lord.

11 And it shall be in that day, I will give to Gog a noteworthy place as a tomb in Israel, the common burial-place of those who reach to the sea, and they shall build around the aperture of the ravine, ¹²and they shall bury there Gog and all his multitude, and it shall be named The Gai, the common burial-place of Gog. ¹³And the house of Israel shall bury them so that the land may be cleansed in a seven-month period, ⁽¹³⁾and all the people of the land shall bury them, and it shall be for them as something noteworthy on the day that I was glorified, says the Lord. ¹⁴And continually they shall set apart men traversing the land to bury the ones remaining upon the surface of the earth to cleanse it after the seven-month period, and they shall make their search. ¹⁵And everyone who passes through the land and sees a human bone shall build a marker by it until the buriers bury it in The Gai, the common burial-place of Gog, ¹⁶for even the name of the city shall be, Common Burial-place, and the land shall be cleansed.

17 And you, son of man, say, This is what the Lord says: Say to every winged bird and to all the animals of the plain, Be gathered, and come; be gathered from all around the surrounding areas for my sacrifice that I have slaughtered for you, a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel, and you shall eat meat and drink blood. ¹⁸You shall eat the flesh of giants and drink the blood of rulers of the earth, rams and calves and goats. And all the bull calves have been fattened. ¹⁹And you shall eat fat unto satiety and drink blood unto drunkenness from my sacrifice that I slaughtered for you. ²⁰And you shall be satisfied at my table: horse and rider and giant and every warrior, says the Lord.

21 And I will give my glory among you, and all the nations shall see my verdict that I have executed and my hand that I brought upon them. ²²And the house of Israel shall know that I am the Lord, their God, from this day and beyond. ²³And all the nations shall know that, because of their sins, the house of Israel was taken captive, because they dealt treacherously with me, and I averted my face from them and gave them over into the hands of their adversaries, and they all fell by dagger. ²⁴I dealt with them according to their unclean acts and according to their lawless acts and averted my face away from them.

25 Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Now I will turn back the captivity of Jakob and show pity on the house of Israel and be jealous because of my holy name. ²⁶And they shall receive their dishonor and injustice, which they practiced, when they are settled upon their land in peace, and there shall be none who terrifies. ²⁷After I turn them back from the nations and gather them from the countries of the enemies, I will also be hallowed among them before the nations, ²⁸and they shall know that I am the Lord, their God, when I appear to them among the nations. ²⁹And I will never again turn my face away from them, because I poured out my wrath upon the house of Israel, says the Lord.

40 And it happened in the twenty-fifth year of our captivity, in the first month, on the tenth of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city fell, on that day the hand of the Lord came upon me and brought me ²in a divine vision into the land of Israel and set me upon a very high mountain, and upon it was something like a construction of a city, opposite. ³And he brought me there, and, behold, a man, and his appearance was like an appearance of flashing bronze, and in his hand was a builders' cord and a measuring reed, and he stood by the gate. ⁴And the man said to me, "Have you seen, son of man? Look with your eyes, and listen with your ears, and set out into your heart all that I show you, for you have entered here in order to show you, and you shall show all that you see to the house of Israel."

5 And behold, an enclosing wall outside the house all around, and in the hand of the man was a reed, the measure of six cubits, ^{3a}in a cubit and a handbreadth^a, and he measured the outer wall; its breadth was equal to the reed, and its elevation was equal to the reed. ⁶And he went into the gate that looks to the east by seven steps and measured the thee^b, six on one side and six on the other, and the ailam^c of the gate was equal to the reed. ⁷And the thee^b was equal to the reed in length and equal to the reed in breadth, and the ailam^c to the middle of the thaielatha^d was six cubits, and the second thee^b was equal to the reed in breadth and equal to the reed in length, and the ailam^c was five cubits, ⁸and the third thee^b was equal to the reed in breadth and equal to the reed in length. ⁹And the ailam^c of the gateway near the ailam^c of the gate was eight cubits, and the^f aileu^e were two cubits, and the ailam^c of the gate was within. ¹⁰And the^f thee^b of the gate were opposite a thee^b, three on one side and three on the other, and the three had one measure, and the^f ailam^c had one measure on one side and on the other. ¹¹And he measured the breadth of the door of the gateway ten cubits and the width of the gateway thirteen cubits. ¹²And there was ^{8a}a cubit being gathered⁸ in front of the^f them^b on one side and on the other, and the thee^b was six cubits on one side and six cubits on the other. ¹³And he measured the gate from the wall of the thee^b to the wall of the thee^b in breadth, twenty-five cubits; this gate was upon a gate. ¹⁴And the atrium of the ailam^c of the gate was sixty cubits; the gate had twenty them^b all around, ¹⁵and the atrium of the outside gate to the atrium of ailam^c of the inside gate was fifty cubits. ¹⁶And covered windows were on the^f them^b and upon the^f ailam^c inside the gate of the court all around, and likewise the^f ailam^c had windows all around inside, and on the ailam^c were palms on one side and on the other.

17 And he brought me into the outer court, and behold, shrine-carriers' chambers and colonnades around the court; thirty shrine-carriers' chambers were in the colonnades. ¹⁸And the colonnades were along the side of the gates, along the length of the gates was the lower colonnade. ¹⁹And he measured the breadth of the court from the atrium of the outer gate from the inside up to the atrium of the gate that looks out, one hundred cubits belonging to the one that looks to the east. And he brought me up to the north.

20 And behold, the outer court had a gate that looks to the north, and he measured it, its length and breadth, ²¹and the^a thee^b, three on one side and three on the other, and the^a aileu^c and the^a ailammo^d and its palms, and they were like the measurements of the gate that looks east, fifty cubits, its length and twenty-five cubits, its width. ²²And its windows and the^a ailammo^d and its palms were just as the gate that looks to the east, and on seven rungs they would ascend upon it, and the^a ailammo^d were inside. ²³And the inner court had a gate that looks upon the gate of the north like the gate that looks to the east, and he measured the court from gate to gate, one hundred cubits.

24 And he led me toward the south, and behold, a gate that looks to the south, and he measured it and the^a thee^b and the^a aileu^c and the^a ailammo^d by these measurements. ²⁵And it^e and the ailammo^d had windows all around just like the windows of the ailam^f, fifty cubits, its length and twenty-five cubits, its width. ²⁶And it^e had seven steps and ailammo^d inside and palms, one on one side and one on the other, on the^a aileu^c. ²⁷And there was a gate opposite the gate of the inner court to the south, and he measured the court from the gate up to the gate, one hundred cubits, its width to the south.

28 And he brought me into the inner court of the gate to the south and measured the gate by these measurements ²⁹and the^a thee^b and the^a aileu^c, and the^a ailammo^d by these measurements, and it^e and the ailammo^d had windows all around, fifty cubits, its length and its width, twenty-five cubits. ³¹And there was an ailammo^d into the outer court, and the aileu^c had palms and eight rungs.

32 And he brought me into the gate that looks to the east and measured it by these measurements, ³³and the^a thee^b and the^a aileu^c and the^a ailammo^d by these measurements, and it^e and the ailammo^d had windows all around, fifty cubits, its length and its width, twenty-five cubits. ³⁴And there was an ailammo^d into the outer court and palms on the aileu^c on one side and on the other, and it^e had eight rungs.

35 And he brought me into the gate to the north and measured it by these measurements, ³⁶and the^a thee^b and the^a aileu^c and the^a ailammo^d, and it^e and the ailammo^d had windows all around, fifty cubits, its length and its width, twenty-five cubits. ³⁷And there were ailammo^d into the outer court and palms on the aileu^c on one side and on the other, and it had eight rungs.

38 Its shrine-bearers' chambers and its doorways and its^e ailammo^d at the second gate were an outlet ³⁹so that they might slaughter in it the victims for sin and the victims for ignorance, ⁴⁰and behind the flow^g of the whole burnt offerings of the one^e that looks to the north were two tables to the east and behind the second one and of the ailam^f of the gate were two tables on the east, ⁴¹four on one side and four on the other behind the gate; upon them they slaughtered the sacrificial victims opposite the eight tables of the sacrificial victims. ⁴²And four tables for the whole burnt offerings were of hewn stone, a cubit and a half in breadth and two and a half cubits in length, and a cubit in height. Upon them they shall put the instruments with which they slaughter the whole burnt offerings and the sacrificial victims. ⁴³And they shall have a hewn cornice, a handbreadth all around within and on the tables, roofs above so as to be covered from the rain and from the dryness.

44 And he brought me into the inner court, and behold, two halls in the inner court, one behind the gate that looks to the north, bearing to the south, and one behind the gate to the south but looking to the north. ⁴⁵And he said to me, "This hall that looks to the south is for the priests keeping guard over the house, ⁴⁶and the hall that looks to the north is for the priests keeping guard over the altar; they are the sons of Saddouk, who come near from Leui to the Lord to minister to him." ⁴⁷And he measured the court, its length, one hundred cubits, and width, one hundred cubits on its four parts and the altar opposite the house.

48 And he brought me into the ailam^f of the house. And he measured the ail^h of the ailam^f, five cubits its breadth on one side and five cubits on the other, and the width of the doorway, fourteen cubits, and the shoulders of the door of the ailam^f, three cubits on one side and three cubits on the other, ⁴⁹and the length of the ailam^f, twenty cubits and the width, twelve cubits, and by ten steps they would ascend upon it, and pillars were upon the ailam^c, one on one side and one on the other.

41 And he brought me into the shrine whose ailam^f he measured, six cubits the breadth on one side ²and six cubits the width of the ailam^f on the other. (2)And the width of the gateway was ten cubits, and the shoulders of the gateway, five cubits on one side and five cubits on the other, and he measured its length, forty cubits, and its width, twenty cubits. ³And he entered into the inner court and he measured the ail^h of the doorway, two cubits and the doorway, six cubits, and the shoulders of the doorway, seven cubits on one side and seven cubits on the other. ⁴And he measured the length of the doors, forty cubits and their width, twenty cubits facing the shrine. And he said, "This is the holy of holies."

5 And he measured the wall of the house, six cubits, and the width of the side, four cubits all around. 6 And the sides, side upon side, were thirty three, twice, and a space was in the wall of the house on the sides all around to be for those undertaking to see so that they might not at all touch the walls of the house. 7 And the width of the upper one of the sides was like the addition from the wall to the upper one all around the house so that it be widened above and they might go up from the lower part to the upper part and from the middle part to the third story. 8 And the thraels^a of the house was a summit all around; the space of the sides was equal to the reed, a space of six cubits. 9 And the width of the wall of the side from the outside was five cubits, and the areas left free between the sides of the house¹⁰ and between the halls were a width of twenty cubits: the periphery of the house all around. 11 And the doors of the halls were on the area left free of the door, of the one to the north, and the one door was to the south, and the width of the light-opening of the area left free was five cubits, its breadth all around.

12 And the divider facing the area left open like the one to the sea was seventy cubits; the breadth of the dividing wall was five cubits, its width all around, and its length was ninety cubits.

13 And he measured opposite the house a length of one hundred cubits, and the areas left open and the dividers and their walls were a length of one hundred cubits,¹⁴ and the width facing of the house and the areas left open opposite were one hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the divider facing of the area left open of the rear parts of that house, and the areas left open on one side and on the other, its length, one hundred cubits.

And the shrine and the corners and the outer ailamb^b were paneled,¹⁶ and the windows were netted, narrow openings around the three for looking out, and the house and the nearby areas were made of wood all around, also the pavement and from the pavement up to the windows, and the windows would open threefold for looking out.¹⁷ And right next to the inside and as far as the outside and on the whole wall all around on the inside and in the outside¹⁸ were carved cheroubin and palms between cheroub and cheroub; the cheroub had two faces,¹⁹ a human face toward the palm on one side and on the other and a face of a lion to the palm on one side and on the other; the whole house was engraved all around;²⁰ from the pavement up to the coffering the cheroubin and palms were engraved.

21 And the holy place and the shrine would open on four sides. Facing the holies, there was a sight like a view²² of a wooden altar, its height, three cubits, and its length, two cubits and its width, two cubits, and it had horns, and its base and its walls were wooden, and he said to me, "This is the table in front of the Lord." And the shrine had two doorways^c,²³ and the holy place had two doorways^c.²⁴ As for the two pivoting doorways^c, one had two panels^c and the second door had two panels^c.²⁵ And carving was on them, and on the doorways^c of the shrine were cheroubin and palms like the carving of the holies, and there was excellent wood facing the ailamb^b outside,²⁶ and hidden windows. And he measured on one side and on the other to the ceilings of the ailamb^b and to the joined sides of the house.

42 And he brought me out into the outer court by the east, opposite the gate toward the north, and he brought me in, and behold, five halls next to the area left open and next to the divider to the north,² one hundred cubits was its length to the north and its breadth, fifty cubits,³ engraved^d as were the gates of the inner court, as were the colonnades of the outer court. Triple stoas were set in rows, facing each other.⁴ And opposite the halls was a passage, its breadth was ten cubits by one hundred cubits, its length and its doorways were to the north.⁵ And in like manner were the upper passages, because the colonnade projected from it, from the colonnade underneath, and its dimension. Thus colonnade and space, and thus stoas.⁶ Therefore, they were triple^e, and they had no pillars, as there were the pillars of the outer parts; for that reason they projected beyond the parts underneath and beyond the middle parts—^ffrom the ground^f.⁷ And there was a light-opening outside, like the outer court's halls that look opposite the halls to the north, its length, fifty cubits;⁸ because the length of the halls that look into the outer court was fifty cubits, they also were facing those; the whole was one hundred cubits.⁹ And these halls of the entrance to the east had doors for entering through them from the outer court,¹⁰ as is the light-opening at the head of the passage.

And the parts toward the south, facing the south, facing the area left open and facing the divider, were halls,¹¹ and the passage facing them was like the measurements of the halls to the north, both like their length and like their width and like all their exits and like all their curves and like their light-openings and like their doorways¹² of the halls toward the south, and like the doorways from the head of the passage—since it is approximately a reed's space for light—and on the east, are for entering through them.

13 And he said to me, "The halls northward and the halls southward that are opposite the spaces—these are the halls of 'the holy' in which the priests, the sons of Saddouk, who come near to the Lord, shall eat the holy of holy things, and there they shall place the holy of holy things and the sacrifice, both the sacrificial victims for sin and the sacrificial victims for ignorance, for the place is holy.¹⁴ They shall not enter there except the priests; they shall not go out from 'the holy' into the outer court so that those who approach may always be holy and lest they touch their vestments, those in which they minister, because they are holy, and they shall wear other garments when they touch the people."

15 And the measuring of the house from the inside was completed. And he brought me out by way of the gate that looks to the east, and he measured the plan of the house all around in its arrangement. 16 And he stood behind the gate that looks to the east and measured five hundred by the measuring reed, 17 and he turned toward the north and measured the part facing the north, five hundred cubits with the measuring reed. 18 And he turned toward the sea and measured the part facing the sea, five hundred by the measuring reed, 19 and he turned toward the south and measured opposite the south, five hundred by the measuring reed. 20 The four were parts of the same reed. And he laid it out in order, even an enclosing wall for it all around of five hundred to the east and a width of five hundred cubits to separate between the holies and between the outer wall, which is in the design of the house.

43 And he led me to the gate that looks to the east and brought me out, 2 and behold, the glory of the God of Israel was coming by way of the gate that looks to the east, and there was a sound of the camp^a like a sound of many bdoubling up^b, and the earth was shining forth like splendor from the glory all around. 3 And the appearance that I saw was like the appearance that I saw when I was entering to anoint the city, and the appearance of the chariot that I saw was like the appearance that I saw by the river Chobar, and I fell upon my face. 4 And the glory of the Lord went into the house by way of the gate that looks to the east. 5 And a spirit took me up and brought me into the inner court, and behold, the house was full of the glory of the Lord.

6 And I stood, and behold, a voice of one speaking to me from the house, and the man stood next to me. 7 And he said to me, "You have seen, son of man, the place of my throne and the place of the print of my feet, in which my name shall encamp in the midst of the house of Israel forever, and the house of Israel shall no more desecrate my holy name, they and their leaders, by their whoring and by the murders of the leaders in their midst, 8 when they place my entry by their entries and my doorposts next to their doorposts, and they rendered my wall as if mine and theirs were joined and desecrated my holy name by their lawless acts that they were committing, and I wiped them out in my fury and by murder. 9 And now let them drive away from me their whoring and the murders of their leaders, and I will encamp in their midst forever.

10 And you, son of man, show the house to the house of Israel, and they shall grow weary of their sins—and its appearance and plan. 11 And they shall receive their punishment for all they have done. And you shall describe the house and its exits and its substructure, and you shall make known to them all its ordinances and all its precepts, and you shall describe it before them, and they shall keep all my statutes and all my ordinances and shall perform them. 12 And the description of the house: On the top of the mountain; all its borders all around; holies of holies.

13 And these are the measurements of the altar by cubit c (of the cubit and a handbreadth): bulge, depth, up to a cubit and a cubit its width and a rim upon its lip: a span all around. And this is the height of the altar: 14 In depth, from the start of its cavity to the great, lower propitiatory, two cubits and its width a cubit, and from the small propitiatory to the great propitiatory is four cubits, and its width a cubit, 15 and the ariel^d is four cubits, and from the ariel^d and above the horns was a cubit. 16 And the ariel^d was twelve cubits in length by twelve cubits in breadth, square in its four parts, 17 and the propitiatory was fourteen cubits, its length, by fourteen cubits, its width in its four parts, and its rim all around is circled by it, half a cubit, and its ring a cubit all around and its rungs looking to the east.

18 And he said to me: Son of man, this is what the Lord says, the God of Israel: These are the ordinances of the altar in the day of its making, to offer upon it whole burnt offerings and to pour blood against it. 19 And you shall give to the priests, to the Levites from the offspring of Sadoouk, who come near to me, says the Lord, to minister to me, a calf from the cattle for a sin, 20 and they shall take some of its blood and put it on the four horns of the altar, and on the four corners of the propitiatory and on the base all around, and they shall make atonement for it, 21 and they shall take the calf that is for a sin, and it shall be burnt up in the separated part of the house, outside the holies.

