

German "Hero" of Anti-Nazi Films

As a pre-teen in the late 1950s, one of my favorite pastimes was watching old WWII movies on TV. I didn't know it then, but churning out these films had been one of the most important Jewish contributions to the U.S. war effort. Since Jews' participation on the front lines was not exactly over-representative, perhaps they figured that these warmongering fantasies compensated for their battlefield scarcity.

The flicks were always the same. They depicted the Japanese and especially Germans as mad dogs out to destroy the Western democracies, the only "hope for tomorrow." (The Soviet Union was viewed as a sort of "honorary" democracy.) Strangely enough—or not so strangely—Jews were often the heroes in these pix, although the characters portrayed were undeniably Northern European. I recall particularly Commandos Strike at Dawn (1942), starring Paul Muni (Paul Weisenfreund); North Star (1943), a blatantly pro-Communist film, starring Vienna-born Erich von Stroheim (Oswald Stroheim). My personal favorite was The Cross of Lorraine (1943) with Gene Kelly and French émigré, Jean-Pierre Aumont (J.P. Salomons). These Nazi-studded tank operas from the war years were thrilling late-night video fare for a 12-year-old boy.

Five Graves to Cairo (1943), another of this genre, always stands out in my mind for one reason: the viciousness of the Nazi lieutenant, played by a young "Dutch" newcomer named Peter Van Eyck. This handsome actor with the perfect Teutonic physiognomy came to personify the Nazi "beast" for me, as I'm sure he did for thousands of others who watched him on the big screen in crowded wartime theaters a decade and a half earlier. The very apotheosis of Teutonic depravity, Van Eyck made a score of movies in the war years, almost always portraying Nazis. The reason for his hyper-Germanic bearing was obvious. He was the real McCoy, an authentic German from the crown of his blond head to the tip of his black jackboots.

Born in 1913 to a respectable middle-class German family, Gotz von Eick came to the U.S. in the mid-thirties to study music. He stayed a little too long. When WWII intervened, young Gotz refused to return to Germany and don the field grey uniform of the Wehrmacht. Instead he gravitated to Hollywood and the enemies of his homeland. After discreetly "Hollandizing" his name, he made his debut as a Nazi in The Moon is Down (1942). This was quickly followed by other "hate the Kraut" films like The Edge of Darkness (1943), Action in the North Atlantic (1943), Hitler's Children (1944) and The Hitler Gang (1944). In all these movies he played the same hydrophobic Nazi. His crowning achievement was his role as the subordinate to von Stroheim's sadistic Rommel in Five Graves to Cairo. A Jewish Rommel was a typical Hollywood touch, the real Rommel being the antithesis of a sadist. The Harry Cohns of the entertainment world, however, have never let a little thing like the truth stand in the way of agit-propping.

Using his perfect Teutonic features to demonize his own people while in the pay of their mortal enemies never seemed to bother Van Eyck. After all, instead of dodging bullets in Europe, he was making a bundle of bucks. Why should he worry that when on location in the California desert in the summer of 1942 making Five Graves to Cairo, his German brethren were digging real graves in the dunes before besieged Tobruk?

Van Eyck, still in his twenties and in perfect fighting trim, probably justified his treason by telling himself he was actually a patriot working to liberate his ancestral homeland. But was he? He was making anti-German hate films for MGM, Paramount, Fox, RKO and other Tinseltown monoliths, which meant his fat paychecks were signed by the very people who had dominated his country in the 1920s and early 30s and were now committed to a crusade to destroy it completely.

After the Third Reich went down in flames, Van Eyck had the gall to return to the land of his birth. Since he made dozens of films in postwar Germany, it was obvious the German film industry was not the Aryan stronghold of the Hitler era. What patriotic film company in Deutschland would have hired such a renegade except those owned or heavily influenced by outsiders? At any rate, he found himself once again locked into Nazi roles. (See his arrogant, tea-sipping Prussian officer in The Longest Day in 1962). Even his civilian roles reflected the screen viciousness of his earlier years.

Peter Van Eyck died in Zurich on July 15, 1969, the day before his 56th birthday. Typically, one of his last roles was that of a Nazi fanatic in The Bridge at Remagen (1969). He was still taking cheap shots at his own kind almost until the day he died.

Now that the 50th anniversary of the end of WWII has come and gone, the war that took the lives of millions of German soldiers who were the flower of the Northern European race, we are entitled to ask one question. Near his end was Van Eyck able to gaze into the mirror while lathering his handsome Nordic face?

There is nothing new about anti-German hate films. In Sam Goldwyn's WWI atrocity film, Stake Uncle Sam to Play Your Hand, a cinematic attempt to sell Liberty Bonds, the fiendish German soldier, played by A.C. Gibbons, is preparing to do evil things to Mae Marsh, playing the innocent blonde Belgian girl.

RACE WAR 2000: THE MELANIUM

Hail, Caucazoyd Warrior! At the turn of the next century, you are the last hope of the white race. You have been chosen to flush out the alien presence — the dreaded Melanoyds — from a once proud American metropolis so it can be restored to its pristine state.

Your task is daunting but not impossible. After all, roving bands of undisciplined primitives are no match for a straight-shooting white man.

As you patrol the city, you must be forever alert to threats, not just from the usual inner city haunts, but also from city government offices, county and state office buildings, and the federal building — and don't forget the welfare office, the immigration office and the post office.

You will encounter rappers and rapists, hopheads and hip-hoppers, drug lords and welfare queens, homeboys and Geto Boyz. Be on the alert for drive-by shootings. That car speeding past you could be an innocent civilian, or it could contain a back seat full of armed Melanoyds. That well-dressed Negro could be reaching into his pocket for a Jehovah's Witness tract, a copy of Muhammad Speaks — or a gun. Take no chances and take no prisoners!

If you can spot them all — before they spot you — you can thwart their plans for minority rule and make another American city safe for Western civilization.

First, choose your weapons:

Melanin Morphing Ray — Disables opponents by initiating a chemical process that turns melanin into chocolate pudding.

Decibel Destructo Box — Disguised as a boombox, this deadly weapon emits an ear-piercing vibration designed to penetrate the skull and melt the underdeveloped cerebrum of the minorityite.

Bastard Blaster — Zeroes in on all minorities carrying a welfare check with U.S. Treasury coding.

Once you've armed yourself, you're ready to join the fray. As you blast away at your enemies, keep in mind that whenever you rescue a white female from the clutches of a Melanoyd, you not only score double points but are entitled to enjoy her favors by entering the Caucazoyd Princess mode.

Next, choose your challenge level (degree of difficulty related to percentage of minorities) and the specific cityscape that accompanies it.

1. Beginner (white majority cities)

Seattle
Denver
Minneapolis
Boston

2. Intermediate (minorities outnumber majority)

Houston
Dallas
Los Angeles
New York

3. Basket Case (Melanoyd meltdown) — THE ULTIMATE CHALLENGE!

Detroit
Newark
Washington, D.C.
East St. Louis

Good luck, Caucazoyd warrior! The future of America depends on you!

Wake Up and Smell the Coffee

You bozos at Instauration keep shooting yourselves in the foot. You take potshots at the Irish and other lesser breeds, while singing the praises of your precious WASPs. John Deane of Watergate fame was the perfect WASP poster boy. Liddy, whatever his faults, stuck to his guns. I never hear you criticize that supreme truckler, George Bush. With friends like him, who needs enemies?

The thought occurred to me that I neglected to compliment V.S. Stinger on his columns for May and June of 1995, which I consider to be pure poetry. The guy has grown on me.

A Right-Wing and a Prayer

I was pleased to read that William F. Buckley's National Review published an article critical of Jews (Instauration, Sept. 1995). Having written Buckley one or two of my "speak out the truth about the Jews" letters in the last few years, I wrote again congratulating him on breaking National Review's 30-year record of philo-Semitism. George Lincoln Rockwell, who worked briefly for Buckley, said he was very cagey about the Jews. Part of Bill's oohing and aahing, his nervous throat-clearing and eyebrow-raising may be attributed to his maintaining a facade of philo-Semitism while inside knowing the score. I harbor a fantasy in which a public figure gets "mad as hell" at the arrogance and abusive power of Jews and "can't take it anymore." Blowing a fuse, he says to hell with future earnings, respectability, honors and other perks of this degenerate, decadent, dying society and publicly blasts the Chosen. And he persists in his courageous anti-Semitism during and after the media hate storm, never apologizing for one syllable. Think of the tens of millions of whites who read or heard excerpts of his statements. This man could lecture and write a book exposing the Jews, showing how they are trashing and devouring America. He could join the right-wing, speaking at gatherings and writing for their publications.

