
A New Unpopular Way to Measure Intelligence

One of the more intriguing aspects of the neurosciences is that in the near future human intelligence may be measured by a tricky device known as "the IQ Cap," which assesses the smarts of a person by checking his brain waves.

As scientists probe ever deeper into the mysteries of our cerebral apparatus, they are becoming more convinced it is hard-wired by genetics. Harvard Professor Edward O. Wilson, author of two influential books, The Insect Societies and Sociobiology, compares our brain to "an exposed negative waiting to be slipped into the developing fluid." Whether you develop the negative well or poorly, you are going to get very little that is not already imprinted on the film. The print is the individual's genetic history developed over thousands of years of evolution. Not much can be done to alter it.

Wilson states genetics dictate not only temperament, role preferences, emotional responses and levels of aggression, but also many of our most revered moral choices, which are not really choices in any free-will sense, but tendencies and predispositions imprinted in the hypothalamus and limbic regions of the brain.

Thomas Wolfe, in his article, "Sorry, But Your Soul Just Died," (Forbes ASP, Dec. 2, 1996) points out that the vast majority of neuroscientists believe that the genetic component of an individual's intelligence is remarkably high. According to Wolfe they feel, "Your intelligence can be improved upon by skilled and devoted mentors or it can be held back by poor upbringing, but your genes are what really make the difference."

A firm called Neurometrics is trying to market the IQ Cap, which only records brain waves.

A computer records the results, thereby eliminating human error and bias.

The testee, for example, looks at an object, a thumb tack on a blank wall, as the electrodes are activated. In 16 seconds the Cap's computer measures the brain waves and predicts quite accurately what the subject would score on all 11 subtests of the Wechsler Intelligence Scale.

The inventors seemed to have found a gold mine, but Wolfe claims that few neurologists want the Cap. Few want to believe you can derive IQ scores from brain waves because few want to believe that human brain power is hard-wired, that the "genetic fix" is in.

I am not surprised to learn there was little interest in the IQ Cap. The multi-billion-dollar social science industry now functioning in the U.S. is based on the premise if you spend enough money on improving a person's environment, you can raise his academic ability to the point where the student will become an academic success and a productive citizen. A majority of our political and educational leaders cling desperately to this false hope, because reality is too dreadful a threat to their beloved equalitarianism.

Science is forcing us to face the truth about the role of genes in determining intelligence. By refusing to do so we are simply allowing our growing social problems to multiply.

The Irish and Scots Are Coming

Since I wrote an article for Instauration a few years back extolling the virtues of native European folk music, particularly the Keltic variety, the scene has exploded.

So far this year I've gone to the 65th Annual Scottish Games and the Irish Fair. The crowd at the former was down a little from 1996 when everyone was a Scot as the result of two movies, Braveheart and Rob Roy. The crowd at the Irish Fair was large and bustling thanks to Riverdance and Lord of the Dance. Both these events were held in the pits of southern California, yet there was hardly a mud to be seen.

The Scottish heavy athletic contests were a real crowd pleaser. It was quite a sight to watch weights being thrown for distance or height by large men in kilts. The mainstay of the events was the military pipe bands, which brought back memories of the British Empire, which for over 300 years Scottish regiments and divisions helped build, protect and maintain.

The pipe bands and pipe band competitions drew large crowds and featured some excellent musicians. We were most fortunate to have the Los Angeles Scots Pipe Band currently, I believe, number two in the world. If after listening to the march medleys for about ten minutes you don't have an overpowering urge to kick some butt, then you are no Kelt.

More exciting to me, being a bit older, were bands such as Clannad and Capercaille (The Blood Is Strong. How's that for a title!). These aren't rock 'n' roll noises. It is modern Keltic folk music. Some of it is plugged in and some unplugged. Some tunes are sung in English, some in Gaelic.

To me there is nothing more beautiful in the world than one of our women singing in Gaelic. Much of the music is very nationalistic. The music is driving the feeling and the feeling is driving the music which harps on the theme that the Keltic countries (Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Mann, Cornwall and Brittany) have had it with being dominated by England and France.

These are exciting times. These Scots and Irish gatherings are truly exciting events.

Watching the girls dance, listening to the talented musicians and looking around at all the redheads give me a real feeling of hope. I know without a doubt that no meaningful change will take place in this country without the active participation of a goodly number of the tens of millions of the folk who claim Keltic descent.

Not 5.7 Million But 9 Million

Talking Numbers (Sept. 1997) pegged the U.S. Jewish population at 5.7 million. I say increase it by 60%! The late President Ben-Gurion of Israel was as well informed as anyone about Jewish "illegals" infiltrating the U.S. When told back in 1963 that American Jews were officially numbered in those days at 5.6 million, he said 9 million would be a more accurate figure.

No Time for Pussyfooting

In response to Zip 853's "Activists Should Speak More Softly" (Sept. 1997), no one wants the magazine to become a kinder, gentler publication with sensitive, inclusive articles. No Instaurationist wants us to use our interpersonal skills to "build bridges" and "reach out" to our off-white brethren. I can only say to Zip 853, "Hey buddy, wake up and look at the calendar!" The date of our demise has now been firmly established. By the year 2050, whites will be a minority in America. From then on, it's all downhill for us. The time for warm, cuddly sentiments is long gone. We must learn to speak to our own people in plain and simple language and make them understand that the lamps of the white race are going out all over the world. Once these lamps are turned off, they will never be relit. Not ever! When Western civilization goes under, it will be replaced by a jungle in which only the strongest and most ruthless will survive. The barbarians who will inhabit this new Dark Age will not be hospitable to warm and tender words of brotherhood.

Time to Speak Out

Would not now be the time for Professor Raymond Cattell to announce to the American Psychological Association that he affirms ethnostatism because human nature is racist and isolationist? Dr. Cattell probably won't do this heroic deed, but someday a high-profile scientist will. Edward O. Wilson dared not utter such words when they came after him, yet his synthesis of sociobiology reinforced our movement.

Inside Dr. Laura

Whatever Dr. Laura Schlesinger, the reigning Jewish guruess, chooses to say on her radio show is said with such strident finality that most people who tune in are left agape, aghast and sometimes aggrieved. On air, the amateur Chosenite shrink damns with venomous rage any of the foibles of the fallen who call her for advice, delivering such a spiel of moral outrage that the listener is impelled to bring to mind not gloomy conservative Judaism or Father Grab-a-dollar Catholicism, but Bible-thumping fundamentalist Protestantism. In days gone by, Dr. Laura seemed wound up to hate every man who bothered to call her, hissing at him, cutting off his simpering tales and generally berating him for his moral lapses, much in the manner of a basic training sergeant imparting that last dollop of painful wisdom before sending the troops off to the line. Nowadays, Laura is more balanced on the matter of men. Now she often hisses at the women and girls who feed her sad tales of illegitimacy, extramarital intimacy, welfare dependency and amatory violence.

Few blacks bother to air their dirty linen on Laura's show. She just doesn't understand Ebonics. Most callers are from trailer-park America, the lower middle-class group that makes up the quaking moral center of what once was a great land.