22 And on the second day they shall take two kids of goats, unblemished, for sin and make atonement for the altar just as they made atonement with the calf, 23 and after you complete the atonement, they shall offer an unblemished calf from cattle and an unblemished ram from sheep, 24 and you shall offer them before the Lord, and the priests shall throw salt on them and offer them up as whole burnt offerings to the Lord. 25 For seven days you shall do a kid for sin every day and a calf from cattle and a ram from sheep; unblemished they shall do them 26 for seven days, and they shall make atonement for the altar and cleanse it and fill their hands. 27 And it shall be from the eighth day and beyond, the priests shall do upon the altar your whole burnt offerings and your victims for deliverance. And I will accept you, says the Lord.

44 And he turned me by the way of the outer gate of the holies that looks to the east, and it was shut. ²And the Lord said to me: This gate shall be shut; it shall not be opened, and no one shall go through it, because the Lord, the God of Israel, shall enter through it, and it shall be shut. ³Therefore, the leader—he shall sit in it to eat bread before the Lord; he shall enter by the way of the ailam^a of the gate, and he shall go out by his way.

^aOr army ^bPossibly side-by-side ^ci.e. the so-called long cubit ^dHeb = altar-hearth

⁴ And he brought me in by way of the gate to the north, opposite the house, and I looked, and behold, the house of the Lord was full of glory, and I fell upon my face. ⁵And the Lord said to me: Son of man, assign to your heart, and look with your eyes, and with your ears hear everything that I am speaking with you in relation to all the ordinances of the house of the Lord and in relation to all its precepts, and you shall assign your heart to the entrance of the house by all its exits in all the holies. ⁶And you shall say to the embittering house, to the house of Israel, This is what the Lord says: Let there be enough for you of all your lawless acts, O house of Israel, ⁷to bring in alien sons, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my holies, and they were profaning them when you were offering bread, fat and blood, and you were transgressing my covenant in all your lawless acts, ⁸and you arranged^b to keep guard in my holies.

⁹ Therefore, this is what the Lord says: No alien son, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my holies among all the sons of aliens that are in the midst of the house of Israel, ¹⁰but the Leuites, who jumped away from me when Israel went astray from me after their notions, they too shall receive their injustice, ¹¹and they shall be ministering as door-keepers in my holies at the gates of the house and be ministering to the house; they shall slaughter the whole burnt offerings and the sacrifices for the people, and they shall stand before the people to minister to them. ¹²Because they were ministering to them in front of their idols and it became to the house of Israel as a punishment of injustice, therefore I raised my hand against them, says the Lord, ¹³and they shall not come near to me to act as my priests nor to approach the holies of the sons of Israel nor to my holies of holies, and they shall receive their dishonor for the misleading by which they^c were led astray. ¹⁴And they shall designate them to keep guard over the house in all its chores and in everything whatever they do.

¹⁵ The priests, the Leuites, the sons of Sadoouk, who kept guard over my holies when the house of Israel went astray from me, they shall advance towards me to minister to me, and they shall stand in front of me to offer me sacrifice, fat and blood, says the Lord. ¹⁶They shall enter into my holies, and they shall come forward to my table to minister to me and to keep my guard. ¹⁷And it shall be, when they are entering the gates of the inner court, they shall wear linen vestments, and they shall not wear wool when they minister from the gate of the inner court, ¹⁸and they shall have linen turbans on their heads, and they shall have hard linens on their loins, and they shall not gird themselves biza^d. ¹⁹And when they go out into the outer court to the people, they shall take off their vestments, those in which they minister, and they shall place them in the halls of the holies, and they shall wear other vestments, and they shall not hallow the people in their vestments. ²⁰And they shall not shave their heads, and they shall not strip off their hair; covering they shall cover their heads. ²¹And no priest shall drink wine when they enter into the inner court. ²²And they shall not take for themselves a widow or a divorced woman as wife, but an unmarried girl from the offspring of Israel, but a widow, if she be of a priest, they shall marry. ²³And they shall teach my people between holy and profane, and between unclean and clean they shall make known to them. ²⁴And they shall preside in a case of blood to decide it; they shall deem right my statutes and judge my judgment, and they shall keep my precepts and my ordinances at all my feasts, and they shall hallow my sabbaths. ²⁵And over a departed spirit of a human they shall not enter to be defiled, but for a father and for a mother and for a son and for a daughter and for a brother and for a sister who did not belong to a man, he shall be defiled. ²⁶And after he is cleansed, he shall count seven days for him, ²⁷and on whatever day they enter the inner court to minister in the holy place, they shall offer an atonement, says the Lord.

²⁸ And it shall be for them as an inheritance: I am their inheritance, and no possession shall be given to them among the sons of Israel, because I am their possession. ²⁹And they shall eat the offerings and the victims for sin and the victims for ignorance, and everything set apart in Israel shall be theirs. ³⁰First fruits of everything and the first-born of everything and all the advance deductions from all your first fruits shall belong to the priests, and your firstlings you shall grant the priest to set your blessings upon your houses. ³¹And the priests shall not eat any carcass and prey of animals, from the birds or from the cattle.

45 And when you are measuring out the land by inheritance, you shall set aside first fruit for the Lord, a holy thing from the land, twenty-five thousand its length, and its width, twenty thousand; it shall be holy in all its borders all around. ²And there shall be from this a holy precinct five hundred by five hundred square all around, and fifty cubits will be its space all around. ³And from this measure, you shall measure a length of twenty-five thousand and a width of twenty thousand, and in it shall be a holy precinct, holy of holies. ⁴From the land, it shall belong to the priests who minister in the holy place, and it shall belong to those who come near to minister to the Lord, and it shall be to them a place for houses set aside for their sanctification. ⁵Twenty-five thousand, its length, and its width, twenty thousand, shall belong to the Leuites who minister to the house, for them as a possession, cities to live in.

6 And you shall give the possession of the city, five thousand, its width and its length twenty-five thousand; like the first fruit of the holies they shall belong to the house of Israel.

7 And to the leader it shall belong, out of this and from this, for the first fruits of the holies as a possession of the city facing the first fruits of the holies and facing the possession of the city the parts toward the sea and from the parts toward the sea to the east and the length as one of the portions from the borders toward the sea and the length on the borders toward the east of the land. ⁸And it shall belong to him as a possession in Israel, and the leaders of Israel shall no longer oppress my people, and the house of Israel shall allocate the land according to their tribes.

9 This is what the Lord says: Let it suffice for you, leaders of Israel; remove from yourselves injustice and abuse, and perform judgment and righteousness; take away oppression from my people, says the Lord.

10 You should have a just balance and a just measure and a just choenix^a. ¹¹The measure and the choenix^a shall likewise be one to receive; the choenix^a shall be a tenth of the gomorb^b, and the measure shall be the tenth of the gomorb^b; to the gomorb^b it shall be equal. ¹²And the stathmion^c shall be twenty obols^d; five shekels^e shall be five and ten shekels^e shall be ten and fifty shekels^e shall be one minaf^f for you.

13 And this is the first fruit that you shall set aside: a sixth of the measure from the gomorb^b of wheat and the sixth of the ophis^g from the kor^h of barley. ¹⁴And the ordinance for oil: a kotyleⁱ of oil from ten kotylesⁱ, because ten kotylesⁱ are a gomorb^b. ¹⁵And a sheep from ten sheep is an advance deduction from all the paternal families of Israel for offerings and for whole burnt offerings and for deliverance to atone for you, says the Lord. ¹⁶And all the people shall give this first fruit to the leader of Israel. ¹⁷And through the leader shall be the whole burnt offerings and the offerings and the libations at the feasts and on the new moons and on the sabbaths and at all the feasts of the house of Israel; he shall do the victims for sin and the offering and the whole burnt offerings and the victims for deliverance to make atonement for the house of Israel.

18 This is what the Lord says: In the first month, on the first of the month, you shall take an unblemished calf from cattle to make atonement for the holy place. ¹⁹And the priest shall take some the blood of the atonement and impart it to the doorposts of the house and to the four corners of the propitiatory and to the altar and to the doorposts of the gate of the inner court. ²⁰And thus you shall do in the seventh month, on the first of the month: you shall take a portion from each and make atonement for the house.

21 And in the first month, on the fourteenth of the month, the pascha shall be a feast for you; seven days you shall eat unleavened bread. ²²And in that day the leader shall do a calf for a sin for himself and for the house and for all the people of the land. ²³And for the seven days of the feast, he shall make whole burnt offerings to the Lord, seven unblemished calves and rams every day for seven days and a kid from the goats for sin, every day. And you shall make an offering ²⁴and pastry with the bull calf and pastry with the ram and the hinj^j of oil for the pastry. ²⁵And in the seventh month, on the fifteenth of the month, at the feast, for seven days you shall do in like manner, just like the victims for sin and just like the whole burnt offerings and just like the manaa^k and just like the oil.

46 This is what the Lord says: The gate in the inner court, which looks to the east, shall be shut for the six work days, but in the day of the sabbaths, it shall be opened, and in the day of the new moon, it shall be opened. ²And the leader shall enter by the way of the ailam^l of the outer gate and stand at the entry of the gate, and the priests shall make his whole burnt offerings and the victims for his deliverance. ³And he shall do obeisance at the entry of the gate and shall go out, and the gate shall not be shut until evening. And the people of the land shall do obeisance by the portico of that gate on the sabbaths and on the new moons before the Lord. ⁴And the leader shall offer the whole burnt offerings to the Lord, in the day of the sabbaths, six unblemished lambs and an unblemished ram ⁵and manaa^k as pastry with the ram and with the lambs as an offering, a gift of his hand, and the hinj^j of oil for the pastry, ⁶and in the day of the new moon an unblemished calf and six lambs, and there shall be an unblemished ram, ⁷and manaa^k shall be a pastry with the ram and a pastry with the bull calf and with the lambs just as his hand shall furnish and the hinj^j of oil for the pastry. ⁸And when the leader enters, he shall come in by the way of the ailam^l of the gate, and he shall go out by way of the gate.

9 And when the people of the land enter before the Lord on the feasts, he that enters by way of the gate to the north to do obeisance shall go out by way of the gate to the south, and he that enters by way of the gate to the south shall go out by way of the gate to the north; he shall not return by the gate that he entered, but he shall go out straight ahead. ¹⁰And when they come in, the leader in their midst shall enter in with them, and when they go out, he shall go out.

11 And at the feasts and at the festal assemblies

there shall be the manaa^a as pastry with the bull calf and pastry with the ram and with the lambs just as his hand shall furnish and the hin^b of oil for the pastry. ¹²But if the leader makes as an acknowledgement a whole burnt offering of deliverance to the Lord, and he shall open for himself the gate that looks to the east and shall make his whole burnt offering and the victims for his deliverance as he does in the day of the sabbaths, then he shall go out and shut the doors after he goes out.

¹³And a yearling lamb, unblemished, he shall make as a whole burnt offering every day to the Lord; in the morning he shall make it. ¹⁴And he shall make manaa^a with it in the morning, a sixth of the measure and the third of an hin^b of oil by mixing the choice flour, manaa^a for the Lord, an ordinance continually. ¹⁵You shall make the lamb and the manaa^a and the oil, and you shall make a whole burnt offering in the morning continually.

¹⁶This is what the Lord says: If the leader gives a gift to one of his sons from his inheritance, this shall be his sons' possession by inheritance. ¹⁷But if he gives a gift to one of his servants, then it shall belong to him until the year of release, and he shall pay back to the leader; except for the inheritance of his sons, it shall belong to them. ¹⁸And the leader shall not take from the inheritance of the people so as to oppress them; from his possession he shall apportion an inheritance for his sons in order that my people not be scattered, each from his possession.

¹⁹And he brought me into the entrance behind the gate into the hall of the holies of the priests, the hall that looks north, and behold, a separated place there. ²⁰And he said to me, "This is the place where the priests shall boil the victims for ignorance and the victims for sin, and there they shall bake the entire manaa^a so as not to bring it out into the outer court to hallow the people.

²¹And he brought me out into the outer court and brought me around to the four parts of the court, and behold, a court by the slope^c of the court. ²²It was a court by the slope^c of the court. ⁽²²⁾On the four slopes^c of the court was a small court. Its length was forty cubits, and its width thirty cubits; the four had one measure. ²³And halls were all around in them, around the four, and kitchens situated underneath the halls all around. ²⁴And he said to me, "These are the houses of the cooks where those that minister to the house boil the sacrificial victims of the people."

47 And he brought me in by the entry of the house, and, behold, water was flowing underneath the atrium by the east, because the front of the house was looking to the east, and the water was descending from the right slope, from the south by the altar. ²And he brought me out by way of the gate to the north and led me around the outside way to the gate of the court that looks to the east, and behold, the water was flowing down from the right slope.

³Just as there was a going out of a man from the opposite direction, there was also a measure in his hand, and he measured a thousand with the measure, and he passed through in the water; it was water of release. ⁴And he measured a thousand, and he passed through in the water; the water was up to his thighs. And he measured a thousand, and he passed through; the water was up to his loin. ⁵And he measured a thousand, and he could not pass through, because the water was violently rushing as the rush of a wadi, which they shall not cross. ⁶And he said to me, "Have you seen, son of man?"

And he led me by the bank of the stream. ⁷On my return and, behold, on the bank of the stream a great many trees on one side and on the other. ⁸And he said to me, This is the water that flows into Galilee, which is to the east, also used to descend to Arabia and would come all the way to the sea to the water of the outlet, and the waters will cure. ⁹And it shall be, every soul of the living beings that bubble up in all places, in those where the stream reaches, shall live, and very many fish shall be there, because this water has come there, and it will cure, and they shall live. Everything that the stream reaches shall live. ¹⁰And fishermen shall stand there from Aingaddi to Ainagalim. A drying-place for dragnets it^d shall be; by itself^d it shall be, and its^d fish, like the fish of the great sea, shall be a very great multitude. ¹¹And at its^e outlet and at its^e winding and at its^e overflowing, they will not cure; they have been given as salt. ¹²And at the stream, on its bank every edible tree shall come up on one side and on the other; it shall not become old upon it, nor shall the fruit fail; it shall bear the first of its newness, because these their waters issue from the holies, and their fruit shall be for eating and their ascent for health.

¹³This is what the Lord says: You shall apportion for inheritance these borders of the land. The twelve tribes of the sons of Israel will have an addition of allotment. ¹⁴And you shall apportion it for an inheritance—each one just like his brother—for which I raised my hand to give it to their fathers, and this land shall fall to you by inheritance.

¹⁵And these are the borders of the land northward: from the great sea that descends and surrounds the entrance of Hemath Seddada, ¹⁶Berotha, Sebraim, Heliam, between the borders of Damascus and between the borders of Hemath, a court of Saunan, which^f are above the borders of Hauranitis. ¹⁷These are the borders from the sea: from the court of Ainan, borders of Damascus and those northward.

¹⁸And those eastward: between Hauranitis and between Damascus and between Galaaditis and between the land of Israel, the Jordan divides to the sea which is eastward of Palmgrove; these are those eastward.

19 And those southward and southwestward: from Thaiman and Palmgrove as far as the water of Marimoth Kades, extending to the great sea.

20 This part is the south and southwest. This is the part of the great sea; it divides as far as opposite the entrance of Hemath, as far as its entrance; these are those seaward of Hemath.

21 And you shall divide this land for them, for the tribes of Israel. 22 You shall cast it by lot for you and for the guests who sojourn in your midst, whoever produce sons in your midst, and they shall be to you as natives among the sons of Israel, with you they shall eat by inheritance in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 23 And they shall be in a tribe of guests among the guests with them; there you shall give an inheritance to them, says the Lord.

48 And these are the names of the tribes: from the beginning, which is northward along the part of the descent of that which cuts all round, to the entrance of Hemath, court of Ainan, borders of Damascus northward along the part of Hemath Court: also eastward as far as the sea shall belong to them: of Dan, one^a. 2 And from the borders of Dan, those eastward as far as those seaward: of Aser, one^a. 3 And from the borders of Aser, from those eastward as far as those seaward: of Nephthali, one^a. 4 And from the borders of Nephthali, from those eastward as far as those seaward: of Manasses, one^a. 5 And from the borders of Manasses, from those eastward as far as those seaward: of Ephraim, one^a. 6 And from the borders of Ephraim, from those eastward as far as those seaward: of Rouben, one^a. 7 And from the borders of Rouben, from those eastward as far as those seaward: of Ioudas, one^a.

8 And from the borders of Ioudas, from those eastward as far as those seaward, shall be the first fruit of what is set apart, twenty-five thousand in width and in length, just like one of the portions from those eastward and as far as those seaward, and that which is holy shall be in their midst, 9 a first fruit, which they shall set apart for the Lord, in length twenty-five thousand and in width twenty-five thousand. 10 Of these shall be the first fruit of the holies: the priests shall have twenty-five thousand northward and seaward; in breadth it shall be ten thousand, and southward twenty-five thousand in length, and the mountain of the holies shall be in his^b midst. 11 To the consecrated priests, sons of Saddouk, who keep the guard over the house, who did not go astray in the straying of the sons of Israel as the Leuites went astray, 12 to them shall also be the first fruit as given from the first fruits of the land, a holy of holies away from the borders of the Leuites.

13 Now to the Leuites shall belong the parts next to the borders of the priests, in length twenty-five thousand and in width ten thousand, its whole length twenty-five thousand, and in width twenty thousand. 14 Of it nothing shall be sold, neither shall anything be measured out, nor shall the firstlings of the land be removed, for it is something holy to the Lord.