America Is Not My Country!

If my race is my nation, America is not my nation, since I am not a dual loyalist. Why even call ourselves Americans? Technically and legally we are citizens of this monstrous Babylon. But to ourselves, our families, our friends and to each other, why profess ourselves to be Americans? I will do so no longer. Spiritually, psychologically, loyalty-wise, I am not an American and will not call myself one. Nor do I want to be identified by others as an American. No longer am I a nationalist, meaning "America First," "pro-America," "restoring America's greatness." I don't want to save this country. I want the federal government to collapse. I want the U.S. to die, A.S.A.P. It is an occupied country, but Americans are too preoccupied to notice. JOG is running America. We must de-JOG the minds of sleeping whites. Tell them to wake up, the American Dream is over. It is now the American Tragedy, the American Nightmare. America is not our nation anymore; it's their nation and not a true nation at all. The once-hailed Tree of Liberty need not be sawed down. It will fall of its own accord, from its own dead weight. The crash will be heard round the world. The grounded wood will fuel a fire that will rage across the land. From its ashes shall be born a Majority ethnostate. The dream that would not die in the Nightmare will come true.

Defending M.M.

I agree with Zip 420 (Sept. 1995) that we should sympathize with and support M.M. as a racially conscious female. One young college graduate told me a few years back that every one of her sorority sisters had engaged in relations with black males at school, willingly, "just to see what it was like." I have no reason to doubt her veracity. Put into perspective and considering the climate of contemporary universities, M.M.'s naiveté seems more praiseworthy.

Get It Right

Zip 065 (Sept. 1995) had an entry, "Not Entirely Fanciful Obits." This was obviously a bit of clever satire, but it did contain much truth. There was one error, however. As a rail fan, I know that Amtrak does not operate commuter trains on Long Guyland. That is the responsibility of the Long Island Rail Road (Colin Ferguson's route of choice). Amtrak does pass through Zoo City on the northeast corridor between Kennedyville and La Cesspool Grande on the Potomac. Our enemies love to portray us as backwoods, bigoted Bubbas. By writing pieces that contain errors (which are relatively minor) that image is reinforced. Research, then write!

Apropos of Satcom Sam's recent paragraph on Brett Butler (real name Anderson), I would like to say that her political correctness probably dates from before her early years in Zoo City. Her trailer park background and early traumatic experiences with some less-than-sophisticated white males is surely responsible for her anti-WASP bias and her consequent drift towards the New York-Beverly Hills ideology.

During the period of our acquaintance in the 80s, she was already a production assistant for the Zionist radio broadcaster, Barry Farber. Significantly her best satires, which have never been seen, spared no one and were absolutely merciless. She had an insight into the American class system that put her far above other comediennees. Only once did I see her nonplused—on the occasion when I expressed my Instaurationist views.

Brett Butler has suffered more than any talented woman I've ever known. Because of this suffering, her present worldview is what it is. It's hard not to be impressed when you see someone kick their drug habit and put their life back together. No small accomplishment. Perhaps one day she will turn her biting satire on those who now control her life.

Rudolph Giuliani, the Republican mayor of New York City who endorsed Democrat Mario Cuomo in the latter's failed 1992 reelection campaign for New York governor, is an ungracious host. During the recent celebration of the UN's 50th birthday, Giuliani disinvited Fidel Castro and Yasser Arafat to a city sponsored concert in Lincoln Center. Arafat showed up anyway, but left when Giuliani's aides told him he was unwelcome. To massage the Jewish vote and milk Jewish money, the mayor of Zoo City will go to any length of boorishness, incivility and discourtesy.

Old-Timey L.A. Jews

One of the Disney Company's latest movies is Unstrung Heroes, directed by Woody Allen's ex-paramour, Diane Keaton. Starring Michael Richards of the sitcom Seinfeld, the comedy drama is based on a Jewish boyhood in 1950s Los Angeles. Chew on these immortal lines: "I Like Ike" is Gentile code for "I hate kikes"; "Idaho" means "Jew-hater" in Cherokee. The plot has to do with two yarmulke-wearing eccentric uncles who coax their young nephew into singing the Internationale in junior high when everyone else is reciting the Pledge of Allegiance.

Ungrateful Beauty Queen

Latest scoop on the national ongoing "I'm More Disabled Than You Are" contest: Bess Myerson, the first Jewish Miss America, refusing to attend the 75th anniversary of the pageant, spoke instead at the State of Israel Bonds Fall Leadership Conference in Washington (DC). Ms. Myerson complained that anti-Semitic sponsors kept her from cashing in after she had won the crown. As for deaf Heather Whitestone being the first handicapped Miss America, Bess sniffed: "There's no comparison. At that time they considered me more severely handicapped because I was Jewish."

Exit Powell (Temporarily)

The Powell presidential teaser was essentially a high-powered promotional effort to sell his book. The advance came close to $6 million, on top of which he receives up to $60,000 per speech. The pile of money made it possible for him to move into his lavish $1.2 million Virginia mansion. It's nice to glean so many dollars while putting on a "now I will, now I won't" presidential campaign. It was also nice to be peddling books in London when the Million Man March took place. It gave him an excuse to duck it.

Basically Powell was the media's and the neocons' nominee. The idea—and hope—was that he would swing the G.O.P. back to its squeamish, pre-Gingrich politics.

The Simpson verdict having considerably increased the rifts between the races, liberals counted on a Powell candidacy and a Powell presidency to dampen this divisiveness.

Was this wistful dream one more manifestation of the guilty conscience that had so many whites rooting for Powell? Or was it just one more indication of the Majority's death wish?

Sometimes pro-Powell propaganda reached the heights or depths of hilarity. After he had been knighted by the British for his sedentary role in the Gulf War, genealogists announced that his ancestors ranged from Jamaican slaves to George Washington and Thomas Jefferson and all the way back to King Edward I and William the Conqueror. To spice up his résumé, he was quoted as saying that he had a Jewish limb in his family tree and spoke a little Yiddish.

Despite his last-minute cop-out, we're likely to hear a lot about Powell in the future. Secretary of State? Secretary of Defense? Ambassador to the UN? New York Times columnist? Movie star? The world is his oyster.

Racial Obsession

Irish-Catholic Pat Conroy, author of The Great Santini, expresses his deep love for the Chosen by writing bestsellers with a Holocaust twist. He explains his interest thusly: "I think the first reason I got involved in this material goes back to my mother," the daughter of a Baptist preacher, "who was absolutely Holocaust-obsessed. She read Anne Frank to us as children, and as most little boys who encounter Anne Frank, I fell in love. I couldn't understand why they killed such a nice girl . . . didn't they read her book?" Pat's mother decided that they "were going to be a family that would hide Jews." So the kids ran around the neighborhood playing out Holocaust fantasies and looking for Jews to hide. Pat's recent bestseller, Beach Music, had to be reworked after his Chosen agent demanded that he make his Jewish characters more competent.

Black Movie Fare

It is incredible that Hollywood would produce such films as Outbreak and Crimson Tide, in which black military officers are depicted as heroes for insubordination and mutiny against their white superiors. Only a few decades have passed since "fragging" (murder by fragmentation grenades thrown at officers and non-commissioned officers by their own troops) greatly undermined the U.S. military efforts in Vietnam. An estimated 600 officers and NCOs were victims.

Any white who wants to see black racism in full flower should take a look at the new film, Devil in a Blue Dress. Walter Moseley, the Negro author of the book on which the movie is based, comments: "I have seldom seen a mainstream American movie that shows black people the way they are." Almost every black in the film is portrayed as a lovable character, whether a gunman blowing people's brains out or a married woman fornicating with a passing stranger. The black hero, Denzel Washington, is beyond reproach. The whites in the film are either sadists, child molesters, corrupt politicians or brutal policemen. The movie is a period piece set in Los Angeles in the late 40s. The L.A.P.D. is center stage, just in time to catch the fallout from the O.J. trial!