Good or bad, high or low, does Laura do any good? Like Aimee Semple McPherson, Billy Sunday and everybody's old Preacher Froth-at-the-mouth, Laura intones old-time morality, not the psychobabble of modern-day mental relativism which calls for ever-repetitive moments of, "I feel your pain." But to a culture that knows no morality, that would rather smoke the weed than weed the garden, that likes boys in bed instead of canning boysenberry, Laura's old-fashioned, even nutty, advice seems way out of touch. Yet she continues to stumble forth on her own way to God-knows-where, anxious as hell to preserve a world that no longer exists except among nervous, knowing, pubescent novitiates cloistered in the religious enclaves of a seedy Nebraska seminary. Thanks to the beneficence of human secularism, Jewish cynicism and minority animalism, the older America of Puritan aims, noble thoughts and admirable sacrifice is all used up. Why, then, do people listen to her rantings? Perhaps because it's a great retro-gas.

IVAN HILD

Government vs. Private Habits

Scattered throughout the content of Instauration are many negative references to the drug trade and its ramifications within our own "darkening" country. Yet I've seen little evidence that Instaurationists have truly grasped the larger significance of what is really transpiring.

Until the Harrison Narcotic Act (1914) virtually all drugs were accessible by any adult in the U.S., yet there were no vicious drug gangs turning cities into war zones, no money-laundering banks, no millions of property crimes, no jam-packed jails.

Anti-drug legislation was enacted so that a powerful wedge into our Bill of Rights could be introduced as the solution to the drug problem: the power of the federal government to seize assets, to conduct searches and seizures, to ask for greater and greater “tools” to respond to an intractable problem created by the government itself in a manner analogous to the sorry history of alcohol prohibition. An even more insidious “fast one” has been pulled off by the arbitrary acceptance of the principle that the government has the right to regulate private behavior for the individual’s own good. Once accepted, such propositions never remain restricted to a single aspect or target. Equally dangerous is that what is really a problem of behavior, principally black behavior, has been transmuted into a system of “victimization”—i.e., young Negro males have been victims of a plan to kill off as many of them as possible; evil whites are “poisoning” the water of poor blacks, etc., etc. The same arguments have been advanced to justify the banning of handguns. Some people murder and rob with guns, ergo the problem is private ownership of guns. The truth is that even (white) morphine addicts have been able to live productive lives during years of regular use. John Halsted, the famous surgeon and co-founder of Johns Hopkins, became a morphine addict as a preferred alternative to his cocaine addiction and went on to perform decades of valuable work. While no one in his right mind would advocate drug use, the results of drug prohibition are far more malignant to the white race than any actual drug usage could ever be. Literally billions of dollars have been thrown away in control efforts. Up to 70% of prison space is wasted, as the erosion of basic liberties grows. Moreover, the demonization of alcohol, drugs—and now cigarettes!—plays right into the hands of the enemy by using the best instincts of the Majority against itself.

Subscriber Calls It Quits

I have been a reader of Instauration since day one and a subscriber for a long time. The reason I ended my sub was that for the last several years the magazine has contained articles with increasing regularity that attack, insult and denigrate the Christian faith and those mindless buffoons that adhere to it. I take great offense to this. I thought Majorityites were trying to save Western Christendom. The attacks on Christianity serve no purpose and are counterproductive. I don’t attack or insult other people’s religious beliefs (or lack thereof). I expect the same consideration. I cannot support a magazine that insults and ridicules my Christian faith.

Give Christianity Its Due

Some *Instauration*ists appear to have no more respect for Christianity than they have for any other faith. They view all religion as primitive and therefore irrelevant to the modern world except in the negative sense that different faiths tend to set the faithful against one another.

Nature, however, does nothing in vain. If the religious impulse had endured in every age and people, shouldn’t even the strictest evolutionist concede that it must have some survival value? Has there ever been a notable culture which did not relate to some order of being higher than human? Since we cannot imagine anything higher than our own kind, we see Deity as much like ourselves, only bigger, better and grander: “Father,” we say, as we paint a human face upon the Void.

This is not a pitch for Christianity or any other religion. We all know the downside. But look how much good has come along with it. That tons of mud have been dumped into the pure spring of the religious spirit cannot mean that the spring itself is polluted. Haven’t the noblest achievements of our own culture sprung from the Christian tradition?

What would be left to an *Instauration*ist who junks all of that? Would he really wish to do without such drinkers from that spring as Dante, Shakespeare, Handel, Bach, Beethoven, Goethe and Dickens? Would he prefer Disneyland to Chartres, Warhol to Rembrandt, Hollywood schlock to Hamlet? Is he happy to see America going back to the jungle?

Without its Christian heritage what would have been left of the Confederate culture Southern whites prized so highly? If Christ had never existed in fact or in myth, Southern planters would never have had the singing of Negro spirituals to comfort them as that “evenin’ sun went down!”

P.J.L.

Forrest’s Anachronistic Loyalty

N.B. Forrest has slipped or misplaced his wig. At the end of “A Southern Revisionist Speaks Out” (Oct. 1997), he states, “I would never let my loyalty to my own people and region blind me to my larger duty as an American.” It’s gotta be a misprint or a misthink. Sure, his own people have not lived up to expectations and have let us all down. Sure, regionalism is still around, but it has become, unfortunately, a less than stirring rallying point. However, what in the hell does N.B.F. mean by “his duty as an American?” Does he mean “American” as was commonly understood prior to these multicultural days or does he still believe there is some valuable ingredients left in the Melting Pot? I think not. The America we all loved is gone. If it is to be revived, it will take on a different body and mentality than the cyborg America in which we are now being held captive. Please, Forrest, say it isn’t sooooo. . .

Bad Advice

Zip 144 (Sept. 1997) told Majority members not to join the FBI, police and military. Bad advice. If we follow this advice, when the crunch comes, we will have no fifth column working for us in the enemy camp.

As is well known the Disney Co. is no friend of Christianity or any religion with the exception of that weird racist cult known as Judaism. Disney-owned ABC's latest adventure in religious skepticism, Nothing Sacred, is a Job-like tale of Father Ray, a Catholic priest who devoted much of his energy to wrestling with doubt and disbelief. Altogether it's a slap at religion in general and Catholicism in particular. The executive producer of Nothing Sacred is David Manning who, like most TV producers, is a Tribesman and is hardly the type to lend balance to the show. Manning said he was shocked that some viewers complained about featuring a priest who is so-so about abortion and bypasses papal strictures on the vows of celibacy. The real message of Nothing Sacred is, to the consternation of the hardline faithful, that the only good Catholic is a bad Catholic. Among other un-priestly preachments, Father Ray advises his congregation not to confess sexual sins. He says he doesn't want to hear about them. So, if someone in his flock happens to be an adulterer, rapist or pedophile and wants to make a clean breast of it, Father Ray will only lend him a deaf ear.

Peter Bogdanovich (father Greek Catholic, mother Jewish) was chosen by Barbra Streisand to direct a series of Showtime films, Rescuers: Stories of Courage, all about—you guessed it—people who saved Jews from the Holocaust!

The latest affront to what is left of Western culture appeared on the tube November 2. The beautiful old European folk tale, Cinderella, was turned into an interracial morality show. Produced by Disney—who else?—and shown on ABC—where else?—Cinderella is black, the fairy godmother is black, Prince Charming is a Filipino, the wicked stepmother is—by Hollywood fiat—white. She has—affirmative actionally—two daughters, one black, one white. Whoopi Goldberg is the Queen. Victor Garber, a Jew, is the King. Co-producer is black singer Whitney Houston. Why does Disney produce such multiracial bamboozlement? Put it down to sheer spite. What the Chosen cannot create, they cheapen.