15 Now the five thousand in breadth, which are left over, in addition to ^cthe twenty-five thousand—it shall be an outer wall for the city, for habitation and as space for him^b, and the city shall be in his midst. 16 And these are its^d measurements: from those northward, four thousand five hundred, and from those southward, four thousand five hundred, and from those eastward, four thousand five hundred, and from those seaward, four thousand five hundred. 17 And a space shall belong to the city: northward, two hundred fifty, and southward, two hundred fifty, and eastward, two hundred fifty, and seaward, two hundred fifty. 18 And what is in excess of the length, which is next to the first fruits of the holies, ten thousand eastward and ten thousand seaward, they also shall be the first fruits of what is holy, and its products shall be for bread for the workers of the city. 19 But the workers of the city, out of all the tribes of Israel, shall cultivate it. 20 The entire first fruit shall be twenty-five thousand by twenty-five thousand. You shall set apart of it^e, being square, the first fruit of what is holy, away from the possession of the city.

21 Now, what is in excess belongs to the leader ^ffrom this and from this^f from the first fruits of what is holy and to the possession of the city, in length, to twenty-five thousand, as far as the borders eastward and seaward, to twenty-five thousand as far as the borders that are seaward, being next to the portions of the leader. And it shall be the first fruit of the holies and the holy precinct of the house in its midst. 22 And some of the possession of the Leuites and some of the possession of the city shall be in the midst of the leaders. Between the borders of Ioudas and the borders of Benjamin shall belong to the leaders.

23 As for what is in excess of the tribes: from the borders eastward as far as those seaward: of Benjamin, one^a. 24 And from the borders of Benjamin, from those eastward as far as those seaward: of Symeon, one^a. 25 And from the borders of Symeon, from those eastward as far as those seaward: for Issachar, one^a. 26 And away from the borders of Issachar, from those eastward as far as those seaward: Zaboulon, one^a. 27 And from the borders of Zaboulon, from those eastward as far as those seaward: Gad, one^a. 28 And from the borders of Gad as far as those southwestward—and his borders shall be from Thaiman and an inheritance of the water of Marimoth Kades as far as the great sea. 29 This is the land that you shall assign by lot to the tribes of Israel, and these are their divisions, says the Lord.

30 And these are the exits of the city: those northward, four thousand five hundred by measure. 31 And the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel: three gates northward: gate of Rouben, one, and gate of Ioudas, one, and gate of Leui, one. ³²And the ones to eastward: four thousand five hundred, and three gates: gate of Ioseph, one, and gate of Benjamin, one, and gate of Dan, one. ³³And the ones southward: four thousand five hundred by measure, and three gates: gate of Symeon, one, and gate of Issachar,

SOUSANNA

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The NETS translation for the two versions has been based on the critical editions of Joseph Ziegler and Olivier Munnich (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum XVI.2: Susanna Daniel Bel et Draco [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1999]). Munnich has revised Ziegler's critical edition of the Old Greek (OG) version (1954), because Ziegler did not have access to several important portions of papyrus 967. Accordingly, the NETS translation of the OG has been based on Munnich, while Theodotion (TH) has been translated from Ziegler.

THE TWO GREEK VERSIONS

Sousanna, like some other books, has a special place in the Septuagint because there are extant in Greek two complete ancient versions: the Old Greek (OG) and Theodotion (TH). Since these are two versions of one story, a very brief introduction and comparison is in order.

Although the nucleus of the story is the same, OG is significantly shorter than TH. The omission of some of the details gives a faster pace to the OG version. The opening four verses of TH are absent from OG, as are 15–18, 20–21, 24–27 (details on the attempted rape of Sousanna), 42–43, 46–47, 49–50 (Daniel's involvement in uncovering the elders' deception), though OG tells the story somewhat differently. Also OG and TH have distinct endings. TH concludes with Daniel's rise to fame whereas OG ends with a self-admonition to look out for able sons. As a result of these differences Daniel is more prominent in TH than he is in OG, possibly because in TH Sousanna serves as an introduction to Daniel while in OG it appears as the final chapter (13).

While there are considerable differences between the OG and TH, they also have identical wording for all or most of a verse ten times (vv. 5, 9, 22–23, 34, 40–41, 52, 57–58). In a further eleven verses they have large or distinctive agreements in wording (7, 10, 29, 32, 33, 48, 51, 53, 55, 61, 62). It appears that Sousanna was revised and enlarged in its Semitic form in order to enhance the role of Daniel. As noted, in TH Sousanna precedes Daniel.

It appears likely that OG and TH derive from the same source text, but also that they are related at the level of the Greek.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character

Any detailed description of the translation of Sousanna is hampered by the absence of an extant Hebrew or Aramaic source. Sousanna is brief, sixty-four verses in TH and c. forty-six in OG. Both versions may, however, be characterized as formal correspondence type of translations, meaning that the vocabulary and syntactic structure of the Greek are heavily determined by the presumed Semitic source texts. The nature of this dependence fits the paradigm of interlinear translations, though the OG exhibits more freedom with respect to its source than does TH. Though in the absence of an extant Semitic source uncertainty remains, there are several features of Sousanna that suggest a translation. The frequent appearance of καί "and" points to conjunctive ו in the source text, as in other translated books. In TH the phrase καὶ ἐγένετο "and it happened" for the Semitic וַיִּהְיֶה also occurs four times (vv. 7, 15, 19, 28). Though this idiom does not appear in OG, both versions do have ἰδοὺ "lo" (TH vv. 20, 43; OG vv. 13, 44). Though this typically reflects וַיִּבֶן in the LXX, admittedly it is not un-Greek. The phrase στενά μοι πάντοθεν "Things are narrow for me on all sides" in TH v. 22 is almost certainly a Semitic idiom (cf. 2 Rgns 24.14), and there are a couple of instances where the definite article signals the vocative (v. 42[TH] and v. 48).

In some instances the two versions are very similar in content and grammar, but they employ different vocabulary. These cases are best explained as translations of the same Semitic text by the two translators. For example, TH v. 23 has οἰρετόν μοί ἐστι "It is preferable for me," while OG reads κόλλιον δέ με "But it would be better for me." Other such instances can be found in vv. 53 and 54.

Though both versions are generally literal, the OG is the freer of the two (see above), an example being OG's more frequent use of adverbial participles where the source text would have finite verbs. Although it is not impossible that OG's shorter scope is in part attributable to its translator, it might just as well be due to a shorter original. As noted above, expansion might have occurred to enhance the role of Daniel. Though OG is the shorter version, it contains many phrases and clauses not found in TH, and usually these contain adverbial participles (e.g., vv. 28 and 29).

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF SOUSANNA

General Approach

Since both versions are fairly literal and are therefore often written in translationese, NETS has attempted to mimic their close linguistic relationship to the source. As a result, compared to the NRSV, NETS will at times appear stilted and awkward. So, the parataxis of the Greek is typically retained in NETS, and standardized vocabulary is meant to suggest source-target equivalence. At the same time, variety in the Greek is typically reflected in NETS, whether within or between the two versions.

The Two Translations

One of the most challenging aspects of translating the two Greek versions into English has been to provide renderings that clarify both where the two versions are the same and where they are not. Thus, where the identical terms occur in both Greek version, identical terms have been used in NETS, even if these appear in different locations. For example, ὁ εἰδὼς τὰ πάντα πρὶν γενέσεως αὐτῶν "You who know all things before their beginning" appears in OG 35a and in TH 42. In cases where TH and OG vary only slightly, alternative vocabulary choices in English were readily available (see e.g., vv. 14, 48, 53). In short, every effort has been made to reflect sameness and difference, in vocabulary and grammar, between the two Greek versions.

EDITORIAL DETAIL

Since TH is the basis for the NRSV translation of Sousanna, the versification of NRSV and NETS TH correspond, which in turn agrees with Rahlfs and Ziegler. For the OG I have followed Ziegler/Munnich, which differs only slightly from Rahlfs.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

In addition to the standard reference tools I was most appreciative of the translation and commentary on Sousanna by Carey A. Moore, Daniel, Esther and Jeremiah: the Additions (AB 44; Garden City: Doubleday, 1977) as well as by John J. Collins, Daniel (Hermeneia; Minneapolis: Fortress, 1993).

5 And that year two elders from the people were appointed as judges, concerning whom the Master had said: "Lawlessness came forth from Babylon, from elders who were judges, who were supposed to govern the people." ⁶These men were always to be found at Ioakim's house, and all who had a case to be tried would come to them there.

the sons of Israel, named Sousanna daughter of Chelkias, wife of Ioakim—walking about in her husband's orchard, ⁸and since they lusted after her, ⁹they diverted their mind and turned away their eyes in order not to look to heaven nor to remember to make right decisions^a. ¹⁰But both were transfixed^b by her, and one to the other pretended the opposite to the evil that possessed them because of her (nor did the woman know of this matter). ¹²And as soon as dawn would break, they would come and cheat one another, being anxious who should appear to her first and should speak to her.

13 And lo, according to her custom, she was walking around. And the one elder had already come, and lo, the other arrived, and one questioned the other saying, "Why did you come out so early in the morning and not take me along?" ¹⁴And they acknowledged to one another each his distress.

19 And one said to the other, "Let us go to her!" So having agreed, they approached her and tried to force her.

22 And the Judean lady said to them, "I know that if I do it, it is death for me, and if I do not, I will not escape your hands. ²³But it would be better for me to fall into your hands by not doing it than to sin before the Lord."

28 So the scoundrels turned away, uttering threats among themselves and lay in ambush so that they might have her put to death. And when they came to the city assembly, where they sojourned, all the sons of Israel who were there deliberated. ²⁹And when the two elders and judges stood up they said, "Send for Sousanna daughter of Chelkias, who is the wife of Ioakim." So they immediately summoned her. ³⁰Now, when the woman arrived with her own father and mother, even her servants and maids (who numbered five hundred) came and Sousanna's four children.

13 And they said, one to the other, "Now, let us go home, for it is time for lunch." And they left and parted from one another. ¹⁴And when they bent back, they came to the same place, and when they pressed one another for the reason, they acknowledged their lust. And then together they arranged a time when they could find her alone.

15 And it happened while they were watching for an opportune day, she entered one time just as yesterday and the third day with only two girls and desired to bathe in the orchard, for it was hot. ¹⁶And no one was there except the two elders, hidden and watching her. ¹⁷And she said to the girls, "Now, bring me olive oil and soaps, and shut the orchard doors so that I can bathe." ¹⁸And they did as she said, and they shut the orchard doors and went out by the side doors to bring the things they had been commanded. And they did not see the elders, because they were hidden.

19 And it happened when the girls had gone out, the two elders got up and ran to her ²⁰and said, "Lo, the orchard doors are shut, and no one can see us, and we are in lust with you. Therefore, give your consent to us, and be with us. ²¹But if not, we will testify against you that a young man was with you, and for this reason you sent the girls away from you."

22 And Sousanna groaned and said, "Things are narrow for me on all sides. For if I do this, it is death for me; if I do not, I will not escape your hands. ²³It is preferable for me to fall into your hands by not doing it than to sin before the Lord."

24 And Sousanna cried out with a loud voice, but also the two elders shouted against her. ²⁵And running, the one opened the orchard doors. ²⁶But when those from the house heard the shouting in the orchard, they rushed in through the side door to see what had happened to her. ²⁷But when the elders spoke their words, the slaves felt very ashamed, for never had a word like this been said about Sousanna.

28 And it happened the next day, when the people gathered to her husband Ioakim, the two elders came, full of the lawless plot against Sousanna, to have her put to death. And in the presence of the people they said, ²⁹"Send for Sousanna daughter of Chelkias, who is the wife of 31 Now the woman was very refined. ³²And the scoundrels ordered to uncover her in order that they could be sated with lust for her beauty. ³³And all those who were with her and all who knew her wept.

34 Then after the elders and judges stood up, they placed their hands on her head. ³⁵But her heart trusted in the Lord, her God, and when she lifted her head, she wept, saying to herself, ^{35a}"O Lord, everlasting God, you who know all things before their beginning, you know that I have not done what these men are maliciously alleging against me." And the Lord heeded her supplication. ³⁶Then the two elders said, "We were walking around in her husband's orchard, ³⁷and as we were going around the walk, we saw this woman resting with a man. And while we stood, we saw them having intercourse together. ³⁸And they did not know that we stood there. Then we agreed together, saying, 'Let's find out who they are.' ³⁹And as we approached we recognized her, but the young man fled, covered over. ⁴⁰But when we had seized this woman, we asked her, 'Who is the man?' ⁴¹but she would not tell us who he was. These things we testify."

And as they were elders and judges of the people, the whole assembly believed them.

44-45 And lo, there was an angel of the Lord as she was being taken off to be executed. And the angel, just as he was ordered, gave a spirit of understanding to a youth, being Daniel.

48 Then Daniel parted the crowd, and after he stood among them, he said, "Are you such fools, O sons of Israel? Without examining or learning the plain truth, do you kill a daughter of Israel? ⁵¹And now, separate them far from one another for me so that I can test them." ^{51a}So, when they were separated, Daniel said to the assembly, "Now, have no regard that they are elders, saying, 'They would never lie!' But I will examine them according to what occurs to me."

52 And he summoned one of them, and they brought the elder to the youth and Daniel to him, "Hear! Hear! You that have grown aged in wicked days, your sins have now come, which you have committed formerly, ⁵³when you were entrusted to hear and to judge cases carrying a death sentence and you condemned the innocent while you were acquitting the guilty, though the Lord says, 'You shall not kill an innocent and righteous person.' ⁵⁴Now, therefore, under what tree and at

31 Now Sousanna was very refined and beautiful in appearance. ³²Then the scoundrels commanded that she be uncovered (for she was veiled) so that they could be sated with her beauty. ³³But those who were with her and all who saw her began weeping.

34 Then after the two elders stood up before the people, they put their hands on her head. ³⁵But she, while crying, looked up to heaven, because her heart trusted in the Lord. ³⁶Then the elders said, "While we were walking in the orchard alone, this woman came in with two maids and shut the orchard doors and dismissed the maids. ³⁷And a young man, who was hiding, came to her and lay down with her. ³⁸Now since we were in the corner of the orchard, when we saw the lawlessness, we ran to them. ³⁹And although we saw them being intimate^a, we were not able to take hold of that man, because he was stronger than we, and when he had opened the doors, he ran away. ⁴⁰But when we had seized this woman, we asked who the young man was, ⁴¹and she did not want to tell us. These things we testify."

And as they were elders of the people and judges, the assembly believed them, and they condemned her to death.

42 Then Sousanna cried out with a loud voice and said, "O everlasting God, you who are familiar with secret things, you who know all things before their beginning, ⁴³you understand that they have testified lies against me. And lo, I will die, though I have done nothing that they have maliciously alleged against me!"

44 And the Lord heeded her voice. ⁴⁵And as she was being led away to be executed, God awakened the holy spirit of a young lad whose name was Daniel, ⁴⁶and he shouted with a loud voice, "I am innocent of this woman's blood!"

47 Then all the people turned to him and said, "What is this word that you have spoken?" ⁴⁸So he, as he stood among them said, "Are you such fools, O sons of Israel? Without examining nor learning the plain truth, do you condemn a daughter of Israel? ⁴⁹Return to the court, for these men have testified lies against her."

50 And all the people returned quickly. And the elders said to him, "Come, sit among us, and tell us, for God has given you the right of an elder." ⁵¹And Daniel said to them, "Separate them far from one another, and I will examine them."

52 So when they were separated one from the one, he summoned one of them and said to him, "You that have grown aged in wicked days, your sins have now come, which you have committed formerly, ⁵³when you judged unjust cases, and condemning the innocent, while releasing those responsible, though the Lord says, 'You shall not kill an innocent and righteous person.' ⁵⁴Now,

Then, he said, "Under an evergreen oak." ⁵⁹And Daniel said, "Sinner! Now, the angel of the Lord stands with the sword until the people destroy you^a so that he may saw you in pieces."

60-62 And the whole assembly shouted for the youth, how out of their own mouths he had established them both as false witnesses by their own admission. And as the law states explicitly, they did to them just as they had wickedly intended against their sister. And they silenced them and took them away and threw them into a ravine. Then the angel of the Lord threw fire in their midst. 56 And after he had him removed, he ordered them to bring the other. And he said to him, "O seed of Chanaan and not Iouda, beauty has beguiled you, and lust has twisted your heart. ⁵⁷Thus you used to treat the daughters of Israel, and they, being afraid, would have intercourse with you, but a daughter of Iouda did not tolerate your lawlessness. ⁵⁸Now, therefore, tell me: Under what tree did you catch them having intercourse together?" DANIEL

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The NETS translations of the two versions of Daniel have effectively been based on the critical editions by Joseph Ziegler and Olivier Munnich (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum XVI.2: Susanna Daniel Bel et Draco [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1999]). Munnich, however, has revised Ziegler's edition of the Old Greek (OG), based on additional textual evidence from Papyrus 967, the most important manuscript for the OG, but he has reprinted Ziegler's text of Theodotion (TH). In a few cases I have emended Munnich's text. Instances that result in changes in (English) translation appear in the footnotes, while items judged to be doublets and therefore of dubious originality are enclosed in brackets in accordance with Göttingen and NETS practice.

General Statement

The Book of Daniel with its so-called Additions has a special place in the Septuagint because, along with a few other books, it is extant in two complete, ancient versions. The (earlier) OG translation, of which few witnesses remain, had been supplanted by the TH version by the first or second century CE. A brief introduction to both, and some discussion about their relationship, will be offered. The first six chapters are comprised of narratives about Daniel and his three friends in the courts of Babylonia. The last six chapters are reports of Daniel's apocalyptic visions, written in the first person. A precise statement on the relationship between the OG and TH translations is complicated by the fact that they do not reflect the same relationship consistently. Furthermore, one's conclusions have to be tempered by the available evidence. The best place to begin is chapters 4–6 where the differences are most numerous.