Launched two years ago as a joint venture of Quincy Jones Entertainment and a division of Time Inc., Vibe has carved out a niche as a "blacker, hipper" version of Rolling Stone. The mag's biggest coup so far has been an exclusive jailhouse interview with felonious rap "artist," Tupac Shakur. In another Vibe interview, Frank Sinatra was proclaimed an "O.G." (original gangsta). Alan Light, the Jewish editor, believes, "There's very little I find more insulting than white kids trying to 'pass' [for black] and trying very hard to show how 'down' they are." Born and raised in Cincinnati, Light grew up in a Conservative Jewish household and attended a bilingual Hebrew-English school before going off to Yale.

Shifting Neighborhood

After we moved to a new home on the north side of Chicago, it wasn't too long before our basement was flooded by a rain storm owing to inadequate sewer systems. Much of what I had stored there was ruined.

Our neighbors were white, intelligent, sociable Salvation Army employees. We baby-sat for their kids and took care of their house and pets when they were away. When they moved, we were sorry to see them go. Our new neighbors consisted of another officer in the Salvation Army, his wife, of Spanish background, and two teenage daughters. One of the teens became pregnant and had a black baby. These neighbors didn't stay around long. The Salvation Army, the owner of the house, sold it to an Indian-Muslim family—man, wife and three boys. Soon they had another boy. Now the wife is pregnant again. I've read articles about whites complaining how the color of their neighborhoods changed in about 20 years. It took only six years in my neck of the woods.

Delayed Info

The press and TV are jam-crammed with minutiae about capital crimes, but often take an excruciatingly long time to identify the perpetrators. For the first few weeks after the rape of a 12-year-old girl by three U.S. servicemen in Okinawa, there was no mention of the rapists' race anywhere, though it was obvious they were Negroes.

The soldier in Fort Bragg (NC) who sprayed his fellow paratroopers with bullets, killing one officer and wounding 18, had a German name. But when, after a long delay, Sgt. William Kreutzer's photo was released, it was only with difficulty that he could be called white.

Kreutzer is no Majorityite

Once the shooting started, 1,300 paratroopers out for an early morning run, ran wildly and unsoldierly in all directions, perhaps because of the sizable component of Negroes in what was once known as the elite 82nd Airborne Division. Mimicing Jesus, the Mormon wife of the murdered Major Mark Badger, the one who had the guts to try to tackle Kreutzer, said, "I can only have compassion for him [her husband's killer] and hope he gets the help he needs." Sgt. Kreutzer's father, a retired police officer, is also in trouble with the law. A female, who was 16 years old at the time, has charged him with rape.

No facial photo of the kidnapper of a bus full of retarded children in Miami Beach ever appeared, though the media grudgingly acknowledged him to be a Dominican immigrant, who was shot dead in the bus in the midst of the fracas.

The other crime of the month was the driver who stopped her school bus on a railroad crossing south of Chicago. An onrushing train killed seven and wounded more than 25 students. The public was only informed that she was a middle-aged school supervisor substituting for a sick driver. Nothing was said about her race, causing people to wonder if it was one more cover-up for a minorityite. She turned out to be a white ethnic, but withholding such info so long arouses dark suspicions in Joe Six-Pack.

Perks for the Rich Minority

The Clinton administration, in a little noticed legal settlement, has broadened affirmative action programs to include some Hasidic Jews. The Justice Dept., acting as attorney for the Small Business Administration, signed an out-of-court settlement in late September conferring minority status and special preferences on a Hasidic Jew from California who claims he was discriminated against because of his dress and his dietary and religious practices. The businessman, an affluent commodities trader, is now eligible for set-aside programs in government contracts, along with blacks, Hispanics, Asians, Eskimos, Hawaiians, Native Americans and Aleutian Islanders.

Simpson Simperings

Now, after more than nine months of the Cochran and Bailey Greatest Show On Earth, what do we have? We have police tapes of a terrified, battered bimbo wife, testimony of death threats, a fleeing white Bronco stashed with $7,000 in cash, fake beard and O.J. passport, damning DNA blood tests, refusal to put the defendant on the stand, unsatisfactory accounting of the time the murder was committed, irrelevant ancient history to discredit Mark Fuhrman, one of the many detectives, and a multitude of other incriminating elements—all of which meant zilch to the 75% black jury. The final blow to the criminal justice came from the Negro juror who gave a Black Power salute, as he was probably murmuring to himself, "O.J. ditn't dooit, he innocent maaan, dem racist cops dey dun set him up."

In the montage of memorable images which I have retained from the circus atmosphere of the Simpson debacle, I vividly recall a screaming match between whites and blacks outside the L.A. courthouse: a burly Jew in his sky-blue beanie, screaming, "Guilty! Guilty! Guilty!" into the beefy black face of some outraged broad who must have been a blocking back for

O.J. at Buffalo. Every time the quivering Chosenite shook his finger and shouted, "Guilty!", she shook her finger and screamed back, "Not! and neither is yo' mama!"

I'm reminded of the black attorney interviewed by John (stentorian) McLaughlin, who declared that if "anything happened" to cultural icon, Johnnie Cochran, or if the colored jury came out with a guilty verdict, "there would be war."

Doesn't that attorney understand that things have already happened? What does he think happened on that murder train in Long Island? Has he already forgotten burning Watts, Detroit and the way that Chicago, that "toddelin' town," teetered in 1968?

Campaign Hate Mail

Representative Tom Lantos of California, the only Holocaust survivor ever elected to Congress, is under fire for mailing a ferociously anti-Semitic letter asserting that Jews drink human blood. It was sent to him from some psycho in North Dakota. Lantos took advantage of it to help his son-in-law, Dick Swett, raise money for his 1996 New Hampshire Senatorial campaign. Swett is running against Bob Smith, the incumbent. Lantos's mailing was an invitation to a $250-a-head cocktail party to be held for Swett in New York. It included the "hate letter," to which was added this remark: "As you can see from the enclosed information, [Swett's] opponent is hostile to our concerns." Senator Smith, whose record on foreign aid to Israel is not as stellar as many Jews would like, protested that he was being branded as an anti-Semite. Swett, a Mormon, was unapologetic: "We must fight to replace extremists like Senator Smith from Congress."

They Can't Stop Stealing

The "prestigious" money jugglers of Lazard Frères and Merrill Lynch, caught red-handed by the Securities and Exchange Commission in a fraudulent fee-splitting deal, have been socked with a $24 million fine. Lazard's Mark Ferber, who masterminded the scam, has been indicted on 63 counts of fraud.

Nuts Nix Nutty Names

The Crazy Burger Cafe in Rhode Island offers such specials as the Neurotic Burger, the Loco Burger and the Just Plain Nuts Burger. Ann McDonald, vice president of Rhode Island's Alliance for the Mentally Ill, whined that the weirdly named edibles are a putdown on people who aren't playing with a full deck.

Waspishly Yours

The Jewish bent for chicanery is Biblical. By now it must be reflexive, if not genetic. If you have never laughed before, prepare to be poleaxed with perplexity and apoplectic at the depths that hypocrisy can plumb.

No wonder Jews see themselves as the people chosen by Yahweh to demonstrate his morality to the world—a “light unto the nations,” as it were, to guide the benighted goyim through the otherwise darkest night. Yitzhak Rabin, the late prime minister of Israel (for the very latest on Rabin, see Elsewhere) recently demonstrated to the world how this guidance should be given.

Is it any surprise that Harry Houdini, the man who made misdirection a metaphor for magic, that Harry Houdini, who loved to hoodwink the world in Hollywoodian fashion, is it any surprise that Harry Houdini (né Weiss) was also a Hebrew?

Early in August 1995, Israeli General Aryeh Biro confessed that soldiers under his command murdered 48 Egyptian prisoners of war while Jews were practicing their “purity of arms” in the Sinai desert in 1956, after the British, French and “light-onto-the-nations” Jews attacked Egypt.

Subsequently, Israeli military historian Arey Yitshaki (where do they get these names and how is it so many American Yitshakis call themselves Curtis, Burns and Bacall?) also confessed that in 1948 and in 1967 other brave Israeli storm troopers, also practicing their “purity of arms,” were guilty of the mass murder of 1,000 Egyptian prisoners of war.

How many other such massacres have yet to be disclosed? If this isn't the tip of the iceberg, why are so many Jews disturbed? Can they really believe their own propaganda about practicing a superior morality (there's that word again!)? Don't the Chosen have any sense of proportion?