From LAWRENCE. The other day I had occasion to turn on the TV—in and of itself not a particularly remarkable event, even for me, a person who generally makes a deliberate effort to spend time on more productive pursuits. However on this particular day having grown tired of dreamily imagining huge invisible alien spacecraft emerging from the earth's core and having determined that they weren't going to take VICE President Al Gore back to his home planet, I decided a change of pace was necessary. I therefore opted to undertake something even more ridiculous—TV viewing!

Having tuned in, I quickly found I was to be rewarded with a real-life alien encounter. Several talking heads with shiny capped teeth and somebody else's hair were yammering about news events of the past week. There were five heads in all, including the moderator. All were self-declared media personalities, editors of this and that paper or magazine, with the occasional ex-officio or political consultant thrown in for good measure. Describing themselves as liberal (1), moderates (2) and conservatives (2), they chattered on in excited and staccato tones, frequently interrupting each other.

The highlight of the program was saved for last, where with straight faces they discussed the issue of "media bias." They agreed that statistics indicating the overwhelming majority of mediacrats were self-described liberals could just possibly be valid. . . maybe. . .it's not ruled out. . .it might be. . .Yup! Immediately the usual canards about the unreliability of statistics and the invalidity of simple numerical comparisons were brought up. Sensing it was insufficient to rest upon the laurels of this transparent condemnation, they backed up their defense with a fallback avenue of disinformation.

Yes, they said, the majority of the media may consist of persons who may well be far to the left of their viewers. We'll never admit it but, even if true, not to worry! We would never allow our personal views and biases to influence our reporting! Never! Never! Never! Gee, I didn't know that. Nor did I know of the special and higher morality apparently invested upon media persons by some higher power, a power apparently inaccessible to lowly un-Chosen folks. And how could I doubt their sincerity and evenhandedness? After all the panel consisted of one liberal, two moderates and two conservatives!

Another great mystery which defies the laws of random chance is that the same type of "non-bias" reporting and docudrama occurs over and over again. The noble American Indian, that paragon of naturalism and ecologically sound land management, is presented as the victim of exploiting, evil, treaty-breaking whites (who incidentally always seem to have bad teeth—must be something in the water!). The Negro is portrayed as honest, intelligent and hard-working, his vast accomplishments minimized or usurped and his family terrorized by moonshine-swilling Southern rednecks. Then there is the unfortunate nonwhite homosexual who contracted AIDS because whites wouldn't give him free needles to inject his drugs. Add to these media stereotypes the honest Jew, the clean, diligent Mexican and all of those other wonderful light-brown people who suffer at the hands of Caucasians.

Why then is anyone surprised that Johnny ends up dead from a drug overdose, heroin chic being the latest fashion craze. Shouldn't it be expected that Bob would decide to explore his alternative sexuality in bus-stop restrooms? The gay lifestyle is just so "cool." Or Grace, lovely little Grace who's encouraged by some Pentecostal TV multimillionaire to go to the Congo to help the poor down-at-heel Africans she's heard so much about, and as her reward is hacked to death with machetes. Seeing all this on TV, parents look at each other dumbfoundedly. They recall in horror when their beautiful tow-headed children, upon reaching adolescence and having consumed thousands upon thousands of hours of TV and TV-inspired consumer culture, decided that since whites are so bad they're going to reject their own kith and kin and become "Wiggers," pathetic white kids who aimlessly run the streets as they attempt to act, dress and speak like Negroes. Why? Because "black is beautiful."

Where did we go wrong, the politically correct husband and wife ask? What can we do? To whom can we turn? Who will stop "them" from robbing us?

When the chips are down and the savages are at the gates who will fight back? People like that white Southern redneck with the bad teeth, people unpolished on the outside but inwardly uncorrupted souls who throughout the years held on to what so many of the weak and complacent upper middle-class lost—WHITE PRIDE!

Gee, the politically correct couple say, desperately searching for answers, maybe it really is something in the water. The one liberal, two moderates and two conservatives can't be biased, they told us they weren't, and repeated these assurances as José burglarized their cars, Leroy looted their homes and Bruce cut their throats from ear-to-ear with his favorite knife. Just like the one he saw on TV!

From Zip 330. Deaf from birth, expert on Beethoven, lecturer on the beauty of the Grand Canyon, dwarfish 4'7" Dr. Ruth Westheimer, charitably described as homely, sells herself as the country's top expert on sex. The Holocaust survivor recently rated a biography on the A&E network. As they say, "Those who can't, teach."

From Zip 813. Notes from the Sceptred Isle (Oct. 1997) dealing with Spanish culture was outstanding. Unfortunately it was also prophetic. The 1992 Olympics in Spain, rather than an athletic contest, was more a worldwide celebration of the return of the Chosen to the land of some of their darkest deeds. Less than a year after that Olympian festival of muscle and mindlessness a contest was held for the best foreign commercial of the year. The winner, surprisingly, was Spain. The new liberalized Spain, gone with the hot wind of the Olympiad, was the Spain we had so long identified more with culture and taste than with TV commercials.

I cannot for the life of me remember what it was the commercial was selling—it could have been glue, bagels, condoms or beer—but it went like this: Two nuns in full habit are leaving a darkened church when—lo and behold—they espy a spotlighted statue of baby Jesus with his itty-bitty manhood laying on a lace doily at his feet. Faster than one can say, "it's a miracle" the two ladies in black leave and return, momentarily blocking the statue of the Son of God from the TV viewer. Then the liberalized brides of Christ flee in a swirl of giggles, one with a bottle of glue in her hand. Christendom's most hallowed image, his face glowing with innocence and purity, is standing with his penis now glued on upside down or with an erection, if you will. Yes, John Nobull, the Chosen and their lackeys are back in Spain, making TV commercials as Vatican 2 grovels in its customary supine politically correct manner.

Blamers Get Some Blame

Hip, hip hooray! A book has finally been written that puts part of the blame for anti-Semitism on Jews themselves. Many Jewish woes—as anti-Semites have always known but have had great difficulty making public—are self-inflicted. The book is Esau's Tears: Modern Anti-Semitism and the Rise of the Jews (Cambridge University Press). The author is Albert Lindeman, who, among other iconoclastic effusions, sternly critiques Daniel Goldhagen, the rabid Jewish racist who blames the entire population of Germany for the Holocaust and openly categorizes Germans as an evil race. Instauration plans to review Esau's Tears in a future issue.

March On

In a flurry of marches in recent months, only a modicum of media attention was focused on the October 23 march on Capitol Hill "to phase out aid for Israel." A hundred times more attention was given to the Million Black Women March, which somehow started out as the Million Women March. The most that can be said about it is that "million" is pure unadulterated hype. (It's a wonder the press didn't say Six Million!) The best guess for the number of participants in Farrakhan's Million Man March in 1995 was 600,000. The Promise Keepers March probably topped off at 500,000. It consisted mostly of white men who drew the wrath of the media for coming out against abortion and homosexuality. The Promise Keepers blamed nobody but themselves for the rampant violence, abortion, adultery and family abandonment in society. For this confession the National Organization of Women sanctimoniously deemed the men to be "the greatest danger to women's rights."