Chapters 4–6

The plot in Daniel 4–6 is the same, respectively, in the OG and TH/MT, but there are numerous differences in details. For example, chapter 4 in the OG narrates the story of Nabouchodonosor's (Nebuchadnezzar's) madness, but his confession and the publication of his decree occur in a much expanded form at the end of the chapter in vv. 34–34c rather than at the beginning. Relative to TH/MT there are other pluses to vv. 14, 19, 23–25, 28, 30 as well as significant minuses that comprise vv. 20–22. Moreover, there is no equivalent to 4.3–6. Chapter 5 recounts the mysterious writing on the wall, but the OG includes an abbreviated form of the story as a preface and omits significant portions of vv. 3, 10–13. Lacking too is any counterpart to vv. 14–15, 18–22 and 24–25. Chapter 6, in which Daniel is thrown into the lion's den, is much closer in length in the respective versions. Yet there are large pluses in the OG (vv. 3, 5, 12a, 14, 17–18, 22) and minuses (vv. 15, 23). But even where pluses and minuses are lacking, in these chapters the Greek versions show little relationship in style, grammar and, more importantly, vocabulary.

A detailed comparison of the Greek texts in Daniel 4–6 reveals that less than 19% of any of the vocabulary of TH agrees with the OG. However, when the vocabulary is similar, about 83% of it is exact. Agreements are so few that it is clear that TH is not a revision of the OG in these chapters. At the same time, given the high percentage of verbatim agreements despite the low frequency of shared readings overall, the only reasonable explanation is that the majority of these agreements are due to textual corruption of the OG with TH readings. Indeed, numerous passages can be isolated where there are double translations in the OG that include the reading of TH.

The relationship between the OG and TH is different in chapters 1–3. Although in a few places the OG has larger omissions (e.g., 2.40, 42; 3.3, 15) or additions (2.9; 3.1) relative to TH/MT, the texts are generally much closer in content. The closer relationship between the content of the chapters is reflected in the vocabulary as well, though the number of agreements is still relatively low. When proper nouns are excluded, the vocabulary of the OG and TH is similar about 38% of the time. The highest incidence of agreement is in chapter 3 where it is about 44%. Throughout most of chapters 1–2 and for portions of chapter 3, it is clear that the translation of TH is distinct from the OG. In many passages that contain agreements, they can be demonstrated to be due to corrections and corruptions of the OG from the text of TH. This is consistent with the evidence in chapters 4–6. It is only in chapter 3 that there is a higher degree of agreement between the texts. It would seem unlikely, however, that one chapter out of the first six would be a revision. Therefore, rather than speaking of “revision” in these chapters, one might better label OG and TH independent translations. Agreements are either incidental—since both versions are translating a similar source—or they are textual corruptions in the OG under the influence of TH.

Chapters 7–12

It is not until chapters 7–12 that one generally finds the common vocabulary in the two Greek versions to run around 50% and portions (e.g., 7.10, 25; 8.11–17, 21–23; 9.3–4, 11–12, 19–20, 27; 10.3–6, 19–20; 11.38) where there is extensive agreement for a verse or more. Some of the places where there is agreement can be demonstrated to be due to textual corruption, while others are incidental agreements that would be expected from two independent translators working from a similar source text. However, the portions of the Greek versions in these chapters where the verbal agreements between the texts are strong give the appearance that the TH text is a revision of the OG.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character

Though differences in translational approach among Septuagint translators are not difficult to find, there is little doubt that TH is characterized by formal equivalence to its source, while the OG is more dynamic. Hard and fast distinctions between them, however, are difficult to document, as indicated by the use of καί “and” for Hebrew ו. Though the OG employs δέ just over 50 times, compared to only 7 in TH, most often the default equivalent for both is καί. Another problem in this regard is the nature of the OG translation. In chapters 4–6 the source text underlying the OG seems to be very different from the MT, as a result of which the OG is quite different from TH. On the other hand, in chapters 7–12 the OG seems to be based on a source text very similar to the MT. Consequently, it is much easier to compare their approaches in the later chapters, though the style of the OG does appear to differ in the earlier chapters. Examples of stereotyped equivalents in TH are γινώσκω (“to know”) = עָדָה, γνωρίζω (“to make known”) = עָדָה (Aramaic), δίδωμι (“to give”) = לָהֵן, ἔρχομαι (“to go”) + cognates = סָרַס, סָרַס, סָרַס, λαλέω (“to speak”) = דַּבַּר and συντελέω (“to finish”) = כָּלַה. The TH version is not slavishly literal, however. Although it employs stereotyped equivalents in many cases, there are instances where alternative renderings are chosen. For example, γραφή (“writing”) or its cognate verb renders every instance of כָּתַב (“writing”) except 6.10 where δόγμα (“decree”) is used. In other cases TH has many equivalents for the one Hebrew word. For example, יָצַח (“strength”) is rendered by ισχύς (“strength”), ὑποστήριγμα (“supports”), δυναστεία (“sovereignty”), μαωζιν (a transcription) and καταφυγή (“refuge”). Verbs, particularly verbs of saying, are more susceptible to multiple equivalents. For example, the verbal form קָרָה (“call”) is rendered by βοάω (“shout”), φωνέω (“speak loud”), ἀναγινώσκω (“read”), καλέω (“call”) and ἐπικαλέω (“summon”). Excluding γνωρίζω (“to make known”) from the list above, the OG uses some of the same stereotypes as TH, though OG departs more frequently from the default rendering and normally exhibits greater variety in vocabulary choices. The fact that they do employ some of the same stereotypes is more of a reflection of the pattern throughout the LXX than any necessary connection between the OG and TH in Daniel.

Selected Features

There are specific examples that demonstrate that both the OG and TH were concerned to produce readable and reliable translations of their source texts. For example, they both exhibit a flair for using similar sounds either in the Greek or to echo the source text. In 3.4 OG renders MT’s וּבְרִיִּים קָרָה with καὶ ὁ κήρυξ ἐκήρυξε (“And the herald heralded”). In 12.10 TH has καὶ ἀνομήσωσιν ἄνομοι (“and the lawless act lawlessly”) where OG employs καὶ ἀμάρτωσιν οἱ ἀμαρτωλοί (“and the sinners sin”).

Despite TH’s concern to produce a faithful translation, the OG is normally superior. For example, εἰδωλείω (“idol’s temple”), κινδυνεύσω τῷ ἰδίῳ τραχήλῳ (“I will risk my own neck!”) and διαμερισθήσεται (Munnich reads διαμελισθήσεται) καὶ ἡ οὐσία αὐτοῦ δημευθήσεται (“will be dismembered, and his possessions confiscated”) are accurate, yet colorful translations. TH’s tendency to adhere more closely to the word order and a word-for-word translation limits the translator’s ability in this area.

A notable difference between the translators is their approach to texts they had trouble understanding. While the OG attempts to offer a translation based on the context, it appears that TH sometimes uses a transcription if the unknown word looks like it could be a proper noun. So TH renders עֵר ("watcher") with ἰρ ("Ir") while OG has ἄγγελος ("angel"). Other transcriptions by TH are φορθομμιν (1.3), ουβαλ (8.2), φελμουσι (8.13), βαδδιν (10.5), μαωζιν (11.38) and εφασανω (11.45). Incidentally, the fact that TH did not depend on the OG translation when TH did not understand the source text is significant evidence that TH is not a revision of the OG.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF DANIEL

General Approach

I have suggested that TH could be characterized as exhibiting formal equivalence to the source text, whereas OG may be understood as more dynamic or functional in its approach. I have attempted to reflect the subtle nuances in the differences in the translations according to the Greek, although the textual evidence for the OG is less than desirable in terms of producing a critical text. The evidence that we have suggests that both translations tend to follow the word order and reflect the syntax of the original; therefore, this equivalence to the source text is reflected in NETS. The OG departs more frequently from standard equivalents, though any variation of either translation is marked. Normally lexical equivalents for simple verbs and their compounds are distinguished with separate equivalents in NETS.

One of the areas where the basically literal approach of the translators will shine through is in the frequent appearance of the conjunction "and." Both versions of Daniel tended to use the stereotyped equivalent καί ("and") for the Semitic וְ, though there are occasions, more frequent in the OG, where participles or alternative conjunctions appear. Thus, it may be concluded that, when other conjunctions appear in NETS, this reflects a difference in the Greek and that, when sentences do not begin with a conjunction, there is an absence of such in the Greek.

The NETS Versions of OG and TH

One of the most challenging aspects of translating the two versions of Daniel into English is providing renderings that clarify both where the two versions are the same as well as where they are different. The process of comparison is a constant juggling act, but there are some immediate and obvious guidelines that were followed that help to understand the translation. Since we are dealing with two translations and there is a desire to indicate both aspects of their relationships, there is an attempt to be consistent in the translation of vocabulary, particularly for stereotyped equivalents. Therefore, even if the word or phrase appears in different places in the narrative they are translated consistently. At the same time, variations in lexical or syntactical choices in the Greek versions are always marked in some way. Differences in the person of verbs are evident from the context, but singular vs. plural forms of verbs or nouns are indicated as well. Thus, in 1.10 the OG has the singular πρόσωπον ("face") where TH has the plural πρόσωπα ("faces"). On the other hand, differences in case are not usually reflected in nouns. Therefore, when some of the vocabulary in the two versions is the same but there are other differences in word order or content, the reader may conclude that these are accurate representations of the vocabulary and syntax of the Greek.

The reader should also be warned that it was not always possible to signal differences in the syntax of the Greek compared to the Hebrew. At times the translator of the NRSV chose a more idiomatic way to represent the Semitic text of Daniel, which coincides with changes introduced by the Greek translators. As a result, NETS and NRSV agree in such cases.

EDITORIAL DETAIL

The TH version of Daniel is very similar to the Semitic text in the MT, and for this reason it will very often be quite similar to the NRSV. Besides the text of the OG, which often differs markedly from TH, particularly in chapters 4–6, there are a number of differences in the ordering of the verses among the versions. For the numbering of the verses I have followed Ziegler/Munnich for both versions, but the NRSV number will follow in parentheses where it differs. A brief description of the variations is offered here. The inclusion of the Prayer of Azarias and the Song of the Three Young Men in chapter 3 in both Greek versions beginning in v. 24 (end of v. 23 in the OG) requires that the equivalent to 3.24–30 in the MT be numbered 3.91–97 in the Greek versions. The first three verses in chapter 4 in the NRSV actually correspond to 3.31–33 in the MT. So in TH they are numbered 3.98–100, but the equivalent to these verses, along with the additional material, is found at the end of chapter 4 in the OG. The result of this is that the verse numbers in the Greek versions are the same as the MT throughout chapter 4 but are three less than the NRSV, and the OG has additional material numbered 34a–c at the end of the chapter. In addition, there are also a number of omissions, pluses and alternative versions of passages throughout chapters 4–6 in the OG. Chapter 5 has an extra preface at the beginning of the chapter in the OG. The first verse of chapter 6 is actually the last one in chapter 5 for the Greek versions, so the verse numbers are one less than the MT throughout the whole chapter, but the same as the NRSV. There are other isolated instances where the OG has a small difference in verse order or omits a verse.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

In addition to the standard reference tools, I was most appreciative of the English translation and commentary on chapters 4–6 by Lawrence M. 1 During the third year of King Ioakim of Judea, when Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, arrived at Ierousalem, he besieged it. ²And the Lord delivered it into his hands as well as Ioakim, king of Judea, and some part of the sacred vessels of the Lord. And taking them to Babylonia, he deposited them in his idol temple.

³ And the king told Abiesdri, his own chief eunuch, to bring to him some of the sons of the nobles of Israel and of royal descent and of the aristocracy: ⁴young men without physical defect and good-looking and knowledgeable in all wisdom and educated and wise and strong to be in the king's house, and to teach them letters and Chaldean speech ⁵and that they be given a prescribed portion from the king each day, both from the royal table and of the wine, which the king drank, and to educate them for three years and to place some of them before the king. ⁶And there were of the race of the sons of Israel who were from Judea: Daniel, Hananias, Misael, Azarias. ⁷And the chief eunuch assigned them names: to Daniel, Baltasar, but to Hananias, Sedrach and to Misael, Misach and to Azarias, Abdenago.

⁸ And Daniel was determined in his heart that he not [.]^a with the king's dinner and the wine that he drank, and he petitioned the chief eunuch so that he not be contaminated. ⁹And the Lord gave Daniel honor and favor before the chief eunuch. ¹⁰And the chief eunuch said to Daniel, "I am distressed because of my lord the king who appointed your food and drink that he should not see your face more drawn^b and sickly than the young men from aliens with whom you are being reared; I will risk my own neck!" ¹¹And Daniel said to Abiesdri, the chief eunuch, who was assigned to Daniel, Hananias, Misael, Azarias: ¹²"Do test your servants over a period of ten days, and let us be given some pulse from the earth to ^cgulp down^c

1 In the third year of the reign of Ioakim, king of Iouda, Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, came to Ierousalem and besieged it. ²And the Lord gave in his hand King Ioakim of Iouda and a part of the vessels of the house of God. And he brought them to the land of Sennaar, to the house of his god, and brought the vessels into the house of the treasure of his god.

³ And the king told Asphanez, his chief eunuch, to bring in some of the sons of the captivity of Israel, both of the seed of the kingdom and of the Phorthommin^a: ⁴young men, who had no physical defect in them and were handsome in appearance and versed in all wisdom and endowed with knowledge and full of discernment and who had strength in them to stand in the king's house, and to teach them the literature and language of the Chaldeans. ⁵And the king assigned them the daily portion every day from the king's table and from the wine of his drink and to nurture them for three years and after this that they stand in the king's presence. ⁶And among them from the sons of Iouda were Daniel and Hananias and Misael and Azarias. ⁷And the chief eunuch assigned them names: to Daniel, Baltasar and to Hananias, Sedrach and to Misael, Misach and to Azarias, Abdenago.

⁸ And Daniel set in his heart how he would never be defiled with the table of the king and with the wine of his drink, and he petitioned the chief eunuch how he might never be defiled. ⁹And God gave Daniel to mercy and to compassion before the chief eunuch. ¹⁰And the chief eunuch said to Daniel, "I am afraid of my lord the king who appointed your food and your drink lest he should see your faces more dull^b than the other youths of your own age, and you would sentence my head with the king." ¹¹And Daniel said to Hamelsad whom the chief eunuch had appointed over Daniel, Hananias, Misael, Azarias: ¹²"Do test your servants for ten days, and let them give us some seed, and we will eat, and we will drink water. ¹³And let

and water to drink. ¹³And if our appearance seems more pale than the other young men who are eating of the royal dinner, for you observe so deal with your servants." ¹⁴And he dealt with them in this manner and tested them for ten days. ¹⁵Now, after ten days their appearance and physical condition was shown to be better than that of the other young men who were eating the royal dinner. ¹⁶And Abiesdri continued to withhold their dinner and their wine and would give them some pulse instead. ¹⁷And the Lord gave the young men knowledge and clever insight in every literary art. And to Daniel he gave insight into every vision and dreams and in all wisdom.

18 Then after these days, the king ordered them to be brought in, and they were led by the chief eunuch to Nabouchodonosor the king. ¹⁹And the king conversed with them, and no one was found among the wise like Daniel and Hananias and Misael and Azarias, and they were in the king's presence. ²⁰And in every topic and understanding and education, which the king inquired of them, he took them to be ten times wiser, surpassing the savants and scholars that were in the whole kingdom. And the king glorified them and appointed them in affairs in his whole kingdom. ²¹And Daniel lasted until the first year of the reign of Cyrus.

2 And in the twelfth year of Nabouchodonosor's reign, it happened that visions and dreams befell him, and he was disturbed in his sleep. ²And the king ordered that the enchanters and the magicians and sorcerers of the Chaldeans be brought in to tell the king his dreams. And when they arrived, they stood in front of the king. ³And the king said to them, "I have seen a dream, and my spirit was shaken. Therefore, I want to find out about the dream." ⁴And the Chaldeans spoke to the king in Syrian, "O lord, you shall live forever! Tell the dream to your servants, and we will explain it." ⁵Then the king said in reply to the Chaldeans, "Unless you tell me the dream with certainty and disclose its sense, you will be made an example, and your possessions will be expropriated into the royal treasury. ⁶But if you make plain to me the dream and tell its sense, you will receive all kinds of gifts, and you will be glorified by me. Therefore, disclose the dream, and interpret." ⁷Then they answered a second time, saying, "O king, state the vision, so your servants will interpret regarding these matters." ⁸And the king said to them, "It is certain you are trying to buy time; therefore, as I have commanded: ⁹unless you render to me the dream and disclose its meaning, you will meet up with death. For you have agreed to make lying words in my presence until the occasion changes. Now, therefore, if you state the vision, which I saw during the night, I shall know that you can also disclose its sense." ¹⁰And the Chaldeans answered in the presence of the king, "Nobody on earth can say to the king what he has seen as you are asking! And, no king or dynast has our forms be seen before you, and the forms of the youths who are eating the king's table, and do with your servants according to what you see." ¹⁴And he heeded them and tested them for ten days. ¹⁵And at the end of ten days their forms were seen to be good and strong in flesh, superior to the youths who had been eating the king's table. ¹⁶And there was Hamelsad withholding their dinner and the wine of their drink, and he would give them seeds. ¹⁷And these youths, these four—God gave them insight and skill in every aspect of literature and wisdom. And Daniel had insight into every vision and dreams.

18 And at the end of the days that the king had said for them to be brought forth, the chief eunuch also brought them before Nabouchodonosor. ¹⁹And the king spoke with them, and from among them all none were found like Daniel and Hananias and Misael and Azarias, and they stood before the king. ²⁰And in every matter of wisdom and knowledge that the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the enchanters and magicians who were in his whole kingdom. ²¹And Daniel continued until year one of Cyrus the king.