After stealing an entire country and dispossessing more than a million people, what do a few massacres more or less matter—even if the murder victims are Americans? How can the Jews remember that God gave them Jerusalem and the right to commit genocide, but have already forgotten the 34 Americans they murdered on the U.S.S. Liberty?

But why should they remember, if the “American” media do not? Have Jews already forgotten the 241 American Marines that Jews might have saved in Lebanon? Why should anybody—Gentile or Jew—worry about the Jewish massacre of 1,048 Muslim camel jockeys?

Israelis are reportedly “reeling” from the recent revelations. Why? Are these Jews really so self-deluded that they have confused the garrote with vainglory and gall with the will of God?

If the Israelis, with their vaunted free press, didn't know about the massacres committed by their fanatically committed IDF and its “purity of arms,” is it likely that Germans living under a dictatorship knew about the alleged “death camps?”

Jews sneer when Germans protest that they simply didn't know (if only because they could not have known). Now we're supposed to believe that the Israelis didn't know, as they keep bragging about their “democracy” and feisty free press? They say they didn't suspect anything (presumably because no Jew could be capable of a cold-blooded killing).

How many Americans—despite our vaunted free press—knew that their government was performing radiation experiments on its own soldiers? How many Americans knew what was going on in Tuskegee?

What was Israeli Prime Minister Rabin's reaction to these belated disclosures of the Totenkopfverbände conduct of his soldiers in the desert of Sinai, the holy site where Moses received the tablets of morality from Yahweh's very own hand? (Let's remember in passing that this is the same Rabin who was not only a general officer in the Jewish blitz army, but rose to become chief-of-staff in 1964, three years before the Jews again demonstrated their “purity of arms” by sneak attacks on Egypt and the U.S.S. Liberty.)

What didn't this paragon of morality, this “Operation-Iron-Fist” breaker of Arab bones on the West Bank, know and when didn't he know it?

How would he answer that question if he were, as he should have been, in the dock of a war crimes trial?

How come two Bosnian Serbs, political leader Radovan Karadzic and General Ratko Mladic, have been indicted by a UN tribunal, but Yitzhak Rabin—a passionate practitioner of “purity of arms”—was still running about free until a Jewish bullet sent him to his maker? Indeed, he ran rings around Congress and our circumscribed President.

What did Rabin have to say about these massacres, festering in the guilty conscience of the moral Israeli army all these years? Who knows what may still be lurking in the archives?

The Japanese have apologized for their brutality in WWII. So have the Germans, in addition to paying billions in reparations to survivors of the “death camps” (although one wonders why the cost should have been so high, considering there were so few survivors). When will the Jews pay reparations to the Palestinians for what was pirated from them?

What was righteous Rabin's reaction to the massacres committed by the IDF he commanded as soldier and moral leader?

“There is no purpose in raising events of the past. . . [the IDF is a] humane army whose soldiers are blessed with special moral values.” Special moral values!

Are they the same “special moral values” which the other armies of the world are expected to live and die by? Are Jewish values more “special” than the values that guided Soviet behavior at Katyn?

Was the Israeli army, under the command of Rabin, blessed with the “special moral values” which were applied to the Nazis at Nuremberg? Or did Rabin practice Goebbels' theory of My Lai being more believable than your lie?

V.S. STINGER

Houdini was also one

Watching the sickening procession of the world's establishmentarians jetting to the funeral ceremonies of Yitzhak Rabin, I felt as if I had a front-row seat in a theater of mendacity. What were these dignitaries up to? Did they know whom they were honoring? Did they care? Were they sincere in their desire to pay their last respects? Or, at least in the case of the massive U.S. delegation, were the mourners there because they wanted to avoid being upstaged by a political rival? If one Republican presidential candidate didn't show and another did, this might mean fewer dollars in the no-show's campaign chest.

Here was a man, Yizhak Rabin, who, as a top general in the Israeli Defense Force, was as responsible as anyone for the dispossession and expulsion of 700,000 Palestinians from their homes and homeland. Here was a so-called peacemaker who ignited or helped to ignite several Middle Eastern wars, who invaded Egypt, Lebanon and Syria, a man who applauded and approved a sneak bombing raid on an Iraqi nuclear reactor, and a commando raid on Uganda, who by any standards was one of the 20th century's most rabid warmongers, who was once kicked out of the Israeli cabinet for violating currency laws, who in his memoirs called his partner in the interminable peace process, Shimon Peres, a "liar" and a "continual conspirator." Yet before rigor mortis had even set in, this man was hailed as a modern saint. Didn't Clinton know as a few pumped-up tears dripped down his cheeks that Rabin was commander of the IDF when Israeli warplanes blasted the U.S.S. Liberty, killing 34 and wounding 171 Americans? Was Clinton blind to how Rabin handled the Palestinians who attempted to resist his iron rule, how he blew up their family homes, imprisoned them by the thousands and tortured those who didn't talk, sometimes to death?

What is going on here? Has the U.S. become so supine that it venerates a foreign general partly responsible for the murder of 241 American Marines in Beirut, an atrocity which Rabin could have stopped with a phone call to the Israeli troops in the area who knew what the local fanatics were planning?

During most of the obsequies Clinton was one of the few government leaders who sported a yarmulke, which is fast becoming his permanent headgear. To many Americans it has come to symbolize the American presidency's slavish and prideless subservience to Zionism, just as the $3 million aid to Israel adds up to a form of annual tribute. Clinton, by the way, never dons a kaffiyeh when he drops in on Arab countries.

Rabin was a Nordic Jew, whose ethnicity exercised a stronger pull on him than his race. He will go down in Israeli history as a military hero and statesman. His monstrous acts against Palestinians will be forgiven and forgotten by his own people, who never forget or forgive the sins of others. But the atrocities he cheered and presided over will not be forgotten or forgiven by his enemies. A tiny beachhead on the earth's largest and most populous continent, even though protected by an arsenal of nuclear weapons, cannot and will not endure. Israel will spray its neighbors with fission or fusion bombs before it goes down, but it will go down. Jews are temperamentally unsuited to any stable form of government, especially democracy. If Arabs and other Muslims don't destroy the Zionist state, Jews themselves ultimately will.

Meanwhile the mass hysteria with which Jews have managed to infect the West grows ever most intense. The funeral services of Rabin drew a crowd as big if not bigger than the one at the burial of JFK. Brother Bobby, it might be remembered, after going overboard for Zionism and Zionist campaign money, was killed by a vengeful Palestinian.

In all matters pertaining to Israel truth has been shafted; history humbugged. Criticizing the Holocaust will cost you your job in the U.S. In many Western European countries it may land you in jail.

Altogether it's a unique historical development. A fractious fraction of the world's white population has all of us jumping through hoops. It's getting so bad that in order to save Western civilization, we may have to shut it down and start all over again.

TV anchormen during the burial of Rabin kept telling us that Jews never kill other Jews. What about Jesus? What about Lazar Kaganovich, Stalin's Jewish lackey, who specialized in killing highly placed Communist Jews in order to please his anti-Semitic boss. To gain the world's sympathy, Zionists actually blew up the S.S. Patria in Haifa harbor in 1940, killing 276 Jewish refugees from Europe. Menahem Begin, later prime minister of Israel, organized the bombing of the King David Hotel in Jerusalem in 1946. A dozen or so of the 95 dead were Jews.

Jews say they are reluctant to kill other Jews, but they are not at all reluctant to kill non-Jews, even high-ranking foreigners. A gang of terrorists led by former Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir killed Count Bernadotte, the Swedish diplomat, whose only crime was trying to bring peace to Palestine during the early days of Zionist aggression.

Kati Marton, a Hungarian-Jewish writer, has written a book about the assassination of Count Bernadotte. She is the third wife of Richard Holbrooke, the half-Jewish Kissinger clone who scurries back and forth from Bosnia, Croatia, Serbia and Washington, trying to make peace where there is no peace and may not be peace until many more years pass and many more tens of thousands are killed. Peter Jennings, incidentally, Ms. Marton's previous husband, had an earlier wife who was a Lebanese. Hol-brooke's onetime steady was Diane Sawyer, the soft-questioning interview queen who, according to several people in the know, was the "Deep Throat" of Watergate. Now married to Chosenite Mike Nichols, she was running the White House press office in the Nixon years.