The President conveniently absented himself from the nation's capital on the day the Promise Keepers gathered in the Mall. Upon leaving town, one of history's greatest "Promise Breakers," parroting the words of NOW leader, Patricia Ireland, showed he completely misunderstood the purpose of the Promise Keepers, to wit, their sincere intent to be husbands and fathers of integrity, stability and personal responsibility, worthy of the authority and respect that traditionally had been accorded to the pater familias of a Christian family. Since the American social revolution of the 1960s, male authority or more precisely the authority of white males of European descent has been under constant attack. Federal and state agencies have become increasingly female dominated. Clinton, who never really feels comfortable in the company of men, didn't return to the White House until the Promise Keepers had packed up and gone home.

A Derisive Figure

According to Paula Jones, Clinton's "distinguishing characteristic" turns out to be a curvature of his overworked male organ. The condition, say some doctors, may be Peyronie's disease, an acute bend, sometimes as much as 180°, of the penis. Thanks to Clinton's superheated satyriasis, seasoned with a little perversion, the occupant of what used to be a highly respected office, has become a laughing-stock, a sorry joke, a figure of derision. What must other heads of state think when they meet Clinton at all those summits? They obviously have to struggle to take him seriously. Historians often rank nations by their leaders. By this system of classification the nation that a hundred years ago got an "A" now rates at the very most a "D-."

Midwest and Farwest Geniuses

Thomas Edison, born in Port Huron (MI), invented the light bulb. Lee de Forest, a native of Council Bluffs (IA), invented the vacuum tube. The co-inventors of the transistor, John Bardeen, Walter Brattain and William Shockley, come from Madison (WI), Seattle and Palo Alto (CA), respectively. The two inventors of the microchip, the key element of computers, were Jack Kirby, Jefferson City (MO), and Robert Noyes, Grinnell (IA). (Tom Wolfe, Forbes, ASAP, Aug. 25, 1997)

Laws Won't Do the Job

One would think from reading the newspapers and viewing TV that affirmative action is on the way out. All kinds of decisions and rulings from the Supreme Court on down have forbidden it. The fact is that very few privately owned or corporate businesses have been affected. Even in the government, since the President openly approves racial preferences (for other races than his own), many new anti-affirmative action regulations have been ignored. In the big cities Majority members are getting the shaft more than ever, as black and white mayors either blatantly or sub rosa go about keeping or introducing new quotas. Anyone who seriously believes that government officials and college presidents will be sent to jail for refusing to outlaw racial preferences is off his rocker.

The only way affirmative action could really be eradicated in urban America would be to install a military dictatorship or to organize a secret society that would severely punish government officials who deliberately violate anti-affirmative action laws, rules and regulations.

Majority members who want to recapture all their lost country should understand that the only way to win the U.S. back is to first establish an ethnostate and proceed from this racial bastion to the Reconquista.

Anything for a Buck

Al Gore put in his two cents for homosexuality when he praised TV's Ellen show at a dinner thrown by his good friends in Hollywood—closer friends, by the way, than the home folks in Tennessee, who don't, as a rule, dig queers and their apologists. The Veep's exact words: "When the character Ellen came out, millions of Americans were forced to look at sexual orientation in a more open light." Elizabeth Birch, head of the Human Rights Campaign, the nation's largest organization of homosexuals, gushed that Gore "demonstrated sensitivity and insight about lesbianism and gay Americans." Birch didn't mention that Gore would have eulogized a TV show about bestiality if it would rake in some six- or even seven-figure contributions to his 1999 race for the White House.

As for Ellen DeGeneres herself, on the tube and in the flesh, she shored up her position as the media's starry-eyed TV

UnChosen Gift

Instauration is going out of its way to disrecommend this tie as a Christmas present for that special someone.

The monstrosity is called St. Albert's Tie and is supposed to have originated in Australia. If we knew the address of the manufacturer, if there is a manufacturer, we certainly would not pass it on. We believe the sooner Bombfather's memory is deflated, the better.

sensation du nuit by feigning outrage that a parental advisory had been affixed to one of her shows for doing or hinting she would do what comes naturally to lesbians. "When will it stop?" she or her Hollywood flacks asked. "If you say, 'Don't watch a show that has gay people on it,' who's to say they won't one day say, 'Don't watch a show that has black people on it or Jews?'" Comments like these demonstrate that Ellen and her puppeteers know exactly how to push the right buttons. It was no surprise that the parental warning was quickly removed.

Blonde, blue-eyed, vaguely attractive Ms. DeGeneres is the ideal front woman for the homo lobby that flourishes in Hollywood, San Francisco, New York and Washington. She does a much better job of promoting her perverted ways than a frothing-at-the-mouth queer or simpering transvestite. Chances are she may actually believe in what she's doing. If so, she might take some time off to read Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Should this be too heavy for her, a dip into Suetonius is advised.

Meanwhile, Gore's boss, whose increasing arrogance leads him to believe that he can get away with almost anything and everything, made a disgusting spectacle of himself by addressing a gay and lesbian dinner, the first appearance of a president before a gathering of perverts. Clinton later compounded the disgust by posing with Al Sharpton, one of the lowliest of antiwhite Negro racists.

Befuddled Activists

Lest any "patriot" have a twinge of sympathy for the perpetrators of the Oklahoma City bombing, let him ponder this:

1. McVeigh was responsible for killing 180 people in one of the whitest cities in the U.S.
2. In a confused attempt to explain his actions McVeigh offered an inappropriate quote from super-Zionist Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis.
3. Terry Nichols cared so little about his race that he married a Filipina.
4. McVeigh used as his chief excuse the Feds firebombing of the David Koresh cult in Waco, which welcomed all races into its congregation and succeeded in minorityizing a large part of it. Why should a Majority member be deeply concerned about what happened to a cult led by an ethnic religious nut who had enough charisma to bemuse 76 followers to the point of being willing to burn themselves to a crisp for him?

The Only Solution

How great is capitalism when it permits the growth of huge, monolithic, monopolistic corporations that expend millions of dollars trying to defeat any and all attempts to shut or even half-shut the flood gates of immigration? All that keeps this nation working is the shrinking Nordic and Alpine racial backbone. Remove this and the work ethic that goes with it and you destroy what is left of the nation's infrastructure. The load of high culture is a heavy one. It can only be borne if a certain proportion of select genes is there to bear it. Fewer such genes and an ever smaller proportion of them is a guaranteed recipe for disaster. The solution is to cluster Nordic-Alpine genes in one or more ethnstates, which by the innate genetic superiority of their population will manage to survive while the rest of what remains of the U.S. goes down the tubes.

Collector of Shekels

Expanding his campaign to out-Jew the Jews, Morris Seligman Dees is peddling a curriculum kit to schools. A Shadow of Hate: A History of Intolerance in America, which among many other banalities makes a martyr out of Leo Frank, lynched back in 1917 for murdering Mary Phagan, a white Southern working girl. Dees is well aware that Jews never forget, never forgive and never cease to reward renegade whites who promote the Chosen's anti-goy agenda. Accordingly he's made himself a master of feeding Jews anti-Semitic horror stories calculated to scare them into giving him ever larger amounts of shekels.

WASPless Nominations

Getting Clinton to choose a WASP for a federal job is like pulling teeth.