2 In the second year of his reign, Nabouchodonosor dreamed a dream, and his spirit was startled^a, and his sleep left him. ²And the king said to summon the enchanters and the magicians and the sorcerers and the Chaldeans to tell the king his dreams. And they came and stood before the king. ³And the king said to them, "I dreamed, and my spirit was startled^a so as to know the dream." ⁴And the Chaldeans spoke to the king in Syrian, "O king, live forever! You say the dream to your servants, and we will tell the interpretation." ⁵The king answered the Chaldeans, "The matter has escaped me; unless you make known to me the dream and the interpretation, you will be destroyed, and your houses will be plundered. ⁶But if you make known to me the dream and the interpretation, gifts and rewards and great honor you will receive from me. Only tell me the dream and its interpretation." ⁷They answered a second time and said, "Let the king state the dream to his servants, and we can tell its interpretation." ⁸And the king answered and said, "I know with certainty that you are trying to buy time, because you see that the matter has escaped me. ⁹Therefore, if you do not tell me the dream, I know that you have conspired to speak a lying and corrupt word before me until the time passes. State to me my dream, and I shall know that you can tell me the interpretation." ¹⁰The Chaldeans answered before the king and kept saying, "There is no person on dry land who can make known the matter of the king, as no great king or magistrate has requested such a thing asked^a such a matter of any sage or magician or Chaldean. ¹¹And the thing that you seek, O king, is difficult and important. And there is no one who can disclose these things except some angel, whose habitation is not with any flesh; therefore, it is not possible that it happen, as you imagine."

¹² Then the king, being anxious and very sad, ordered to bring forth all the savants of Babylonia. ¹³And it was decreed to execute all of them, but Daniel and all those who were with him were sought in order to be killed as well. ¹⁴Then Daniel spoke counsel and knowledge to Arioch, the king's chief cook, who was ordered to bring forward the savants of Babylonia. ¹⁵And he inquired of him, saying, "Why is it being decreed so harshly by the king?" Then Arioch made the ordinance clear to Daniel. ¹⁶Now Daniel immediately went in to the king and petitioned that time might be given to him, and he would disclose everything in the presence of the king.

¹⁷ Then Daniel, departing to his own home, declared everything in detail to Hananias and Misael and Azarias, his companions. ¹⁸And he proclaimed a fast and supplication and that help be sought from the Lord Most High about this mystery so that Daniel and those who were with him might not be delivered to destruction together with the savants of Babylon. ¹⁹Then the mystery of the king was disclosed to Daniel. In the night in a vision the matter was clearly brought to light. Then Daniel blessed the Lord Most High and crying out he said, ²⁰ "Let the name of the great Lord be blessed forever, because wisdom and majesty are his.

²¹ And he changes seasons and times,
deposing kings and setting up, giving to the sages wisdom and understanding to those who have knowledge
²² and revealing deep and obscure things and knowing what is in the darkness and in the light,
and with him there is release.
²³ You, Lord of my ancestors,
I acknowledge and praise,
because you gave me wisdom and
intelligence,
and now you have shown as much as I petitioned
in order to disclose regarding these things to the king."

²⁴ So when Daniel went in to Arioch, who had been appointed by the king to execute all the savants of Babylonia, he said to him, "Do not destroy the savants of Babylon, but bring me in to the king, and I will disclose everything in detail to the king."

²⁵ Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel in to the king and said to him: "I have found a wise per-

of an enchanter, magician, Chaldean, ¹¹because the thing that the king is requesting is difficult. And there is no other who can tell it before the king but gods, whose dwelling is not with any flesh."

¹² Then the king in anger and great rage said to destroy all the sages of Babylon. ¹³And the decree went out, and the sages were being executed, and they sought to slay Daniel and his friends. ¹⁴Then Daniel answered counsel and reason to Arioch, the king's chief cook, who had gone out to slay the sages of Babylon. ¹⁵"Magistrate of the king, why has the shameless opinion gone out from before the king?" So, Arioch made the matter known to Daniel. ¹⁶And Daniel petitioned the king so that he might give him time, and he would tell the king the interpretation.

¹⁷ And Daniel went into his home and made known the matter to Hananias and to Misael and to Azarias, his friends, ¹⁸and they began seeking mercy before the God of heaven concerning this mystery so that Daniel and his friends might not perish with the rest of the sages of Babylon. ¹⁹Then the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision of the night, and Daniel blessed the God of heaven ²⁰and said:

"May the name of God be blessed from age to age, because wisdom and power are his.
²¹ And he changes seasons and times;
he sets up kings and deposes, giving wisdom to the sages and intelligence to those who know
understanding.
²² He reveals deep and hidden things, knowing what is in the darkness,
and the light is with him.
²³ You, O God of my ancestors,
I acknowledge and praise,
because you have given me wisdom and power,
and you have made known to me what we petitioned from you, and you have made known to me the matter of the king."

²⁴ And Daniel went to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the sages of Babylon, and said to him, "Do not destroy the wise men of Babylon, but bring me in before the king, and I will tell the king the interpretation."

²⁵ Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel in before the king and said to him: "I have found a man among the sons of the captives from Judea who can tell the king the meaning." ²⁶And the king anson among the captives of the sons of Judea who will disclose everything in detail to the king.”²⁶ So having answered, the king said to Daniel, but called Baltasar in Chaldean, “Are you able to disclose to me the vision that I have seen and its sense?”²⁷ So Daniel spoke aloud in the presence of the king and said, “That which the king has seen: the explanation is not of the sages and enchanters and sorcerers and Gazarenes,²⁸ but there is a Lord in heaven illumining mysteries who has disclosed to King Nabouchodonosor what must happen at the end of days. O King, you shall live forever! The dream and the vision of your head upon your bed is this:²⁹ You, O king, after you reclined upon your couch, saw everything that must happen at the end of the days, and he that reveals mysteries has disclosed to you what is about to happen.³⁰ But as for me, this mystery was not brought to light because of wisdom that I have beyond all persons, but it was shown to me what you pondered in your heart by knowledge in order that it might be disclosed to the king.

³¹ “And you saw, O king. And lo! There was one image. And that image was exceedingly great. And its appearance, being extraordinary, stood in front of you, and the appearance of the image was frightening.³² And the head was of good gold, the chest and the arms silver, the belly and the thighs bronze,³³ and the legs iron, the feet partly of iron and partly of earthenware.³⁴ And you saw until when a stone was cut from a mountain, without hands, and it struck the image on the iron and earthenware feet and crushed them.³⁵ Then the iron as well as the earthenware and the bronze and the silver and the gold became powdery together and became more powdery, as it were, than the chaff on a threshing floor, and the wind threw them so that nothing remained of them. And the stone that struck the image became a great mountain, and it struck the whole earth.

³⁶ “This was the vision. Now we will also tell the meaning in the presence of the king.³⁷ You, O king, are king of kings, and to you the Lord of heaven has given the kingdom and power and honor and glory.³⁸ In the whole world from humans and wild animals and birds of the air and fish of the sea, he has delivered them into your hands to rule over all—you are the gold head.³⁹ And after you will rise a kingdom smaller than yours and another kingdom of bronze, which will rule over the whole earth,⁴⁰ and another kingdom, strong as iron, which saws everything and cuts down every tree, and the whole earth will be shaken.⁴¹ And as you saw its feet partly of iron and partly of potter’s ware: there will be another kingdom in two parts, and some of the iron base will be in it; just as you saw the iron commixed with the clay ware,⁴² part of the kingdom will be strong, and part of it will be broken.⁴³ And as you saw the iron admixed with the clay ware, they will be commixed in races of humans, but they will not be in agreement or well disposed to one another, even as swered and said to Daniel, whose name was Baltasar, “Are you able to tell me the dream that I have seen and its interpretation?”²⁷ And Daniel answered before the king and said, “The mystery that the king asks: it is not of sages, magicians, enchanters, Gazarenes to tell to the king,²⁸ but rather, there is a God in heaven revealing mysteries, and he has made known to King Nabouchodonosor what must happen at the end of days. Your dream and the visions of your head upon your bed is this:²⁹ O king, your thoughts upon your bed ascended to what must happen after this, and he that reveals mysteries has made known to you what must happen.³⁰ But as for me, this mystery was not revealed by wisdom that I have more than any living beings but in order to make known the interpretation to the king in order that you may know the thoughts of your heart.

³¹ “You were looking, O king. And lo! There was one image. That great image and its appearance was extraordinary. It was standing before you, and the sight of it was frightening.³² As for the image whose head was of good gold, its hands [and chest] and arms silver, the belly and the thighs bronze,³³ the shanks iron, the feet partly of iron and partly of earthenware—³⁴ you kept looking until a stone was severed from a mountain, not by hands, and it struck the image on the iron and earthenware feet and completely pulverized.³⁵ Then the earthenware, the iron, the bronze, the silver, the gold were ground all at once and became as dust from a summer threshing floor, and the greatness of the wind arose, and their place was not found.³⁶ And the stone that struck the image became a great mountain, and it filled the whole earth.

³⁶ “This is the dream, and we will tell before the king its interpretation.³⁷ You, O king, are king of kings to whom the God of heaven has given a powerful and mighty and honorable kingdom.³⁸ In every place where the sons of men live, and both animals of the field and birds of the air, he has given into your hand, and he has established you as lord of all—you are the gold head.³⁹ And behind you will arise another kingdom inferior to yours and a third kingdom that is the bronze, which will rule over the whole earth.⁴⁰ And there will be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron; as iron pulverizes and overpowers everything, so it will pulverize and overpower everything.⁴¹ And you saw that the feet and toes were partly of earthenware and partly of iron: it will be a divided kingdom, and some of the root of the iron will be in it, as you saw the iron mixed with the earthenware.⁴² And the toes of the feet, partly of iron but partly of earthenware: part of the kingdom will be strong, iron is not able to be blended with earthenware. ⁴⁴And in the times of these kings the God of heaven will set up another kingdom that will be forever and will not be corrupted. And this kingdom will never permit another nation, but it will crush and abolish those kingdoms, and it will stand forever, ⁴⁵just as you have seen a stone cut out of a mountain, without hands, and it ground the earthenware and the iron and bronze and silver and gold. The great God has shown the king what will be at the end of the days, and the vision is precise, and the meaning of it trustworthy."

46 Then Nabouchodonosor the king, falling facedown on the ground, did obeisance to Daniel and ordered that sacrifices and libations be carried out to him. ⁴⁷And the king cried out to Daniel and said, "It is certain; your God is God of gods and Lord of lords and Lord of kings who alone brings to light hidden mysteries, because you have been able to disclose this mystery!" ⁴⁸Then King Nabouchodonosor, after he magnified Daniel and bestowed many great presents, appointed him over the affairs of Babylonia and designated him ruler and leader of all the savants of Babylon. ⁴⁹And Daniel petitioned the king that Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago might be appointed over the affairs of the kingdom of Babylon. And Daniel was in the royal court.

3 In the eighteenth year of Nabouchodonosor, when he was managing cities and regions and all who lived from India to Ethiopia, he also made a golden image. Its height was sixty cubits, and its width was twelve cubits. And he set it up on the plain of the enclosure of the region of Babylonia. ²And Nabouchodonosor, king of kings and ruling the whole inhabited world, sent to gather all the nations and tribes and languages, satraps and generals, local rulers and magistrates, administrators and the authorities by region and all those in the inhabited world to come to the dedication of the golden image, which King Nabouchodonosor had established^a, ³and the aforementioned stood in front of the image. ⁴And the herald heralded to the crowds, "I tell you, O nations, peoples and languages, ⁵whenever you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp and a symphony of all kinds of musical instruments, you should fall down and do obeisance to the gold image, which King Nabouchodonosor has set up. ⁶And anyone who does not fall down and do obeisance, they will throw him into the furnace of fire." ⁷And at that time when all the nations heard the horn and all the sounds of musical instruments, all the nations, tribes and languages, falling down they did obeisance to the gold image that Nabouchodonosor had set up.

and some of it will be broken, ⁴³for you saw the iron mixed with earthenware. There will be comingling among the seed of humanity, and they will not hold together, this one with that one, just as iron does not mix with earthenware. ⁴⁴And in the days of those kings the God of heaven will establish a kingdom that will not be destroyed forever, and his kingdom will not be left to another people. And it will pulverize and scatter all the kingdoms, and it will stand up forever; ⁴⁵as you saw, a stone was cut from a mountain, not by hands, and it pulverized the earthenware, the iron, the bronze, the silver, the gold. The great God has made known to the king what must happen after this, and the dream is true, and its interpretation trustworthy."

46 Then King Nabouchodonosor fell facedown and did obeisance to Daniel and said that manaa^a and fragrances be poured out to him. ⁴⁷And having answered, the king said to Daniel, "It is certain; your God, he is God of gods and Lord of kings and a revealer of mysteries, because you have been able to reveal this mystery!" ⁴⁸And the king magnified Daniel and gave him many great gifts and appointed him over the whole region of Babylon and ruler of the satraps over all the sages of Babylon. ⁴⁹And Daniel requested from the king, and he appointed Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago over the works of the region of Babylon. And Daniel was in the king's court.

3 [In the eighteenth year,] King Nabouchodonosor made a golden image. Its height was sixty cubits. Its breadth was six cubits. And he set it up on the plain of Deira in the region of Babylon ²and sent to assemble the magistrates and the generals and the local rulers, governors and despots and the authorities and all the rulers of the regions to come to the consecration of the image, which King Nabouchodonosor had set up. ³And the local rulers, magistrates, generals, governors, great despots, the authorities and all the rulers of the regions assembled for the dedication of the image, which King Nabouchodonosor had set up, and they took their stand before the image. ⁴And the herald cried out with force, "It is said to you, O peoples, tribes, languages, ⁵any time you hear the sound of the horn, both pipe and lyre, trigon and harp and all kinds of musical instruments, you are to fall down and do obeisance to the gold image, which King Nabouchodonosor has set up. ⁶And whoever does not fall down and do obeisance, at that very hour will be thrown into the furnace blazing with fire." ⁷And it happened that whenever the people would hear the sound of the horn, both pipe and lyre, trigon and harp and all kinds of musical instruments, all the peoples, tribes, languages would fall down and do obei-

8 At that time, when Chaldean men came forward, they denounced the Judeans. ⁹And they answered and said, "O lord king, live forever! ¹⁰You, O king, have ordered and decided that every person who hears the horn and all the sounds of musical instruments should fall down and do obeisance to the gold image, ¹¹and whoever does not do obeisance will be thrown into the furnace blazing with fire. ¹²But there are certain Judean men whom you have appointed over the region of Babylonia—Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago—these people do not fear your command, and they do not serve your idol, and they do not do obeisance to your gold image, which you have set up."

13 Then Nabouchodonosor, being angered, in a rage ordered that Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago be brought in. Then the men were brought to the king. ¹⁴So when King Nabouchodonosor saw them, he said to them, "O Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago, for what reason do you not serve my gods and do not do obeisance to the gold image, which I have set up? ¹⁵And now, if you are now prepared, as soon as you hear the horn and all the sounds of musical instruments to fall down and do obeisance to the gold image that I set up But if not—know that if you do not do obeisance, you will be thrown immediately into the furnace blazing with fire, and what god will deliver you out of my hands?"

16 But Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago answered and said to King Nabouchodonosor, "O king, we have no need to answer you about this command, ¹⁷for there is God who is in heaven, our one Lord, whom we fear, who is able to deliver us from the furnace of fire, and out of your hands, O king, he will deliver us. ¹⁸And then it will be clear to you, that we will neither serve your idol nor will we do obeisance to your gold image, which you have set up."

19 Then Nabouchodonosor was filled with anger, and the form of his face was distorted against them. And he ordered that the furnace be heated sevenfold more than it was necessary for it to be heated ²⁰and ordered very strong men, who were in his command, after they had tied those with Azarias, to throw them into the furnace blazing with fire. ²¹Then these men were tied with their sandals on and their hats on their heads in their clothing, and they were thrown into the furnace of fire. ²²Because the king's command was insistent, the furnace was also heated sevenfold more than before, and the men who had been selected, after they had tied and brought them to the furnace, threw them into it. ²³Then the flame coming^a out from the furnace burned and killed the men who tied those with Azarias, but they were preserved.

24 So, therefore, Hananias and Azarias and Misael prayed and sang hymns to the Lord, when sance to the gold image that King Nabouchodonosor had set up.

8 Then Chaldean men came forward and denounced the Judeans ⁹to King Nabouchodonosor. "O king, live forever! ¹⁰You, O king, have made a decree: every person who hears the sound of the horn, both pipe and lyre, trigon and harp and all kinds of musical instruments ¹¹and does not fall down and do obeisance to the gold image, he will be thrown into the furnace blazing with fire. ¹²There are Judean men whom you have appointed over the works of the region of Babylon: Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago, who have not heeded your decree, O king. They do not serve your gods, and they do not do obeisance to the gold image, which you have set up."

13 Then Nabouchodonosor in anger and rage said that Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago be brought in, and they were brought before the king. ¹⁴And Nabouchodonosor answered and said to them, "Is it true, O Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago, that you do not serve my gods and you do not do obeisance to the gold image, which I have set up? ¹⁵Now, therefore, if you are prepared so that when you hear the sound of the horn, both pipe and lyre, trigon and harp and all kinds of musical instruments, you should fall down and do obeisance to the image that I have made. But if you should not do obeisance, that very hour you will be thrown into the furnace blazing with fire, and who is the god that will deliver you out of my hand?"

16 And Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago answered, saying to King Nabouchodonosor, "We have no need in this matter to answer you, ¹⁷for there is a god whom we serve, able to deliver us from the furnace blazing with fire, and out of your hands, O king, he will rescue us. ¹⁸And if not, let it be known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods, and we will not do obeisance to the image, which you have set up."