We hear much about right-wing bigots on talk radio. We don't hear much about Carmine Guzman, a Jewish New Yorker, who mouths his banal minority racism over WLW, Cincinnati, one of the country's most powerful radio stations. Here is a snippet from one of his more fulsome fulminations.

The biggest gangster, the biggest hood, the biggest punk of them all—the Pope, and his child-molesting legion of pederasts—should sit back and take five.

As we all know and as Guzman's splenetic tirades are ample proof, it is all right and proper to be an anti-Catholic in this country, but woe to those who embrace anti-Semitism. Guzman, moreover, is not averse to a little violence to get the America he wants—and deserves.

My brothers, my sisters, it's time to strap up. This is going too far. It's about revolution. We need a little blood in the streets. We'll start in Indian Hill [a posh Cincinnati suburb] and we're going to finish downtown.

Now that Ted Turner is selling his broadcasting empire to Time Warner (the deal is not yet finalized), I was not surprised by this press release: Turner Classic Movies has cancelled the showing of D.W. Griffith's Birth of a Nation on October 29.

Violence on TV is acceptable, provided it's white-on-black. Witness the tape of the Rodney King beating by the L.A. cops, which is still being replayed on an almost daily basis. But when a Houma (LA) TV station was preparing to run a tape of four blacks beating a white teenager on a school bus, a few minutes before air time men from District Attorney Douglas Greenburg's office seized the video and carried it off.

From Satcom Sal. My rising blood pressure was not assuaged by one of the few TV dramas I've watched in ages—John Grisham's The Client. The story line had to do with a black boy, the only one of his race, in a Southern prep school. Some idiotic (but esteemed in the plot) drama teacher had cast him as Romeo opposite a blonde Juliet in a school play. When it came time for a kiss, there were objections. After one rehearsal a few students followed the black outside and called him a monkey. In "justifiable" rage, he retaliated by lowering the school's Confederate flag. He then borrowed, without asking permission, the cigarette lighter of a young smoker who just happened to be standing three feet away. The flag burst instantly and almost miraculously into flames.

The attorney who defended the black flag burner was a white female who passionately believed in the civil rights' dreams of MLK. The school trustees, all white males, were stereotyped as the backward Southerners we've all grown used to seeing on the tube. The same stereotyping was evident in the portrayal of the attorney's mother, a woman of the Old South, who often disagreed with her daughter's politics and actions. The mother had an antique keepsake that looked like some kind of belt buckle with a Confederate flag emblem, which she treasured. But by the end of the program, after realizing how misdirected her values and her thoughts had been, she got rid of it.

Last night I could find nothing interesting listed in my TV Guide, so I decided to channel surf. I soon ran across an indigestible drama, Touched by an Angel. Two angels, a rather pretty Irish girl and a fat black mama, were both out to inveigle a man away from a Klan-type group. The angelic creatures were not after the leader, an unshaven Nordic type with closely cropped hair, who was beyond redemption. Their target was a lowly Kluxer who still had stirrings of decency, which came out when black mama reminded him she had known him in his childhood.

A later program, Texas Ranger, treated me to a moment of an ecstatic interracial romance when a black ranger was kissed by a white female criminal he had taken into custody. I say she was white, though she may have been a light-skinned mulatta. It was impossible to tell owing to her complexion's stark contrast to the ranger's ebony epidermis.

Why burden Instauration with all this? Because it is the only publication that can point out this unsubtle, steam-rolling propaganda blitz to which we are being subjected and which most of us are too stupid and too apathetic to discern and counteract. I realize that using the word "conspiracy" makes me a certifiable resident of Looneytoonville, but what other word can I use?

From Zip 785. The Latino-American soap is a comic opera of race-defining imagery. Euro-Latinos wallow in vast excesses of luxury while being served by dour-faced Indian, Latino and Afro sad sacks from the wrong side of the racial tracks. The latter's lives invariably miss the essence of existence, as Euro-Latinos slide gracefully through their world, conducting their affairs with the kind of whispered elegance once depicted on the British stage by Noel Coward. Downside Latinos shout, cry and grimace their way through episode after episode of maudlin trauma. The differences of race and class couldn't be greater. Why, then, do dusky Latinos make so much of what they perceive as racism in Anglo society?

From Zip 065. Did you catch the Gilbert and Sullivan excerpts on PBS recently? Interesting how the leading male singer in a piece from Pinafore was a coal-black Negro with a mouth that opened like a valise. I thought for sure he'd sing, "Ah done bin gown to Dixie Land." I was surprised that they didn't get a colored mammy (250 lbs. and pregnant) to chortle, "I'm poor little Buttercup. . ."

From Zip 787. On NBC's Today (Aug. 28) actor Phil Hartman was interviewed by reporter Tim Braun about his role as a villainous military officer in Steve Martin's No Time for Sergeants show. Asked why his hair was dyed blond, Hartman replied, "The director's idea was that I look Aryan." He felt that the "Aryan look" was more threatening.

Notes from the Sceptred Isle—John Nobull

Australians will shortly be asked to vote in a referendum on the question of continuing the British monarch as head of state. Having particularly close ties to the island continent, I would advise voting for the monarchy, despite all.

Why? Everyone knows that, while Queen Victoria was an admirable lady in many respects (with quite a good sense of humour), son Edward VII got into bad company, most notably that of Jewish banker Sir Ernest Cassels, who won him over by inviting him to house parties in which rubber dolls filled with hot water and shaped in every way like women, were provided in the beds.

Cassels was all in favour of war with Germany and advised King Edward to promote the Entente Cordiale between Britain and France, which soon came to include Russia as well. Germany was thus surrounded and outmanoeuvred, despite Bismarck's description of the German Empire as a "satisfied power," with no territorial demands in Europe. In addition to Austria-Hungary, an ally under severe internal strain, Germany's only other friends when WWI broke out were the crumbling Ottoman Empire and backward Bulgaria. My own judgement coincides with that of Felix Sombar, who spent WWI as an adviser to both the Austro-Hungarians and the Germans. In his excellent book, The Raven of Zurich, Sombar averred that Britain was wrong to regard Germany's economic advance eastward as a threat. If a vigorous nation is prevented from expanding economically, he wrote, it will expand militarily.

At the beginning of the war Sombar was still employed by the Anglo-Austrian bank, which was controlled by Cassels. He argued his case forcibly, to no effect. Cassels had his own Jewish agenda, which had little to do with British, French or Russian interests.

King Edward was buried to the music of Elgar's Pomp and Circumstance in 1910. His son, George V, was even less of a king. George's special protégé was Admiral Lord Fisher, the son of a Briton and a court prostitute from Ceylon. An aggressive little man, Fisher over-reacted to Kaiser Wilhelm's construction of the Kiel Canal, which enabled the German Baltic fleet to operate in the North Sea. That was a mistake, as Bismarck acknowledged, but the Kaiser, something of a hothead, had sent the Iron Chancellor packing long before. George V later disgraced himself when he refused to allow his cousin, Tsar Alexander, to take refuge in England with his family, thus being indirectly responsible for their murder by a gang of Jews.

With Edward VIII we come to a much more admirable figure, who never got on with father George and tried his best to keep Britain out of war with Germany. He got on famously with Hitler when he visited Nazi Germany in 1937. He had lost his chance for the crown in 1936 because of his idiotic infatuation with Mrs. Simpson. The Archbishop of Canterbury played a big part in that affair. The Church of England has a lot to answer for.

Edward VIII's brother, George VI, was a weak king with a speech defect, who half-heartedly supported Chamberlain in his efforts to prevent war. George and his daughter, Elizabeth, who came to the throne in 1950, presided over the collapse of the British Empire, which followed inevitably on the decision to continue the war in 1941, despite German offers of an honorable and advantageous peace. Neither Hitler nor his deputy, Rudolf Hess, ever wanted to destroy the British Empire. Hitler's remark on the fall of Singapore in early 1942 is worth repeating: "Well, one can only regret it."

I think it true that without Queen Elizabeth II providing a feeling of historical continuity, England would have seen considerable upheaval after the war, instead of tamely accepting mass immigration and Jewish domination of the media. The Commonwealth allowed Pakistan to participate even when it no longer recognised the monarchy as its head. At the same time, membership was refused to British-controlled Rhodesia. The Queen is determined to be the darling of all the black mummies throughout the world. Her only upper-class trait is that she understandably prefers horses and dogs to her demoralised people. The Duke of Edinburgh, with all his faults, is worth ten of her.