• His most curious appointment is Virginia Abruzzo to be in charge of White House operations. One of the 18 "assistants to the President," Ms. Abruzzo is a onetime nun and a practicing lesbian. Her appointment can be ascribed to Clinton's promise to reserve five important jobs in the White House for homosexuals.

• After a long wait the Arkansas Blue-beard nominated the very black-skinned black, David Satcher, to be the new Sur- geon General to fill the shoes of Joycelyn Elders, forced to resign after recommending that school children be taught about masturbation. What senator would dare block the confirmation of a full-blooded Negro who looks like Uncle Tom and acts like Colin Powell?

• The new ambassador to France is Felix Rohatyn, a partner of the Jewish international banking firm of Lazard Frères. The new ambassador to Germany is John Kornblum. The new Asst. Secretary for the Near East, the man who has a lot to say about the so-called peace process, is Martin Indyk, a Jewish Australian. The new ambassador to Egypt is Daniel Kurtzer. After the latter's appointment the Egyptian newspaper, Al Shaab, asked: "Why does the U.S. always appoint Jews to deal with the problems of the Middle East and no Muslims? All Jews work to enhance the Israeli situation. U.S. policy decisions do not reflect a desire for peace in the Middle East."

• Daryl Jones is Clinton's black nominee for Secretary of the Air Force. The Secretary of the Army is Togo West, a black whom Clinton appointed back in his first term.

Anita Is Back

Six years after her dramatic attempt to torpedo the nomination of fellow black Clarence Thomas to the High Court, Anita Hill has written a self-serving book, Speaking Truth to Power. The ever agitating N-gress identifies the senators who presided over Thomas's confirmation hearings as "14 white men dressed in dark, grey suits." Such a, let us say, "racist statement" from a Majority member would have driven the media up the wall. It all goes to prove once again that freedom of speech in this country is freer for some people than for others. Minorities can count on it. To the Majority it's an ignis fatuus.

Unsuffering Killer

O.J. Simpson's newly rented home ($6,000 a month) sits on top of a Los Angeles ridge that boasts panoramic views of the city and the blue Pacific. It has four bedrooms, four and a half baths and a pool. The double murderer pockets $25,000 a month before taxes from a $4-million private pension fund that is exempt from the $33.5 million judgment. O.J. wiggled his way into the Louise Woodward infanticide case by saying that when a babysitter shook one of his kids he fired her on the spot. Is O.J. getting ready to become a columnist or talking head? May we expect him to run for Congress in a few years, when all will be forgiven?

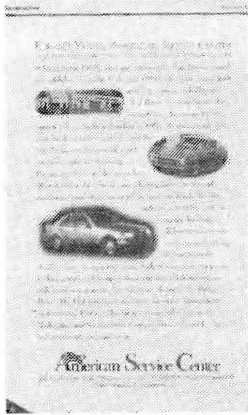

Death By Hunger

A black Kentucky couple, Susan and Billy Gene Mitchell, let their two-year-old son, Jeffrey, starve to death, giving him nothing but water for the last week of his abbreviated life. A daughter, 3, was on the point of death when police investigators arrived. Another daughter, 6, escaped the hunger inflicted on her by her parents by eating breakfast and lunch at a local elementary school. The Mitchells, who live on the husband's $1,400-a-month Air Force pension, seemed completely unruffled by the fate of their children. Parental love, it has often been noted, is in very short supply in some Negro families.

Jewish Yellow Pages

Chosenites in the nation's capital are getting so rich, prosperous and numerous that they now have a Jewish Yellow Pages to browse through. It's called Jewish A to Z and it's free. It's not bigger than the phone company's Yellow Pages—yet—but it is getting there.

After listing 14 pages of various community programs, it starts out with Accountants and goes on to include: Attorneys, Bagels, Banks, Bar/Bat

Mitzvahs, Catering, Circumcision, Coins and Currency, Delicatessens, Financial Planning, Investments, Israel, Judaica, Kipot, Kosher Products, Matchmakers, Mohels, Orthodontics, Physicians, Restaurants, Speech Pathology, Stockbrokers, Temples and Zionism.

Maverick Professor

WASPs are so invertebrate these days that to hear the truth the public must bend its ears to less exalted whites. Lino Graglia, a University of Texas law professor, is unafraid to say out loud some of what he thinks about racial differences. When asked his opinion of the late Justice William Brennan, he compared him, correctly, to a carnival huckster. Graglia's latest verbal blockbusters: "Blacks and Mexican Americans can't compete academically with whites" and "failure is not looked upon as a disgrace" in many minority communities. Such words lured Jesse Jackson to the U.T. campus where he recommended that law students boycott Graglia's classes. Having endeavored to defend the white cause for many years, the professor wasn't saying anything that he hadn't said before. The Texas media, however, always on the qui vive for anything that could be interpreted as having a "racist" slant, played the story to the hilt.

Texas Governor George W. Bush, as duplicitous as his father and with his gimlet eye on the presidency, went into his carefully honed minority massaging mode by saying, "Professor Graglia's remarks were inappropriate and insensitive." Inevitably Clinton himself joined the denunciatory chorus.

Graglia may have fewer opponents in U.T. in the future as affirmative action in state-supported facilities has been banned in Texas by an appeals court. Only four blacks and 26 Mexicans applied to enter the U.T. law school this year, compared to 31 and 43, respectively, the previous year.

Obese Minorityites

A couple days ago I came across one of those typical, withering sights that make a person wonder if it really is a good idea to be an American. The scene was right out of Democracy 101. Half a thousand minority types were protesting the imposition of public welfare cutbacks. What made it so fascinatingly ironic was the physiques of the protesters, particularly the thundering thighs of the women carrying the protest placards. The rolls of fat cascading down their legs at first looked comic, then appeared grotesque and ugly. How, I wondered, could these shamefully underprivileged folk grow so corpulent? How could the male protesters, some sporting bodies obviously acquired by hours exercising with barbells, refuse a few hours of honest labor for the checks they were now demanding?

Decline of Christmas

Back in the 1920s Christmas in the U.S. was still Christmas. Hardly anyone had heard of Hanukkah, a so-called festival of lights, except Jews. Muslim holidays were nonexistent in the West and there were no Negro holidays. Today, although Jews represent only 2% or 3% of the population, they are trying and often succeeding in making Hanukkah as important a holiday as Christmas. If it weren't for the huge amount of money Jews make from the Christmas shopping mania, Christmas, which now puts Santa Claus above Christ, might be a secondary holiday.

Kwanzaa (note the official U.S. stamp) is only 33 years old. The brainchild of Ron Karenga, who served four years for torturing two women, it allegedly celebrates the black family, community and culture.

To show how the holiday tide is turning, it is becoming ever more difficult to see one of the standard Christmas season films, It's a Wonderful Life, with Jimmy Stewart. The film only showed up on one network last year, because Jews have been stepping up their campaign to phase out the movie completely from the holiday film and TV line-up. The Chosen insist that it is barely camouflaged racist demagoguery. The figure of Mr. Potter, they complained, the "scheming, grasping banker played by Lionel Barrymore as a hunched-back monster," is an incitation to anti-Semitism.

Only One Holocaust Is Kosher

As they were behind so many culture-mulching movements, American Jews were also catalysts of gay rights and were largely responsible for homosexuality becoming a pillar of respectability. Perhaps for the first time in history sodomy and its related perversions have been elevated to the level of "normality," as the media and entertainment industry chant its praises. In the interim mediacrats are promoting homo and lesbian couples as preeminent nurturers of children.