19 Then Nabouchodonosor was filled with anger, and the appearance of his face was distorted against Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago. And he said that the furnace should be stoked up sevenfold until it would be heated completely ²⁰and told men, strong in strength, after they had bound Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago, to throw them into the furnace blazing with fire. ²¹Then these men were bound together with their trousers and hats and leggings, and they were thrown into the middle of the furnace blazing with fire. ²²When the king's word prevailed, the furnace was also heated excessively, ²³and these three, Sedrach, Misach, Abdenago, fell down, bound, into the middle of the blazing furnace.

24 And they were walking around in the middle of the flames, singing hymns to God and blessing the Lord. ²⁵And after Azarias stood, he prayed they will whip you, and they will bring the judgments against you. The Lord lives in heaven, and his authority is over the whole earth. ²⁴⁽²⁷⁾Entreat him concerning sins, and atone for all your iniquities with alms^a so that equity might be given to you and you might be long-lived on the throne of your kingdom and not be destroyed. Gladly receive these words, for my word is accurate and your time is complete.”

25(28) And at the completion of the words, Nabouchodonosor, as he heard the verdict of the vision, kept the words in his heart. ²⁶⁽²⁹⁾And after twelve months the king was walking on the walls of the city in all his glory and going through its towers, ²⁷⁽³⁰⁾and answering he said, “This is the great Babylon, which I have built by the might of my power, and it will be called my royal house.” ²⁸⁽³¹⁾And at the completion of his word, he heard a voice from heaven: “O King Nabouchodonosor, to you it is said: The kingdom of Babylon has been taken away from you and is being given to another, a condemned person in your house. Lo, I establish him over your kingdom, and he will receive your authority and your glory and your luxury so that you may recognize that the God of heaven has authority in the kingdom of humans and he will give it to whomever he desires. Now, by sunrise, another king will rejoice in your house and will take your glory and your power and your authority. ²⁹⁽³²⁾And the angels will pursue you for seven years, and you will never be seen, nor will you ever speak with any person. They will feed you grass like an ox, and your pasture will be from the tender grass of the earth. Lo, instead of your glory they will tie you, and another will have your luxurious house and the kingdom. ³⁰⁽³³⁾Now, by morning everything will be completed concerning you. O King Nabouchodonosor of Babylon, and none of all these things will fail.”

30a “I, Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, was bound seven years. They fed me grass like an ox, and I would eat the tender grass of the earth. And after seven years I gave my soul to supplication, and I petitioned before the Lord, the God of heaven, concerning my sins, and I entreated the great God of gods concerning my ignorance. ^{30b}And my hair became like wings of an eagle, my nails like those of a lion. My flesh and my heart were changed. I would walk about naked with the animals of the field. I saw a dream and forebodings gripped me, and after a while a great sleep overtook me, and drowsiness fell upon me. ^{30c}And at the completion of seven years my time of redemption came, and my sins and my ignorances were fulfilled before the God of heaven, and I entreated the great God of gods concerning my ignorances, and lo, one angel called me from heaven: ‘Nabouchodonosor, be subject to the holy God of heaven, and give glory to the Most High. knowledge that the Most High has sovereignty over the kingdom of humans and will give it to whomever he wishes. ²³⁽²⁶⁾And as they said, ‘Leave the growth of the roots of the tree, your kingdom will remain for you from which time you acknowledge the heavenly authority.’ ²⁴⁽²⁷⁾Therefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable to you and atone for your sins with alms^a and for iniquities with compassion to the needy. Perhaps God will show forbearance for your transgressions.”

25(28) All these things overtook King Nabouchodonosor. ²⁶⁽²⁹⁾After twelve months, while he was walking on the royal shrine in Babylon, ²⁷⁽³⁰⁾the king answered and said, “Is this not the great Babylon, which I have built as a royal house by my mighty power for my glorious honor?” ²⁸⁽³¹⁾While the word was still in the king’s mouth, a voice came from heaven: “O King Nabouchodonosor, to you they say: The kingdom has departed from you! ²⁹⁽³²⁾And they will drive you away from humans, and your dwelling will be with the wild animals. And they will feed you grass like an ox, and seven seasons will be altered over you until you acknowledge that the Most High has sovereignty over the kingdom of humans and will give it to whomever he wishes.” ³⁰⁽³³⁾At the same time, the sentence was completed against Nabouchodonosor, and he was driven away from humans and ate grass like an ox, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven until his hair lengthened like that of lions and his nails like those of birds.

31(34) And after the completion of the days, I, Nabouchodonosor, lifted my eyes to heaven, and my reason was returned to me.

And I blessed the Most High and praised and glorified the one who lives forever.

For his authority is an everlasting authority, and his kingdom is for generation upon generation.

³²⁽³⁵⁾And all the inhabitants of the earth were

And there is no one who will stay his hand or say to him, “What did you do?”

33(36) "On that day my kingdom was restored to me, and my glory was given back to me. ³⁴⁽³⁷⁾I acknowledge the Most High, and I praise the one who created the heaven and the earth and the seas and the rivers and everything that is in them. I acknowledge, and I praise, because he is God of gods and Lord of lords and Lord of kings, because he does signs and wonders and changes seasons and times, removing the reign of kings and setting others in their place.

34a From now on I will serve him, and trembling has gripped me from fear of him, and I praise all his holy ones, for the gods of the nations do not have power in them to give away the kingdom of a king to another king and to kill and to make alive and to do signs and great and terrible marvels and to change very great matters as the God of heaven has done with me. And he changed great things about me. I will offer sacrifices to the Most High as an odor of fragrance to the Lord for my life every day of my reign, and I will do what is pleasing before him, I and my people, [my nation] and my lands that are in my authority. And as many as have spoken against the God of heaven and as many as should be caught speaking anything, I will condemn these to death."

34b Then King Nabouchodonosor wrote a circular letter to all the nations in each place and to countries and languages who live in all the countries, generations and generations. "Praise the Lord, God of heaven. Bring sacrifice and offering to him gloriously. I, the king of kings, acknowledge him gloriously, because he has done thus with me. In the same day he established me on my throne, and I took possession of my authority and my kingdom among my people, and my greatness was restored to me. ^{34c}King Nabouchodonosor to all nations and all countries and all the inhabitants in them: May peace be multiplied to you at every time. And now, I will show to you the deeds that the great God has done with me. Moreover, it seemed good to me to show you and your savants that God is one, and his marvels are great; his rule is forever; his authority is from generation to generation."

And he sent letters about everything that happened to him during his reign to all the nations which were under his reign.

5 [*King Baltasar gave a great reception on the day of the dedication of his palace, and he invited two thousand men of his nobles. On that day, Baltasar, in high spirits from the wine and boasting in his drink, praised all the molten and carved gods of the nations, and he did not give praise to the Most High God. On that same night, fingers, as though of a human, came forth and inscribed on the wall of his house, on the plaster, opposite the light: MANE PHARES THEKEL. 33(36) At the same time my reason was returned to me, and I came into the honor of my kingdom, and my form returned to me. And my despots and my nobles sought me, and I became strong over my kingdom, and still more greatness was added to me. ³⁴⁽³⁷⁾Now, therefore, I, Nabouchodonosor, praise and extol and glorify the king of heaven, because all his works are true and his paths are justice; and he is able to bring low all those who walk in pride.

¹King Baltasar made a great feast for his associates. ²And he was drinking wine, and his heart was exalted, and he said to bring the gold and silver vessels of the house of God that his father Nabouchodonosor had brought from Ierousalem and to pour wine in them for his associates. ³And they were brought, and they were drinking with them. ⁴And they blessed their handmade idols, and they did not bless the eternal God who had authority over their spirit.

5 In that very same hour fingers, as though of a human hand, came forth and wrote on the wall of his house, on the plaster opposite the light, facing King Baltasar. And he saw a hand writing, ⁶and his appearance was changed, and foreboding pressed him. Therefore, the king hastened and stood up and kept looking at that writing, and his companions spoke loudly around him. ⁷And the king called in a loud voice that the enchanters and sorcerers and Chaldeans and Gazarenes be summoned to tell the meaning of the writing. And they came to the spectacle to see the writing, and they were unable to interpret the meaning of the writing for the king. Then the king published a declaration, saying: Anyone who can explain the meaning of the writing—he will dress him in purple, and the gold torque he will put on him, and authority over a third of the kingdom will be given to him. ⁸And the enchanters and sorcerers and Gazarenes came in, and none was able to tell the meaning of the writing. ⁹Then the king summoned the queen about the sign, and he explained to her how large it was and that no person was able to tell the king the meaning of the writing.

¹⁰ Then the queen reminded him concerning Daniel who was among the captives of Judea. ¹¹And she said to the king, "That person was prudent and wise and surpassed all the sages of Babylon, ¹²and a holy spirit is in him. And in the days of your father the king he explained difficult meanings to Nabouchodonosor your father."

¹³ Then Daniel was brought in to the king. And answering the king said to him, ¹⁶"O Daniel, are you able to explain to me the interpretation of the writing? And I shall dress you in purple, and a gold torque I shall put on you, and you will have authority over a third part of my kingdom."

5 King Baltasar made a great dinner for a thousand of his nobles, and the wine was before the thousand.

² And as he was drinking, Baltasar spoke, with a taste of the wine, that they would bring in the gold and silver vessels that his father Nabouchodonosor had taken out of the shrine in Ierousalem, "and let the king and his nobles and his concubines and his consorts drink from them." ³And the gold and silver vessels were brought that he had taken out of the shrine of God in Ierousalem, and the king and his nobles and his concubines and his consorts were drinking with them. ⁴They were drinking wine and praised the gold and silver and bronze and iron and wood and stone gods.

5 In that same hour fingers of a human hand came forth and were writing on the plaster of the wall of the king's house, opposite the lampstand. And the king was watching the knuckles of the hand, which was writing. ⁶Then the form of the king was changed, and his thoughts terrified him, and the joints of his loins were giving way, and his knees were knocking together. ⁷And the king shouted aloud in order that the magicians, Chaldeans, Gazarenes be brought in, and he said to the sages of Babylon, "Whoever can read this writing and make known to me the interpretation will be clothed in purple and have the gold torque around his neck and will rank third in my kingdom." ⁸And all the king's sages came in, and they were unable to read the writing or to make known the interpretation to the king. ⁹And King Baltasar was disturbed, and his form was changed, and his nobles became terrified.

¹⁰ And the queen came into the house of drink and said, "O king, live forever! Do not let your thoughts disturb you or your form be changed. ¹¹There is a man in your kingdom in whom is a divine spirit, and in the days of your father alertness and understanding was found in him. And your father, King Nabouchodonosor, appointed him ruler of the enchanters, magicians, Chaldeans, Gazarenes, ¹²because an excellent spirit was in him and knowledge and understanding, interpreting dreams and reporting things being controlled and loosing bonds: Daniel, and the king gave to him the name Baltasar. Now, therefore, let him be called, and he will tell the interpretation to you."

¹³ Then Daniel was brought in before the king. And the king said to Daniel, "Are you, Daniel, the one from the sons of the captivity of Judea, which my father the king brought? ¹⁴I have heard about you that a divine spirit is in you, and alertness and understanding and excellent wisdom were found in you. ¹⁵And now the sages, magicians, Gazarenes came in before me in order to read this writing and make known to me its interpretation, and they were not able to tell me. ¹⁶And I have heard about you that you are able to interpret decisions. Now, therefore, if you are able to read the writing and make known to me its interpretation, you will be clothed in purple, and the gold torque will be around your neck, and you will rank third in my kingdom."

17 Then Daniel stood in front of the writing and read, and thus he answered the king, "This is the writing: it has been numbered; it has been reckoned; it has been taken away. And the writing hand ceased, and this is their interpretation.

²³O King, you made a feast for your Friends, and you were drinking wine, and the vessels of the house of the living God were brought to you, and you were drinking with them, you and your nobles. And you praised all the idols made by human hands, and you did not bless the living God. And your spirit is in his hand, and he himself gave to you your reign, and you did not bless him nor praise him. ²⁶This is the meaning of the writing: the time of your kingdom has been reckoned; your kingdom is coming to an end. ²⁷It has been cut short, and it has finished. ²⁸Your kingdom is being given to the Medes and to the Persians."

29 Then Baltasar the king clothed Daniel in purple, and he put a gold torque on him, and he gave him authority over a third part of his kingdom.

17 And Daniel said before the king, "Let your gifts be for yourself, and give to someone else the present of your house! Nevertheless, I will read the writing and make known its interpretation. ¹⁸As for you, O king, the Most High God gave your father Nabouchodonosor kingship and greatness and honor and glory. ¹⁹And because of the greatness that he gave him, all peoples, tribes, languages were trembling and fearing before him. He would kill whomever he wanted, and he would beat whomever he wanted, and he would exalt whomever he wanted, and he would humble whomever he wanted. ²⁰And when his heart was lifted up and his spirit was strengthened so that he behaved arrogantly, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and the honor was stripped from him. ²¹And he was driven from humans, and his heart was rendered with the animals. And his dwelling was with onagers, and they would feed him grass like an ox, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven until he acknowledged that the Most High God has sovereignty over the kingdom of humans and will give it to whomever he wishes. ²²And so, you, Baltasar, his son, have not humbled your heart before all these things you knew, ²³and you have exalted yourself against the Lord God of heaven, and the vessels of his house they brought before you, and you and your nobles and your concubines and your consorts were drinking wine with them, and you have praised the gold and silver and bronze and iron and wood and stone gods, which do not see or hear or know, and the God in whose hand is your breath and all your ways, him you have not glorified.

24 "For this reason, the knuckle of a hand was sent from his presence and put up this writing. ²⁵And this is the inscribed writing: MANE THEKEL PHARES. ²⁶This is the meaning of the matter: MANE, God has measured your kingdom and fulfilled it; ²⁷THEKEL, it has been placed on a scale and has been found wanting; ²⁸PHARES, your kingdom has been divided and has been given to the Medes and Persians."

29 And Baltasar spoke, and they clothed Daniel in purple, and the gold torque they put around his neck, and he proclaimed concerning him that he was third ruler in the kingdom.

30 In that very night Baltasar, the Chaldean king, was killed. ^{31(6.1)}And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being sixty-two years old.

OLD GREEK

6 And when Darius was full of days and esteemed in old age, he set one hundred twenty-seven satraps over his whole kingdom ²and over them three men their leaders, and Daniel was one of the three men, ³since he had authority over everyone in the kingdom. And Daniel was clothed in purple and was great and esteemed before King Darius, as he was knowledgeable and intelligent and a holy spirit was in him, and he prospered in the affairs of the king that he performed. [Then the king decided to set Daniel over all his kingdom, and the two men whom he had appointed with him and the one hundred twenty-seven satraps.] ⁴Now, when the king decided to appoint Daniel over all his kingdom, then the two young men, speaking to each other, agreed to a plan and resolve among themselves, since they found neither sin nor ignorance against Daniel for which they could accuse him to the king. ⁵And they said, "Come, let us establish an interdict by ourselves that no one will present a petition and never pray a prayer to any god for thirty days, except from King Darius, otherwise he^a will die," so that they might vanquish Daniel before the king and he might be cast into the lions' pit. For they knew that Daniel prayed to and entreated the Lord, his God, three times a day.

6 Then those men went and said before the king, ⁷"We have established an interdict and stipulation that any person who prays a prayer or requests some request from any god, for thirty days, except from King Darius, will be cast into the lions' pit." ⁸And they requested the king so that he would establish and not change the interdict (as they knew Daniel prayed and entreated three times a day) so that he might be vanquished at the hands of the king and thrown into the lions' pit. ⁹And thus King Darius established and confirmed it.

10 But although Daniel was aware of the interdict, which they established against him, he opened windows in his upper room opposite Ierousalem and would fall on his face thrice a day, just as he had been doing previously and kept entreating. ¹¹And they watched Daniel and caught him praying three times a day each day. ¹²Then these men met with the king and said, "O King Darius, did you not make an interdict that no person will pray a prayer nor request a request from any god for thirty days, except from you, O king, otherwise the person will be cast into the lions' pit?" Then, the king answered and said to them, "The word is accurate, and the interdict will remain." ^{12a}And they said to him, "We adjure you; swear by the decrees of the Medes and Persians that you not change the matter nor that you respect the person nor that you reduce anything of the things said and you punish the person who did not abide by the this interdict." And he said, "Thus I will do as you say, and this has been established for me." ¹³And

6 And it was pleasing before Darius, and he set over the kingdom one hundred twenty satraps, that they might be in his whole kingdom, ²and over them three tacticians, one of them who was Daniel, in order that the satraps might give an account to them so that the king might not be troubled. ³And Daniel was above them, because an excellent spirit was in him, and the king appointed him over his whole kingdom. ⁴And the tacticians and the satraps were trying to find a pretext for complaint against Daniel, and they could not find any pretext or corruption against him, because he was faithful. ⁵And the tacticians said, "We shall not find a pretext against Daniel except in the laws of his God."

6 Then the tacticians and the satraps approached the king and said to him, "O King Darius, live forever! ⁷All those over your kingdom, generals and satraps, magistrates and local rulers counseled together to establish and enforce an interdict, by royal stipulation, that whoever makes a request of any god or human, for thirty days, except of you, O king, will be thrown into the lions' pit. ⁸Now, then, O king, establish the interdict and publish a document so that the decree of the Persians and Medes may not be changed." ⁹Then King Darius ordered that the decree be written.