Elizabeth has an heir, Charles, who is by no means the darling of the media. Despite his interest in making black youths happy in the inner cities, he has blotted his copy-book in any number of ways. When he went up to Cambridge, he wanted to study the links between race and language. Imagine! Needless to add, his advisers soon knocked that idea out of his head. Later he became concerned about the monstrously ugly buildings erected by Jewish tycoons all over Britain with the help of corrupt local governments. His concern for aesthetics also led him to imply that such a thing exists as degenerate art. He opposed the Jewish-dominated construction company, Trafalgar House, when it tried to create a hideous excrescence on the side of the National Portrait Gallery. He also alienated the jolly farmers, who have uglified the English countryside by ripping out the copses and hedges, fouling up the underground water table with artificial fertiliser, and injecting pesticides in our food. The big Jewish caterers and supermarkets, like Tesco and Trusthouse Forte, who fill their edibles with American-style preservatives, also hate him. No wonder the Economist (under its new, trendy editor) has stated publicly that the monarchy is an idea whose time is past. No wonder Rupert Murdoch, the Dirty Digger, the Grade family (Vinogradski) which control much of Britain's TV and most of the other media moguls, are orchestrating the same theme.

The last straw was when Charles stated publicly that Princess Di had "an Italian body and a Jewish mind," and that fortunately it wasn't the other way round. He tried to put that right by claiming that Funny Girl was absolutely his dream woman. It was too late.

Nevertheless I think Australians of British origin should vote for the monarchy even if (as seems likely) they lose the referendum. They are historically associated with the Royal Family, whether they like it or not. So let them campaign for Charles and forget the proletarianised Windsors. It's better to go down protesting rather than just lie on the beach.

It is Irish Australians like Prime Minister Keating who have been the main architects of an immigration policy, encouraging the entry of people from any country other than Britain. They will never rest till they have made Australia into a mongrelised, racial hodge-podge. Having said this, I fear my readers will never believe that some of my best friends are Irish.

Report from the Darkening Tip

Diary of an Afrikaner

August 1: After President Mandela's recent visit to Japan, hopes ran high that economic relations between the two countries would rise rapidly. It didn't happen. Crime and violence are keeping the Japanese out of South Africa.

August 2: The African National Congress is sitting on a time bomb. In Gauteng, South Africa's richest province, ANC financial and voter support is definitely on the way down.

August 6: The new South Africa is "killing the press." Sales of most English newspapers have shrunk, while the circulation of Afrikaans newspapers has improved. The left-wing orientation of English papers plainly do not give the dispossessed whites a voice.

August 8: Dr. Olive Shisana, Director-General of Health, admitted at a policy conference in the Western Cape that health services are in a critical condition, a state of affairs previously unknown in this land.

August 9: Some 580 policemen have committed suicide since 1991.

August 10: The situation in the civil service is critical. Of 11,000 civil service posts advertised last year, only 1,721 had been filled by the end of May this year.

August 14: Dr. Ferdie Hartzenberg, leader of the Conservative Party, has returned from Geneva where he addressed the UN committee for the protection of minorities. This body has finally acknowledged that the Afrikaner or Boer nation is an indigenous nation of South Africa and entitled to freedom and independence. Dr. Hartzenberg was enthusiastically received by supporters at the airport, where he emphasized that an independent people's republic for the Afrikaner nation is the goal of the Conservative Party.

August 17: The Zulu nation, 7 million strong, is a formidable opponent to Mandela and his ANC. South of Natal lies the Transkei, homeland of the Xhosas, Mandela's tribe. The tension between these two nations is high and rising. The security forces have thrown a "steel net" around part of the Transkei in order to intercept the infiltration of illegal weapons. In the past week 85 people have been murdered in Natal.

August 18: Mandela married wife Winnie in 1958. They separated in 1992 and have decided to divorce. The couple could spend weeks in court, if either party disputes settlement issues.

August 20: Fears are rising that South Africa could pass nuclear secrets to Iran. The U.S. has made strenuous efforts in recent months to dissuade the government from forming close ties with the Islamic republic.

August 21: Mandela has called for an end to the illegal occupation of vacant land, saying the government would have no choice but to act against offenders. The ANC, Mandela stated, was prepared to forgive those chiefs who had worked with the apartheid regime and "who were happy while [I was] in jail. . . but if they make us angry. . . they will have to pay for what they did in the past."

August 22: The Prime Minister of Malaysia, Dr. Mahathir Mohamad, has admonished the South African government that taxes here are much too high to make the country an attractive option for foreign investors.

August 25: The National Party of former President de Klerk has warned the country that Winnie Mandela and certain other African National Congress leaders have the ability to start an uncontrollable conflict. His words were spoken in response to Mrs. Mandela's statement earlier in the week "that former Presidents F.W. de Klerk and P.W. Botha should be tried for crimes against humanity."

August 27: The ANC has in mind a radical shake-up of the education system to achieve equal spending on all pupils by the year 2000. According to this plan, by then there will be only two types of schools—public and private—in this land of 14 different nations and languages.

August 28: South Africa has a population of almost 41 million. The increase since the 1991 Census has been about 2.1% per annum. According to the latest available statistics, the black population has increased from 28.4 million to 31.2 million since 1991—an increase of 2.4% per annum. The whites have increased by only 0.7%, the Indians by 1.3% and the brown people (mostly settled in the Western Cape Province) by 1.4%.

Sept. 1: Another dream of the black revolutionaries in South Africa has been shattered. The committee appointed to review the organization, governance and funding of schools has reported that South Africans can forget about a system of free education for all.

Sept. 4: Economists have agreed that as far as the redistribution of wealth is concerned, no progress will be made this year or the next.

Sept. 5: The Coloured Resistance movement in the Western Cape wants the return of vast tracts of land and demands a separate homeland for the 3.5 million Coloured people who make up about 10% of the population.

Sept. 6: The southern hemisphere's largest hospital, Baragwanath in Soweto, came to a standstill recently when 1,700 nurses demanded a 25% pay raise. The Citizen, the English daily paper in Johannesburg, described the strike as disgraceful since it put at risk the lives of 1,333 seriously ill patients. According to another press report (Beeld, Johannesburg), the strike caused the death of at least seven patients.

Sept. 13: Development Minister Roelf Meyer has warned that South Africa could be plunged into a Bosnia-style conflict. More than 1,200 people have died in bloody conflicts between Inkatha and the ANC since the elections.

Sept. 17: The country's welfare services are on the verge of collapse.

Sept. 18: Three women and a man, ages 20 to 26, visitors from England and New Zealand, were beaten up and gang-raped for hours by ten blacks on a lonely stretch of road in the former Transkei.

Sept. 24: TV shows and news programs in indigenous languages are not drawing many viewers. In fact, they are chasing them away. Already 1.2 million people have stopped looking at the news.

Sept. 31: In the northern Transvaal the government is about to hand over the farms of 129 white farmers to blacks, who claim the land originally belonged to their forebears. The farmers stated the blacks only began moving in after whites had begun to develop the land.

Canada. Quebecers lost their bid for secession from Canada by a hair (50.41% to 49.59%). Recent immigrants, Indian tribes, Jews and old-line Montreal Anglophones joined in a voting alliance that beat back the move for independence. Despite playing Dixie, the anthem of another group of secessionists, Quebec separatists didn't quite make it. But there is always hope that another try will do the trick. A similar referendum held in 1980 lost by a margin of 60 to 40.

The close vote proved that Canada is closer to Der Tag of fragmentation than the U.S. Some Western Canadians are already thinking seriously about joining the American Northwest for the purpose of establishing an independent white ethno-state, far from the mongrelized grasp of Toronto and Washington.

There are 100,000 Jews in the province of Quebec, 20% of them French-speaking Sephardim from former French colonies, especially those in North African. Confusing the political situation, Canada's prime minister is Francophone Jean Chretien, who pleaded renegadishly with his fellow Quebecers to defeat the referendum. Altogether only 10% of the Jews voted for Quebec's independence. Most of the Chosen opposed secession because it might cause economic instability which, according to their way of thinking, leads to extremism. Philosophically, like their tribesmen everywhere, Quebec Jews are instinctively against the nationalism and ethnostatism of any people but their own. The only nationalism they approve is Jewish nationalism, the kind that flourishes in Israel.