A fuse was lit, however, when the New York Gay and Lesbian Museum inadvertently horned in on the Holocaust industry by announcing that queers had suffered as much as Jews in the vilest event in the story of mankind. Whereupon Jews quickly let it be known that queers were trespassing on private property.

The ferocious Jewish reaction left homos and lesbians a tad shell-shocked. Although Jews had been their allies and champions since day one of the Age of Diversity, the queers suddenly found themselves damned as noxious sexual deviates for taking one tiny step on Jewish turf.

Primate Watch

In 1973-93 Richard Allen Davis, the mixed-breed kidnapper and murderer of 12-year-old Polly Klaas in California, was arrested 10 times for burglary, twice for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, twice for possession of a dangerous weapon, twice for robbery, twice for kidnapping, once for escaping from jail, once for vehicle tampering, once for possession of marijuana, once for attempted armed robbery, once for attempted kidnapping, once for attempted oral copulation, once for assault, once for obstructing a police officer, once for auto theft.

Yasuyoshi Kato, a Jap who moved to the U.S., has been jailed for stealing $62 million from a Los Angeles meat processing company, which hired him as its chief financial officer. Prosecutors believe the theft was the largest single corporate embezzlement in U.S. history.

Mikal A. Shabazz of Portland (OR) pleaded guilty to 43 charges of rape, sex abuse, sodomy and robbery. The black masher got 40 years. Two questions: How many of his victims were white women; did he have AIDS? Another Negro mass rapist, Nushawn Williams, did have AIDS.

AIDS rapist Williams

How many of his 28 sex partners in rural Chautauqua County (NY) he infected is still undetermined. Quite a few were white. It's hard to believe that any female of any race would get within arm's length of anyone as ugly as Nushawn.

In 1992, Francisco Padilla drove into the back of a pickup and killed three men. He was out of jail in no time. Last September he was picked up on a charge of drunk driving, for which he received 12 months' probation.

Another minority criminal who should have served a lot of time but got off with a year's probation was pervert Marv Albert, the toothsome millionaire Jewish sports announcer.

Mary Treadwell, erstwhile spouse of D.C. Mayor Marion Barry, pleaded guilty to stealing $10,400 destined for a playground and other municipal services.

The woman gruesomely raped and slain by a Negro in her home in Montgomery (AL) ("Horrible Way to Go," Nov. 1997, p. 18) was the sister of Danny Welch, the director of Morris Dees's Klan Watch. Bread on the waters.

Elizabeth Taylor, 65, has undergone some 30 major operations, including three hip transplants and the removal of a brain tumor. Married eight times, she has renounced any further trips to the altar, explaining that in the old days she thought it proper to be hitched to whomever she happened to be giving her body. Now she doesn't "see why anyone of the same sex or opposite sex in this day and age needs to get married."

Two Negro brothers shot and killed two white police officers when the blacks were stopped for a traffic check. The double murder occurred at high noon on North Carolina's busiest freeway. Eleven weeks earlier in the same state a white Raleigh police detective and a small-town police chief were murdered, also by blacks.

The Temple Judea in Tarzana (CA) is the first large synagogue in the land known to have a homosexual rabbi, Donald Goor.

Sixty-nine people were arrested in south Florida for running one of the nation's biggest insurance frauds (staged auto accidents). Most, if not all, of the crooks were Hispanics.

David Berkowitz, the infamous Son of Sam who murdered six people more than ten years ago, has announced he has become a born-again Christian. Berkowitz, a Jew, is serving six consecutive sentences of 25 years to life.

All too often when a black-white affair breaks off, the white female is killed by her black lover who later may or may not commit suicide. The standard scenario underwent a 180-degree shift in Dallas a few months ago. Blue-eyed Deana Mena, deciding she no longer wanted to suffer any further beatings by her black boyfriend, shot Don Burnham three times in the head before she turned her gun on herself. As is common in such interracial affairs, the man and woman met at their workplace, in this case an AT&T office.

Too busy committing crimes to apply for citizenship, two Dallas-based Ethiopians, Gessesse Tesfaye and Girma Wondirad, have been accused of stealing more than $449,775 worth of property tax refunds from Southwest Airlines.

Southern black women, particularly when they were pregnant, used to eat clay dirt, a finely ground subsoil. In 1971 a research team found that half the women surveyed in a rural Mississippi county consumed this rather untasty "soul food." Today this peculiar habit is dying out. "In another generation, it will be very hard to find," attests Dr. Dennis Frate of the University of Mississippi.

A woman is suing a Potomac (MD) synagogue for $2.5 million. She was raped there seven years ago by an Hispanic the first day he was hired. The Jewess was 13 at the time. Now 21, she claims to have suffered permanent and disabling injuries that have persisted since the day her virginity was terminated. The rapist, Ricardo Antonio Campos, after serving a three-year jail sentence, was sent back to El Salvador, his native habitat.

A U.N. human rights "expert" on executions is traveling up and down the U.S. checking prisons and their treatment of prisoners. His name is Bacre Waly Ndiaye and he comes from Senegal. In view of the lamentable state of the correctional institutions in his own country, his present activities can only be characterized as the acme of chutzpah.

For stealing the research of his assistant and claiming it to be his own, Dr. Marion Perlmutter and his employer, the University of Michigan, were sued by the aggrieved Dr. Carolyn Phinney, a Majority member. Another Jewish psychologist, Dr. Richard Adelman, tried desperately to cover up for his racial cousin. Despite all the odds Phinney won her suit and was awarded more than $1.6 million. "What happened to me was intellectual rape," she commented.

After reading that Madam Albright, during her 1984 trip to Israel, disrobed and went swimming in the Dead Sea in her underwear, an Instaurionist commented: "It must have been quite a sight. At least she wasn't topless."

Gates's almost obscene wealth also drew headlines when his gigantic palace on the shores of Lake Washington was assessed at $53,332,000, which called for an annual property tax of more than $600,000, a sum he can easily afford, but which he is appealing. Canada. From a subscriber. Canada's "nice-guy" image took a beating after a sloppy, screwed-up assassination attempt in Jordan by Mossad agents. Two men carrying Canadian forged passports were arrested in Amman after they attacked Hamas leader Khaled Meshal and injected a new Israeli-concocted poison in his ear. (The would-be killers must have read Hamlet, Act I, Scene V.) Meshal's life was saved by King Hussein, who ordered the reluctant Netanyahu to send an antidote.

In his 1990 book, By Way of Deception, Victor Ostrovsky, a Canadian-born former Mossad agent, mentions seeing about 1,000 blank Canadian passports in Mossad hands. Although Israeli terrorists will sometimes use passports from other countries, Ostrovsky wrote, they have been using Canadian identities on their murder missions since the early 1970s.

Mossad's preference for Canadian documents is understandable. Multiculturalism, Canada's state religion, decrees that valid Canadian passports be handed out freely to virtually all takers. Canadian citizens need not even be able to speak English or French. Ostrovsky's remarks recall the old National Lampoon joke that Canada is the country of choice wherever passports are bought and sold.

Mossad's operations, needless to say, imperil Canadian tourists and businessmen, who can now expect anything from extensive delays at border crossings to mob violence in the Middle East. Following the attack on Khaled Meshal, Jordanian police warned Canadian visitors to stay indoors.