10 And when Daniel knew that the decree had been registered, he entered into his house, and the windows in its upper rooms were open for him opposite Ierousalem, and he was getting down on his knees three times a day and was praying and making confession to his God, just as he was doing previously. ¹¹Then those men spied and found Daniel petitioning and entreating his God. ¹²And they approached the king and said, "O king! Did you not post an interdict, that any person who makes a request of any god or human, for thirty days, except of you, O king, will be thrown into the lions' pit?" And the king said, "The thing is real, and it is the decree of the Medes and Persians, which shall not be passed over." ¹³Then they answered and said before the king, "Daniel, one of the sons of captivity of Judea, has not submitted to your decree, and he requests his requests of his God three times a day." ¹⁴Then the king, as he heard the charge, was greatly grieved over him, and he agonized for Daniel to deliver him, and they said, "Lo, we have found Daniel, your Friend, praying and entreating the face of his God thrice a day. ¹⁴And grieving, the king said that Daniel be cast into the lions' pit according to the interdict, [which he established against him]. Then the king grieved exceedingly for Daniel, and he kept assisting to deliver him until sunset from the hands of the satraps. ¹⁵And he was unable to deliver him from them. ¹⁶Now Darius the king cried out and said to Daniel, "Your God, whom you continually serve thrice a day, he will deliver you from the power of lions! Have courage until morning." ¹⁷Then Daniel was thrown into the lions' pit, and a stone was brought and laid on the mouth of the pit, and the king sealed it with his signet and with the signets of his nobles so that Daniel might not be removed by them or the king pull him up from the pit. ¹⁸Then the king returned to his palace and passed the night without eating and was grieving for Daniel. But the God of Daniel, having taken forethought for him, shut the mouths of the lions, and they did not bother Daniel.

¹⁹ And King Darius rose early in the morning and took the satraps with him. And he went and stood at the opening of the lions' pit. ²⁰Then the king called Daniel in a loud voice with wailing, saying, "O Daniel, are you still alive, and has your God whom you continually serve saved you from the lions, and have they not injured you?" ²¹Then Daniel heeded the loud voice and said, ²²"O king, I am still alive, and the Lord has saved me from the lions, because righteousness was found in me in his presence, and also in your presence, O king, neither ignorance nor sin was found in me. But you listened to people who deceive kings, and you cast me into the lions' pit for destruction." ²³Then all the authorities gathered and saw Daniel, how the lions had not bothered him. ²⁴Then these two men who testified falsely against Daniel—they and their wives and their children were cast to the lions. And the lions killed them and shattered their bones, and Daniel was appointed over the whole kingdom of Darius.

²⁵ Then Darius wrote to all nations and countries and languages who inhabited his whole earth, saying: ²⁶"Let all people who are in my kingdom do obeisance and worship Daniel's God, for he is an enduring and living God for generations and generations, forever.

²⁷I, Darius, will do obeisance and be subject to him all my days, for the handmade idols are not able to save as God redeemed Daniel."

until the evening he kept agonizing to deliver him. ¹⁵Then those men said to the king, "Know, O king, that it is a decree of the Medes and Persians about any interdict or stipulation which the king establishes must not be changed." ¹⁶Then the king spoke, and they brought Daniel, and he was thrown into the lions' pit. And the king said to Daniel, "Your God, whom you continually serve, he will deliver you!" ¹⁷And they brought a stone and laid it on the mouth of the pit, and the king sealed it with his signet and with the signet of his nobles so that the matter might not be changed against Daniel. ¹⁸And the king went into his house and slept without supper, and they brought no delicacies to him, and sleep fled from him.

¹⁹ Then the king rose in the morning with the daylight and went quickly to the lions' pit. ²⁰And as he came near the pit, he cried out in a strong voice, "O Daniel, the slave of the living God, has your God whom you continually serve been able to deliver you from the mouth of the lions?" ²¹And Daniel said to the king, "O king, live forever! ²²My God sent his angel and shut the lions' mouths, and they did not hurt me, because uprightness was found in me before him, and also before you, O king, I have done no wrong." ²³Then the king was exceedingly buoyed over him and said to bring up Daniel out of the pit. And Daniel was brought up out of the pit, and there was not any harm found on him, because he had believed in his God. ²⁴And the king spoke, and they brought the men who had slandered Daniel, and they were thrown into the lions' pit—they and their sons and their wives. And before they reached the bottom of the pit the lions overpowered them and pulverized all their bones.

²⁵ Then King Darius wrote to all peoples, tribes, languages who inhabited the whole earth: "May you have abundant peace! ²⁶A decree was established from before me, that in every realm of my kingdom people should tremble and fear before the God of Daniel,

because he is a living God and endures

He wrote as a summary of the account: ²On my bed I was watching in my sleep during the night, and lo, the four winds of heaven fell upon a great sea, ³and four beasts were coming up out of the sea, each one differing from the other. ⁴The first was like a lioness, having as though wings of an eagle. I kept watching until its wings were plucked out, and it was lifted from the ground and was set upon human feet, and a human heart was given to it. ⁵And lo, another beast was after it, having the likeness of a bear. And it was placed on one side, and three ribs were in its mouth. And thus it said, "Rise, devour much flesh!" ⁶And after this, I was watching another beast like a leopard. And four wings of a bird were on it, and the beast had four heads, and language was given to it. ⁷But after this, I was watching in a vision by night a terrifying fourth beast, and the fear of it was surpassing in strength. It had great iron teeth, devouring and pounding; it was trampling with its feet round about, and it behaved differently from all the beasts before it, and it had ten horns. ⁸And many designs were in its horns, and lo, one horn grew up among them, a little one among its horns, and three of the earlier horns were removed by it. 15 And as for me, Daniel, since I was exhausted by these things, by the night vision, ¹⁶I approached one of those standing and was seeking the truth from him about all these things. So answering, he spoke to me and disclosed to me the meaning of the words: ¹⁷“These great beasts are four kingdoms, which shall perish from the earth. ¹⁸And holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever—forever and ever.”

19 Then I wanted to learn accurately concerning the fourth beast, which was different from all others and extremely terrible. And lo, its teeth were iron, and its claws were bronze, consuming all round about and trampling with the feet. ²⁰And concerning its ten horns that were upon its head, and the one, which was growing, and three fell out because of it—and that horn had eyes and a mouth speaking great things, and its looks surpassed the others, ²¹And I was observing that horn preparing for war against the holy ones and routing them ²²until the ancient of days came, and he gave the verdict for^a the holy ones of the Most High, and the time was given, and the holy ones gained possession of the seat of empire.

²³And it was said to me concerning the fourth beast:

“There shall be a fourth kingdom upon the earth, which shall excel over the whole earth and disturb it and grind it down.

²⁴ And as for the ten horns of the kingdom,
ten kings shall rise,
and another king shall rise after these.
And he shall excel more than the former ones in evil,
and he shall humble three kings.

²⁵ And he shall speak words against the Most High and shall wear down the holy ones of the Most High and shall expect to change seasons and law,
and everything shall be delivered into his hands
for a time and times and until half a time.

²⁶ And the trial shall sit,
and they shall destroy authority, destroy completely.

His authority is an everlasting authority, and his kingship will not be destroyed.

15 As for me, Daniel, my spirit shuddered in my possession, and the visions of my head were troubling me. ¹⁶And I approached one of the attendants and sought from him the truth concerning all these things. And he told me the truth and made known to me the interpretation of the words: ¹⁷“These four beasts: four kingdoms will arise upon the earth, which^a will be destroyed ¹⁸And holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingdom and possess it forever and ever.”

19 And I was seeking carefully concerning the fourth beast, because it was different from every beast, exceedingly terrifying; its teeth were iron, and its claws bronze, devouring and pulverizing, and it stamped what was left with its feet, ²⁰and concerning the ten horns that were on the head of it and of the other one, which came up and cast out the earlier three, which had eyes and a mouth speaking great things, and its appearance was greater than the rest. ²¹I kept watching, and that horn made war with the holy ones and prevailed over them ²²until the ancient of days came, and he gave the judgment for^b the holy ones of the Most High, and the time arrived, and the holy ones gained possession of the kingdom.

²³And he said: “As for the fourth beast, there shall be a fourth kingdom on the earth,
which shall surpass all the kingdoms, and it shall devour the whole earth and stamp it and destroy.

²⁴ And as for its ten horns, ten kings shall arise,
and another shall arise behind^c them who shall surpass in evil all the previous
ones,

and it shall be given into his hand
for a time and times and half a time.

²⁶ And the court sat in judgment, and they shall remove his rule,
to obliterate and to destroy completely.

28 As for me, Daniel, I was seized with great dismay, and my condition spread within me, and I fixed the matter in my heart.

8 During the third year, when Baltasar was king, there was a vision, which I, Daniel, saw after I saw the first one. ²And I saw in the vision of my dream. When I was in Sousa the city, which is in the region of Elymais, while I was still by the gate of Olam, ³when I looked up, I saw one large ram standing in front of the gate, and it had stately horns. And the one was more stately, and the stately one came up. ⁴But after this I saw the ram charging [to the east and] to the north and to the west and to the south. And no beasts stood after^a it, and no one could rescue from its hands. And it was doing as it wanted and became exalted.

⁵ And I was pondering, and lo, a male goat of goats was coming from the west, over the face of the earth, and it did not touch the ground. And one horn of the male goat was between its eyes. ⁶And it came at the ram, which had the horns, which I had seen standing by the gate, and it ran against it in a furious rage. ⁷And I saw it approaching toward the ram. And it was inflamed against it, and it struck and crushed its two horns. And there was no longer power in the ram to stand against the male goat, and it rent it asunder on the ground and crushed it, and there was no one who could rescue the ram from the male goat. ⁸And the male goat of the goats prevailed exceedingly, and when it prevailed, its great horn was crushed, and another four horns came up behind it toward the four winds of heaven.

⁹ And out of one of them sprang one strong horn, and it prevailed, and it struck against the south and against the east and against the north. ¹⁰And it was raised unto the stars of the sky. And it was thrown down upon the earth from the stars and was trodden upon by them ¹¹until the commander in chief delivers the captives. And the mountains, which were from eternity, were overthrown on account of it^b and their place and sacrifice were taken away. And he put it^c to the ground [upon the earth], and it prospered, and it emerged^d, and the sanctuary will be desolated. ¹²And sins were on the offering, and justice was thrown to the ground, and it acted, and it prospered. ¹³And I kept hearing another holy one speaking, and the other one said to the Phelmouni who was speaking, "How long will this vision continue: even the sacrifice, which has been taken away, and the sin of desolation that has been given and the sanctuaries^e will be desolated unto trampling?" ¹⁴And he said to him, "Two thousand and his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall be slaves and heed him."

Here the account ends.

28 As for me, Daniel, my thoughts were greatly troubling me, and my appearance was changed, and I kept the matter in my heart.

8 In the third year of the reign of King Baltasar, a vision appeared to me—I, Daniel—after the one that had appeared to me at the beginning. ²And I was in Sousa the citadel, which is in the region of Ailam, and I was by the Oubal. ³And I raised my eyes and saw, and lo, there was one ram standing before the Oubal, and it had stately horns. And the one was more stately than the other, and the stately one came up last. ⁴I saw the ram charging toward the sea^a and northward and southward. And no beasts will stand before it, and no one could deliver from its hand. And it did according to its will and became great.

⁵ And I was considering, and lo, a male goat of goats was coming from the southwest, across the face of the whole earth, and it was not touching the ground. And the male goat had a horn between its eyes. ⁶And it came to the ram, which had the horns, which I had seen standing before the Oubal, and it ran to it with an onrush of its force. ⁷And I saw it reaching unto the ram. And it was enraged against it and struck the ram, and it crushed both its horns. And there was no power in the ram to stand before it, and it threw it on the ground and trampled it under foot, and there was no one who could deliver the ram from its hand. ⁸And the male goat of the goats grew exceedingly great, and when it was strong, the great horn was crushed, and four horns came up under it toward the four winds of heaven.

⁹ And out of one of them came one strong horn, and it grew exceedingly great toward the south and toward the host. ¹⁰It became great all the way up to the host of heaven. And it fell upon the earth from the host and from the stars and trampled them under foot, ¹¹even until the commander in chief delivers the captives. And sacrifice was overthrown on account of it^b. And it emerged^c, and things were prosperous for it^b, and the sanctuary will be desolated. ¹²And sin was given for an offering, and justice was thrown to the ground, and it^b acted, and it prospered. ¹³And I heard one of the holy ones speaking, and one holy one said to the Phelmouni who was speaking, "For how long will this vision continue: the sacrifice, which has been taken away, and the sin of desolation that has been given and the sanctuary and the host will be trampled under foot?" ¹⁴And he said to him, "Two thousand and three hundred days, evenings and mornings, and the sanctuary will be purified."

15 And it happened that when I, Daniel, was seeing, I was seeking to comprehend the vision. And lo, one having the appearance of a human stood in front of me, ¹⁶and I heard a human voice in the midst of the Olam^a, and after the human cried out he said, "The vision is for^b this ordinance." ¹⁷And he came and stood near where I stood, and when he came, I became bewildered and fell on my face. And he said to me, "Consider, O son of man, for this vision is yet for an appropriate time."

18 And while he spoke with me, I slept face-down on the ground, and as he touched me, he roused me on the spot. ¹⁹And he said to me, "Lo, I am telling you what will take place at the end of the wrath against the sons of the people, for yet will remain the appropriate time of consummation. ²⁰The ram that you saw, which had the horns, is the king of the Medes and Persians. ²¹And the male goat of the goats is the king of the Greeks, and the great horn that is between its eyes, this one is the first king. ²²And as for the four horns that were crushed and came up after it: four kings will arise from his nation, not in accordance with their power.

²³ And at the last of their reign, when their sins are full,
a king shameless of countenance will arise who understands obscure sayings.

²⁴ And his power will be established, and he will destroy terribly.
And he will prosper and will accomplish, and he will destroy the powerful and the common people of the holy

²⁵ And his thought will be against the holy ones.
And the lie will prosper by his hands,
and his heart will be exalted.
And by deceit he will annihilate many,
and he will rise by the destruction of
men.
And he will make a gathering by hand
and will repay.

²⁶The evening and morning vision was told truthfully. And now, the vision is closed, for it is yet for many days."

27 I, Daniel, having been weak many days and having risen, again was conducting the royal affairs. And I was continually upset by the vision, and there was no one who comprehended it.

9 During the first year of Darius son of Xerxes, of Median lineage, who were reigning over the kingdom of the Chaldeans, ²in the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, pondered in the books the number of the days when the ordinance of the Lord

And he said to me, "Understand, O son of man, for the vision is yet for the end of time."

18 And as he was speaking to me, I fell on my face to the earth, and he touched me and set me on my feet. ¹⁹And he said, "Lo, I am making known to you the things that will take place at the end of the wrath, for yet it is for the end of time. ²⁰The ram that you saw, which had the horns, is the king of the Persians and Medes. ²¹And the male goat of the goats is the king of the Greeks, and the great horn that is between its eyes, this one is the first king. ²²And as for the crushed one, where four horns arose underneath: four kings will arise out of his nation, and not by their power.

27 And I, Daniel, slept and lay sick. And I arose and kept doing the king's business. And I kept wondering about the vision, and there was none who understood it.

9 In the first year of Darius the son of Asoueros, from the seed of the Medes, who reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldeans, ²I, Daniel, perceived in the books the number of years, which became a word of the Lord to the prophet Ieremias

3 And I gave my face to the Lord God, to find prayer and compassion with fasting and with ashes and sackcloth. 4And I prayed to the Lord God and acknowledged him and said,

“O Lord, lo, you are the great and powerful God and the fear-inspiring one in maintaining the covenant and mercy with those who love you and keep your ordinance 5we have sinned, acted wickedly, done wrong and rebelled and passed over your commandments and your ordinances. 6And we have not obeyed your servants the prophets, what they spoke in your name to our kings and sovereigns and our ancestors and to every nation on the earth.

7 “Righteousness belongs to you, O Lord, and the shame of our face belongs to us, on this day, to the people of Iouda and the settlers in Ierousalem and to all the people of Israel, those who are near and those who are farther off, in all the regions into which you have dispersed them there, because of the trespasses that they have perpetrated before you. 8O Master, the shame of our face belongs to us and to our kings and sovereigns and to our ancestors, because we have sinned against you. 9To the Lord belongs justice and mercy, for we have rebelled against you 10and have not obeyed the voice of the Lord our God by following your law, which you gave before Moyses and us through your servants the prophets.

11 “And all Israel has forsaken your law and turned away in order not to hear your voice. And the curse and the oath written in the law of Moyses, the servant of God, have come upon us, because we have sinned against him. 12And he has established his ordinances for us, what he spoke against us and against our judges who judged, by bringing great evils upon us such as have not happened under heaven as they have happened in Ierousalem. 13According to what is written in the covenant of Moyses, all the evils have come upon us. And we did not seek the face of the Lord our God, to turn away from our sins and to consider your righteousness, O Lord. 14And the Lord God kept watch over the evils and brought them upon us, for the Lord God is right in everything that he does, and we have not obeyed his voice.

O Lord, the shame of face belongs to us and to our kings and to our rulers and to our ancestors, whoever have sinned against you. 9To the Lord, our God, belong compassion and the means of appeasing, for we have rebelled 10and have not listened to the voice of the Lord, our God, by walking in his laws, which he gave in front of us by the hands of his slaves the prophets.

11 “And all Israel has transgressed your law and turned aside in order not to hear your voice. And the curse and the oath written in the law of Moyses, the slave of God, have come upon us, because we have sinned against him. 12And he has established his words, which he spoke against us and against our judges who judged us, by bringing upon us great evils such as have not happened under the whole heaven according to what has happened in Ierousalem. 13Just as it is written in the law of Moyses, all these evils have come on us. And we did not entreat the face of the Lord, our God, to turn from our iniquities and to understand in all truth. 14And the Lord stayed watchful and brought them upon us, for the Lord God is right in all his doings, which he has done, and we have not listened to his voice.

And because of our iniquities and those of our ancestors, Ierousalem and your people have become a disgrace among all our neighbors. 17And now, O Lord, our God, listen to the prayer of your slave and to his supplications, and for your own sake, O Lord, show your face to your desolated sanctuary. 18Incline your ear, O my God, and hear. ² "And now I will announce the truth to you. Lo, yet three kings will arise in Persia. And the fourth will be rich with great riches beyond all, and after he has become strong through his riches, he will rise up against all the kingdoms of the Greeks. ³And a mighty king will arise, and he will be lord over a great dominion and will act according to his will. ⁴And as it rises, his kingdom will be broken and divided toward the four winds of heaven and not to ^ahis last^a nor according to his dominion which he ruled, for his kingdom will be uprooted and is for others besides these.