The Indians, who are sitting on one-third of Quebec's territory, are very nervous about an independent Quebec. It might jeopardize their welfare. If the referendum had passed, they promised to stage their own secession.

After the vote, Lucien Bouchard, the fiery leader of the secessionists, sorrowing over the province's low birthrate, stated, "We're one of the white races that has fewest children." For speaking this truth, Bouchard was branded a racist and misogynist. Quebec has one of the world's lowest birthrates—1.6 children per couple. A 2.1 rate is needed just to maintain the demographic status quo.

Scotland. Speaking of secession, the Scottish National Party claims one-third of Scotland's 5.1 million people wish to break away from Britain. Some secessionists go so far as advocating burning down the homes of English who have moved to Scotland. In a diehard Tory district this fall, an SNP member won an off-year election, displacing an incumbent conservative.

Currently the SNP has 4 M.P.s, which puts it far behind the Labour Party, which holds 49% of Scotland's 72 seats in the British Parliament. Conservatives hold 10 and the Liberal Democrats 9. The SNP would do much better if it didn't have to contend with Labour's promises to establish a Scottish parliament. The Conservative Party under John Major, like the British National Party under John Tyndall, believes the exit of Scotland would wreck the United Kingdom.

The empire is long gone. The commonwealth is going. If Scotland goes, Northern Ireland and Wales would probably be next. In the end, all that would be left would be England, where it all started. Ethnostatists rejoice at the prospect of the break-up of heterogeneous and multi-racial nations. So do Little Englanders who believe that a small, racially and culturally homogeneous entity promotes evolution faster and more effectively than any other form of statehood.

Shakespeare wrote when England had perhaps as few as 8 million people and was confined to the lower half of the island. Harold Pinter, who some say is Britain's leading contemporary playwright, knocks out his uninspiring dramas when the U.K. has 58 million.

Britain. The Sunday Express came out with a "Screaming Numbers" front page. Under the big, black headline, THE ETHNIC TIME BOMB, a subhead proclaimed, "6 out of 10 black mothers are single parents." Altogether 59% of West Indian mothers are single, compared to 21% of white mothers. The figure is 16% for Bangladeshis and Pakistanis and 9% for Asian Indians. The sad fact is that fatherless families are costing British taxpayers £130 million a year. To dramatize the disappearing nuclear family, the Sunday Express pointed the finger at Jamaica-born Linford Christie, the soccer star, who has three children from two different females, neither of whom he bothered to marry.

Musicologist Dr. William Hurst, according to Spearhead, the magazine of the British National Party, has aptly described rock music as "a mind-numbing prole-feed. . . played at deafening volume for the edification of morons."

The British Home Office reported that asylum applications, 4,000 in 1986, increased to 33,000 last year. Present backlog is 71,000.

Germany. Following the decision to admit Soviet Jews, Germany's Jewish population has doubled from 30,000 to 60,000, with another 60,000 applicants waiting for the come-hither sign. Jews choosing to live in Germany receive handsome monetary, social and affirmative action perks. It may be assumed that, as in the U.S., no meaningful investigations will be undertaken to ascertain the immigrants' previous activities in the former Soviet Union.

Some, if not most, of the 20th century's worst atrocities occurred in the five years of the Russian occupation of eastern Germany. A History of the Soviet Zone of Occupation (1945-49) by Norman Naimark (Harvard Univ. Press, $35) is a catalog of horrors. Some 2 million German women were raped. Landowners were rounded up and herded off to Rügen, a bleak, cold, wind-swept island in the Baltic. Russian authorities confined 240,000 Germans in 11 "special camps" where 95,000 died. In addition, tens of thousands were forced to work in the "radioactive slime" of uranium mines.

He never carried a wallet, never had a pfennig in his pockets. He read a book a day and had a deep understanding of the world's greatest philosophers and writers, including Buddha, Luther, Dante, Shakespeare and Goethe. His knowledge was universal. He was familiar with different types of engines and "astonished his visitors with his knowledge of medical science." Much more cultured than Churchill, Roosevelt and Eisenhower, his paintings and watercolors are full of poetry and sensitivity. He began writing poetry at an early age and composed an opera at age 16, for which he designed stage sets, even the costumes. He spoke five languages and played the piano. Who is this astounding genius? According to Leon Degrelle, the devoted Belgian acolyte who wrote a two-volume biography of the man, he was Adolf Hitler.

Hans Schmidt and Gary Lauck, two U.S. citizens of German origin, remain locked up in a German prison for violating the "democratic" nation's curbs on free speech. A raft of formal charges have been filed against Schmidt; bail still refused; no trial date set. In her trip to the Far East, Hillary Clinton spoke up for Harry Wu, the Chinaman jailed for criticizing the Chinese government, which finally let him go. The First Lady, however, has been conspicuously silent on what the German government has been doing to two American dissidents. Evidently the liberty of these two gentlemen is not as high on Hillary's agenda as that of a Chinese agitator. Schmidt's apparent "crime" was his use of the words, Juden-und-Freimaurer-verseuchet (Jewish and Freemason infested) in his newsletter to describe the German government. Nebraskan Lauck, known as the Farm Belt Führer, is in prison for mailing what has been arbitrarily defined as Nazi propaganda.

The latest rumor in Germany, loudly pumped up by the National-Zeitung, is that two of Chancellor Kohl's grandparents bore the name of Sarah and Saloman Kohn. They diplomatically dropped the "n" in their surname, replacing it with an Aryan "l."

Austria. A recent ruling by Austria's parliament will allow caches of property confiscated from Jews during WWII to be transferred to the Jewish community in Vienna. The items include a treasure house of paintings, sculptures, decorative objects and furnishings. It was not stated whether wealthy Jews had originally obtained these items by foreclosing on Austrians who had failed to make payments on the usurious Jewish loans. Viennese Jews plan to auction off the property and keep the money for local Jewish causes. True to type, World Jewry, in the person of Israel Singer, chairman of the World Jewish Restitution Organization and secretary general of the World Jewish Congress, is demanding that the Austrian Jewish community should not alone decide where the money should go. Singer's organizations want a piece of the pie.

Bosnia. As Clinton threatens to send 25,000 U.S. troops to ex-Yugoslavia to keep the peace, which may or may not be signed and may or may not be kept if signed, Americans might remember that these troops will not be the first U.S. fighting men to get involved in the Bosnian carnage. American warplanes have made several bombing sorties on Serbian positions. A special, quasi-secret U.S. military contingent is in Croatia. In Macedonia, 549 American soldiers are rotated every 179 days.

In some ways the Bosnian war is beginning to resemble the Spanish Civil War.

German neo-Nazis and Muslim mercenaries are fighting on the side of the Croats and Bosnians. The U.S. Air Force is gunning for the Bosnian Serbs, who are supported officially and unofficially by Serbia and Russia. Add to this motley military crew UN troops composed of Brits, French and other nationalities and we should not be surprised to hear of friendly troops shooting at each other. The sputtering war may do more than sputter if and when the peace-keeping army led by American G.I.s arrives on the scene.

Poland. Poland's most prominent film director, Andrzej Wajda, has been battling with the Polish Church over his latest project—a film about the last days of the Warsaw ghetto. He wants to show Poles riding merrily on a carousel, ignoring the screams of Jews as the ghetto is being invaded by German troops. The Warsaw Episcopate, Poland's highest Catholic body, turned Wajda down because he was an "anti-Polonist" whose movies were too "pro-Jewish" and tended to cast Poles in a bad light.

Israel. Two Jewish settlers stormed the El-Kortoba Girls School in Hebron and forcibly removed a Palestinian flag. Wielding iron rods and bottles, they attacked the headmistress and injured six little Arab girls. Jewish settlers in Hebron regularly throw stones into the homes of Palestinian residents, urinate in their doorways and curse them with fearful Hebrew curses. Many of these Jewish racists have taken up the rhetoric of the American "civil rights" battle. They say Martin Luther King is their "inspiration" and sing bellicose Zionist slogans to the melody of We Shall Overcome.

Jerusalem's new McDonald's "leads to bank robberies, murders, decadence and corruption," so declaims Yosef Ben Mosche, a kosher inspector of the city's restaurants. He continues: "When a Jew, a pure soul; eats an impure animal, it destroys his soul, and he becomes a jungle man, an evil animal. . . . This causes people to leave the homeland and encourages mixed marriages. It's worse than Hitler. McDonald's is contaminating all of Israel and the Jewish people."