Israel apologized to Canada and promised to change Mossad's passport policy. Canada responded by returning its envoy, Chosenite David Berger, to Israel after he had been recalled in protest. Ottawa doesn't seem overly bothered that an identical promise from Israel in 1981 was somehow forgotten.

Canadians vary somewhat in their attitudes towards blacks. In parts of Nova Scotia Negroes and whites have co-existed uneasily for hundreds of years. Outbreaks of racial violence, usually at high schools, are common. Thirty years of mass immigration have scattered blacks throughout Canada, but large concentrations are mostly limited to the southern Ontario megalopolis. There, many whites have what might be called an American-level awareness of Negroid viciousness. But overall, Canadians are very slow in outgrowing their racial naiveté. This is especially evident in their willingness to take vacations in Negro countries.

In the early 1970s, when the Caribbean first became an affordable tourist Mecca, Canadian visitors were distinguished from Americans by their openness towards blacks. That resulted in a Jamaican term to denote a rape victim—"another lucky Canadian."

In 1995, after a series of brutal attacks on Canadians, an Alberta man visiting Jamaica was murdered in his hotel room while protecting his wife and daughter from a knife-wielding hotel employee. His widow tried unsuccessfully to have Ottawa start warning travelers about the Caribbean, just as the government issues warnings about visiting other dangerous regions. Speaking on the condition of anonymity, a Canadian consular official in Jamaica agreed, saying that Ottawa is "negligent" not to issue a warning.

Robberies, rape and murder continue while Canadians keep their heads in the sand. This metaphor took on a grisly aspect with an attack that took place in October on the island of St. Maarten. A gun-toting gang of blacks forced a Canadian couple to get on their knees and put their faces in the sand. So positioned, the pair were robbed and the woman raped.

One more stage in Canadian apartheid—the parallel system of government functions and legislation favouring aboriginals—likely will be the establishment of native-only courts. Two of Canada's richest and most dysfunctional Indian tribes are now demanding their own halls of "justice," which are to be staffed with redskin judges, prosecutors, lawyers and clerks. Funding will come from taxpayers, i.e., non-Indians. The hope is that natives will look kindly on their own criminals and reduce the rate of conviction. Although Indians comprise only about 2% of Canada's population, they represent 17% of all prison inmates.

Indians already have a native-only prison and to some extent in the North a native-only court system which practices "circle sentencing," a recently revived version of an old custom known only to a few tribes. The present-day variant begins with a religious rite to one or another Stone Age deity. The offender, who must plead guilty to qualify for the procedure, sits in a circle with 10 or 12 other members of his tribe. Every participant gets a chance to talk and the proceedings drag on as people prattle on for hours about their inner feelings and other emotional gibberish. The collective logorrhea itself might serve as an effective deterrent. At any rate the actual penalties handed out are consistently lenient.

A new, modified "circle sentencing" will be a more formal and more litigious affair. The scheme may have been hatched entirely by Indian lawyers, of whom there have been plenty since law schools instituted affirmative action. One problem, though, is inexperience. Few Indian lawyers bother to practice law. Most end up in vaguely defined but high salaried government jobs. The rationale for separate courts is further damaged by the fact that, despite several hundred years of contact, the plan's supporters admit Indians have yet to understand white people's law.

England. From a subscriber. Theodore (Ted) Hall, an American proditor living in England, committed one of the most heinous crimes in history. In 1941, when he was 18 years old, Hall was recruited from Harvard by Robert Oppenheimer to work on the Manhattan Project. It was Hall, supposed to be a brilliant young physicist, who gave secrets of the atom bomb to Stalin.

Hall was a member of a Communist group at Harvard. Oppenheimer claimed this vital piece of information was not forthcoming because no thorough background check had been made of his young protégé. Oppenheimer was a Communist sympathizer and a Jew. Hall was a

Oppie, accessory after the fact

Communist, who insisted on wearing a yarmulke while working on the bomb at Los Alamos, all the while having secret meetings with two Soviet couriers, Saville Sax, Hall's onetime roommate at Harvard, and Lona Cohen. Hall was never nabbed by the FBI and left for England in 1962, where he was hired by Cambridge University. Now suffering from terminal cancer, he allowed two writers to interview him for a book, Bombshell, detailing his past misdeeds. The opus, authored by Joseph Albricht, divorced husband of U.S. Secretary of State, and Marcia Kunstel, is a bit of a whitewash. When asked why he gave the secrets of the bomb to the Soviet Union, Hall claims the reason was "parity." He believed the U.S. should not be the sole possessor of such a powerful weapon. Queried why Hall was not being returned to America to stand trial for treason, the authors answered that he was old and sick and there really weren't many people alive who could testify against him. Since when is a confession not evidence?

Think about it! Here is a despicable spy who delivered America's vital military secrets to America's prime enemy and we are told we should just forget about him! What a bloody outrage! Think of the elderly Nazi "war criminals" hounded to their deaths for absolutely nothing.

One of the most insightful psychologists of modern times, Hans Eysenck, 81, passed away in London last September. Despite the sound and fury of latter-day Freudians and present-day environmentalists, Eysenck held to his belief in racial differences in intelligence and was not afraid to say so in numerous articles and in a 1971 book, Race, Intelligence and Education, in which he endorsed the views of the equally persecuted Arthur Jensen. Despite a Chosenite stepfather, Eysenck was acceptable to the Nazis, but they were too ideological for him. He slipped away to France and then to England where he worked his way up the academic ladder until he attained the position of Professor of Psychology at London University's Institute of Psychiatry. Anytime anyone uses the words, "extrovert" or "introvert," he is paying homage to Hans Eysenck, who invented the terms.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tyndall were approaching an East London pub where John was scheduled to speak when they were set upon by 40-plus goons who knocked Mrs. Tyndall down, kicked her mercilessly and severely beat her husband. The beating left bruises all over the British National Party leader's body. Robert Faurisson received a more brutal beating a few years ago at the hands of French thugs, which required his hospitalization. The same treatment was given by German radical leftists to Jürgen Rieger, a Hamburg lawyer, who dared to question some sacred tenets of the Holocaust. As far as is known, few members of the rent-a-mobs who staged these attacks have ever been caught. Free speech? If anyone thinks that Brits, French and Germans enjoy it, he should rent a room in the nearest nuthouse.

The British medical journal, Lancet, has published an article demanding that the Israel Medical Association disavow the Israeli High Court's approval of torture of Palestinian prisoners. If it doesn't, the IMA should be thrown out of the World Medical Association.

Norway. The least liked of all tourists in Norway are the Israelis. So states a survey of Norwegian hotel owners. Not only is their behavior loutish, but the Israelis are known for taking away everything in their hotel rooms that is not nailed down. The question is, does the behavior of Israeli tourists differ from that of Jews worldwide? Most Instaurationists who have had firsthand experience with Jews, either in America or abroad, would have to say there is minimal difference.

Switzerland. The media onslaught on Switzerland is beginning to bear fruit—golden apples to be more precise. Beleaguered Swiss banks are getting ready to pay out $192 million to Jewish organizations, which promise to turn the loot over to alleged Holocaust survivors or their alleged descendants. In the meantime Jews are tightening their financial squeeze on the Swiss from the U.S. end. Hiram Fong, an Asian American who is California's State Treasurer, has canceled the investment of $2 billion in state funds in three Swiss banks and one U.S. subsidiary. By doing so Republican Fong hopes to strengthen his chances to be the G.O.P. choice to run for the Senate next year against incumbent Jewish Democrat Barbara Boxer.