BEL AND THE DRAGON

TO THE READER

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The NETS translation of both versions has been based on the critical editions of Joseph Ziegler and Oliver Munnich (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum XVI.2: Susanna Daniel Bel et Draco [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1999]). Munnich has revised Ziegler's critical edition of the Old Greek (OG) version (1954), because Ziegler did not have access to several important portions of papyrus 967. Accordingly, the NETS translation of the OG has been based on Munnich, while Theodotion (TH) has been translated from Ziegler. Items of dubious originality have been retained in square brackets.

THE TWO GREEK VERSIONS

Bel and the Dragon, like Sousanna and Daniel, is extant in two versions: the Old Greek (OG) and Theodotion (TH).

Although in length the two are approximately equal, certain details in fact and narration suggest that, at the level of the Greek, their relationship was minimal. Minor differences in detail include v. 3 where "forty" (TH) contrasts with "four" (OG) sheep, and "wine" is read by the one (TH) but "oil" by the other (OG). Although the plot is very similar throughout, there are differences. So, for example, v. 9 of TH has the king placing the onus on the priests to show that Bel is eating the offering, while in OG it is Daniel who assumes the burden of proof (for similar instances see vv. 19, 21). Similarly, the narrative perspective differs when the dragon is destroyed and the reaction thereto is narrated. To be noted is the end of v. 27 to the beginning of v. 28 for the difference in wording and the relative roles played by the people and the king vis-à-vis Daniel. This difference gives rise to others: according to v. 30 of OG the king takes the initiative to give Daniel over to destruction, whereas in TH (v. 29) the Babylonians take the lead.

Consequently, there is evidence to suggest that the two Greek versions of Bel and the Dragon are independent versions. As further evidence it may be noted that in vv. 7, 9, 11 OG reads respectively "I swear to you by the Lord God of the gods," "But they said, 'It is Bel himself who eats them,'" and "Now the word pleased the king," all three of which are lacking in TH. Though in v. 14 OG notes that only Daniel knew about the ashes that had been sprinkled—a note which anticipates Daniel's instructions to both the priest and the king in vv. 15–17—according to TH the priests are not even on the scene. (For similar "additions" see vv. 24, 31–32, 39.)

TH, on the other hand, has a "plus" in v. 5 when it includes that God "has dominion over all flesh." Another "plus" occurs in v. 25 when Daniel affirms that he worships the Lord, because he is the living God. (For smaller "pluses" see vv. 28, 32, 36.)

The comparative independence of the two Greek versions is further suggested by the few cases in which they share similar wording for large portions of a verse. An example is the first story about Bel, which ends at v. 22. Eleven times OG and TH have identical wording for part of a verse (4, 10, 23, 26, 28, 34, 35, 36, 38, 41, 42), but in most of these cases changes in word order and/or significant pluses or alternative readings are also present. Only three short passages (23, 26, 35) are nearly identical. Occasional agreements in vocabulary are not incompatible with the notion that we have two independent translations of a similar source text.

On a few occasions there is a close textual relationship between the two versions, but these agreements may be due to textual corruption. The verb "strew" (κατασῆθω) occurs in v. 14, although OG and TH employ different forms and the manuscripts for TH have several variant readings. V. 27 has "cake" (μάζα) in both versions, a word unique in the Septuagint. There may also be a relationship in v. 36: "take hold of the hair of his head" (ἐπελάβετο ἐπιλαβόμενος τῆς κόμης τῆς κεφαλῆς). Finally, the identical phrase "those responsible for his ruin" (τοὺς δὲ αἰτίους τῆς ἀπωλείας αὐτοῦ) in v. 42 seems to reflect a direct relationship between the two versions, particularly in the choice of αἰτίους.

Based on the differences between the two versions it is possible that the source text of the OG was later edited, and the newer version is reflected in TH. For example, the identification of Daniel as a "priest, the son of Habal" in OG v. 2 is not reflected elsewhere in the Daniel stories. In addition, the heading of OG identifies the story as a "prophesy of Hambakoum the son of Iesous of the tribe of Leui." In TH, however, the story is dated to the time of Cyrus the Persian successor of Astyages (v. 1).

Given the paucity of distinctive agreements, the many differences in detail, and the way that the stories are told, they are best understood as distinct translations of a common story.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

The significant differences between the two versions raise the question of their possible source. Do the differences stem from widely differing Semitic source texts or from the translators? The answer is hampered by the fact that there is no extant Hebrew or Aramaic version of Bel and the Dragon. Moreover, the story is brief: forty-two verses in TH and thirty-eight in the OG. The differences between them, however, are probably a combination of diverging source and modes of translation.

Two main arguments may be used in support of Bel and the Dragon being a translation from a Semitic source: the presence of Semitisms and the relationship between the two versions. Unfortunately, there is not a great deal of evidence to consider. Semitic influence on the vocabulary and syntactic structure of the Greek texts is evident in the frequent appearance of καί "and" as a gloss for conjunctive $\bar{\lambda}$. The Hebrew phrase καὶ ἐγένετο (וַיְהִי) also occurs three times in TH (vv. 14, 18, 28) and twice in OG (vv. 15, 33). TH further has ἰδοῦ twice (vv. 11, 40), though this need not be un-Greek. The odd expression ἐν τῷ ῥοιζῷ τοῦ πνεύματος αὐτοῦ "in a rush of his spirit" in v. 36 of TH is best explained as a corruption from Hebrew or Aramaic. Suggestions have been made for other examples of Semitic influence in the story, but they are less viable as independent evidence.

In addition there is the relationship between the two versions. They follow the same basic plot and have some common vocabulary, which could be due to them being translations of a similar source. Though it is difficult to identify aspects of the stories due to translation, TH reads like a translation based on formal equivalence of a Semitic text. OG does so at times, but it reads more like a dynamic translation or even a Greek composition. Thus, TH fits within the interlinear paradigm, while the OG is not so easily defined.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF BEL AND THE DRAGON

General Approach

Assuming that both versions are translations from Semitic source texts requires that our NETS translation reflect the linguistic relationship between them as closely as possible. Thus, compared to the NRSV the translation will at times be somewhat stilted and the grammar awkward, because we are attempting to reflect the relationship of the Greek to the Hebrew or Aramaic parent text. Although this is more true of the TH version, the parataxis of the Greek is present in both versions; therefore, it is retained in NETS. The translation of vocabulary also assumes an emphasis on the particular word rather than the context due to the subservience of the Greek to its source text. At the same time, NETS distinguishes those places where either of the translations exhibits variety in how they translated what most probably was the same phrase or word. For example, in v. 3 OG has "were squandering" ἀνηλίσκετο, where TH employs "would spend" ἔδωκαν ὧντο, and OG refers to "false doors" ψευδοθύρια in v. 21, while TH has "hidden doors" κρυπτὰς θύρας.

Comparing the OG and TH Translations

One of the most challenging aspects of the NETS translation for Daniel and the additional stories has been to compose a translation that both reflects the subservience of each version to its presumed source text while, at the same time, capturing the nature of the relationship of the two Greek versions to one another. This task has been the least difficult for Bel and the Dragon. Even when the stories overlap they often depart in other aspects. For example, in v. 18 when Daniel and the king (along with the king's entourage in OG) enter the temple and find the food gone, the king addresses Bel in the second person ("you") in TH, while Bel is referred to in the third person in the OG (see also v. 38). Throughout the two versions any connections between the vocabulary are maintained even when they appear in different verses or when there are other grammatical changes.

EDITORIAL DETAIL

The TH version of Bel and the Dragon is the basis for the NRSV translation; thus, the versification of NRSV and NETS TH correspond. The verse numbers are equivalent to those followed in both Rahlfs and Ziegler's edition. For the OG I have followed Ziegler/Munnich, which differs only in two places (v. 13 and v. 25) from Rahlfs.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

In addition to the standard reference tools I was most appreciative of the translation and commentary on Bel and the Dragon by Carey A. Moore, Daniel, Esther and Jeremiah: the Additions (AB 44; Garden City: Doubleday, 1977), as well as by John J. Collins, Daniel (Hermeneia; Minneapolis: Fortress, 1993).

OLD GREEK

From a prophecy of Hambakoum the son of Iesous of the tribe of Leui.

2 There was a certain person, a priest, whose name was Daniel son of Habal, a companion of the king of Babylon.

3 And there was an idol, Bel, which the Babylonians would revere. Now, every day they were squandering on it twelve bushels of choice flour and four sheep and six measures of oil. ⁴And the king would revere him, and the king would go every day and would do obeisance to him. But Daniel would pray to the Lord.

And the king said to Daniel, "Why do you not do obeisance to Bel?" ⁵And Daniel said to the king, "I revere no one except the Lord God, who created heaven and earth."

6 So the king said to him, "Is this one, then, not a god? Do you not see how much is spent for him every day?" ⁷And Daniel said to him, "Not at all! Do not let anyone mislead you, for this one is only of clay inside and bronze outside. Moreover, I swear to you by the Lord God of the gods that this one has never eaten anything."

8 And angered, the king called the leaders of the temple and said to them, "Produce the one who eats the things prepared for Bel. But if not, you shall die, ⁹or Daniel, who says they are not being eaten by him." But they said, "It is Bel himself who eats them." Then Daniel said to the king, "Let it be so. Unless I prove that Bel is not eating them, I shall die, and all those with me."

10 Now there were seventy priests of Bel, not counting wives and children. So he brought the king into the idol's temple. ¹¹And the food was set out in the presence of the king and Daniel, and the mixed wine was brought in and set out before Bel. And Daniel said, "You yourself, see, O king, that these things are set down. You, then, seal the bolts of the shrine when it is closed." Now the word pleased the king. ¹⁴Now Daniel commanded those with him, after everyone departed from the temple, to strew the whole shrine with ashes, though no one else except him knew. And then, as he sealed the shrine, he commanded that it be sealed with the king's signet and with the signets of certain illustrious priests. And so it happened.

15-17 And it happened on the next day that they went to the place. (But the priests of Bel, after entering through false doors, had eaten everything

3 And the Babylonians had an idol, whose name was Bel, and each day they would spend on him twelve bushels of choice flour and forty sheep and six measures of wine. ⁴And the king would revere him and would go every day to do obeisance to him. But Daniel kept doing obeisance to his God.

And the king said to him, "Why do you not do obeisance to Bel?" ⁵So he answered, "Because I do not revere idols made with hands, but the living God, who created heaven and earth and has dominion over all flesh."

6 And the king said to him, "Do you not think that Bel is a living god? Or do you not see how much he eats and drinks every day?" ⁷And laughing, Daniel said, "Do not be deceived, O king, for this one is only clay inside and bronze outside, and he has never eaten nor drunk anything."

8 And angered, the king called his priests and said to them, "If you do not tell me who is eating this provision, you shall die. ⁹But if you show that Bel is eating them, Daniel shall die, because he has spoken blasphemy against Bel." And Daniel said to the king, "Let it be done according to your word."

10 And there were seventy priests of Bel, apart from wives and children. And the king went with Daniel into the house of Bel. ¹¹And the priests of Bel said, "Lo, we are now going outside; so you, O king, set out the food, and place the wine when you have mixed it, and shut the door, and seal it with your signet. ¹²And when you return in the morning, if you do not find everything eaten by Bel, we will die, or Daniel, who is telling lies against us." ¹³Now they were contemptuous, for beneath the table they had made a hidden entrance, and they used to go through it regularly and consume them^a. ¹⁴And it happened as they had gone out, the king also set out the food for Bel. And Daniel ordered his servants, and they brought ashes, and they strewed the whole shrine laid out for Bel and had drunk the wine.) And Daniel said, "Men, priests, examine your seals whether they remain. And you also, O king, observe carefully, lest anything be out of order to you." And they found the seal as it was, and they broke the seal. ¹⁸And when they opened the doors, they saw everything that had been set out consumed and the tables empty. And the king was thrilled and said to Daniel, "Bel is great, and there is no deceit in him!"

19 And Daniel laughed exceedingly and said to the king, "Come, see the deceit of the priests." And Daniel said, "O king, these footprints, whose are they?" ²⁰And the king said, "Of men and women and children."

21 And he went to the house where the priests were staying, and they found Bel's food and the wine. And Daniel showed the king the false doors through which the priests would enter and consume what was set out for Bel. ²²And the king brought them out of Bel's temple and handed them over to Daniel. And he gave the provision that was for him^a to Daniel, but he destroyed Bel.

23 And there was a dragon in that same place, and the Babylonians would revere it. ²⁴And the king said to Daniel, "Surely you shall not also say about^b this one, that he is bronze! Look, he lives and eats and drinks! Do obeisance to him." ²⁶And Daniel said, "O king, give me permission, and I will slay the dragon without iron or club." And the king agreed with him and said, "I have given it^b to you."

²⁷ And taking thirty minas^c of pitch and fat and hair, Daniel boiled them together, and having made a cake, he threw it^b into the mouth of the dragon. And after eating, it burst open. And he showed it to the king, saying, "Aren't these the things you revere, O king?"

28 And all those from the country assembled against Daniel and said, "The king has just now become a Judean. He has destroyed Bel and killed the dragon." ³⁰And when the king saw that the crowd from the country had united against him, he called his companions and said, "I am giving Daniel over for destruction."

31-32 Now, there was a pit in which seven lions would be fed, to which the conspirators of the king would be delivered. And every day two bodies condemned to death would be provided for them. And the crowd threw Daniel into that pit so that he might be devoured and not even have the good fortune of a burial. And Daniel was in the pit six days.

in the presence of the king alone. And as they went out they shut the door and sealed it with the king's signet and departed. ¹⁵Then the priests came during the night according to their custom, and their wives and children, and they ate and drank everything.

16 And the king readied early in the morning, and Daniel with him. ¹⁷And he said, "Are the seals unbroken, Daniel?" Then he said, "They are unbroken, O king." ¹⁸And it happened as soon as the doors opened, when the king looked at the table he shouted in a loud voice, "You are great, O Bel, and there is no deceit in you, not one!"

19 And Daniel laughed and restrained the king so that he could not enter inside and said, "Look now at the floor, and notice whose footprints these are." ²⁰And the king said, "I see the footprints of men and women and children."

21 And enraged, the king then arrested the priests and their wives and children. And they showed him the hidden doors through which they used to enter and consume what was on the table. ²²And the king killed them and gave Bel entirely over to Daniel. And he destroyed him and his temple.

23 And there was a great dragon, and the Babylonians used to revere it. ²⁴And the king said to Daniel, "You cannot say that this is not a living god; so do obeisance to it." ²⁵And Daniel said, "I will do obeisance to the Lord my God, because he is a living God. ²⁶But you, O king, give me permission, and I shall kill the dragon without iron or rod." And the king said, "I give it^a to you."

27 And Daniel took pitch and fat and hair and boiled them together and made cakes and gave them^a into the mouth of the dragon. And after eating the dragon burst open. And he said, "See your objects of reverence!"

28 And it happened when the Babylonians heard, they were very indignant and conspired against the king and said, "The king has become a Judean; he has destroyed Bel and killed the dragon and slaughtered the priests." ²⁹And when they came to the king, they said, "Hand Daniel over to us, and if not, we will kill you and your household." ³⁰And the king saw that they were pressing him hard, and having been compelled, he handed Daniel over to them.

31 So they threw him into the lions' pit, and he was there six days. ³²Now there were seven lions in the pit, and daily two bodies and two sheep were given to them, but then nothing was given to them so that they would devour Daniel.

33 And the prophet Hambakoum was in Judea, and he had boiled a stew and broken bread into a boiled soup and a jar of mixed wine and was on his way to the plain to the reapers. ³⁴And an angel of the Lord spoke to Hambakoum, saying, "This is what God says to you: the food that you have, take it to Daniel, the one of Baltasar, in the lions' pit in Babylon." ³⁵And Hambakoum said, "Lord God, I have not seen Babylon, and I do not know where the pit is." ³⁶And when the angel of the Lord had taken Hambakoum by the hair of his head, he set him down above the pit that was in Babylon.

37 And Hambakoum said to Daniel, "Rise! Eat the food that God has sent you." ³⁸And Daniel said, "For the Lord God who does not forsake those who love him has remembered me." ³⁹And Daniel ate. Then the angel of the Lord put Hambakoum whence he took him on that same day. [Now the Lord God remembered Daniel.]

40 Now after these things the king came out mourning Daniel. And when he stooped down into the pit, he saw him seated! ⁴¹And when he had shouted out, the king said, "The Lord God is great, and there is no other besides him!" ⁴²And the king brought Daniel out from the pit and threw into the pit those responsible for his^a ruin before Daniel, and they were devoured.

bowl, and was on his way to the plain to take it to the reapers. ³⁴And an angel of the Lord said to Hambakoum, "Take the food that you have to Babylon to Daniel, in the lions' den." ³⁵And Hambakoum said, "Lord, I have not seen Babylon, and I do not know about the pit." ³⁶And the angel of the Lord took hold of the crown of his head and, carrying him by the hair of his head, set him down in Babylon above the pit in a rush of his spirit.

37 And Hambakoum shouted, saying, "Daniel, Daniel! Take the food that God has sent you." ³⁸And Daniel said, "For you have remembered me, O God, and have not forsaken those who love you." ³⁹And having risen, Daniel ate. Then the angel of God immediately returned Hambakoum to his place.

40 Now on the seventh day the king came to mourn Daniel. And he came to the pit and looked in, and lo, Daniel was seated! ⁴¹And when he had shouted out with a loud voice, he said, "You are great, O Lord, the God of Daniel, and there is no other besides you!" ⁴²And he pulled him out but threw into the pit those responsible for attempting his^a ruin, and they were immediately devoured before him.