Africa. Dictator Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe, unlike U.S. politicians, is not afraid to lash out at homos. In response to a pleading letter from Barney Frank and 69 other U.S. congressman, Mugabe said, "Let the Americans keep their sodomy, bestiality, stupid and foolish ways to themselves." Mugabe firmly believes that homosexuality should be treated as a criminal offense and that gays and lesbians are perverts who don't qualify for human rights. Whatever one thinks of Mugabe, the erstwhile black Communist thug puts to shame Western politicians whose only reaction to queers is boot-licking.

Kenya boasts a rare white politician, Richard Leakey, a world-renowned conservationist who lost both his legs in an airplane crash. A few months ago Leakey was badly beaten by goons of dictator Daniel arap Moi, who has accused him of being a racist and colonialist. While Leakey was being beaten, smiling and smirking Kenyan police stood by and lifted not a hand.

In the southern part of civil war-torn Sudan, slaves are being sold for $15 each. . . . As many as 300,000 slaves freed in 1980 in Mauritania still serve their former masters. . . . Machete-wielding Hutu women eagerly took part in the slaughter of some 500,000 Tutsis and moderate Hutus in Rwanda. . . . In the rural area of the Ivory Coast, farm women work 47.6 hours a week, mostly without pay; male farm workers work 27.5 hours a week, mostly for pay. . . . Ten million Africans have AIDS. Two million have already died from the blight.

Argentina. The late Evita Peron is considered a semi-saint by Argentines, which didn't stop a songsmith from insulting her with a Broadway musical. The barbs will be even more barbed in the upcoming film version of Evita, starring Madonna, who is more of a semi-whore than a semi-saint. President Carlos Menem, a passionate Peronista, denounced the movie as a "total and utter disgrace" before filming was underway.

Ponderable Quote

If I knew that it would be possible to save all the children in Germany by bringing them over to England, and only half of them by transporting them to Eretz Israel, then I would opt for the second alternative. For we must weigh not only the life of those children, but also the history of the People of Israel.

Resuscitated Conference

Fear dominates that most interesting and revolutionary area of science—genetics. Three years ago a government-sponsored conference on the link between crime and genes was squelched by the Congressional Black Caucus. The black pols' strange argument was that since Negroes commit so many crimes, the discussion would inevitably zoom in on Negro genes.

What added salt to black wounds was that a few months before the conference was scheduled to take place, Frederick Goodwin, at that time the head of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration, sounded off on the behavior of killer monkeys, who kill other males in order to increase the size of their harems. Calling these monkeys "hyper-aggressive" and "hyper-sexual," Goodwin commented, "Maybe it isn't just a careless use of the word, when people call certain areas of certain cities jungles." He then dared to predict that genetic factors would one day be able to identify violence-prone kids.

These true but hard-to-stomach remarks gave Rep. John Conyers (D-MI) and other Negro congressmen the opportunity to demand that Goodwin be fired. He was duly reassigned and later left the government.

The sponsors of the quashed conference did not give up. By promising to put the screws on high-decibel controversy, they managed to get the government to reconsider. Last September, three years after the first conference was canceled, a well-attended gathering, subsidized by a $133,000 grant from the National Institutes of Health, was held in Queenstown (MD). Nothing much came out of it—the fear factor still dominated—but at least minority-ites were unable to stop it. The worst that happened was that a gang of goons broke in, called everybody Nazis and genocidists and, after parading up and down for 45 minutes, filed out.

Science has had some rough going in its roller-coaster history. Today's yahoos range from the Pat Robertson variety to fanatical liberals and unreconstructed Marxists. Instead of enshrining eugenics as the most effective means of human betterment, inquisitors demonize it. Some of our best racial types are so confused that they inadvertently are assisting in the destruction of their own race.

All in all, our hat goes off to the conference attendees. Though they were careful not to propose any radical genetic approaches to control crime, though on the whole they were rather mealy-mouthed, they did meet and did make it clear to those who are trying to outlaw genetics that the Western and Faustian spirit is not entirely moribund.

In a Class by Themselves

I've daydreamed since I was three feet tall. The other afternoon I daydreamed of Instauration Academy.

A learned, morally incorruptible Instaurationist with a large country home and 50 surrounding acres would be both president of the Academy and its resident instructor. Each year family friends, parents or other relatives would nominate gifted, healthy, 12-year-old boys of Northern European descent for admission to the Instauration Academy.

These future leaders of our cause and our people would be taught the stirring saga of our race, its science, philosophy, myths, literature and its manners and mores. They would learn all the tragic details of the dispossession of their own people. Their eyes would be opened to the prestidigitative masters of deception who have laid us low. They would receive rigorous physical training. They would explore, hike and hunt in the woods and fields. They would read race-boosting books and watch race-boosting videos. They would learn the arts of scholarship and public speaking. At age 18 these elite young Instaurationists would graduate from the Academy, ready, willing and able to lead the fight for the dawning of Our Day.

Day and night dreams have been known to come true. Long ago the gods dreamed of a family of children whose minds were bursting with creativity and itching to end their aloneness.

To the future inaugural class of Instauration Academy, I say, "Live your dream!"

Unlearning What's Been Learned

Foster and Nancy L. Morrison, a Menckenesque couple, have published a book that more than lives up to its catchy title, How to Be Well Educated Without (or Despite) Years of Schooling. The authors, who also put out two newsletters, Critical Factors and Mythbusters, know, as most perceptive Majority members do, that much of modern education in the U.S. and the West can be best described as useless rote learning. Any student who passes through today's liberal-minority indoctrination mill is more than likely to be dragooned into the swelling ranks of the cretinous Pied Pipers who are blindly leading the West back to analphabetism. One way of avoiding this mind-deadening routine is to skip school altogether. Another is to have a handy volume like that of the Morrises' by your side to help you unlearn all that you have been forced to learn. How to Be Well Educated Without (or Despite) Years of Schooling (194 pages) is available from Turtle Hollow Associates, P.O. Box 3639, Gaithersburg, MD 20885-3639, $27.50, postpaid.

Three Magazines Worth a Second Look

A couple of words about some interesting publications, either new ones or ones we have just heard about.

- In October, the first issue of Middle American News hit the stands—or, more accurately, the mailboxes. (Let's hope it does get on newsstands, though the few existing hard-hitting Majority journals have been exiled to the postal service by liberal and minority "free speakers." The new monthly promises to focus on "immigration, the national debt, health services, foreign aid, education, political corruption and many other issues of special interest to middle America." A sub will set you back $20. Write Middle American News, 6610 Six Forks Road, Suite 103, Raleigh, NC 27615.

- Ethnicity, which now incorporates several Eastern European oriented journals, is a bright, off-beat and thoughtful monthly that is dear to Instauration's heart because it has plugged the editor's Ethnostate. Clever cartoons enliven almost every one of its 48 pages. One intriguing piece in the Sept. 1995 issue is the profile of a Polish clone of Gordon Liddy. Annual subscription, $20. Ethnicity, P.O. Box 148, Rockville, CT 06066.

- Anti-Shyster is a bi-monthly whose title says it all. The shysterism of the law profession does not deserve Jack Cade's "Let's kill all the lawyers" speech in Shakespeare's Henry VI (Part 2), but it does deserve some intensive, let-it-all-hang-out critiques, and that is just what it gets in the aptly named Anti-Shyster, 72 pages, $30, P.O. Box 540786, Dallas, TX 75354-0786.

Two New Pro-White Groups

- Americans for Self-Determination is pushing the idea of giving blacks several states in order to get them out of our hair. The ASD address is P.O. Box 34605, Washington, DC 20043.

- The New Frontier Association wants to come together with other like-minded pro-white groups "in the spirit of fellowship and goodwill." Address is P.O. Box 333, Langley, KY 41645.

THE THRILLER WE'LL NEVER SEE!

EVERYTHING WAS AGAINST THEM - THE MEDIA, THE CHURCHES, THE BANKS, THE GOVERNMENT, THE MULTINATIONAL CORPORATIONS- IT WAS INSANE TO ATTEMPT IT, SHEER MADNESS TO EVEN CONCEIVE OF IT, BUT THEY HAD TO...