In New York, Jewish "pressure" on the Swiss so far has been limited to forcing the Union Bank of Switzerland to withdraw from a consortium putting together a $1.08-billion loan for Zoo City. The leading shakedown artist in this case is New York Comptroller Alan Hevesi, who was obviously smoothing the way for his reelection in November.

France. The Socialist Finance and Industrial Minister of France, the second most important job in the French government, is millionaire Dominique Strauss-Kahn, a 47-year-old ex-Comsymp, whose wife, Ann Sinclair, is as Jewish as her husband. Sinclair, a sort of French Larry King, presided over French television's most popular chit-chat show for 14 years. Now she has given up her program and will be a main player in running TFI, France's largest and most influential TV channel. When her husband is not out dancing or busy playing the piano, he devotes most of his energy to promoting the New World Order.

For telling a French newspaper that blacks differ genetically from whites and that immigrant benefits should be given to French citizens, Catherine Mégret, the Front National mayor of Vitrolles, was given a three-month suspended jail sentence and fined 50,000 francs ($10,000). Soon afterwards Professor Robert Faurisson was fined 120,000 francs ($24,000) in another attempt to silence his argument that gas chambers in Auschwitz were nonexistent.

Germany. A daughter of Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel has married a Jew. A daughter of Rudolf Scharping, a possible successor to Chancellor Kohl, has married a black. Why shouldn't the daughters of high German officials choose a spouse of a darker-hued race? They have been taught from birth by their parents that all races are equal.

Bosnia. NATO "peacekeepers" have demonstrated their commitment to free expression by raiding and shutting down a maverick Bosnian Serb broadcast network that supported the anti-Western stance of "war criminal" Radovan Karadzic and his numerous followers. President Biljana Plavsic, a female stooge, has gone along with the NATO occupiers' demand that all TV production staff be trained by foreign professionals and that an unnamed "foreign official supervise all broadcasts."

From December 1995 to December 1996 more than 118 female members of the U.S. occupying troops in Bosnia were sent home because they were great with child.

Russia. Pravda (Jan. 1997) published an article agreeing with historian Oleg Platonik, who wrote:

The myth of the Holocaust insults humanity for it pictures the Jews as the principal victims of World War II in spite of the fact that they actually suffered less, not more, than the other peoples that were pulled into the murderous conflict. Humanity paid for the war with some 55 million lives. The actual number of Jewish victims was not the mystical number of 6 million but rather about 500,000, according to the calculations of specialists. The myth of the Holocaust also insults the memory of millions of Russians who fell victims to the New World Order. Obviously, it is time to put an end to the talk of the special suffering of the Jewish people. [Source, Spotlight, Oct. 20, 1997]

In its November 23-24, 1996 issue, the Russian National Weekly published a special article by Swiss Holocaust denier Jürgen Graf. By January the magazine had sold 200,000 copies. If the trend towards openness about the Holocaust in Russia continues, historians interested in truth better start learning Russian.

Israel. "Democratic" Israel kidnapped Adolf Eichmann from Argentina and delivered him to a Chosen hangman. "Democratic" Israel kidnapped Mordechai Vanunu in Italy and deposited him in a jail cell, where he has been kept in solitary confinement ever since. "Democratic" Israel assassinated Gerald Bull, a Canadian non-Jew who was rumored to be working on a supergun for Saddam Hussein. "Democratic" Israel murdered German scientists working on advanced weaponry for the Egyptians. "Democratic" Israel is now considering various scenarios for the assassination of Victor Ostrovsky, an ex-Mossad agent who has been spilling the beans on the dirty work that Mossad has been engaged in over the years.

Yosef Lapid, former head of Israeli TV, said he would eliminate Ostrovsky, but wimped out on the basis that being an Israeli official his involvement might cause an international scandal. For this reason he hopes that a "good Jew" in Canada will do the job. Abe Rosenthal, the rabid Jewish racist who writes a column for the "good, gray" N.Y. Times, heartily approves assassinating high profile Israeli "traitors."

Jewish murderer Samuel Sheinbein is still holed up in Israel and the press continues to be full of "will he" or "won't he" be extradited stories. Jewish law forbids the extradition of any Jew who seeks refuge in Israel no matter what his crime. This backs up what Instauration has said time and time again, namely that one compelling reason for the establishment of the Israeli state was to provide a safe house for Jewish criminals.

Orthodox rabbis in Israel do not consider the majority of American Jews to be Jews at all. One of the two chief rabbis of Israel, Eliahu Bakshi-Doron, refers to them as "lost souls" and goes so far as to say that many Reform rabbis in the U.S. don't even believe in God. American Reform and Conservative Jews contribute millions of dollars to Israel. Prime Minister Netanyahu is forced to tiptoe around the issue because most of the hardline Orthodox support his party.

South Africa. He used to be a sort of God on earth when he got out of jail after 27 years and was soon transfigured into President. Today, however, Nelson Mandela is descending dramatically in the popularity polls. Poor blacks say he has done nothing for them. As for whites, they have retreated into homes protected by high walls, barbed wire and electronic security systems. The South African murder rate is eight times that of the U.S., three times that of the American rape rate.

Mandela lost some of his iconic aura with Westerners when he visited Libya

The best of friends and received a heart-warming welcome from Muammar Gaddafi.

Mandela's ex-wife, Winnie, is now almost as popular as he is, especially since Mandela himself is believed to have clandestinely approved the abduction of a witness who was going to testify in an upcoming trial that Winnie had personally joined in the murder of a young, 14-year-old black.

Haiti. It's a waste of time to inter any valuables with the dead in the main cemetery of Port-au-Prince, a large portion of which has been dug up by looters in their frenzied search for gold teeth, bronze and iron coffin handles and other saleable items. Even floral wreaths have been carried off before they had a chance to wilt. The exposed corpses are left to decompose in the scalding Haitian sun.

Mexico. Isaac Saba Raffael has the same ingrained habit of his racial cousins in other countries, that is, to acquire control of the blatherbox. Isaac obeyed his "genetic" command by accumulating 22% of Television Azteca, which, when the stock went public, brought him and his brother a cool $600 million—a pile that is only part of the huge fortune that makes him the richest man in Mexico. It would be interesting to know how many other Latin American Jews own radio and television stations in countries where they comprise only a tiny fraction of the population. Does the ownership of large slices of the media occur by chance or are there certain genes at work?

Wake Up or Die

An Electronic Magazine for White Americans,

Especially for White Americans whose ancestors paid for this land with blood and created this nation with courage, vision, hardship and sweat.

We have been suckered, duped, and manipulated.

We stand upon the bones of our ancestors, and yet
We have been swindled out of the inheritance of our nation.

We have been subjected to decades of virulent anti-White propaganda.

For decades, White Americans have been politely committing national suicide so as not to offend others who may be envious of them.

White Americans have been the biggest soft target the world has ever known.
Genocide is being perpetrated against White Americans.

It is time to Wake Up.

It is time to unmask and dismantle the parasitic monsters who feed on White Americans.

Let this be the end of fear, and the time we stand together and face the facts.
